In applying to the court for a definition of his powers, Mr. Justice W. G. Roach, commissioner, simultaneously shut off hearings until the court has ruled on the appeal. The case will be argued Monday, with an early judgment expected.

Lawyer Wallon C. Rose won the court move on behalf of Feeley—the second time he has carried an issue to that tribunal from the commission. After Mr. Justice Roach refused his application that the commissioner himself should excuse Feeley from giving self-incriminating evidence.

The 52-year-old Feeley, reputed kingpin of a large segment of organized Ontario gambling in partnership with Joseph McDermott, staged a new tactic shortly after his long - awaited appearance on the stand Wednesday following weeks of evidence in which the names of the pair figured predominantly. The commission had issued orders on the perimeter of their operations, Feeley and his personal and provincial Evidence Acts purporting to shelter witnesses against them in courts later, Mr. Rose contended that actually these statutes did not provide protection in this case and claimed, instead, that the new Bill of Rights would excuse a witness from giving incriminating evidence at all.

Mr. Justice Roach refused to go along with this contention but granted Mr. Rose's alternative application that the issue be placed before the court under procedure laid down in legislation covering royal commissions.

Up to the time this battle of legal technicalities began, the commission had learned little from Feeley, a thick - set, square - faced man who had

NFLD. PREMIER FLEMING TANGLE OVER ADDRESS

Talk on Dollar Is Not Given

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The finance minister was willing. The premier said no. The club president said "you'd better ask." So the finance minister didn't.

It all boiled up today into an uproarious a row as the federal election campaign has seen so far.

The not-so-long-range duel between Finance Minister Fleming and Newfoundland's Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood—they were only rooms apart in the Newfoundland Hotel—developed Thursday when Mr. Fleming was about to speak to the St. John's Rotary Club on the question of the Canadian dollar.

It was to have been a non-political address. Still, the dollar, as the campaign approaches its eighth and final week, is a touchy question. Mr. Smallwood, familiarly known as Joey in Newfoundland, thought was too touchy.

He sent an ultimatum to Club President Frederick MacDonald: "Cancel it or else."

WOULD WITHDRAW

The "or else" was that the Newfoundland government would withdraw sponsorship of a regional Rotary conference luncheon here next week. Not only that, Mr. Smallwood said, he would have nothing to do with the club in future.

Mr. MacDonald whispered to Mr. Fleming. Mr. MacDonald rose to say that the finance minister had "kindly consented" to accept the club's withdrawal of its invitation to speak. The guests — and Mr. Fleming — ate their luncheon and dispersed.

No one at the luncheon had anything to say at the time. There was plenty of comment, later, in Ottawa.

In Quebec City, Prime Minister Diefenbaker's aide, Fleming's chief, exclaimed:

"What are we coming to in this nation? Is freedom of speech to be killed? Is freedom of speech to be killed? Is freedom of speech to be killed, he said.

WRITTEN TO TORONTO

In Toronto, Mitchell Sharp, Liberal opponent of Mr. Fleming in Eglinton, invited the minister to make a speech on the dollar in Toronto. He said Smallwood "has no right to dictate to Canadians what Mr. Smallwood presented Mr. Fleming speaking.

National officials of the Rotary Club could not be reached for comment.

At a rally after the luncheon, Finance minister himself said the Canadian fall of 92½ cents does not mean freedom of speech "is dead, buried, cremated and permission" of Mr. Smallwood.

Mr. Fleming was in St. John's on a two-day political visit. He had been invited to address the Rotary Club.

A few minutes after the luncheon got under way the premier came from the premier that he wished to see chairman Fleming at nearby room. They hurried out while Mr. Fleming sat silent at the head table.

Mr. MacDonald returned to

Prince Returns Home After Plea To End Callousness to Wild Life

NEW YORK (CP) — Prince Bernhard flying visit to New York Thursday to plead for better conservation laws throughout the world.

Ending a five-week visit to Europe, the prince flew from Vancouver by way of New York to address a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria for the World Wildlife Fund in the United States.

He returned to London by air today.

The arrival in London he drove straight to Windsor Castle to have tea with his two twin young daughters for their 12th birthday.

Prince Bernhard also piloted the two - engined aircraft that brought him to New York from Toronto, had been attending sessions in Canada of the Second Commonwealth Study Conference, of which he is chairman.

The prince told 1,500 guests that 250 species of animals and birds are threatened with extinction because of the "sheer callousness of mankind."

He called for international backing of the World Wildlife Fund, which he is British president, with headquarters in Switzerland, was established in the six years and already has more than $200,000 for conservation projects ranging from the preservation of the white rhino in Uganda to the care of the Hawaiian goose.

Prince Bernhard noted that 100 species of animals and wild birds—"species that took millions of years to develop"—have become extinct in the last 2,000 years.

He blamed inadequate conservation measures and powerful new pest extermination techniques, along with what he termed "status killers" and "killers for profit."

Tidy Scarboro Home Said Used as 'Front'

TORONTO (CP) — Sixteen children aged from a few months to three years were taken in by the children's aid societies Thursday after they were found in a car outside a downtown house.

Police said the cot - filled building appeared to have been operated as a nursery.

Police and health officials who raided the house found a teen-age girl leading the babies into the car. The girl disappeared after the infants were ordered taken into the building.

Sgt. John Stewart said police found children's underwear drying on a clothesline over a lilac bush and filthy back yard.

Children's Aid Society officials said the children were being cared for on short - term and week-to-week basis and had been left by parents at a well-kept home in suburban Scarborough and then transported to the dwelling where they were found.

Seven children had already been taken in as wards of the premises before police and health officials arrived in response to a complaint that someone was operating a "baby farm."

Police said they found no evidence that the baby's clothing was rags.

Society officials said some of the children had been carried down the stairs to the car floor window.

Worried parents who besieged police Thursday did not know their children were not kept at the more respectable address.

Miss Florence Schill of the Children's Aid Society said the Scarborough home was apparently a "front."

FOSTER HOMES OVERTAXED

Another CAS official said the children were in filthy conditions. "Some were in rags."

Mrs. Walter Johnston said the children's good clothing was taken off when they left the Scarborough home and they were then clothed in rags.

"When they were returned to their parents," he said "they were washed and dressed in their own clothes."

The children were placed in foster homes for the night and will be given physical examinations today.

CAS officials said the person who operated the house had no licence for either a day nursery or a foster home.

French Filly Winner of Epsom Oaks

EPSOM, England (CP)—The French filly Reine Imperiale won the 184th running of the Epsom Oaks, Britain's top race for three-year-old fillies, Thursday.

She finished a length ahead of Saint - Martin, who was judged to have finished a nose ahead of H. J. Joel's British betting favorite, Ann's Side Story in the $60,000 race.

KENNEDY TO ASK CONGRESS CUT INCOME TAXES

Will Be First Cut In Nine Years

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy has decided to ask Congress next January to reduce all United States income tax rates to help prevent the U.S. economy from "running out of gas."

In the wake of the sharp stock market drop last week and other indications of declining American confidence in the future, Kennedy took steps Thursday to make clear his tax-cut message will go to congress next January, aiming at a net tax reduction.

Callin again on Congress to arm him with requested power to control wages and costs at any time "should a new recession threaten to engulf us," Kennedy hinted he may demand tax cuts sooner than next January if the economy got into a tailspin.

But he felt that on the whole, the economy is continuing to rise, though it probably would fall short of his mid-1963 goals of a reduction in U.S. unemployment from the present 5.3

Fire Rating Tweed Forest District

FIRE RATING . . . . . ES

Hazy smoke was seen in the air over the Tweed Forest District yesterday but Lands and Forests officials believe it came from fires in the Quebec district.

The fire rating in the district was reported high today with the area rapidly drying out.

One fire near Long Lac in Barrie township is being patrolled.

United Appeal Budget Board Holds Meeting

The committee which ultimately decides the annual objective of the Belleville United Appeal, the budget committee met early this week to consider the estimates submitted by the 11 participating agencies for their operation in 1963.

The committee, following the submission of a certified statement of its operational expenses by each agency, investigates the financial position and requirements of each and then submits to the board of directors an annual objective with a breakdown as to how this amount is to be distributed amongst the member agencies.

At this week's meeting the 1963 estimates of all of the 11 agencies were considered. Each is now being advised of the committee's findings and another meeting will be arranged in the event that further discussion or explanation may be required regarding the committee's decisions or the agency's needs.

The work of the committee is most important, chairman E. G. Gurnett, advises, since it ensures that the amount of money asked for through the United Appeal has been carefully determined following a very thorough investigation of the needs involved.

Accused Pleads Guilty to Two Charges

A Belleville resident, Herbert Genereaux, Pepper Ave., appeared in city court this morning before Magistrate T. Y. Wills on a charge of being in possession of stolen goods and a charge of car theft.

Genereaux elected to be tried by the magistrate and pleaded guilty on both charges. He was charged with being in possession of a quantity of cheese alleged to have been stolen from the Black Diamond Cheese Company warehouse and with the theft of an automobile, property of D. R. McKay of Carnilton.

Inspector J. B. McLauchlan told the court that a complaint had been received by the police department from the assistant harbor master, Allan Roy Bennett, that a window to the warehouse had been broken.

Upon investigation he said, it was learned that 11 boxes of cheese valued at approximately $400, were missing.

He told the magistrate that 10 of these boxes were located on the farm of Wilmot Wilshire near Halloway. The boxes were located in the barn. Mr. Wilshire told police the cheese had been brought in his farm and stored in the barn during his absence.

SOLD TO MERCHANTS

Inspector McLauchlan said on the farm Mr. Wilshire took 10 boxes of cheese to two merchants, one in Belleville and one at Picton, recovering $56.41 for the sale. The inspector said Mr. Wilshire assisted the police department in recovering the cheese from these people. Part of the remaining box was given to Mrs. Wilshire.

He told the magistrate Genereaux was one of four men who visited the Wilshire farm.

On the second charge, car theft, the inspector told the court that a false burglar alarm had been answered at the Ampelfone office on Dundas St. While the officers were there, they heard a car engine starting as though the car was stuck.

Upon investigating they found the accused in a car located in a ditch on the south side of Dundas St.

After further investigation it was learned the car had been taken from a hotel parking lot. The car was the property of R. D. McKay of Carnilton.

Magistrate Wills said in view of the fact that there were other charges pending in the higher offence, he would be unable to grant sentence on the accused at this time. He was remanded for one week.

DRAW IN SPELLING

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials called the United States national spelling bee a draw Thursday and crowned Michael Day, 14, of Hardin, Ill., and Nettie Crawford, 13, of Roswell, N.M., co-champions. They each won $1,000 prize and a sightseeing trip to New York City as the 1962 champions.

Obituaries

MISS KATHLEEN ELEANOR CARSON

In failing health for some time, Miss Kathleen Eleanor Carson, 13 Brown St. died in the Belleville General Hospital early this Friday morning. She was born in this city, 41 years ago, being the daughter of Walter Garfield Carson and the late Mrs. Gladys Muriel Carson and had been a lifelong resident of the community.

Miss Carson was educated in the public and high school in the city and for some years she was a valued employee of McIntosh Brothers. She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and is survived by her father, Walter G. Carson and two brothers, William John and Walter Clifford Carson both of this city.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 80 Highland Avenue. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MISS EMMA ISOBEL DIAMOND

Following a lengthy illness, Miss Emma Isobel Diamond, 55 Highland Avenue, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday afternoon. She was born in Queensboro 84 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Diamond. She had been a resident of this city for 47 years previously residing in Queensboro.

Miss Diamond was well known and highly respected in the community. She was a member of Christ Church and was the last of her family. Surviving are a number of cousins in this city.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Parlors, 80 Highland Avenue. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. MORLEY CURRIE Picton- Toronto

Mrs. Clare Emily Ann Currie, widow of Mr. Morley Currie, died in Tenafly, N.J., on Thursday, June 7th, 1962.

Born in Bertie, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Alexander Clarke, she had resided in Picton and Toronto for many years and was a frequent visitor to this community.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Colin P. (Mary) Hepburn of Belleville, and Mrs. Lawrence (Claire Madeleine) Kelso of Tenafly N.J.; a sister, Edgar (Lottie) Frankish of Toronto; and seven grandchildren. Her son, Dr. George Currie, predeceased her in 1949.

She was a member of the United Church.

Lee E. Grills Speaker at Coffee Parties

Lee E. Grills, Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings South was the honored guest at recent coffee parties given by Mrs. G. M. Gibbons, 40 Linton Park Road, and by Mrs. Arthur Locke, 7 Eastwood Drive.

Mr. Grills addressed both groups briefly, pointing out the expansion which has taken place in Belleville area during the past two years.

He noted that such industries as Deloro Smelting, Mead Johnson and Northern Electric have all expanded their plants and are employing more workers than ever before.

Also prominent at the Trenton Air Station was now the highest on record and more homes than ever built in the area in the past four years than in any previous similar period.

Mr. Grills stated that the Federal Government, under the Conservatives, has done something tangible regarding unemployment. The Conservatives have increased assistance for the construction of educational schools so that technical training may be given on each skilled labor. At the moment, construction is planned for a $1,170,000 addition to the Quinte Secondary School which will provide facilities for the largest Vocational School in Eastern Ontario. The Federal Government is paying 75 per cent of the cost of the construction of this much needed establishment.

The Conservatives have done more for Canada in the years than the Liberals did in twenty-two, Mr. Grills said. Already, several local firms have had orders for exports from the United States and because of the devaluation of the Canadian dollar and resort owners in the Highlands of Hastings County are expecting a record number of visitors from the U.S. this year.

Local merchants will benefit greatly from the money spent during the present year, Mr. Grills stated, and everything possible is being done to make this year in the future if the U.S. visitors are given representation to enable them to do his part in this fight for unemployment, Mr. Grills, in hope to make the title "Hard Working Member" stick, and with your support, I'll return back to Ottawa with renewed vigor and the support for my constituents and for Canada as considered the speaker.

VISITS FACTORIES

A warm, cheery welcome was given to Mr. Grills when he visited several of the factories in the Belleville area this week. Many of the employees made it a point to say they wanted him back on Parliament Hill to continue his efforts for Hastings South.

Several of the New Canadians employed by Mr. Grills told him help and expressed their gratitude to the Conservative Government for reducing the waiting period from 20 to 10 years for citizenship and for the Old Age Pension. They said they knew the Conservative Government was not getting everyone nearly and hoped to see John Diefenbaker holding the reins next year.

Mr. Grills assured them he would continue to do his very effort toward justifying their confidence in him and in the Conservative Party.

Trenton News

By SULA BONTER—Phone 3-3238

Work of Public Relations Officer Outlined to CofC

TRENTON — At noon yesterday, executive members of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce met with Councillor Lloyd Worrall, the town solicitor, W. J. Larry and Elmer Bonter, newly-appointed public relations man for the town, to discuss Mr. Bonter's work in relation to the Chamber of Commerce. Board chamber members and a number of Trenton citizens also questioned town council's wisdom by hiring a man to publicize the town, claiming that this is a Chamber of Commerce function.

The upshot of yesterday's meeting was that the majority of the chamber officials feared that the hiring of Mr. Bonter was a good idea, after his specifications and specific duties were outlined by Councillor Worrall.

Councillor Worrall pointed out that Trenton needed to change its "cross swords" with the chamber when Mr. Bonter's appointment was made. He said that while Mayor MacDonald, Reeve Lawrence and Councillary Nostrand Sprague were very much the same as "gentlemen of the jury after his decision to hire Mr. Bonter was made, the Belleville Intelligencer was severely criticizing the town, brought forward by council and the chamber as a whole.

Councillor Worrall said that Mr. Bonter's duties and qualifications for the position of public relations officer. He has had a wide experience in this type of work. During the war, he was attached to the army as a parastrooper-cameraman and carried out certain public relations duties at the General Head-quarters in England; he has worked as publicity relations man for a number of mining corporations and has worked as a newspaperman. He has also known publications as the Toronto Daily Star, the Ontario Intelligencer and the Toronto Star.

WELL CO-OPERATE

Mr. Bonter will be expected to co-operate with other press representatives and to publicize the 'new image' of Trenton through photographs and press releases. He will also arrange to have Trenton publicized in business publications.

Mr. Bonter will also be required to create a number of annual events which will have the end result of attracting people in numbers to Trenton and to bring pressure to bear on government representatives to further the town's development.

Councillor Worrall assured the Chamber that the town Council's services would be at their beck and call to assist them in the endeavor to "sell" the people of Trenton.

At the end of the two-hour meeting, the general concensus was that the more people publicizing Trenton, the better.

Another good thing to come out of yesterday's meeting was that Councillor Worrall and Chamber director Jack Goldberg will attempt at once to find ways and means of providing the Chamber of Commerce with a permanent headquarters.

Meantime, Mr. Sprague will continue to exercise the duties of secretary at the Dundas Street West office. The tourist booth at the foot of Picton Hill will be open for business as usual this summer, starting in July.

PM Disliked Avro So Killed Arrow, Charge

TRENTON — The theory that the Arrow program was scrapped because "Mr. Diefenbaker didn't like the A. V. Roe people and pulled the rug out from under them," was advanced by Dr. Pauline Jewett in an informal address to upwards of 60 Murray Township Liberals in the Harts' Corners schoolhouse north of Trenton, last night.

Dr. Jewett, the Liberal candidate for Northumberland, said that the Conservative Government had made no provision for the people who were working at Avro when the shut-down came on the Arrow program and that trained personnel had left Canada and gone across the border. Now that the need for a defence aircraft comparable to the Arrow had been established, she said, the government was buying the planes from the United States.

"As for the Bomarc," said Dr. Jewett, "we might as well go back to bows and arrows." "Everywhere I go in every part of the country, I've found people who are unemployed, who can't get employment and who want desperately to be employed," she said.

TRAINING PLAN WRONG

As for the Conservative Government's "crash program that's completely wrong. The vocational training for teen-agers in secondary school level, Dr. Jewett said that the government had gone about providing such courses in the wrong way.

What was needed, said Dr. Jewett, was a re-training program for workers of every age bracket over 40.

She reiterated her party's resolve to provide 10,000 scholarships a year for students at University, should the Liberals be elected.

Dr. Jewett readily admitted that the Liberals might have at least two deficit years, should they take over, but she said that they would be "planned" deficits, and that the money would be spent on projects to "get the country moving."

Dr. Jewett was introduced by Douglas Hubbard, poll chairman for Murray Township and thanked by Murray Township Liberal Association president, Bernard Webb.

Bill Reid, publicity director for Dr. Jewett, announced that national Liberal party leader Lester B. Pearson would be in the Trenton area for a short time on June 14. Mr. Pearson will arrive in Picton by Carrying Place and on through to Trenton.

The committee will work with the Board in completing plans and carrying the project to completion. The new wing is deemed necessary due to the demand for accommodation.

GET STOCKING FISH

Many United States residents come to Canada to fish, but there are others who catch Canadian fish without ever leaving home. In some states, there are ponds which are stocked with pan fish and a rental fee charged fishermen. One of these projects is to be found in Munich, Indiana. This week, a large tanker truck from that city was in Picton where it picked up a cargo of live muskrats (muskrats) which had been caught for them by local fishermen. On occasions, sunfish are also exported to the U.S.A. for a similar purpose.

In the main list, Moore Corporation, Imperial Oil, Consolidated Paper and Aluminium all dropped in a ¼ to one - point range. Algoma Steel and Shawinigan were off ½ while Dominion Foundries and Steel and Canada - Dominion Sugar each fell ¼.

Other losers included Bank of Nova Scotia, Bell Telephone, Company of Canada, off ¼; Distillers Seagrams, down ½ and Imperial Oil, down ⅝.

On the exchange index, industrials slipped .73 to 563.40 and base metals .09 at 189.98. Golds rose .36 to 93.49 and western oils .04 at 101.89. Golds volume was 1,710,000 shares compared with 1,081,000 Thursday.

Farmers' Union Sponsors Political Meeting at Which Three Candidates Are Heard

MELROSE—Old time political campaigning, albeit in modern dress, was brought appear briefly at the township hall here yesterday evening. When the three candidates for Hastings South met under the auspices of the Farmers' Union to state their parties' policies and to answer questions. Over 300 persons from all over the riding appeared on hand, following a parade of signs, complete with hoopla, by some Liberal supporters. The meeting got underway for a two and a half hour run.

Lee Grills, Conservative candidate for re-election, led off. He reflected on his party associations with Tyndinburgh, with many of the people present, and with his duties as Member of Parliament for the past five years.

During that time his goal had been to serve as many people as possible, and to do the best of his ability, he said. He reminded the audience of the groups which had visited him in Ottawa, naming the Farmers' Union and the Cheese Marketing Board.

He called attention to the stabilizing factor in the dairy industry and pointed out that he had supported the amalgamation of three cheese factories in the area. The amalgamation had supported up to 50 per cent of their cost of amalgamation.

He said that he had also spearheaded the 25 cent subsidy on cheese which gave it a favorable export price and helped to eliminate a surplus. He noted that a new warehouse was also built in Belleville for the cheese industry.

Mr. Grills expressed his concern over vertical integration. He said that price support prices had been limited to help keep down overproduction.

A new cold storage warehouse in Belleville was available to handle local producers, he advised. This is expected to be one of the largest in the country and to bring about considerable dollars to the agricultural economy of the area, he said. Various canadian agencies have approved this move, he said.

He also spoke on federal policy concerning the reforestation and farm marginal farm lands and the changes in the Farm Credit Act to enable farmers to get into larger operations.

NDP Platform

Mr. Grills mentioned that none of Red China's payments for Canadian wheat had been defaulted and that this sale helped to reduce the enormous wheat surpluses. He also noted that anti-dumping legislation had protected canadian markets from the surpluses in the United States.

The Conservative candidate said that he was happy to have assisted in the farmers' compensation for animals infected by rabies. He also mentioned that crop insurance was available to any province desiring it, that research was going on, and that the local Indians would be voting in their first federal election on June 18th.

Les Digby, the NDP candidate expressed his amazement as the meeting. He stated that his party was an alternative to the two others who, he claimed, only offered a difference in that one was "in" and the other "wanted in."

He said that the prosperity of Hastings South depends to a great extent upon agriculture. He was not a farm expert, Mr. Digby advised, but would make it his duty to represent the farmers as they should be represented if he was elected. He also would expect to be advised on their problems, he said.

He noted that the Dominion Bureau of Statistics had recorded a 25 percent increase in the cost of services and commodities to the farmer between 1951 and August of 1961 and a 20 percent decrease in the prices received for his produce. He suggested that since the consumer is paying more for this produce that the price increase is going into profits for the middlemen — the processors, wholesalers, truckers and retailers.

Mr. Digby suggested that an NDP government would co-operate with the farmer to ensure that they received a "fair share" by controlling the prices of their produce via a marketing board.

MACHINERY HIGH CLAIMS

The cost-price squeeze on the farmer was also aggravated by the cost of farm machinery he said. This was not due to increased wages, but because the machinery, built by companies which controlled the industry and set "administered prices" were inevitable, the Conservative asserted.

A similar situation exists in produce marketing, Mr Digby suggested. "This points a threat to the family farm," he said. "It will probably be set to raise farm income will surpluses would be taken care of by a world food bank, he advised.

Mr. Digby also spoke at length on the NDP's health insurance plan. He called health care a commercial commodity which was only available to those who could pay the price. The NDP, he said, felt that it should be available to all regardless of their financial status.

He accused the Liberals' health plan of having been "emasculated" by the Conservatives and of having been "watered-down" and the Conservatives' health plan of being as extending only as far as "another Royal Commission."

He explained the difficulties in paying or budgeting for health care by the average canadians and stated that the NDP proposed that everyone should plan pay for the care required by those who were sick. This would also included a system of social work also, he said. This is how Mr. Digby explained the basic issue of the election.

The candidate Robert Temple noted that Canadian lives were in "the closing days of a supposedly democratic campaign" and described the existent tension of being indicative that many Canadians are losing their apathy about the affairs of the country.

He stated that although he was a novice in agricultural problems a year ago when he was nominated as Liberal candidate, he had since become an agricultural advisory committee of the party because he has made many personal visits to every part of the riding to acquaint himself with the problems of the farmers.

TRADE PROBLEMS

Two major problems exist, he said — the cost-price squeeze and the Defence Production Act by which he could enable farmers to get into larger operations.

TRADE PROBLEMS

Two major problems exist, he said — the cost-price squeeze and the Defence Production. He described how these had affected a number of local farmers and noted that only 19 cash crop farmers were left in Thurlow township, town-ships and that even their existence was threatened by a cancing policy which was established on own farm just outside the city limits.

The farmer puts a lot into the economy of this area as well as Ontario, he said, and of a free society and he must continue to go so, Mr. Temple said.

The Liberal policy is to provide aid to any citizen without requiring him to sacrifice any of his individuality or freedom by the establishment of an Industrial Development Bank to allow canadians to borrow. It will give farmers the opportunity to organize and build their own processing plants and their operative basis, Mr. Temple said.

"I pledge myself to fight for the establishment of this policy," Mr. Temple pointed out.

Mrs. George Williams of Springbrook spoke on the Farmers' Union, its ideals, activities and ambitions. She mentioned that a number of local farmers have had to take outside jobs in order to meet the obligations incurred in running a farm. If he did not do this, he said, he would be unable to become head over heels in debt.

The Farmers' Union is a non-partisan body which wants action no matter when party is in power, she said.

DISCUSSION PERIOD

Following Mrs. Williams remarks a general discussion period was held with much lively comment passing back and forth between those in the audience and the candidates and among the members of both parties.

Mr. Temple and Mr. Digby got into a slight discussion over the issue as to whether or not doctors have any freedom under the NDP health plan. Mr. Temple stated that the Liberal plan was considerate of individual personal liberty while the NDP plan did not. Mr. Digby replied that there was no interference on how doctors practised medicine under the NDP plan. The doctor-patient relationship was also to be preserved, he said.

On a discussion about butter prices and the selling of surplus butter abroad at a lower price than it was sold for in Canada, one suggestion was made at the idea of having to pay a subsidy for this out of taxes. Les Grills pointed out that it's his butter, "Yes", said a heckler, "but it's our taxes."

Mr. Temple suggested that it is such a market as this that should be developed, similar to co-operative effort sell their produce at a competitive price and realize a greater profit themselves.

Mr. Digby said that he felt the selling price in Canada should be the same as the price that butter was being sold for on foreign markets.

A Belleville citizen asked Mr. Grills why the government continued to sell wheat to Red China. Les replied that when Lowell Thomas had recently read in a Readers' Digest article that this wheat was being resold by the Red Chinese to Cuba and other Communist countries. Mr. Grills stated then he was unaware that this situation existed.

The meeting, which had been chaired by Mr. Tyndinburgh concluded with donuts and coffee for all present. Reeve Charles Lott of Tyendinaga welcomed the visitors.

KENNEDY TO ASK

per cent to four per cent of the total working force.

"There is no need for this country to stand helplessly by and watch a recovery run out of gas," the president said confidence as he announced his tax cut plan and referred to other government proposals to stimulate business investment.

"We have a program to boost and I hope that all those who have a stake in it, about their stocks or their profits or their jobs will help us get action on this program."

U.S. federal individual income tax rates which Kennedy says are heavy in comparison with these in the European Common Market range from 20 to 91 per cent. Most states also levy income taxes. In addition to a federal corporation income tax of 52 per cent there is a 30 per cent levy of about 52 per cent.

Kennedy's proposed rate cut — the first in nine years—would be accompanied by measures to broaden the tax base, though Kennedy emphasized the net effect will be an actual saving to taxpayers. While he declined to indicate what size of reduction he had in mind, one of his associates said they are expected to be in the vicinity of 15 to 25 per cent.

So concerned is the U.S. with the health of its economy that Kennedy devoted a major part of his message to the nation to assessing domestic economic questions, his major concern, it was clear, being the prospect that slight per cent, be increased beyond the present projections.

Stock Market Jitters Boost Price of Gold

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Wide swings in stock prices here and overseas put gold up after months of stability. Gold mining stocks also have been strong, especially on the London market.

Reports of jitters more or less when stocks look uncertain. And helping just now is a big upswing in U.S. imports in a year. This raises anew the problem of a big adverse balance of payments and the renewed outflow of gold to Europe in recent weeks.

The U.S. dollar isn't in any present danger. Pressure on it in world financial marts hasn't been great. Nor is the run on gold. Prices on Wall Street and the rest of big U.S. treasury officials ahead.

The U.S. treasury has new means of protecting the dollar through a pool worked out by the central banks of the United States, Britain, France, West Germany and other financial centres. The pool can be drawn upon to ward off any moderate run of a threatening nature.

But any jump in the price of gold on the London free market catches the eye of those charged with protecting the U.S. dollar. While a run on U.S. gold stores in the fall of 1960 still is fresh, it's not the case.

PRICE WAS UP

Gold was up quoted on the London exchange Thursday at $35.09½ per fine ounce, with $35.08½ the previous day. A few weeks ago it had fallen below $35.08 — roughly the cost of buying an ounce from the U.S. treasury.

The premium now over the U.S. official price could lead European central banks with surplus dollars to exchange them for gold. While a number of these banks, principally the Swiss and French, are doing just that this year, the move was to strengthen their position in international trade. Now with the knowledge and approval of the U.S. government.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar was at a premium of nine per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Montreal reported at noon today. Thursday the noon rate was $1.09. Pound sterling stood at $3.06¾, unchanged.

County Museum To Extend Visiting Hours

Effective this Saturday, June 9, the Hastings County Museum is extending its hours.

From Saturday until mid-September, the museum will be open every afternoon from 2 to 5 and Monday through Friday evenings from 7 to 9.

The museum currently features several varied displays, including a Trenton display opened this week.

Parkdale Ratepayers Hear Many Questions Discussed

Mr. Allan Sills, of the Belleville Minor Sports, led off a busy meeting of the Parkdale Ratepayers' Association on Wednesday evening. Speaking before the business meeting began, Mr. Sills explained the aims, organization and program of minor sports in Belleville.

In operation only over the last four years, he explained that the Sports Council is co-ordinated by Maurice Rollins Construction Ltd., for a donation of $50 by Mr. Rollins.

THANKS EXPRESSED

Hearty votes of thanks were extended to Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hultquist, the retiring Cub leaders, for their many years of community service. The entertainment committee, Victoria Day committee, and refreshing group committee members Gabe Gannon, Jay Ross and Howard Benn, also received votes of appreciation.

Alderman Jack Ellis, City Engineer Dick Kraft, and Plumbing Inspector Tim Keech were then invited into the Association president, who announced that the ratepayers were attending on request to provide more information on the sanitary sewer problem.

"We expect to let the contract very soon," stated the Alderman, "and the system should be in use by the end of October." He noted that there would be a short delay due to difficulties in obtaining pipe.

City Engineer Kraft noted that service to certain lower lying areas would be difficult. He presented difficulties and these plans were still under consideration.

Plumbing Inspector Keech advised that he would make himself available to residents at their home if further assistance requests were made beforehand by telephone.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

"Every house present difficult problems," said Mr. Keech, but I can assure you I'll make a situation until I see it."

For over an hour the guests answered questions and provided explanations for individual members. Information was given on both required and recommended procedures, types and sizes of pipe, for the backup as well as outdoor installatiods.

Mr. Sills noted that a local area contractor approached the executive before the meeting to ask if he would be allowed to attend with the membership present. An attractive price covering the installation from the city line to the house wall was quoted by the spokesman.

The sixty attending members expressed their appreciation to the alderman, city engineer and plumbing inspector with prolonged applause, when the meeting adjourned.

CUTS CABINET SALARIES

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (Reuters)—Foreign Minister Evariste Kimba of Katanga said today the government has decided to cut the salaries of cabinet ministers by 20 per cent. He added that by what the salaries were or how much would be saved.

Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Trading on slaughter cattle was active and prices were fully steady on all classes and grades at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Choice vealers showed some price losses with lower grades of calves maintaining steady rates. Hog and sheep prices were sharply higher and lamb prices were unchanged.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 8,200, about 1,400 head less than last week and 500 head more than the same week in 1960. Receipts from Western Canada were more than double those of last week at 4,350 head. Shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughterers were half those of last week at three loads. Exports of the market to the United States numbered 11 head, as compared with 26 head last week.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers 24.50-27.50; with a few fancy feedlot steers up to 27.10; good 24.00; medium 22.00; common 17.00; good heifers 22.00 with choice 23.50-24.50 with sales up to 25; medium 19.50-21.50; common 17.00; choice fed yearlings 25.00 with an odd top to 25; good 22.50; good cows 18.00 with sales to 19.50 and some heifery cows to 20; medium 16.50-17.50; common 15.50-16.50; canners and cutter cows 13.00; good heavy bologna bulls 19.50-20.50 with sales to 21.00; common and medium 17.00.

Replacement cattle: Good Ontario stockers 22.00-26.00 with Western up to 27.50; common and medium stockers and steer heifers 21.00.

Calves: Choice vealers 33.00 with odd tops to 36.50; good 30.00; medium 28.00; common 22.00; boners 17.00.

NFLD. PREMIER,

say that the premier regarded Mr. Fleming's proposed speech as political and he'd better not make it.

Mr. Fleming said at a press conference later that he had offered to stand up and make the withdrawal of the club invitation to speak himself but Mr. Smallwood had said that if he even got to his feet, the government's dinner would be cancelled.

'PAY NO ATTENTION'

The colorful premier, to address the Rotary Club convention here June 13, also had his say later. The gist of it was: "Pay no attention to Mr. Fleming down here trying to grab a few votes. He's on the way out."

The Canadian dollar, pegged May 3 at 92.5 cents in relation to the U.S. dollar, is the hottest political issue in Canada, the premier said, and the invitation to Mr. Fleming, who had done the pegging, to discuss it made the Rotary Club a partisan body.

Mr. Fleming had the last word of the day. At an evening political rally, he said:

"You are going to have a visit from Mr. Casey up here trying to learn something about the tactics of a dictatorship."

A Poor Analogy

The Archdeacon of Chesterfield, England, has listed a dozen rules for turning a child into a crook.

It is a novel and attention-attracting, method of getting across his opinions as to how this undesirable result may be avoided.

With much of what he says, most of us will agree.

There will, however, be a difference of opinion regarding Rule 6.

Says the Archdeacon: "Let him read any printed matter he can get his hands on. Be careful the silverware and drinking glasses are sterilized and let his mind feed on garbage."

The factually-minded will complain that there is a false analogy here. Even if silverware and glasses were sterilized, which in most families they are not, this would be done because of the existence of germs. It might be reasonable to ban certain printed matter for this reason—that it might have actual germs on it. But to protect a child from all mental contact with evil or distasteful things is an unreasonable as an attempt to protect him from contact with all physical dirt. The first time he visits a barnyard unchaperoned, his ignorance is going to result in him getting terribly messy.

The other day we heard a United Church clergyman whose charge is not so many miles from Belleville remark that he let his daughter read anything she liked. "If she is old enough to understand it, she is old enough to read about it," he argued. His companion, of another faith, remarked on how, despite all the worry about the effect of the knowledge of evil on young people, most of them are unaffected. "Young people," he said, "are much more tough-minded than we think."

We think he was right and we think that this tough-mindedness, this ability to come into contact with dirt and emerge clean, is best promoted by gradual exposure, rather than by attempting the impossible and "sterilizing" everything a child reads.

Suit-Case Bombs

Some fanciful accounts have been written of the danger of saboteurs in this atomic age, but most of us probably dismissed these stories as merely idle fiction.

Now Joseph Godber, Britain's delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference, has stated that a nuclear warhead can be contained in a cylinder five feet long and two feet in diameter.

This brings the nuclear saboteur frighteningly near the realm of possibility, although there would appear to be some practical difficulties in handling these weapons in bulk, concealing them, in Godber's word, "in the walls, in the ceiling, under the banks of seats around us." Such cylinders would have to be camouflaged. The saboteur, though, would probably be equal to appropriate ingenuity enough, a cylinder of the required size would fit very comfortably into the average coffin.

Godber's concern, though, is not so much with the danger of present delivery of nuclear warheads in this covert fashion, but with the fact that such system could be used after the nations had supposedly disarmed. There will, he said, always be enough uranium 235 in existence to be put into a fast reactor to make several weapons. He was concerned with the Soviet Union's refusal to recognize the existence of such an "appalling problem." This was an obvious reference to the problem of inspection.

Surely, though the difficulty is even more appalling than this reference would suggest. It represents a menace which will be continuing and which does not involve the good faith of one or two nations, but of every nation which has a fast reactor—and the time may well come when every nation has such equipment. It would seem to make it even more imperative that the nuclear powers reach a speedy agreement on the elimination of present methods of delivery—missiles and bombers. For eventually the only hope the world can have that some nation will not despatch a nuclear bomb or two by crate or suit-case will be that nuclear warfare has been accepted by all governments as unthinkable—as unthinkable as human sacrifice or cannibalism.

Just as engineering, politics, agriculture, all depend on a complicated system of checks and balances, so does life. It's impossible to remove all the stresses and tensions, but it is possible, and essential, to understand them and meet them.—Margaret Miles, headmistress of a London girl's school.

Work as if you were going to live 100 years. Pray as if you were to die tomorrow.—Benjamin Franklin.

Improving Shakespeare

Washington Post

With a sadness that suggests an acute esthetic sensibility, a movie director named John Farrow has reached the conclusion that "Shakespeare is poison at the box office." But he has not given way to despair. He is determined to help poor Bill out. He's calling his million-dollar production "The Moor of Venice", lamented rhetorically, for, "It's a great drama, but it would be sudden death to call it Othello."

Certain other improvements have also been made. For example, some lovey scenes that Shakespeare unaccountably left out will be inserted by Mr. Ainsworth, who promises his customers: "It should be very sexy." Moreover, Shakespeare, busy fellow, could not have his name listed until the very end, and the film credits will suggest that Mr. Ainsworth is the author, a device that may be a bit more honest than the film director realizes.

Surely Mr. Ainsworth will find many more ways of improvement. A creaky vehicle names Hamlet has been arsenic at the box office for centuries. Under the revised title of "It Happened at Elsinore," this old classic could be made palatable again — the title of course would be changed to the theme song which will be sung by that eminent Scandinavian crooner, Mr. Elvis Presley. But the play in its unencapped form is full of very fine lines, obscure language and gassy philosophic. Take, for example, a speech by the Prince of Denmark:

The obvious course is to eliminate Hamlet altogether and turn the story into a romantic thrill show. Fortinbras, who wants to marry Ophelia but first has to fumigate the castle and get rid of some old ghosts. For comic relief, Fortinbras could have a little hot trouble with Polonius, and a few snappy musical numbers could bring in Queen Gertrude and the Navy Danish Army Choir. In the end, Fortinbras would take his bride — where else — to Rome, where the whole thing would be filmed anyway.

It would undoubtedly win Mr. Ainsworth an Academy Award, and as for Shakespeare, who cares about him? Certainly not Mr. Ainsworth.

Quip Often Most Deadly

Brantford Expositor

A politician's impact may be less in what he says than how he says it. A well-aimed quip can be worth a ton of argument. At this year's Tory convention in Ottawa, the Americans are supreme. The late Al Smith was such a born spellbinder. His aim was never more deadly than the day he raked his opponent, Theodore Roosevelt, by saying, Colonel would be a powerhouse."

"If bunk were electricity, the Three of Smith's best phrases live on in Bartlett's Quotations, independent of the dragons they once slew: "Nobody shoots Santa Claus," "Wait 'till the dead," and "No matter how thin you slice it, it's still baloney."

The deft personal epithet is a special tool of politics. It can be a powerful bludgeon, but more often it is a pointed instrument made to order for use against inflated objects like political opponents. The late President "Silent Cal" Coolidge, struck an acute observer as a man who had been "weaned on a pickle."

Russia Like Church-State

Montreal Devoir

Imagine a church that possessed all the power of the state, and a state which possessed power over nearly everything: well, that's Soviet society.

To be sure, it's a sort of anti-church; but the bureaucrat is like a little bishop who is his own secular arm. And the local party official is like a parish priest who wields the authority of both party and state.

The analogy serves as well for the goals of the state. In Russia, you're free, only insofar as you identify with the community which the party is the embodiment.

Ideology bring an ultra-paternalism of the elite into the Soviet party-state. The masses participate in a truth which they've never examined. Criticism and self-criticism are limited to methods, not aims.

The problem is never: do the masses want it? It's always: Will the masses follow?

Discussions on Education Are Inconclusive

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When most people think of the word "education," they think of a pupil as a sort of animate sausage casing. Into this empty casing, the teachers are supposed to stuff "education."

But genuine education, as we have known more than 2,000 years ago, is diametrically the stuffings of information into a person, but rather eliciting knowledge from him; it is the drawing out of what is in the mind.

"The most important part of education," once wrote William Ernest Hocking, the distinguished Harvard philosopher, "is this instruction of a man in what he has inside of him."

And, as Edith Hamilton has reminded us, Socrates never said, "I know, learn from me." He said, rather, "Look into your own sleeves and find the spark of truth that God has put into every heart—and that only you can bring to light."

In the dialog called the "Meno," Socrates takes an ignorant slave boy, without any day of schooling, and proves to him a mathematical truth that the boy really "knows" geometry because the principles and axioms of geometry are latent in his mind, waiting to be called out.

So many of the discussions and controversies about the content of what we teach are futile and inconclusive because they are concerned with what should "go into" the student, rather than with what should be taken out, and how it can best be done.

The college student who once said to me, after a lecture, "I spend so much time cramming that I don't have a chance to learn anything," was succinctly expressing the whole problem with the sausage-casing view of education.

He was being so stuffed with miscellaneous facts, with such an indigestible mass of material, that he had no time (and was given no encouragement) to draw on his own resources, to use his own mind for analyzing and synthesizing and evaluating this material.

Education, to me, is any meaning beyond the purpose of creating well-informed citizens, must elicit from the pupil what is latent in every human being — the traits of reason, and some knowledge of what is proper for men to be and do, the ability to sift evidence and draw conclusions that can generally be asserted to be of open minds and warm hearts.

Pupils are not like oysters than sausages. The job of teaching is not to stuff them and then shell them out. Nor is to help them open and reveal the riches within. There are pearls in each of us, if only we know how to cultivate them with ardor and persistence.

His Purse Too Plump

Watertown Times

The biggest problem with most of us where money is concerned is acquiring it — and then being able to hang onto it. However, Sheik Shakbut Bin Sultan Bin Zaid, 58-year-old ruler of the tiny sheikdom of Abu Dhabi on the Persian gulf, has a slightly different problem. He has so much money he can't get it all under the bed. Since he distrusts banks, the sheik prefers to sleep on his money.

And the money is really something. Like a Texan, he has struck it rich in oil. An oil boom which a few years ago made the sheik of neighboring Kuwait one of the world's richest men has spread to little Abu Dhabi. Geologists say the "field" may have more oil than is known to underlie the entire United States.

Best estimates of an International combine of British, American and French companies engaged in the oil project are that Sheik Shakbut's oil royalties may reach $1,000,000 a day — another day of the week — including Sunday. And how can a man who pile $7,000,000 a week under his bed, particularly when it's a low bed like the sheik's, sleep?

His couldn't possibly spend even a fraction of his oil loot in sheikdom. Abu Dhabi, which he has been ruling for 34 years is a most undeveloped area. Most British approval, contains only a few hundred miles of dirt to stand on the Persian gulf. And he has only 18,000 subjects.

So far, Sheik Shakbut has trusted no one, perhaps because nine of his eleven predecessors were slain. And his wizened hodyguard not only constantly stands by with a sword, but also tastiest every cup of coffee offered the sheik. No bank will be paying interest on his money.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 8th, 1942

According to residents in Foster Ward, who reside adjacent to the Belleville Harbor, the water is higher in the harbor than the waters of the bay. This is because of the fact that it has been at this time of year than it has been in some considerable time. Continued dry spells are attributed the principal factor in the raising of the elevation of the harbor waters.

The Greek community of the city has come through nobly in its response to the appeal of the Red Cross in the current campaign. Organized by Messrs. Jos. Annis and Paul Magda, these residents have raised and presented to the campaign committee the sum of $234. The canvas was undertaken by these gentlemen who did the splendid organization, and whose efforts resulted in the generous contribution.

The promptness with which girl trainees who have taken machine shop and bench work instruction at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational Institute, Dominion-Provincial War Emergency course, are placed in industry is evidenced by the letter received by Mr. George Ferguson local instructor, from Miss Betty Wood of Foster Ward, former student. Miss Wood took the three weeks' training course at the Collegiate and on completion of her course was posted in a small arms factory near Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Adams of Henry Street observed their 35th wedding anniversary yesterday and received the congratulations and good wishes of many friends.

Dr. St. Charles of Toronto, formerly of Belleville is spending a few days in town.

Mrs. Wm. E. Ketcham and son Charles, of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Fowler of Toronto, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edwards of Brockville.

Mr. Vernon Clarke of Hamilton, Ontario provincial bailiff, and Mr. Russell Cole of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, have passed successful examinations in pedagogy at the College of Education, Toronto. Mr. W. H. Bullock of Ottawa, formerly of Belleville, also passed the same examinations, and all have earned the degree of Bachelor of Pedagogy, or B.P. degree and Mr. W. F. Youdale of the staff of the Belleville Collegiate Institute, also passed the examinations and received the degree.

The Grand Trunk Baseball team now leads the Ontario League. Yesterday the local team defeated Cobourg Shamgrys, the score being 7 to 5.

All the boys played good ball and Stan Hagerman narrowly escaped being carried from the field on the shoulders of the fans when he pounded out a three-bagger in the 9th inning which tied the score. Williams, the Belleville southpaw hurler, did good work and struck out sixteen men during the game.

In one inning he struck out three Cobourg players in fast as they came to bat. He walked five men and allowed nine hits. The following composed the team: Grand Trunks — Mc-Meagher, V. Weir, H. Mills, W. Mills, C. W. Ross, A. Belcheson, Carey, Hagerman, Crook and Williams. Cobourgs — Thompson, J. Turpin Tyson, McCrimmon, Sidney Higginbotham, Piper, Butler, Derry, Jack Rosevear of Port Hope was umpire at the plate and J. Wilson of Oshawa on the bases.

In the earliest days of Belleville, Front Street was laid out through a swamp and the pioneer settlers traversed it on stepping stones. It is the intention of the present rulers of this solar and thriving city to revert to the original rost condition.

Anglers who are interested in speckled trout fishing will be pleased to learn that Inspector Hearst of this city, the Dominion Fishery Overseer, recently placed 100,000 speckled trout fry in Squires Creek, Rawdon township.

Parade of Children Is Called Inspiring

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

It was with mixed feelings that we watched the parade of Brownies, Cubs, Girl Guides, Scouts last Sunday — deep emotion, and pride in these fine children of the men and women of tomorrow.

We feel that every parent who had a child in that parade should be very proud and most grateful to those people who devote their time and energy to the training of our young sters. They deserve much credit and the full co-operation of every parent.

We all realize that every child is not a potential leader, but one thing sure, the things they are taught in these organizations are all good and should help them all through the years, to be better citizens.

It was a wonderful and inspiring parade.

Some Tips on What to Do In Cases of Head Injury

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My three-year-old son fractured his skull 15 months ago. X-rays and an electroencephalogram showed no brain injury but he still has frequent headaches, although his reflexes, balance, and alertness are normal. — Mrs. E.J.T.

By the age of three, the plates of the skull have joined firmly so the brain is entirely enclosed in the rigid skull.

Therefore a blow strong enough to fracture the skull in this letter Mrs. T. added that it was a crack, but without any of the bone being depressed, which would exert pressure on the brain) will jar the brain so it strikes bruisingly against the other side of the skull.

This is a concussion. It can cause varying degrees of loss of consciousness, dizziness, headache. Often the symptoms disappear rapidly. Sometimes headaches — and sometimes dizziness — will persist.

This is called "post-traumatic" headache. Curiously, it seems to bear no direct relationship to the severity of the original injury. It may occur after a mild concussion, or after unconsciousness, or it may not follow a much harder blow.

Often it is thought to be always potentially serious and should never be taken lightly, it is quite possible that time will now take care of this little fellow's headaches.

If not, then another electroencephalogram, X-rays of the ear, or perhaps X-rays with the introduction of air (a pneumoencephalogram) of the skull would reveal any damage which may have developed later.

There are various possibilities as to the precise cause of the headaches. One is spasm of the neck muscles which can persist a long time after the original pain at the back of the head or neck region.

Massage of the neck and application of heat will relieve pain and spasm and relax the muscles.

Other possibilities are adhesions — the brain lining, after the injury, adhering to the skull, and the chance that blood vessels may at times dilate and cause headache.

In the absence of demonstrable injury — and the youngster's reflexes, balance and alertness are a good sign — there may be nothing else to do except relieve pain when it is severe. One of the mild (and probably old) prescribe suitable dosage for a little child) probably containing a little caffein which often helps immensely.

The foregoing applies as much also to children in cases of head injury.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any cure for "geographical tongue"? My four-year-old daughter has it. — Mrs. H.S.

It's a harmless condition that requires no treatment. To most people, it may indicate faulty diet, or it may mean nothing of any consequence.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a supposedly normal woman have a baby after a hysterectomy? — Mrs. M.L.

The simple answer is "yes." Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with fissures, fistulas, itching and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Tribune Syndicate, P.O. Box 1538, Chicago, Ill., requesting a copy of my booklet, "Facts You Must Know About Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling and postage.

Mighty Influence

Fort William Times-Journal

England is compressed into a total number of acres that is mighty small when compared with the vast spaces of the earth. And yet English has become the most widely spoken language in the world, and it is spreading faster than ever.

Today 300,000,000 people — about one in 11 — use English as their primary language. And another 200,000,000 understand it to some degree.

What a tribute to the influence of the Anglo-Saxon race! of the Anglo-Saxon race!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The smile season has arrived. For the next couple of months, we meet are going to be in wrong with half our friends and acquaintances. We are going to break them, high hat them, upstage them. We are going to get reputations as snobs, boundaries.

The reason being that our female acquaintances are going to be behind their sun glasses. And behind their sun glasses, they're not looking at a lady-friend behind a mask?

It is bad enough trying to remember them under the best of circumstances, the way they keep changing their dresses, wearing fantastic hats that alter their entire personalities, or changing appearing tallored, the next all festooned with beads and ruffles. They change the color of their hair, and the shape of their noses, and they wear shoes they've never worn before. Yet we're supposed to recognize them, high hat them, upstage them. We are going to get reputations as snobs, boundaries.

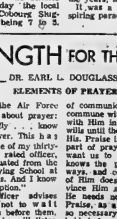
ELEMENTS OF PRAYER



A general in the Air Force has written this about prayer: "The men who fly . . . know the value of prayer. This has certainly been true of my thirty-two years as a flyer, and I know I am not an exception."

This same officer advises those who pray not to wait until crisis stands before them. He reminds all who will listen that thanksgiving is the most important element of prayer, and that thanksgiving should continually be on the lips of those who have received.

Prayer has been defined as conversation with God. All true prayer has about it the element of communion. In prayer we commune with God, become one with Him, recognize, bend our wills until they become one with His. Praise is also an important part of prayer. Why does God want us to praise Him? He knows the perfection of His ways, and certainly our praise of Him does not help Him to convince Him along this line, for He needs no such convincing. Praise, as a matter of fact, is so necessary because in it we hold before our consciousness the things God has done. We contemplate them. We come to see how wonderful they are. Little by little we grow into the image of the One we praise. We find ourselves not only submitting to Him, but submitting gladly. His life becomes ours.

Election Clerk Assumes Duties For His Father

BANCROFT, Ont. (CP)—Arrangements for the general election in Hastings-Frontenac constituency have been dogged by tragedy since Theodore Tryon was appointed returning officer here six weeks ago.

Mr. Tryon, who operates a welding shop in Bancroft, some 65 miles northeast of Peterborough, suffered a stroke two weeks ago and was taken to hospital.

Eight days ago his mother was taking some ballot papers by car south to Havelock for printing when the car spun out of control and crashed. She died of injuries early this week. She was 51.

Theodore Tryon, 59, was well enough to leave hospital today for the home will have to return for further treatment, his son said.

William, who works in the welding shop, said he hopes his father will recover enough to assume his duties on election Day, June 18.

Meanwhile, the son is continuing as acting returning officer.

Lot Size May Be Modified In Master Plan

Ameliasburgh's township council met last night with members of the planning board and a representative of the planning consultants employed by the township, to consider alterations to the official township plan, as presented to the public at a meeting held on May 30th.

The plan met with considerable opposition at the meeting, mostly over the large lot requirements for house building outside the six designated rural areas. Lots on the lake shore, two-thirds of an acre per house was to be required by the plan, and in the case of lots for the township the minimum was two acres per house.

A spokesman told The Ontario Intelligencer this morning that the plan would be revised to be more acceptable to the public. It is expected the lot size requirements will be modified.

Tyendinaga Twp Votes for Dining, Cocktail Lounges

Tyendinaga township, on Wednesday voted for liquor dining lounges and cocktail lounges by a wide margin of the 60 per cent required to carry the questions on:

Question No. 1—Are you in favor of the sale of liquor under a dining lounge licence for consumption with meals on a licensed premises? 848 voted yes, 372 voted no. This was 69.5 per cent. Here again only 60 per cent is required.

It was required that 72 per cent of eligible voters in Tyendinaga township voted on the two questions. This also included the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve.

The official results were made known on Wednesday afternoon.

A dinner was served by members of the Catholic Women's League to a large number of relatives and friends in the Legion Hall, followed by a reception in the afternoon and evening at his brother's home.

ONTARIO APPEAL

batted around in a miscellany of small jobs before settling down to big-time gambling.

Polite but slow and taciturn but in his low-voiced answers, he let Mr. Justice Roach be loud him into stepping up the pace before he had been on the stand 10 minutes. And right after that he came to a dead stop.

Commission counsel Roland F. Wilson asked for his net worth in 1954, when he and McDermott were supposed to have been well into the big league of gambling. Young speculator Feeley thumbed through a sheaf of documents on the witness table and came up with the figure of $3,120.

At a eyebrows lifted, the commissioner took the paper, scrutinized it, announced it was actually the amount Feeley reported to the tax collector as his income and should be the end and subsequent tax returns documents to be entered as exhibits.

It was there that Feeley balked and the big legal battle began over how far the commission can go in compelling disclosure. The fight that could possibly wind up in the Supreme Court of Canada is about the Ontario court's decision go against Feeley.

The gambler already is in the middle of one court action—criminal, as the result of a 1960 investigation of bookmaking and information from Ontario Provincial Police headquarters, McDermott and Feeley along with former Toronto Constable Robert Wright were convicted last spring of conspiring to obtain police information illegally.

They were sentenced to 18 months in jail but the terms were appealed and are out on bail, the appeals against both spices and Wright at $15,000.

It also is the second time the Feeley case has come before the commission to the Appeal Court. Over the commissioner's objections, Mr. Justice Roach in April obtained the right to full examination of the matters touched by the gamblers.

There was renewed mention, too, of politicians whose names had been linked in earlier evidence with the gang of four. And a suggestion that one of them should be charged with perjury in connection with his testimony.

The latter was Arthur C. Jolley, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Niagara Falls from 1958 to 1959 whose home phone had been listed in the gang's secret listing used by McDermott and Feeley for long-distance calls to the Conservative and then CCF.

Asked with this, Mr. Jolley testified in April he had never met or talked to Feeley and, of McDermott, merely knew of his fighting introduction and a fuzzy identification from a photograph.

But 1956 correspondence on legislature letterhead, produced this week, indicated he had written testimonials, based on personal knowledge, of a long acquaintance, to a federal official on behalf of the pair in connection with their application for a licence to operate a race company.

Liberal party counsel B. J. MacKinnon called for a perjury charge against Mr. Jolley, and commission counsel Roland F. Wilson said he will recall the former member as a witness to explain.

Similar testimonials, it developed, had been written by the pair's lawyer, Joseph Shea, then private member of the legislature for Renfrew South and now a senior mining solicitor on the Feeley - McDermott telephone list.

Evidence on the testimonials came out during examination of Louis Herman, Toronto lawyer who acted for the pair in connection with the finance company—which eventually folded without getting into business—and with shares of three used gambling clubs in which they had interests.

Mr. Herman, now secretary-treasurer of the Metropolitan Toronto Separate Schools Executive Association, warmly denied suggestions from the Liberal lawyer that he swung his considerable political weight on behalf of the club ventures while carrying on legally so far as he knew, he said, and also said he had no knowledge that McDermott and Feeley were engaged illicitly during the 1954-58 association with them.

Mr. Jolley replied firmly in the negative when asked by Mr. MacKinnon whether he ever had collected Conservative party contributions from the two and whether he had taken up club matters personally with then premier Leslie Frost.

Mr. MacKinnon reminded the commission that Curly Gardner, who helped operate the McDermott-Feeley Rossland club

On the Political Front

Douglas Sees Success for Medical Plan

By BEN WARD

SASKATOON (CP) — T. C. Douglas says the people of Saskatchewan are "a tough bunch." He has a hunch that they are going to win this "battle."

He said Thursday night that medical care has become the hottest issue of the federal election campaign.

He received a standing ovation from the crowd of 3,000 in the Saskatoon Arena when he said he is confident that the Medical Care Act will succeed.

The NDP party leader was making his first major Saskatchewan address of the campaign. His earlier appearances have been before relatively small groups in Regina, where he is seeking a federal seat, and Moose Jaw, his birthplace.

His references to medical care came near the end of a speech in which he outlined the party's proposals to add unemployment insurance benefits through party prices and protection against mortgage foreclosure. The NDP also would set up a national medical care plan, to be financed by the provinces with 50-per-cent federal aid.

He told his audience not to be confused about medical opposition to the Saskatchewan plan.

"You must make a sharp distinction between the Canadian Medical Association, the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons and the doctors themselves," he said. "The organizations were bitterly opposed to the plan because it was the first step toward a national medical care act. Yet many of the doctors themselves were in favor of it.

"Hundreds of doctors support our plan and want it to be introduced across the country."

He said the opposition patrolled that faced by President Kennedy's Medicare plan for the aged. The American Medical Association had poured $7,000,000 into the battle to halt Medicare "but it is coming just as surely as the sun in the morning."

SHOULD NOT WORRY

The 57-year-old former premier of the province said the people of Saskatchewan should not worry about the threat of the doctors to move out of the province. He described as "nonsense" the statement by Premier Ross Thatcher that "but it is coming just as surely as the sun in the morning."

Pearson Asks Question of Prime Minister

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson wondered aloud Thursday night whether a reference by Prime Minister Diefenbaker to possible "drastic action" might merely mean more prices controls to counter the impact of the devalued dollar.

"Doesn't he know that devaluation must mean high prices?" Mr. Pearson said the prime minister's speech at Magog, Que., Thursday indicates that Diefenbaker "strongly attacked people who, he said, may be guilty of exploiting devaluation by raising prices."

If price controls were in Mr. Diefenbaker's mind — "and I don't know" he has said nothing in his mind" — that involved wage and profit controls, too.

"Let's be clear about this. Price controls don't stand by themselves," he said, may be an overflow meeting of 1,700 in Windsor's waterfront-Cleary Auditorium.

"Is this what has happened to a government which has talked so much about free enterprise and accused us of being socialists?"

Finance Minister Fleming has said price controls are unappreciably because of the May 2 wage settlement in the province at 92.5 cents in terms of United States currency, and Trade Minister Hees has said price rises would be confined to luxuries.

"Is bread a luxury?" Mr. Pearson asked, "are thousands and thousands of kinds of equipment, whose costs enter into the basic cost structure of Canadian products, are these luxuries?"

The Windsor speech capped a six-day touring Western Ontario by Mr. Pearson, a brief sor, winding up a concentrated push started Monday to reap-pear in parts of Southern Ontario ridings lost to the Conservatives in the 1958 federal election.

Only one — Essex East — remained under the Tory and Liberal stalwart Paul Martin, former minister, formerly represented the grade then, was credited with the big turnout Thursday night.

There were 12 Pearson speeches packed over the nine drenched motor cavalcade—from a businessmen's breakfast at Sault Ste. Marie to address school children.

Today, Mr. Pearson was flying to Halifax for a night address. He'll conclude the campaign Saturday in Quebec before visits to New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

'WAS IN PANIC'

"It was in panic — political panic—that government spokesmen have sought to divert the plain facts that their own policies have led to the present situation," Mr. Pearson said in his night speech.

"Every since devaluation we've been dependent on some mysterious Canadian dollar to keep the exchange fund stable. The government doesn't dare let the Canadian dollar find its international value—had dropped to 92 cents.

Mr. Pearson defended criticisms of government economic policy and said Conservative Ellis Patterson (Calgary South) was "quite unfair" to suggest that he has been selling Canada short.

"I have confidence in Canada," he said to one of numerous cheers and applause. "How could we not?

"When we said that we are selling the country short by criticism such as this, I reply

Socred Leader Tells Voters to Get Positive

By SCOTT SCHILL

WEYBURN Sask. (CP)—Saskatchewan voters should quit their negative approach to elections, National Social Credit Leader Robert N Thompson told a public meeting Thursday night.

"It is time for people of Saskatchewan voted for something, not just against something," he told 150 persons in the 350-seat hall in this southeastern Saskatchewan city.

"Let's get positive. The Social Credit party comes to you with a positive message."

Mr. Thompson backed up Assiniboia constituency Social Credit candidate Darcy Rumble, who said the people of Saskatchewan, when their negative votes, had turned to the CCF in the 1940s to get rid of the Liberals. Now the CCF was in reversing and the people were saying they would vote for the old line parties to get rid of the CCF.

Mr. Thompson was speaking in the area represented for 27 years by National NDP Leader T. C. Douglas, either federally or provincially. It has been represented federally since 1945 by the Liberal's recently-acquired Ottawa friend.

SAYS GROWTH SLOW

"Twenty years ago Saskatchewan was the most active province east of Ontario," Mr. Thompson said. "Today, after 20 years of Tommy Douglas' planned economy, it has been left in 10th place for the slowest growth rate in Canada.

"The facts speak for themselves, yet now he wants to try it in Ottawa."

He said the NDP won't even hold their deposits in most seats they contest, where Social Credit strength would provide the main upset of the election.

He said the Saskatchewan government to submit its medical care scheme to the people in a referendum if they were so sure the people want it.

Social Credit was not against public welfare, but believed people have the freedom to choose how to satisfy their wants.

Under the present public welfare system, he said, "we end up with theoretical freedom from want, but very little freedom to do anything."

"Our platform, before anything else, is built upon free enterprise with the right of the individual to live his own life in the way he wants, and not by creating by government of conditions under which both he and the country lose the freedom to grow unhampered by control planning and red tape."

that the people who are selling Canada short are the people who have brought about this state of affairs."

A change of government was needed and only the Liberals had a chance to change the government.

Mr. Martin, who called the meeting Windsor's biggest in years, said he was not running in the country.

He was there on an interruption for Mr. Pearson and it came after he referred to the last election campaign as a time for any other opposition party, "but for us what Liberal vote is for," shouted a man.

Mr. Pearson replied that the Liberals would establish a municipal loan fund, overhaul the Industrial Development Bank, encourage industry in distressed areas and expand trade.

"We have had pledge," he said, "From the day we take office we intend to be there to be concerned with governing and not the next election."

Business Gets Sharp Warning From P.M.

By ROBERT RICE

QUEBEC (CP) — Canadian business got a sharp warning Thursday from Prime Minister Diefenbaker—don't try to raise prices and blame the devalued dollar.

He said if the dollar devaluation is used as an "excuse" for "greedy people" to boost their prices, then the government will act quickly, effectively and drastically.

But the prime minister reserved the notice on producers in an election speech at Magog, Que., did not say what kind of action is being contemplated.

Later, at Quebec City, Mr. Diefenbaker announced that the provinces will be called to Ottawa for a conference aimed at choosing a national flag and a National Anthem. Time is running short if the federal-provincial conference will be held. It would consider the flag and anthem questions and methods of Confederation—and also how to make sure that the constitution of Canada's constitution, now sitting already under study at the federal-provincial level but so far unsettled.

AUDIENCE APPLAUDS

His announcement was greeted by applause by some 1,000 persons in the night rally here—a noisy but orderly meeting. Many of the supporters had rosettes and noise-makers.

Mr. Diefenbaker also welcomed the Queen Mother on her arrival in Canada—a brief, formal diversion at Mont-Joli from the heat of the election campaign, leading to the June 18 election.

The Conservatives put three of their 25 federal ministers on stage with Mr. Diefenbaker in the province that elects 75 seats in Parliament, Secretary of State Noel Dorion, Mines Minister Jacques Flynn and Defence Production Minister Raymond O'Hurley each spoke in French for 10 minutes. Mr. Diefenbaker and Ex-Governor Bissonette, running in Quebec City, a key

IS CRITICAL

Mr. Diefenbaker ticked off Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood in Newfoundland for barring Finance Minister Fleming from giving a speech in St. John's Thursday.

"This is the model across Canada—domination," he said. "We have had enough of it and remember them so well in 1956" — the pipeline debate.

"We want any group powerful as it may be—to think that it can use its action taken for the benefit of all Canada for its own advantage," he said.

Mr. Pearson said, would be "as effective as it will be drastic." It would be "a one-shot remedy that will not solve anything may happen in the next year in view of the uncertainties of Russian courtship.

Canada wants the power to be able to continue to provide some economic assistance if the satellites show an element of independence. Because of the present Iron Curtain mood, there is a question of how far he would go even in shipping surplus food behind the Iron Curtain.

Shift in Political Mood Threatens Kennedy's Plan

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A shift in the U.S. political mood threatens to wreck President Kennedy's strategy of attempting to wean away some of the Communist satellites from Moscow's iron grip through continued offerings of food and other U.S. aid.

Although this strategy has shown no material success so far, the Kennedy administration wants to keep trying, particularly in Poland and Yugoslavia, which historically and politically have always shown a pattern of nationalism and independence.

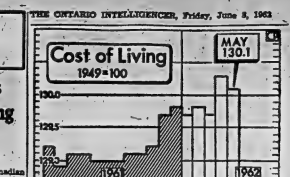
But the mood of the U.S. senate, in first banning all further economic aid to all Red-bloc countries and then reluctantly considering a compromise, seems to indicate a lack of much national support in the United States for current U.S. policies on the fringes of Russia.

Indeed, one vocal political element insists the administration tends to work in reverse—that giving Poland and Yugoslavia aid, the United States merely assures the continuation of the Communist regimes.

In fact, if it were not for the influence of the president and his cabinet colleagues, there is a question whether the Senate would even consider a compromise to allow the government to continue to ship surplus food to these countries.

FEARS WRITE-OFF

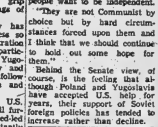
State Secretary Dean Rusk maintains the end of U.S. help would give the impression that the United States is "permanently willing off to Soviet domination" in the 41 million people who still yearn for freedom.



But Kennedy himself is no longer certain that Yugoslavia, which remained aloof from Stalin, won't fall into a prolonged romance with Khrushchev. He is not too sure what may happen in the next year in view of the uncertainties of Russian courtship.

Poland is described by Kennedy as being somewhat different than the other satellites. He firmly believes the Polish people want to be independent.

"They are not Communist by choice but by hard circumstances forced upon them and I think that we should continue to hold out some hope for them."



Behind the Senate view, of course, is the feeling that although Poland and Yugoslavia have accepted U.S. help for their own purposes, if Soviet foreign policies has tended to increase rather than decline.

Pleads Guilty To Charge Of Car Theft

Lloyd Cameron, originally from Owen Sound, appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning and pleaded guilty in a charge of car theft.

Constable Sheridan told the court that Trenton police had received information from the Elliott Motors used car lot on the Foxboro Road.

When asked, the accused was unable to produce the driver's licence or the ownership card.

He was remanded for sentence by the magistrate until next Tuesday.

Weddings

GREEN—MOFFATT

MARMORA — A pretty June wedding took place on Saturday, June 2nd, in Marmora Free Methodist Church, when Carol Arlene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moffatt, of Marmora township, was united in marriage to James Clifford Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Green, of Indian River. The Rev. P. O. Miller performed the ceremony and Mrs. Kenneth Wheaton provided the wedding music. The soloist, Mrs. James Elliott, of Peterborough, sang "I'll Walk Beside You" previous to the ceremony, and "The Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of floor-length white organdy enhanced with a rounded neckline and long, lily-point sleeves. Her fully bouffant skirt which was worn over many white crinolines, was complemented with a front panel of Swiss embroidery finished with a tattoo cummerbund caught at the back with a bow and streamers.

A tiara of orange blossoms caught her elbow-length veil of French illusion tulle which fell over the face. She carried a bouquet of white roses, lily-of-the-valley and pink demure roses.

Mrs. Carl Adams was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Earla Moffatt, cousin of the bride, and Miss Joan Bridgewell. Both were identically dressed in mint green silk organza fashioned with scooped necklines and capped sleeves. The bouffant skirts were worn over crinolines and designed in a deep back-edged with rounded necklines and ruffled underskirt were of matching color designed in silk organza rosettes with over-the-face veils. They wore white shoes and wrist-length white gloves and carried cascades of white Shasta 'mums centred with pink Sweetheart roses.

Miss Linda Green was assisted by his brother, Mr. George Green, of Tamworth, and ushers were Messrs. Carl Adams of Madoc and Carson Stratton of Consecon.

The reception was held in St. Andrew's Church hall where the tables were decorated with a three-tier wedding cake and centrepieces of white, pink and white candles. Floral centrepieces on the guest tables were in pink and white, with candles to match.

Mrs. Moffatt wore a copenhagen silk organza dress with pointed silk in muted tones of blue, white and pink, accessorized with corsage of pink Butterfly roses.

Mrs. Green was attired in a turquoise organza sheath over taffeta sheath with matching hat, white accessories and corsage of yellow Gloria Sweetheart roses.

The bride chose for their honeymoon to Québec City and New Brunswick a dress of deep green figured silk sheath, white accessories and a corsage of golden sceptre Sweetheart rosé.

Prior to the marriage of Mrs. Carol Moffatt and Gene Clifford Green, of R.R. 3, Indian River, three showers and a presentation were given in the bride's honor. A surprise miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Moffatt, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Earla Moffatt, Marmora; a pantry shower at the home of Mrs. James Elliott, Peterborough, and a linen shower by Parish Council, young business women's club of the YWCA, Peterborough. A presentation of an eighpiece set of Corning Ware was given the bride by directors of Cangeco Credit Union, Peterborough, of which the bride was an employee.

KEMPTON—WHITE

The engagement is announced of Linda Jean, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Hayes of Trenton, and the late Arthur W. Hayes, to Ronald Douglas Flindell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Flindell of Belleville. Told to Quit After Doctor Saw Show

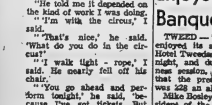
MONTREAL (CP) — When should a pregnant tight-rope walker quit tight - rope walking to be safe?

Mrs. Emil Goetschi, of Sarasota, Fla., billed as Dolly with the Wonders on Wheels, a professional unicycle and tight - rope act, faced the problem before her son Emil Jr., now 11, was born.

In an interview while on tour here she explained how she managed it.

"When Emil was expected I kept performing for seven months. Then I consulted a doctor in Providence, R.I., where we were playing and asked him if I could go on working.

"He told me it depended on the kind of work I was doing.



"'I'm with the circus,' I said.

"'That's nice,' he said. 'What do you do in the circus?'

"'I walk tight - rope,' I said. He nearly fell off his chair.

"'You go ahead and perform tonight,' he said, 'because I've got tickets. But quit tomorrow.'"

Lines on Life

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Comforting the bereaved.

This is one of life's most challenging tasks. It will bring balm to those whose hearts are sorely ache we have earned life's greatest reward. the right to be called friend.

Nor is it easy. Words are wrested, when sorrow is new. When life runs down to its low lines even the glib are tongue-tied; the sweet syllables do not softly flow.

Though we may close our eyes to the sunset, or shut our ears to the murmuring pines — how we can not turn our hearts death. It is starkly there.

William Phelps Lyons falls how suddenly he realized how many people there are who walk with the aid of crutches. He had not been even slightly aware of them until, one day, he himself met with an automobile accident.

For the first time in his life, he wrote a friend, sensitive and self-conscious about his wooden props, he took notice of how many there were similarly afflicted.

Wisdom comes slowly, painfully — yet if his is not to be destroyed in morbid waste, inevitably it must come. When we are able to explain to those whom we love — our dearest friends — the universality of sorrow, and when they, too, can see "others walking about on crutches," some healing comes.

When we move out from beneath the weight of our own hurt and burden and seek to understand the experience, we lift the millstone which lies heavily on our hearts.

All of life aspires, yet all of life suffers. Every man [illegible] years sackcloth. We need to learn this lesson if we are to survive sanely and triumph over the pair.

A young couple had lost their only child in one of Europe's concentration camps during the war.

Fortunately, they found a new love and, after the heartcast, yet they continued to hope for their young one.

Slowly, however, they came to understand that mourning for the dead is not constructive, that there were other children [illegible] who were fatherless and motherless, and so they decided to apply for the adoption of a little girl, Ruth.

One little girl whom they saw, accepted their love, and they asked her if she would like to come to live with them.

The child said yes, but that if she were to go, they would have to adopt her little brother, too. She had promised her mother before she died that she would never be separated from him.

The couple agreed and decided to adopt them both.

Home with them went the two adopted little ones. That evening they put the children to bed and after only a few moments they heard hysterical crying.

They rushed into the bedroom to discover that the girl had taken a picture of the woman's sister of the wall and was passionately clutching it to her. Through her tears the children told their story: this was a picture of their own mother!

But most of all, the grieving couple found a way out of their own sorrow — supplanting it with a new joy and a new strength. An old love was transmuted into a new devotion. They were not forgetting their sorrow. But there is a way out. It is a way which leads from our hearts to the hearts of others who have been hurt. For in such sorrows may gain strength when he learns how to feel sorry for others who grieve.

Pity — that those who suffer, not suffering satisfy, is the most potent weapon we can offer our friend when life runs out to the depths.

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The mayor of one town complained that reporters don't do justice to her grace and beauty.

A crippled girl who presented flowers in another community had been taken by the prime minister's wife watched over her with a protective and almost possessive look.

And a woman in another town said she'd keep "for always" the yellow rose Olive Evangeline Diefenbaker gave her.

In one week of campaign travel from the Gaspe coast to the Prairies she has made the prime minister's side on only one occasion—a meeting of progressive Conservative women's tea in Kingston, Ont., while Mr. Diefenbaker went to city hall.

WINS VOTES

Conservative campaign strategists say that next to the prime minister, Mrs. Diefenbaker is their biggest vote-getter. They say she draws more than after her 65-year-old husband, leaving the speech - making to him.

Her pleasant, wide smile, set in a face that radiates warmth, saying thank you for small courtesies and expressions of interest, is backed by applause and women.

In Trenton, Ont., Mayor James MacDonald met her for the first time during a 16-min ute address on the railway station platform. In impromptu speech to the crowd — there was no public address system set up—he told Mr. Diefenbaker that Mrs. Diefenbaker travelled with the campaign party don't worry, she's a good campaigner.

"I couldn't agree with you more," the prime minister said to his wife, obviously pleased by the compliment.

"I trust your words will be taken as an admonishment to them."

SCHOOLED FOR JOB

What campaign "tricks" does Mrs. Diefenbaker employ?

None, that reporters can detect, unless it is a habit at nearly every whistlestop of breaking one blossom from a bouquet to give back to the little girl who presents the flowers to her with a curtsy.

Being the wife of the prime minister and political first lady of the land seems to come naturally to her. She once said that being the daughter of a Baptist minister who moved frequently between church assignments in Saskatchewan prairie towns schooled her to being watched critically by her father's congregations.

She was born in Roland, Man., to the late Rev. Dr. Charles B. Freeman had a confirmation her serving west from Nova Scotia. She lived in Moose Jaw, Prince Albert and Saskatoon before she met her first met John Diefenbaker when he returned from army service in the First World War and Brandon, Man., and Regina.

She graduated from Brandon College in 1923, and 10 years later married Toronto lawyer Harry Palmer. He died in 1933, leaving her with one daughter, Carolyn, who followed her mother into the teaching profession.

MARRIED IN 1953

Mrs. Olive Palmer married John Diefenbaker in 1953, two years after his first wife, Edna, died. She was then assistant director of guidance for Ontario education department and had been offered the directorship.

Her grace and charm, love of children, interest in gardening, and careful attention to wardrobe all denial in presiding over the prime minister's official residence are coupled with down-to-earth practicality.

Campaigning isn't just travelling about the country, being kind to everyone. What spare moments there are in a hotel room or on a private plane are spent writing letters. In Ottawa she has written as many as 50 letters a day, by hand. The public service of Canada does not provide a secretary for the prime minister's wife.

Her wardrobe runs to simple, practical dresses in pastel shades. She admits to one weakness which could become a dangerous extravagance—hats. She likes them large and wide, but on tour she usually wears small ones that don't get in the way of handshaking. She has no more people can see her. On tour, so, she chooses strong colors which can be seen more easily in a crowd.

Like many women, she likes trim, stylish shoes. But she chooses shoes with comfortable that flatter, more sturdy shoes are needed for comfort.

Her hairstyle is simple, neither shoes. Her clear complexion, direct eyes and understanding smile draw all attention to her face.

Past Matrons' Club Enjoys Dinner, Euchre

WELLINGTON — Members of the Past Matrons' Club of Lakeside Chapter, O.E.S. and some guests from Belleville, Cobourg and Brighton, 21 in all enjoyed a dinner at Maple Inn, Bloomfield on Monday evening.

After a delicious meal, they all motored to the home of Mrs. Olive Channell, where the meeting was held.

After the meeting euchre was enjoyed with five tables in play. Prizes were presented to the following after the games: high scores — Susie Down and Cecelia Rewcliffe of Cobourg; 2nd high — Ruby Fleming and Lily Bellay; consolation prize — Nellie Russell and Doris McFaul.

Mrs. Channell served ice cream, cake and coffee to complete an enjoyable evening.

Business Girls Sponsor Fine Coffee Party

On June 5th, a successful and delightful "Coffee Party" was held at the home of Mrs. Alec McGlashon, by the "Business Girls" of Chapter No. 85, O.E.S.

The tea table was truly a picture to behold, centred with an array of pink carnations and silver candelabra, and a mirror which tended to duplicate and enhance their beauty; other service at either end on a lovely lace and rocket-ed tablecloth, with silver candelabra, holding green, pink, and white swirl candles. Vases and baskets of peonies and lilies-of-the-valley decorated the rooms throughout, giving forth their delightful fragrances—"Spring time in all its glory"; making everything look truly picturesque.

Mrs. Alec McGlashon and Mrs. Pearl Johnston received the guests, corsages of pink roses adorned their attire.

Tickets were taken by Mrs. Wynne Tomlinson, Mrs. Edna Turner, Mrs. Dorothy Stephenson, and Mrs. Wilda Fever.

Those pouring teams: Mrs. Olive Jones, Mrs. Dorothy Fry, Mrs. Mae Storrits, Mrs. Cecil Adams, Mrs. Dora Eldridge.

A delectable array of delicacies, each centred with an orchid-type tris, were served by Mrs. Jessie Fox, Mrs. Ethel Margaret Sherry, Mrs. Phyllis Berry, Miss Gail Juby, Mrs. Mae Jones, Miss Dorothy Martin, Mrs. Edna Turner, Mrs. Virginia Booth, Miss Jeane Stephenson and Mrs. Wynne Tomlinson.

Kitchen duties were handled by Mrs. Jessie Fox, assisted by Mrs. Olive Jones, Mrs. Irene McMartin and Mrs. Wynne Tomlinson.

The home baking table, centred with a beautiful basket, michael, assisted by Mrs. Clara Ironside, Mrs. Wilda Fever and Mrs. Emily Bogart Booth and the huge angel food cake was made and donated by Mrs. Ann Davidson, and won by Mrs. Etta Pinder.

Wedding Gift In Big Box Was Fiance

MONTREAL (CP) — Carolyn Wendy Wright was a little puzzled when she got the call when she prepared to open her wedding gift.

The "gift," from friends for her proposed June wedding to Jim Bell, 21, Scotlands flyer, was sitting on the floor, a huge box wrapped entirely in white ribbon.

Carolyn lifted the lid.

Out popped her husband-to-be, Pfl. - Lt. Anthony van Blockland, 21, of Scotland, Holland.

Tony jumped up like a Jack - in - the - box and Wendy was in his arms," Carolyn's mother, Mrs. Alice Wright, said.

The airman's unannounced arrival — to Carolyn at least —worked pretty well because Tony's leave in Britain had changed their plans and were married in Montreal.

They met a few years ago on a train, Carolyn, McGill student at the time, was returning home after a summer of work in Rouyn Park, Alta., while Tony was heading east to return to Holland following the completion of his Canadian West.

They met again a year later in London where Carolyn was working, and became engaged.

Sidney South W.I. Enjoys Slides of England, Europe

Mrs. Mac Nobes opened her home for the June meeting of the Sidney South W.I. Mrs. H. W. Hollomby, president, presided. Mrs. Fred Meeds, secretary-treasurer, gave her reports. There were 28 members and two visitors present.

Mrs. Ronald Regenstburg gave an interesting report on the West Hastings W.I. annual held on June 1st at Sidney Baptist Church. Of the 13 W.I. members, Mrs. Jack Sergeant, accepted the convenorship of historical research and current events at this meeting. Five members attended the conference.

Mrs. W. Shortt suggested that we supply transportation for any girls who wish to take nursing lessons at the YMCA.

Mrs. Jack Sargent suggested that the branch of the W.I. make plans for cleaning up Hoglet's cemetery, which is situated on a hill just behind Hoglet's School on the 2nd concession Sidney. It is an old cemetery, one stone being dated 1817. Anyone having a knowledge of the families buried there is asked to let the Historical Research convenor Mrs. Jack Sergent know.

At this time a special word of thanks to the Richard Ellis Printing which kindly printed the fine programs free of charge.

The July meeting will be a tour of the museum and the ladies have been asked to meet at Centenary Church at a quarter to eight and to proceed from there.

The August meeting will take the form of a "Family Picnic". It is to be held at Zwick's Island, with a pot-luck lunch served at noon. The branch directors are in charge of the arrangements regarding games and races.

EDINBURGH CONFERENCE

After the business portion was over, Miss Catherine Farmer, of Cobourn, spoke of her trip to the A.C.W.W. Conference in Edinburgh, in 1959. She explained how the W.I. in Wales and Scotland was started through the efforts of a lady who had resided in Canada. She told of the daily activities and tours arranged for them at the Conference. Just over 1,000 delegates were there, and, of course from nearly every country.

After the Conference she and a friend, toured Ireland, Wales, England and then Europe. She also showed slides of all these countries, some showing people in their native dress. She was marked on she fact that people in Canada do have a very liberal dress. All in all it was a most interesting evening.

Gifts were presented to Mrs. Morrow and Mrs. Plumpton, also to Mrs. Charlesworth, whose birthday was the following day.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Charlesworth for the lovely evening.

Girl Guides, Brownies Hold Joint Closing Flying-up Meet

Recently at St. Thomas' Parish Hall the III Belleville Guide Company and Brownie Packs 2-3 held a joint closing and flying-up ceremony.

Those present were: Area Co. Mrs. A. M. Haig, and Mrs. B. Corke, examiner for the Hostess Badge, and the members, brothers and sisters of the Guides and Brownies.

After thanking the mothers for their support in guiding, Mrs. Doris Stalkovich, Captain of Company III guides presented service stars. Prizes were presented to the winning patrol consisting of Patrol Leader, Heather Eve Ketcheson; Second Holly McMurray, Heather Hume and Elizabeth Black-burn. Religion and Life Emblem was presented to Marianne Ironside.

Co. III is proud of Sheryl Drysdale, a company leader who has been chosen one of 24 Ontario Guides to travel to England this summer. They presented her with a gift. Sheryl expressed her sincere appreciation to the Company for their donations which will help with her expenses. The Brownies of Pack 3 presented Sheryl with a box of hand-made beads, one for trading with the Guides she will meet abroad.

FLYING-UP CEREMONY

Pack III held their flying-up ceremony, acting Brown Owl, Mrs. R. Floyd, with Brown Owl Mrs. J. McDonald, presented Golden Hand Badges to Lu Ann Stock and Leine Williams. The Brownies then helped Janet Stock to Guides with a big blow. Brownie Wings were presented to Margaret Murdock, Susan Boola, Cathy MacDonald, Lu Ann Stock and Leine Williams. Three Brownies then flew off to Guides in the jet style.

Randolph S. — I'm not discouraged, I learned a lot and I'll keep trying.

George H. — As an old friend, I'm begging Randy to quit a losing game. The Broadway bug has bit him and to satisfy it he's giving up jobs, friends, savings and a normal life.

He finally got an off-Broadway group to include a play he wrote in their repertory of Experimental Theatre. The critics found it unintelligible. Can't he take that expensive hint and get back into something solid? After all his writing and sacrifices, what did they get him. Just a chance to look foolish.

He can get a job tomorrow as an office manager, his old field. But instead she's holing up in a cheap room to write another play.

* * * *

Randolph S. — Okay! I'm no O'Neill. But I'm still not convinced that I ought to go back to ordering carbons and watching the neutral pool. I've taken a few courses in playwriting and the instructors liked my work. The only way I'll ever find out whether others will like it, too, is to stick my neck out and display my stuff. If the critics lambaste me, okay, I'll learn what I can from them, but they won't silence me. Not yet anyway. If I was unintelligible, maybe it was their fault. Maybe they were unintelligent.

I appreciate George's concern. I'll try not to stick him for tickets and production expenses again. But I owe it to myself to try again.

* * * *

The Council: An old proverb reminds us that people only throw stones at a tree that's loaded with fruit. No critics are flaying George because he's not growing any interesting fruit. It's safer and more comfortable not to. All the more credit then to Randolph who, reasoning that the conformist humdrum life which can be his, sticks his neck out and takes it on the chin in an effort to determine the extent of his creative talent.

At this stage we're on Randolph's side. He's like the piccolo player who can't undergstand why what he puts in sweet comes out sour! We'd like to encourage him to pursue that "why," at least long enough for a considered and definitive verdict from a body of detached experts. We gather that there's no money emergency, George's objection in making to Randy's total absorption in what may be a dead-end project. Perhaps one of the donations which a third promising playwrights can be approached. There would be one of the verdicts Randolph could be guided by, rather than George's.

The important thing for this aspiring playright to determine is whether he has a real talent. Some playgoers turn out to be merely stubborn and delusional. The friends and relatives who tell them they're geniuses fan their hopes by promoting (and paying for) what the profession calls "vanity" productions. Hence it is urgent that Randolph get the lowdown fast, the brutal truth if must be, from objective professionals.

Failure then won't matter. There is no disgrace in failing when one has reached out for a high goal and tried one's best. Perhaps the real disgrace is not trying anything hard, and, worse, mocking those who do. Or, to put it in the words of a sign outside a church we passed, "It is better to shoot at some thing and miss than to aim at nothing and hit it."

And there's still the chance that Randolph may succeed. Surprises come to him who undertakes a thing without realizing how hard it is.

Q.R.S. Ladies' Aux. Sponsors Auction Sale

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Quinte Branch, held its annual rummage and auction sale in the armouries last Friday afternoon and evening. The conveners of this year's auction, Mrs. W. C. Gault, Mrs. J. Stock and Mrs. A. Hume, wish to extend their appreciation to Mr. Cameron Bunnett, R.R. 2, Belleville, who donated his services as auctioneer, and to Mr. J. Storms, R.R. 5, Frankford, who volunteered to display the articles for Mr. Bunnett to auction; also to Mr. Ernest David and Mr. George Greatrix, who generously provided trucks and men to collect the merchandise.

To the many merchants and manufacturing firms who sent donations and to Mr. J. F. Dickens who made the display cards, sincere thanks.

The Auxiliary gratefully acknowledges the support of the many Belleville residents who gave clothing and furniture and also for the capable assistance of all the willing workers who helped to make the sale a success.

PLAYS ACTIVE ROLE — Mrs. Lester B. Pearson, wife of the Liberal party leader, takes an active role in her husband's political campaign, and is seldom with her husband constantly except for a week off to help with the arrival of her eighth grandchild. Along with the traditional role that falls to a politician's wife, she occasionally interjects her own comments at campaign meetings. (CP Photo).

Wife of Liberal Leader Right at Home Politically In Algoma East Riding

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The rehirsal from one poll in Liberal leader Pearson's constituency of Algoma East gave him 94 of 96 votes.

He was content "but my wife's reaction was to wonder just who those two contrary voters could have been."

It's one story Mr. Pearson has told often since June, 18 election campaign. Others testify that Maryon Elspeth Pearson is pithily prone to participate directly at times in her husband's campaign, especially at smaller meetings in his Northern Ontario riding.

She's corrected more than one date for her husband; engaged in a dry comment more than one point in an address.

At the same time, in the campaigns of 1958 and 1962, she has measured more than one bedazzled bouquet - bearing tot with a deft word or touch.

Mrs. Pearson is not the life she would have chosen for herself. She resembles a modish grandmother who, by choice, would stick with a good book, a cigarette for the fire or her eight grandchildren.

GAY EYES

In 1957, when Lester B. Pearson won the Nobel Peace Prize, the Oslo Aftenposten saw her as "a grandmother with beautiful legs, gay smiling lines around gay eyes . . ." She hasn't changed much.

Shy, intelligent, with a sharp wit and an ironic humor, Pearson's wife is a private person who indulge in the hall-deadmen-well-met approach that can go a long way in politics.

She shines best politically in Algoma East where she moves among people she has come to know.

During a swing this year through the riding, a little blonde girl gave her flowers at Gore Bay and then stood staggerstruck. Mrs. Pearson deftly seated the child beside her on the platform. When Mr. Pearson, as usual, asked whether there were any questions following his short address, she suggested that in view of the hour perhaps the people might be more interested in the cold lunch awaiting them.

VERSATILE WARDROBE

Campaigning with an aspirant for the office of prime minister means a succession of hard platform talks, a ready response to yet another bouquet for the 10th cup of coffee of the day, wardrobe planning that permits the quick change, the fresh look and the costume appropriate to a balmy west coast day or a cool Northern Ontario night.

It also means hours of concentration on seeing that the husband and candidate is kept fighting fit.

In 1958, Mrs. Pearson bought her husband the strongest vitamins she could find. This year she has played a part in helping to keep his schedule, on occasion placing a hand on his shoulder and prodding him through a smiling crowd to his car.

Her clothes are simple but in excellent taste, chosen carefully. She'd perhaps prefer not to wear a hat during campaigns but she usually does. Her color preference runs to beiges and she likes lightweight wools for easily packed suits. Her shoes are the walking-heel type.

She has said she buys her husband's clothing except his shoes and the once - familiar bow ties that he now alternates with the conventional four-in-hand variety.

In interviews, her refusal to make the glib remark comes through clearly.

Asked about women in politics, ordinarily an opportunity to say "wise, she said:

"It depends on the woman." On men in politics:

"Men are always at their best when it comes to politics. I have been around the world twice and met politicians from many countries. They are all alike. As long as they find themselves in the middle of it, they say they are sorry that all their time is taken up by politics. But the day they have lost and are out . . . Oh, how terrible. Not them!"

More than anything else, Mrs. Pearson prefers reading as a hobby. She reads French but says she's too shy to speak it. She loves gardening and has done some painting. She has been a staunch and vocal supporter of the Canadian Consumers' Association.

The daughter of Dr. A. W. and Mrs. Moody of Winnipeg, she married Mr. Pearson in 1925 fresh out of the University of Toronto where she'd been one of his history students.

She took a week off early in the current campaign to help with the arrival of her eighth grandchild, the fourth child of her daughter, Patricia, who is married to a Toronto doctor. A son, Geoffrey Pearson, is with the Canadian Embassy in Mexico.

What's YOUR E.Q.?

When a neighbor who owns a backyard swimming pool says "Be my guest," what privileges are involved? Perhaps the answers to the following questions will help clarify things:

1. Is the invitation a blanket one that means the pool is available any time?
2. Should you bring your own towels?
3. Does use of the pool include use of the bathhouse?
4. Would the owner mind if you brought along a guest or two of your own?
5. How long should you stay?
6. If invited — as opposed to self-invited — guests arrive, what should you do?
7. What rules should be observed concerning children?
8. Suppose the owners are away. May you still make use of the facilities?
9. If you use the pool frequently, would it be a nice gesture to offer to pay for the upkeep?
10. Should you bring the owners a gift each time you take advantage of their kind offer to use the pool?

Answers:

1. Not necessarily. It's always more courteous to check before donning your Bikini, just in case the owner may be planning a swimming party, or plans to be away from home.
2. Yes.
3. Usually it does, unless you're within walking distance, in which case it's better policy to change at home.
4. Possibly not. If the pool is not crowded with family and providing you bring a few guests and not a party, call ahead in advance.
5. As long as for any self-imposed visit — possibly an hour or so. But it's presumptuous ever to come to show up first thing in the morning for a period of it.
6. Make a tactful withdrawal. Otherwise, you might find yourself an uninvited — and possibly unwelcome — guest at a party.
7. Keep an eagle eye on them at all times. Don't leave the entire job to the host and hostess. Even if youngsters can swim, it's unwise and unfair to consider the owners as captive lifeguards. If you can't supervise the children, it's safer and more courteous to forego a swim.
8. If they give you the key and full run of the pool, fine. Otherwise, use a public pool or other facility.
9. No, but it's a nice gesture to replace a float or so or some other small piece of equipment if you notice it's getting worn out.
10. No. Again, it's a matter of taste. A gift is not expected, but if you use the pool frequently and accept refreshments, an appropriate gift for the bar would be thoughtful.

Edith Bone Retires From Ont. Hydro

Edith M. Bone retired on June 1, 1962 after 34 years of service with Ontario Hydro, where for the past 16 years she acted as secretary to the various regional managers.

Born in "The Potteries" at Staffordshire, England, Miss Bone has resided in Belleville since 1921, when, as a young girl, she came with her parents to Canada.

On Saturday, May 12th a busload of Hydro colleagues escorted Edith to Toronto where they dined at the "Town and Country" and in the evening attended a performance of Harry Belafonte at the O'Keefe Centre.

PRESENTATION MADE

The evening of May 29th the Assembly Room of the Hydro office was about filled to capacity to present Edith with a silver dresser set, advertisement "bon quet" at Empress Hotel, Peterborough, on which occasion Mr. T. E. Simmons, chairman, ginger, paid tribute to the exemplary service Miss Bone has given to the Hydro.

Many people had the pleasure of paying tribute to a lady in whom they had seen the gracious qualities of devoted service, and whose association they had so much appreciated.

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

Question — Would like to thank you for all your wonderful recipes, many of which I have. I have a request a little out of the usual, but was wondering with your large circle of readers, if anyone could tell me where I could purchase Gluten Bread. Even if I had to have a few loaves shipped in every few weeks. I presume I could keep it in the freezer. Or, would you possibly have a recipe? I am not a bread-maker but could try, if I had a recipe and knew where to get the ingredients. — W.E.A.

Answer: I think it is better to make your own than to go through the complicated business of shipping it in.

FRIDAY

GLUTEN BREAD

(Yeast — 2 loaves)

1 package granular yeast, 1-2 cup warm water 3 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cups boiling water or potato water, 6 cups gluten flour (purchase from large drug store on department) 1 or 2 tablespoons butter or shortening (optional).

Into large bowl pour the boiling water or potato water and add salt, 2 teaspoons sugar and shortening, if used. Let stand until shortening and sugar melt and it cools to lukewarm. Meanwhile pour warming cup add the remaining 1 teaspoon of sugar to the 1-2 cup warm water. Sprinkle yeast over top, give it one stir and let stand 10 minutes

Add to until risen to top of cup. Add to lukewarm mixture in bowl. Stir in half of the flour until incorporated. Then add remaining flour and mix in with hands. Turn out on floured board and knead — giving dough 100 kneading turns. Return to scraped down and buttered bowl, butter top of dough, cover and let rise 2 hours or until doubled. Punch down dough and knead 100 times. Divide dough into 2 equal parts, shape into 2 loaves, place in buttered loaf pans and let rise until about 1" above rims of pans. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for another 30 or 35 minutes. A standard - sized loaf of bread bakes in about 45 to 50 minutes at these temperatures. Test for doneness by rapping loaf with knuckles. If it sounds hollow it is baked. Cool on rack.

Note: We have many requests for Gluten Bread. Please clip this recipe now if you are interested in it.

Teen-Age Canada

No 'Jink' Summer Jobs

By JACK HUTTON

My young friend looked despondent. "Two months of looking for a summer job—and I still haven't found one," he said. "I must be jinxed."

He sat back in his chair, forgetting to pluck up trousers which looked as if they had never seen a press. It was hard to tell whether his shoes had ever been shone.

"Just can't understand," he repeated, "why someone hasn't latched on to me. I stood third in my class all year, and most of my friends have found jobs already."

How many teen-agers, I wonder, understand the importance of that old rule: dress for the job? What would you do as an employer if you interviewed two teen-agers, one neatly dressed and one looking like a beatnik?

A personnel director had this advice. "I always expect," he said, "that a person looking for a job will try to look as smart as possible. As a general rule, they don't look as neat and smart after a few weeks on the job."

"Therefore, I naturally expect that a young person who marches into my office looking like a slob is going to look even worse if I hire him or her! It does our business no good to have them around."

"I don't mean," he added hastily, "that a teen-ager should dress flashily. That sometimes makes us just as nervous about hiring them." His basic rules for seeking a job:

Girls—Wear simple suits or cotton dresses with a minimum of jewelry and makeup. A hat isn't necessary, but gloves (preferably white) are. Don't be sure your shoes are polished and your seams are straight.

Boys—A clean shirt (once again, white is your best color), a jacket, pressed trousers and polished shoes. Need I add that you shouldn't smoke during the interview!

NO HEDGING

"No one is going to ask you any tough questions," said the personnel director, looking through his thick file of applications. "Just make sure you can tell an employer your grades and other jobs quickly and directly. Don't hedge."

"You'll impress an employer if you have some idea of why you want to be work for him," he added. "Perhaps before going to the interview you could find out something about the business from someone else and drop that in conversation."

What, I asked, impresses him most about an applicant "Posture," he replied. "No doubt about it, someone who sits up straight in a chair and looks alert usually turns out to be that way. He or she needn't be a ramrod—but shouldn't slump."

"I wonder," said the personnel director, "if teen-agers consider job responsibilities? Let's say, for instance, that a girl is going to the family cottage. Most summer resorts have organized summer sports for children. Could they use a teen-ager to help out?"

"Or have they considered the possibilities of baby-sitting? If I were a teen-ager wondering about summer work, I'd contact several interested friends and turn it into a concentrated group enterprise."

The teen-ager can type—or, mimeograph letters of introduction, telling about the service, and have them delivered to people in the block. One teen-ager, of course, would have to have the consent of his or her family to handle the calls and assign the others to jobs."

This would apply, the speaker emphasized, for either girls or boys. And it would also apply for city-dwellers or holidayers. "How many cottage-owners," he mused, "moan every summer that they can't find a baby-sitter?"

"It also still isn't too late," he added, "to look for that job that may not pay very much but will help to make a decision about a future career. Is there a doctor or businessman who'd like help handling telephone calls near-by?"

One conclusion—Don't be discouraged looking for that summer job if you haven't been lucky so far. But make sure you aren't being struck out because of sloppy appearance!

WRONG NAME?

Heard a pargel discussion the other day in which several adults claimed that the term "teen-ager" bothers some young people. It was a word, they argued, which created a wrong stereotype in a reader's mind.

Anyone have any opinions on that? The problem of course, is to think of a term which means the same thing.

NEW SINGER

Sooner or later Canadians are going to realize that we have as much singing talent on this border as there is on the other side—and a 22-year-old Montrealer who has just cut his first record should help.

Mark Jackson, who has been singing for about as long as he can remember, went all the way to Nashville, Tennessee, to cut his first big disc. It is entitled "How Much Longer Must I Wait?"

The young singer, now appearing in a local night club, wrote words and music to this tune and another one called "Haggety Anne." He also plays piano, bass and guitar.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this Week: Protection against tuberculosis, an old cancer treatment elsewhere, dentures in wearing false teeth.

TB SHIELD

In a U.S. public health service study of 35,000 such contacts of newly-reported cases of TB, half were given the drug daily for a year, while the rest received dummy pills. About four times more persons taking the useless pill did develop TB themselves, compared with those getting the real drug.

CANCER DRUG CLUE

To treat cancer, the ancient Greeks and Romans are said to have used a Mediterranean species of a plant called arisolochia indica.

Now an acid isolated from this family plant grown in Madras, India, has been found to slow the growth of tumors in mice, reports Prof. S. Morris Kupchan of the University of Wisconsin.

If further tests are successful, the finding could lead to a whole new family of anti-cancer compounds, he says. As yet, it has no practical application, and it isn't known whether it could benefit humans.

DENTURE HAZARD

People who wear dentures run a danger of accidentally swallowing chicken or fish bones, says Dr. Paul G. Bunker of Aberdeen, Md.

The sense of touch in the mouth decreases as teeth and bones can pass the point of danger before the denture wearer becomes aware of their presence, he explains. People with dentures tend to "chew their food twice as much before they had their natural teeth."

BLACK WIDOW BITES

The bite of the black widow spider can cause numbness in the arm or leg near the bite, pain and stiffness in abdominal muscles, headaches, skin rash, fichiness, higher blood pressure, and other symptoms.

Skeletal muscle relaxant drugs can relieve some of these complaints, including headache, nausea, breathing difficulties and some of the muscle problems, a medical journal reports. The relaxants do not, of course, counteract the venom.

Cannot Build House Until Kildeer Moves

OTTAWA (CP) — What's a guy supposed to do when he and a bird want to establish a home in the same place? Build a duplex?

No, the plans call for a single house, and builder Robert Campeau wants to put one there—in the Riverside Park development of Ottawa South.

But the bird, a killdeer, was there first, smack in the middle of where the house is going to be.

Everytime someone approaches her nest, she uncanaries a variety of acts that would put the most proficient female bird actress to shame. She drags a wing, pretending it's broken, almost falling over in the process.

When this wears thin, she does an exhibition Jean Marc Prud'homme. "It would be criminal to move the nest because the mother will never return."

Just how long the wait will be is anybody's guess.

The Kennedy administration has come to the conclusion United States tax rates must be reduced. There is talk in official quarters of a proposed reduction of as much as 25 per cent. The only matter of controversy is whether the proposal should go to congress immediately or be delayed until next year.

The president is concentrating closely on the U.S. economic economy following the sudden stock market break a week ago today. His press secretary, Pierre Salinger, "all vestiges of reason were temporarily pushed aside and panic took control of the great New York Exchange, sending off repercussions in security markets throughout the world."

INVESTORS CAUTIOUS

Though the U.S. economy is still continuing to expand, Kennedy warned that stock market gyrations may make U.S. investors and consumers extremely cautious about their buying plans, thereby slowing industry down and economic growth.

This is of more than incidental interest to Canadians who rely heavily on the U.S. market for their sales of wheat and other fare.

Some of Kennedy's advisers are suggesting that he propose tax cuts immediately, but the majority opinion seems to be the side of Dillon who feels the rate changes should be held off until 1963.

Nevertheless, the U.S. course of congress this summer will be asked either late this year or early next year to revise the tax rates which have been unchanged since 1954. The revision made in 1962 is expected to provide some compensating revenue sources to offset the existing tax base and closing tax loopholes. Those involved in the tax revision study that net savings to taxpayers may range between $2,000,000,000 and $7,000,000,000 a year.

PLANS TARIFF CUTS

This move, combined with the announcement March the new sturdy European Common Market in a series of wide-ranging tariff cuts as he put it to congressional authority, may make 1963 a year of unusual economic activity. The tariff bill has been approved by one house committee and the Kennedy hopes it may pass both houses of congress before the 1962 session ends.

Large-scale tariff reductions would be designed to stimulate Transatlantic trade and therefore encourage competition at home and abroad. Arming U.S. consumers with more purchasing power through tax cuts might tend to accelerate the cycle there.

At the same time Kennedy has appealed to American labor to hold the wage line as much as possible. And he has ordered a full study of the European economies, to see what really makes them so successful.

Would Like to Learn Dancing

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My husband does not dance. He is willing to learn but is too shy to take lessons.

Is there any way he could learn at home? I have not danced for years myself so could not be a very good teacher and also need some brushing up lessons myself.—INTERESTED.

* * *

DEAR NOT-SO-GRACEFUL —

If you have a pocket-handkerchief square of hardwood in your living-room you can learn at home. There are books and records to dance to. I am sending you the names of a few.

Together you can stumble around, laugh a little and stumble again. After a while you'll be dodging toes more gracefully and ready to try it out when you are at a party. Good luck!

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I am 5 ft. 3 in. and weigh 115 lbs. I can't even fill a padded bras, size 32, cup A. My breast is like a twelve-year-old child's.

I have been married four years. My husband has never seen me without a bras. I feel like half a woman. I'm ashamed of my body. To me, a scar across the face couldn't be any worse. I have tried every exercise since I was 14 years old.

I have heard of plastic surgery. I have never talked about this with my doctor, for I am sure he would laugh at me. Could you find out for me about this? Let me know if there is something I could do about it? I don't care about the price?—ASHAMED.

* * *

DEAR ASHAMED:—It's nothing to be ashamed of! No figure is perfect. But in an age when noses are being straightened, superfluous hair removed, bald spots covered, hairs, arms, legs, replaced, there is help for you, too.

A plastic surgeon in California has done wonderful work for women with too little or too much breast development. And to some it has meant their career to them: ballet dancers, models and some others in the public eye are desperate for their living on a good figure.

The operation involves the insertion of a harmless pad of something like foam rubber. I am sending you the name of the man and the book.

Take this information to your doctor—who I hardly think will laugh at you—and have him refer you to the plastic surgeon nearest you.

P.S.—How much longer will you keep Hubby in the dark? It's my guess that he'll love you more, not less, when you confide in him.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I have been going with a boy who was engaged to someone else before me. Now he says he does not want to go steady because he is not sure whether he wants to go back with his old girl friend.

He has stomach trouble and is upset very easily. Now he says he wants about six weeks to make up his mind. I am very fond of him but wonder whether I should just forget him.

This is not the first time he has been interested in someone else.—JANIE.

* * *

DEAR JANIE—He'll give you stomach trouble. He has no intention of making an emotional move.

Sounds like the original "On again, off again, gone again, Finegan!" Six weeks will settle nothing. With his kind of indecision, he'll take years. And he won't care one bit how much he trifles with anyone else's emotions.

* * *

TO MRS. C.—The list of private schools is far too long for any one sources to send it to you. Enquire at the public library in your nearest large centre. From there you can glean the information which will help you choose.

* * *

Meeting Reaches No Decision On School Issue

DESERONTO—On Thursday night of last week a special meeting of the town council and Board of Education was held in the town hall. After the members were seated, Mayor Sweetnam told the group that the meeting was to get the feeling of the school board and the council on the question of the high school.

The chairman of the board, A. J. L. Harvey, said that the school board had passed the motion to have council forward the recommendation to county council and not for a vote of the people. He also said that the council is in no way responsible for the closing of the school. The motion was not passed by council for approval or disapproval and the sole duty of council was to forward it to county council.

Reeve Lott said that he thought the fairest way was to put it to a vote of the people because then the people could say the taxes. The mayor told the board that council acted to the best of its ability and that improper action was through ignorance.

There was some discussion regarding the letters of advice received on the question and Councillor Howard asked to have them read from the Department of Municipal Affairs stated that it was not necessary to hold a vote but it was suggested a letter from the town solicitor was indefinite.

Ex. P. Gill, a member of the board, spoke at some length and said that he had been knowing in the streets of Deseronto if the council does not become progressive, the question of the board, Mr. Harvey., also said that the matter has become a political football but not in the interests of the pupils.

Reeve Lott again stressed the point that the matter should be put to a vote as "it is the de-ererts in'ig to do."

Mayor Sweetnam stated that he would vote yearly in taxes into the town and he was of the opinion that the children should have the opportunity and should be sent where the opportunity is best.

Reeve Lott told the gathering that council would like the school board to request council to forward the resolution to county council. He said that Warden Varty felt the matter was of sufficient importance to warrant a special meeting of county council. In closing the meeting Mayor Sweetnam said the objective had been reached and adjournment was in order.

During the meeting when the mayor polled those present individually, Councillor Howard voiced no opinion, Councillor Bateman voted for a vote, Deputy-Reeve Gould by a vote, Alford was for closing the school, Reeve Lott and Mayor Sweetnam agreed with the request of the board; Councillors Mercier, Houle and Brooks were absent. For the School Board, Mrs. Thielman and John Neal were in favor of a vote and the remainder of the board felt it was their responsibility and so agreed that more information should be given the public.

Sunday School Lesson

Crisis and the Church

By ROY L. SMITH

The book of Revelation in the New Testament has been one of the most unfortunate in all the collection of Christian Scriptures, for the reason that it has been misrepresented by its friends and misunderstood by its critics.

As a matter of fact, it came near being left out of the New Testament in the first place because it seemed to be such a revolutionary document. The Christians had become contrary were trying very hard to get along with Rome, and Revelation had some extremely harsh things to say about the Empire, because of the persecutions it was heaping on the churches.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 10: "Christ Speaks To the Churches," Acts 1:1b; 11:25-30; Revelation 1 through 3.

In more recent years Revelation has become the happy hunting grounds of the fanatics and the cultists, so much so that many Christians have come to let it alone. They become involved in the kind of nonsense about it that is very unfortunate, for the author had some very important things to say in the generation that ought to be said to us today.

THE PRESENT CRISIS

It hardly needs to be said again that we are living in the midst of a world crisis, a spiritual side that communism is spreading over the world, the global threat to human liberty, and the rights of individuals, and the fact that the church has enemies of all parliamentary forms, combine to make the present struggle the greatest conflict in all of human history.

There is a vast need for an intelligent interpretation of the times, that will put the emphasis of the basic principles of our democratic faith, and that there is no institution that stands to suffer as the church will, if communism succeeds in destroying democracy.

Christ for the crisis, however, is not to be found in fanaticism. As a matter of fact, extreme fanaticism is as much of a threat to democracy as extreme leftism. Any individual or any group that caricatures to divide us, and to label part of us "red" and the rest of us "lily white," can be counted on as one of good Americanism.

The strength of communities the Church of Christ is being attacked by attacks which are having the effect of dividing the forces of righteousness. Artificial lines are drawn and anyone found on the left of this or that is immediately branded as being a "pinko" and anyone found on the other side are "true Americans" and cooperation after congregation is split right down the middle.

Nothing is possible but the communists any better than this very thing. As a matter of fact, the communists made a determined effort to infiltrate the churches a few years ago and failed. During those years they endeavored to do the very thing the anti-communists are succeeding in doing now — dividing the Church, destroying its effectiveness, and reducing public confidence.

CRISIS AND REVELATION

The New Testament book of Revelation was written in just such a time as ours is, that day however, the Roman Empire was deliberately endeavoring to exterminate the Church, while today communist is attempting to destroy the kind of world the Church has labored to produce.

The author of the Book of Revelation was a man who believed that all evil was temporary — that there was a bullin weakness in evil which would finally come to the surface and destroy it.

In the process of destroying evil, in his behalf, God proposed to use the churches. For this reason our author wrote one of the strongest appeals (mixed at times with criticism) in behalf of faith to be found anywhere in the Scriptures. With all his heart he believed that the stupendous powers of the unverse were on the side of righteousness, and the enmity of the universe was directed at Rome the persecutor.

Nothing in all our time is equal to a vigorous and determined religious faith. Let the church men reassess for its believing in righteousness, and it will serve its generation. Let the church maintain the faith of the people and it will prove to be their redeemer. Let the church declare the will of God in every situation in which God is involved, and it will earn its immortality.

Votes at Military Polls Will Not Be Tabulated Until Week After June 18

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian soldier will enter a polling booth in Egypt sometime during the week of June 11-16 and vote for one of about 200 candidates in the Canadian federal election.

The soldier probably won't know the candidate. Chances are he has never even heard of him. And there will have been no campaigning in Egypt, no public meetings or posters or pamphlets, no radio or TV speeches or newspaper ads.

Of election issues, the soldier may have only a vague idea. He will rely almost entirely on the candidate's political affiliation as listed in a brochure placed in the military polling booth.

That is an official aid that only the serviceman has. The civilian who votes on Monday, June 18, will be given a ballot on which nothing but the names appear. Only the serviceman is officially informed of political affiliations.

RESULTS DELAYED

It will be the same with 123,736 servicemen — whether stationed in Canada, Britain, the United States, The Congo, Indochina, Palestine — along with 9,463 servicemen's wives in Europe, and 5,962 veterans in Army hospitals in Canada.

The votes cast at military polls at home and abroad will not be tabulated and announced until a week after the general civilian vote June 18.

At first glance, the 139,183 eligible service votes may appear insignificant when stacked against the over-all voting list of about 9,000,000. But politicians have learned through bitter experience not to scorn the so-called soldier vote.

In 1945 Prime Minister Mackenzie King was beaten by the service vote in Prince Albert, now Prime Minister Diefenbaker's riding. The late Liberal cabinet minister had to enter the Commons two months later via a by-election in the now-defunct Ontario riding of Glengarry.

CHANGED OUTCOME

In 1917, first election year in which service polls operated, a total of 14 candidates who apparently had been elected by civilians were ousted by the service vote.

In 1957, Liberal Aubrey Simmons won Yukon by a narrow margin on the strength of service votes after his Conservative opponent, Erik Nielsen, got a majority of the civilian vote.

That election, however, was later declared void for other reasons and Mr. Nielsen won in a new election. But the armed forces had shown once again that their votes can decide a close race.

In 1958, Conservative Stanley J. Hunt led on the civilian vote in Renfrew North. A week later the service vote was 183 for him and 431 for Liberal candidate James Forgie, enough to give Mr. Forgie a 199-vote margin and a seat in the Commons.

Renfrew North includes the Army's Camp Petawawa, near Pembroke, Ont. But that does not mean all the votes cast at the Petawawa service polls went to Renfrew North.

MAY CHANGE RIDING

A serviceman's vote must always be reckoned in his home constituency's figures, as determined by a statement of residence on file at defence headquarters. A serviceman has the opportunity of filing a new statement of residence every January.

No matter where he is stationed on election day, his vote must go to a candidate in the riding indicated by that statement. For example, an airman may have been in Ottawa for 15 years but unless he has changed his statement, his vote goes to the riding indicated by his last residence statement.

There is one exception. In Canada, a serviceman included in the ordinary enumeration can vote at a civilian poll—if he resides there, for that reason it is impossible to determine what percentage of servicemen use the franchise.

NO AGE LIMIT

Wives of servicemen in Canada vote just as ordinary civilians—wherever they were living April 19, the day the election writs were issued. But wives abroad must vote for a candidate in the constituency named in the husband's residence statement.

There is no age limit for servicemen. While a civilian must be at least 21 on voting day, a 16-year-old sailor can vote. And, incidentally, service polls are set up on ships at sea during the week prior to June 18.

Service ballots are first of all collected by special returning officers in London, Ottawa, Edmonton and Halifax. These officers must have all ballots by June 19, and the main Ottawa electoral office must have them by Saturday, June 23.

The Ottawa office compiles the service returns Saturday night and Sunday, and telegraphs the results to returning officers in each of the 262 federal constituencies by Monday, June 25. Only then will the full election story be written.

Many Canadians, both young and old, are taking "a stand for tomorrow" by giving their support to the Liberal Party as Mr. Temple has found out during his many trips throughout Hastings South.

Canadian Garden Service

WILL THEY LIKE CANADA?

Anyone who lived in Canada last winter, knows, that we have our own brand of climate. Actually we have several climates. For that reason the flower and vegetable seeds that we sow, the shrubs and vines we plant and even our trees must be selected especially to grow well under Canadian conditions.

Generally we must have vegetables and flowers that grow quickly, come into bloom or table size away ahead of the early frost. And in our nursery stock, too, we can't afford to plant sissy-pansy-pansy stuff that fears a bit of cold. But there are compensations. Nowhere in the world is the sun warmer or stronger than in Canada during the summer and as a result in the long hours of daylight. In June and July growth is far more rapid in Northern Canada than it is in tropical Mexico. But it is important that we plant things that are especially designed for the Canadian climate. When one selects a seed from a Canadian seed catalogue, one can be sure that the seed is suited to Canada, that it has been tested under actual Canadian conditions.

• • •

MOVE WITH CARE

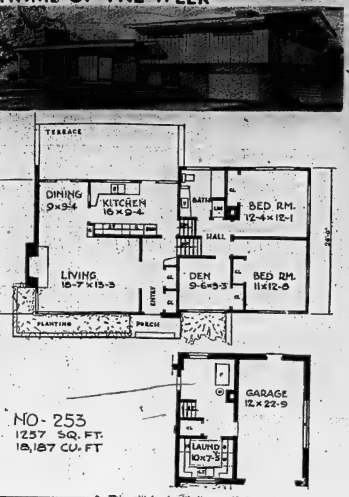
Whether it is a Douglas Fir we are about to transplant or move, or just a 44-inch high tomato plant to its permanent place in the garden, the rules are precisely the same. Keep the roots protected as much as possible from the air, pack them firmly with as fine soil as possible and make sure that the soil is moist and that moist until the plants get established.

That's all there is to transplanting and if the plant, tree or shrub we are transplanting is young, and healthy, then the moisture and fine soil compressed down about the roots we are sure of success; every time. Of course, with larger plants and trees, etc., it is well also to tie firmly to a stake to keep the wind from whipping loose and to trim off some of the top growth. Transplanting, too, is best done in the evening or on a cloudy day as a warm sun is liable to evaporate too much moisture and shrivel the plants.

• • •

TINY SEEDS AND TALL PLANTS

We all remember the warning about "big oaks from tiny acorns grow", or something like that, but many of us forget that the same applies in degree to tiny flower and vegetable seeds. Seeds of marigolds, zinnias and petunias are so small that it takes literally many thousands of them to weigh an ounce. Yet give them moisture, heat and good soil and they will grow up to big bushy plants that will require at least a foot each way to develop properly. And if they are only average size among the range of plants it is possible to grow in Canada.



The beginner, especially, is inclined to sow seed much too close together, failing to realize that even tiny things like alyssum, or verbena, portulaca or some such things, for best results, require a few inches at least in between mature plants. This means thin sowing in the first place, possibly mixing the tiniest seed with a bit of dry sand to permit this thin seeding, and planting bigger things like the largest zinnias and marigolds, cosmos, delphiniums, hollyhocks at least 30 inches and better four feet away from walls and fences. If one is not too familiar with the plants to be grown it is always well to digest the directions and information on the seed packet. There the mature height as well as sale time of sowing and the best location will be stated.

A NO MYSTERY ABOUT A GREEN THUMB

This business about green thumbs is overdone. Practically anyone can become a good gardener and the one thing that will grow in Canada if he takes a little care. Gardening is not burdensome and is not of muscle is not required. The real secret of success, of having marvelous flowers and tender, crisp vegetables, of getting rid of weeds, bugs and disease, is remarkably simple. It can be summed up in one short sentence, namely, give them what they should be little difficulty with drought if we do a little cultivating early and if we water well when transplanting. The main thing is to give attention at the right time, to water when it is needed, before it is too late, to cultivate before the ground packs hard, to thin before the plants become crowded, to give some support before a storm comes along and smashes the tall flowers. The man who advised "a stitch in time saves nine" must have been a gardener and a good one.

HOME OF THE WEEK

This split level with its uncluttered wall spaces and floor areas is a comfortable, labor-saving home which every family will enjoy. The three levels, divided into work, living and sleeping areas are planned for easy traffic circulation. With the large garage designed for the lower level, the first level includes a separate entry, fireplace in the living area and a terrace opening off the dining room and kitchen. The plan calls for two bedrooms and a study which could also be used as a third sleeping area . . . all including ample closet space.

Housepower Big Factor in Modernizing

The homemaker's skillful use of the electrical conveniences at her command begins with the basic understanding of the source of electrical power inside the home. These are the wires, outlets and switches which determine both electrical capacity and flexibility.

Housepower referes to the total electric capacity of a house. When there is full housepower, it means that the house is adequately wired, and the whole electrical system performs unobtrusively and efficiently.

Electricity is measured in terms of volts, amperes and watts. It is available in any quantity, but if more electric power is desired in the home, then the size of the service entrance determines the amount of current available in the home; the larger the wire the more electricity it can carry all at once.

In most older homes the electric service entrance was planned to provide electricity only for lights and a few small appliances (perhaps 30 or 60 amperes). The 100-ampere service entrance is the minimum capacity recommended today by electrical authorities as stated in American Standard Requirements for Residential Wiring.

Most houses built prior to 1940 rely on one or two 15-amp circuits. Today, however, there will be a minimum of one general purpose circuit for each 375 or 500 square feet of floor area, depending upon the size of the wire in the circuit. And the minimum requirement today to serve small appliances is two such circuits, to permit efficient operation of electrical appliances.

Although houses built or completely rewired in the past 10 or 15 years have the types of circuits described here, rapidly changing needs for electricity have led to a recommendation that general purpose circuits be divided into two classes: one to be used only for built-in lighting, and the other to serve convenience outlets located throughout the home for all plug-in appliances and portable lamps.

Thin and Weed Early to Avoid Garden Jungle

Don't wait until seeds have sprouted and the plants need to be weeded and thinned before you begin. It's do, we are going to have a jungle and not a garden. Learn to know the flower and vegetable plants from the weeds and get rid of the latter quickly. All seedlings have two sets of leaves, the first are seed leaves, usually shapes that usually have no resemblance to the permanent leaves that follow. By glancing down the vegetable row or at the more or less regular clumps where the flower seeds were sown, one will notice that there should be little difficulty with drought if we do a little cultivating early and if we water well when transplanting. The main thing is to give attention at the right time, to water when it is needed, before it is too late, to cultivate before the ground packs hard, to thin before the plants become crowded, to give some support before a storm comes along and smashes the tall flowers. The man who advised "a stitch in time saves nine" must have been a gardener and a good one.

Every seed house is well stocked with sprays, dusts and other controls. Very often there is a combination of chemicals, ready packaged, which will handle any bug or garden pest; those that eat holes in the foliage, those that suck the juices or those that attack fruit or roots. Remember that in this as in other types of warfare the best defence is to attack, don't wait until the bugs are in complete control before starting the offensive.

The gardener who gets the most satisfaction never plants all the seed of any flower or vegetable at the same time. He stretches out the plantings making at least two and sometimes three or four from 10 days to two weeks apart. In this way he is making sure that if the first planting gets frozen or washed or trampled on, he will still have one in reserve. More important, he will have something coming on all the time, fresh corn and peas not just for a few days but for many weeks and bouquets of beautiful flowers too. With plantings well spread out the garden should be blooming and producing abundantly from late in June until snow.

New homes are apt to look so pretty bare for several years until trees and shrubbery start to grow but they needn't if we know and use the big quick growing annuals. In a few weeks these will make quite a showing. To take the place of perennial vines, we can plant scarlet runner beans, hops, morning glories or other quick growing climbers. For shrubbery we go through the seed catalogue and select those things that grow two to five feet tall, plant marigolds or zinnias, cosmos, tithonia, cypress, dahlias, cleomes, celosia and cannas are some of them. These big bushy annuals, planted in clumps within two or three feet of walls and fences, will change a new house from a raw building into a real home and do it in weeks, not years.

If there is a lot of walking across the lawn, something like flat stone, bricks, cinders or gravel may have to be used for a path, as only such material will stand heavy and constant wear. But one should go easy with cinders and gravel. If they are loose they're bound to be trouble with the lawnmower. If combined with something to bind them and then rolled or tamped down they may be satisfactory. Brick, however, are more attractive.

Hoffa Enters Not Guilty Plea to Charge

NASHVILLE, Tenn (AP) — Teamsters union boss James Hoffa sat silently Thursday while his lawyer entered a plea of not guilty to charges he violated U.S. labor laws.

Hoffa spoke only once, to his lawyer, in the arraignment before district judge William Miller. A co-defendant, Commercial Carriers Incorporated of Detroit, did not contest the charges and Miller said he would fix the penalty after disposing of the Hoffa case.

Bond for Hoffa was set at $3,000.

Hoffa, the late Teamsters vice - president Owen Bryanan and Commercial Carriers were all ill illegally collecting $1,000,057 from an automobile transport firm set up here, Test Fleet Corporation. Hoffa faces a maximum penalty of a year in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count.

Commercial Carriers could be fined as much as $10,000.

Hoffa spoke only when Judge Miller after fixing bail said the Teamsters leader would be limited to travel in the United States. Hoffa instructed his lawyer, who explained to the judge that business travel to Canada is frequently necessary for his client. Miller amended the restriction.

Resounding Repercussions On Devalued Dollar Mark Red Hot Election Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Resounding repercussions from the May 5 Canadian dollar devaluation marked Thursday's election campaigning.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said his government will take fast and "drastic" action against "money people" who use the devaluation of the dollar's exchange rate — cut to 92½ U.S. cents—as an excuse to raise prices.

Liberal Leader Pearson, commenting Thursday night in a Windsor, Ont., speech, said:

"Has the Tories' political panic now gone so far as to make them completely wild? It should be made clear that price control, don't stand by themselves as mean wage controls and profit controls.

At about the time Mr. Diefenbaker was speaking at Magog, Que., Finance Minister Fleming sat at the Rotary Club luncheon head table in St. John's N'fld., while worried club officials huddled with Newfoundland's Liberal Premier Smallwood.

CALLS OFF SPEECH

The outcome: Mr. Fleming called off a speech to the club about the dollar devaluation after Premier Smallwood told club officials he would withdraw provincial sponsorship of a regional Rotary convention dinner there next week if the finance minister spoke.

The premier said later the dollar issue was "the hottest political topic" in the election and that Mr. Fleming "wanted to use the Rotary Club as a tool for his Tory propaganda." He would have made the club a partisan body.

Mr. Fleming, who said he had been invited to speak about the dollar, held an election meeting in St. John's Thursday night.

"You are going to have a visit from Mr. Castleden to learn something about the tactics of dictatorship."

Leaders of the New Democratic and Social Credit parties were in Saskatchewan, where a battle between Ottawa and the CCF provincial government over a new health insurance plan has developed into another election issue.

SAYS HOTTEST ISSUE

T. C. Douglas, who left the Saskatchewan premiership to head the NDP, said the issue is the hottest of the campaign. The people of the province were spying to stand firm in their determination to get the plan.

"The people of this province are a tough bunch and I have a hunch they are not going to be moved," he said to a crowd of 3,000 at Saskatoon.

Two hundred miles away at Weyburn, Social Credit Leader Robert N. Thompson said that Saskatchewan, once the biggest and most active of the western provinces, has failed to keep pace under 20 years of socialist government.

Today, the campaigns of Mr. Douglas and Mr. Thompson converge at Calgary—the NDP to launch its campaign in Alberta on its way to Kelowna, B.C., and the Social Credit leader reckoning there all day for an evening rally.

Mr. Diefenbaker whistle-stops by train along New Brunswick's north coast to a night meeting at Moncton and Mr. Pearson flies from Windsor, Ont., to Halifax for a night speech.

GORDON COMMENTS

The dollar devaluation had other repercussions Thursday.

Liberal Campaign Chairman Walter Gordon said in Toronto devaluation "was the result of the loss of confidence in Canada's economic and fiscal policies" and there was no guarantee the dollar wouldn't fall again.

Alberta's Social Credit Premier Manning, at a Winnipeg press conference, disagreed with Wednesday night's statement by British Columbia Premier Bennett that the dollar should be devalued further to 90 cents. Mr. Manning said it had been devalued too much. Both premiers have been campaigning for the national Social Credit cause.

And at Toronto, Gunther Gunnel, president of an association of 80 retail bakers in the city, said bread prices will go up regardless of the prime minister's warning.

"I would like to have Mr. Diefenbaker in my shop and show him my costs," Mr. Gunnel said.

'WILL BE DRASTIC'

Mr. Diefenbaker, in his Magog speech, did not say what action is being considered to increase the "unwarranted prices on grounds of the devaluation" but said it will be "as effective as it will be drastic."

"I don't want any group powerful as they may be—to think that they can use an action taken for the benefit of all Canada for their own advantage."

Mr. Diefenbaker took several hours off from campaigning to meet the Queen Mother on her arrival at Montreal's Dorval airport and then flew to the Quebec City to address an audience of 2,000.

There, he said he intends to call a federal-provincial conference to agree on a distinctive Canadian flag and national anthem. The two symbols would be chosen in time for the centennial of Confederation in 1967.

QUITS TO BE MINISTER

Mr. Pearson, speaking to about 1,700 persons in a Windsor arena, said Trade Minister Hees had stated that price increases on imports resulting from the dollar's exchange revaluation would apply only to future sales.

The Conservatives seemed to have a peculiar idea of luxuries, the liberal leader said, which was hardly a luxury. Referring to Mr. Diefenbaker's warning against price increases, he added.

"Is that what has happened to government which has talked so much about free enterprise.

Such wild talk was merely the latest example of bungling and confusion facing Canada because of government weakness.

In St. John's following the last-minute cancellation of Mr. Fleming's speech, Premier Smallwood said he had told Rotary Club to invite a politican to speak to them in the midst of this election on the hottest political topic in Canada today."

CLAIMS SUGGESTED

Later, in a paid political telecast, the premier said Mr. Fleming "or his friends" had invited the minister to speak and that Mr. Fleming had suggested the topic of the dollar.

Mr. Fleming replied that those statements were "utter falsehoods." He said the Bill of Rights does not mean freedom of speech "only with the licence and permission of Mr. Smallwood."

Commenting during his Quebec City speech, Mr. Diefenbaker said: "These are the men who are trying to apply closure to the people of Canada."

NDP Leader Douglas told his Saskatoon audience that on the health care plan "you in Saskatchewan are blazing the trail for the rest of Canada."

The province had been the first to introduce hospital insurance, a municipal doctors system and free clinics for tuberculosis and cancer.

"Now you are going to do it again."

TOO MANY HANDOUTS!

Mr. Thompson at Weyburn said Canada is "suffering from too much handout welfare."

"To provide extensive welfare assistance in a stagnant economy such as Canada's we can be sure of a certain loss of individual freedom unless wealth is found first to place a fire under the economy's rear end."

Premier Manning said the true state of the Canadian economy is being "swept under the rug" until the election is over.

"Whoever forms the government after June 18 will be taking over a financial mess."

He further confident statements Thursday about election gains.

FINDS LIBERAL 'SURGE'

Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer, speaking at Windsor with Mr. Pearson, said he has found in the province "a fantastic and developing surge of support for the Liberals. . . . The party would make substantial gains in Ontario.

B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner said in Montreal there is a Social Credit "explosion" in Quebec but that "the newspapers in general have dropped a curtain around us."

MINISTER HARASSED

Mr. Harkness said Canada has no "strategic nuclear weapons" like the United States or the Soviet Union but is building some missile sites. Disarmament in Canada and withdrawal from NATO "would be inviting our own destruction."

Mr. Green, speaking at Flin Flon, Man., said the Liberals are trying to goad the government into accepting nuclear arms for Canada. Canada had refrained from obtaining nuclear warheads but had "all the necessary equipment" to use them.

Indian Organization Orders Third in Series of Memorials From Local Monument Firm

The Campbell Monument Company, Bridge Street West, in this city, will soon be erecting the third of a series of monuments, made to the order of the Akwesasne Mohawk Counsellors Organization, the American based tribal government of the Six Nations, the Indian Confederation which once ruled this area.

The monument will be erected in front of the council house of the St. Regis Mohawks on the Quebec side of the St. Regis Reserve. The reserve is mostly in New York State. Several years ago, the Akwesasne Mohawk Counsellors Organization decided to erect one monument per year to an Indian hero, organization, or creed.

The first of these, erected on American territory, was a memorial to Deganawida, born in the Huron tribe, but an adopted Mohawk, who founded the "Five Nations" during the early part of the fifteenth century, A.D. At Onondaga, Deganawida planted the "tree of peace," which he hoped would eventually shelter all mankind.

FIRST 5 YEARS AGO

The first monument erected by the Campbell Monument Company in this series was completed about five years ago and the year planned is one in Tecumseh, of the Shawnee tribe. The monument to Tecumseh will be erected in Upper Canada Village, when the Indian Village is added to the outdoor museum.

The Belleville company has been offered the contract for the monuments being erected on the USA as well as those in Canada but declined due to custom difficulties.

The inscription of the current job, now completed and visible from Bridge Street as it rests in storage prior to shipment, reads:

THE INSCRIPTION

"To the Indian

"Who was here before the white man came.

"His civilization bred good men, free men, brave, honest, loyal to friends, individualists yet with a strong group sense, and with a merry delight in the world around them.

"He was the people of the outdoor life. His religio, and institutions which recognized man and nature as mutually dependent, held the secret of survival in the modern world.

"The honor of his people and the welfare of his nation was the first and most predominant emotion in his heart.

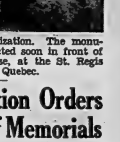
"He believed that all men are free and equal, and have a right to the pursuit of happiness in their own way, as long as they do not encroach on the same right of others.

"He was untainted with avarice, held the word of honor sacred, and counted it a joy to die for his people.

"A great man among the early Indians was not one who had accumulated much wealth, but was a man who had done something for his people.

"Ancient fathers, we honor and revere your memory.

"Erected by the Akwesasne Mohawk Counsellors Organization."



CUT IN STEPS

The top of the monument is cut in steps, to symbolize the mountain top, which is close to the Creator. Below the steps is a crest, carved on a representation of the tree of peace, planted by Deganawida. Above the tree is an eagle, chief of all the birds and guardian bird of the Iroquois. Below the tree is a war club, abolished in the formation of the original five nations.

Behind the tree is the sun, the eye of the great spirit, it watches over the Six Nations.

From opposite sides of the crest, two Indians face each other. A Mohawk figure, symbolizing his nation, keeper of the "eastern door of the longhouse," or the eastern reaches of Six Nations Territory, face a Seneca, keeper of the western frontier.

This work for the Six Nations has had one apparently permanent side effect on A. C. Campbell, owner of the company. Since the completion of the first monument, five years ago, he has become an avid fan of early Indian history and lore.

SEES REPLACING HEART

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Replacement of a bad heart with a good one is possible in humans within the next five or 10 years, a Yale University professor said Thursday. Such transplants have been made with dogs but have been only partially successful, mainly because the body seems to reject tissues of a strange heart, Dr. William W. L. Glenn told the Kentucky Heart Association. But development of remarkable plastic materials may speed the day of human transplants.

Accused Calm When Brought To Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—Ronald Turpin, said "I'll have some of that champagne" when a syringe that a nurse was preparing to give him a penicillin injection made a popping noise.

Nurse Jenny Zalopa described the incident while testifying at the trial of Turpin, 28, for the capital murder of Constable Fred Nash Feb, 12 in a gun battle.

Turpin was wounded and was taken to hospital for surgery in which a bullet and lead fragments were removed from his arm.

Miss Zalopa, who testified she saw Turpin early on the morning in question and gave him anti - tetanus, penicillin, morphine and atrophine injections before surgery, told defence counsel Ross Mackay she was surprised to find Turpin calm, appearing so nonchalant and joking with her.

Host of Improvements Have Been Carried Out to Better Conservation Area Facilities

Visitors this summer to the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area at Thomasburg, 15 miles north of Belleville, will find a host of improvements have been carried out to better the facilities of this popular picnic area.

First of all the road into the area has been extended south another quarter of a mile, additional parking areas have been provided and before the summer is out a bathing beach and a boat loading area will have been provided.

Numbers of additional picnic tables and "cook-outs" have been added and a playground area for the more energetic pic-nickers is being prepared. Dust layer will be applied to the gravelled roadway.

And possibly most important is the improvement of facilities at the spring, where visitors are assured of always obtaining their requirements of pure spring water pouring out of the nearby hills in seemingly endless quantities.

NO MISTAKING

And there is no mistaking the location of the spring!

Symbolic of the still much believed in powers of the water "witchers" a massive inverted divining rod has been planted alongside the road and near the wooded entrance to the spring.

From here a shady path leads to the boxed-up spring where cold water will always be available to picnickers.

Park improvements at the Col. Vanderwater Area were carried out during the past winter and spring under the municipal winter works program which sees the senior governments pay 75 per cent of the labor costs.

Future years, will see additional improvements at the conservation area. The road will be further extended along what is considered to be an even more picturesque section of the Moira River.

The championship previously has been decided twice in South America with Uruguay winning both times—at home in 1930 and in Brazil in 1950.

Brazil's team is the only South American club to capture the Jules Rimet Trophy in Europe. Brazil defeated Sweden in the 1958 finals in Stockholm.

The first and second finishers in each of the four preliminary groups made the quarter-finals to be played Sunday. Apart from Brazil and Chile, all were from Europe.

England and Yugoslavia were the last to qualify for the quarter-finals following Thursday's matches. England played to a scoreless tie with Bulgaria and Yugoslavia beat Colombia 5-0.

England produced some fine play in defeating Argentina 3-1 in group play in Rancagua. Then she failed miserably in managing only a scoreless tie against Bulgaria.

Russia, a favorite with Brazil before the games started, has played unimpressively. Czechoslovakia, regarded as a dark horse, slumped to a 3-1 loss at the hands of Mexico in the last match Thursday.

Elect An Active Representative

Free Press, Education Bulwarks of Free Men Says Liberal Candidate

Robert Temple, Hastings South's Liberal candidate for Parliament, is a strong supporter of the freedom of the individual and his rights. During a recent trip to Europe and Russia, Mr. Temple had every opportunity to see what happens to a people when this freedom and these rights are denied.

"One of the cornerstones of a free society is an informed and educated public," says Mr. Temple, "and I shall always work to ensure that this cornerstone remains on a firm footing."

Mr. Temple has outlined his views on education many times —free tuition for any college, technical school, university or trade school student, and a student loan fund to assist university students. His views have been considered so appropriate that they are expressed as a part of the Liberal Party's program for education — 10,000 four-year scholarships to be made available each year, a student loan program (as suggested by Mr. Temple), and an extended family allowance program up to 18 years of age to assist those who are not carrying their education on to the university level.

This will ensure the education of the youth of today and the citizens of tomorrow so that they will be as well prepared as possible to assume the duties of responsible citizens in a free society and as trained and educated personnel to assume good jobs in an expanded Canadian economy developed by a Liberal government, Mr. Temple states.

"The people must also be informed and a free, unprejudiced press with every opportunity to report the news and events of the day will ensure this," the Liberal candidate advises.

It is only with a free, uncensored press that people can be advised of the real issues of the day and the problems which they and their country must face up to and solve, he says.

"We are free this very thing happening today. Although the current government refuses to admit that there are any serious issues at stake in this election it is readily apparent from my trips through the riding and from what has been happening across Canada that Canadians do realize the situation thanks to a free and objective press."

"This is one of the great bulwarks of our free society and one for which I will fight to keep," Mr. Temple advises.

In keeping with his firm conviction that a representative of the people must know the people and their problems as well as defend their rights, Mr. Temple is still keeping up his fast-paced series of visits to as many different groups, places, plants and activities as possible.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Saguenay, a horse which had never before started in North America, and Majestic Hour, Bill Beasley's gallant four-year-old colt, raced to a dead-heat Thursday at Woodbine and provided two of the largest prices of the day.

Saguenay, owned by Roxie Glan of Buffalo and ridden by Evan Argyn, returned $29.80, $25.00 and $8.80 while Majestic Hour, which hadn't won a race position, returned $31.80, $15.20 and $6.00. Calais 2nd paid $2.70 for show position.

Jets Blast Suns 16-1, Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Columbus Jets are the leading International League champions and they played that way Thursday night. In the process, they humbled the league - leading Jacksonville Suns.

The Jets, who have been in last place most of this season, exploded with power as they walloped Suns 16-1 at Columbus. It was the worst defeat Jacksonville has suffered this season.

In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs scored three times in the ninth inning to edge Buffalo Bisons 5-4, Rochester Red Wings defeated Syracuse Chiefs 2-0 and Atlanta Crackers blanked Richmond Virginians 11-0.

In the Columbus game, Jets scored six runs in the second frame, another seven in the fourth. They scored twice in the first and added their final run in the eighth. The Suns' lone run came in the first inning.

ONE ONLY HITS

Bob (Riverboat) Smith went the route for Columbus, limiting Suns to five hits.

A peculiar note about the loss was that Jacksonville used only two pitchers. Starter Art Ceccarelli gave way to Vic Davalillo in the fourth. Davalillo had been in centre field until then.

Lou Johnson supplied the big blow that gave Leafs their win over Buffalo. Johnson slammed a bases-loaded double in the ninth to score two runs. Bisons had taken a 4-1 lead in the fourth inning. Two of the runs scored on two homers by John Herrnstein.

Russ Heman, third relief pitcher, was credited with the victory. Starter Bobby Locke suffered the loss.

Highlander Bob Sadowski, who had been averaging more than eight runs a game prior to Thursday night's contest, pitched a six-hitter to lead Rochester to theft win over Richmond.

Cards Lift Suspension

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals announced Thursday night that they have lifted the suspension of left-hander Ray Sadecki and that the 22-year-old bonus baby and manager Johnny Keane have "resolved their differences."

Keane fined Sadecki $250 and accused him of "goofing off" Tuesday night when the youngster committed two errors and threw two home-run balls as he yielded five runs without retiring a man in a relief appearance against Cincinnati Reds.

Sadecki was suspended the following night when he didn't show up for the next game against Cincinnati, demanding unsuccessfully that he be traded.

Soccer Team Tabbed With $1,000 Fine

TORONTO (CP)—The management board of the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League Thursday night fined Toronto Roma $1,000 and "ordered" the club to deposit a $1,000 cash bond by noon Tuesday for leaving the field during a game against Buffalo White Eagles Wednesday night.

Roma walked off the field with the score tied 2-2 after the referee ordered a penalty shot on Roma retaken because their goalie came out of the net during the shot.

Failure to comply with the fine and bond will result in Roma's suspension for the rest of the season.

The board awarded the game to Buffalo, now trailing Toronto City by one point for first place.

15 Horses Will Run In Oakes

TORONTO (CP) — Fifteen horses will run in the Canadian Oakes at Woodbine Saturday. The purse of $39,145 for the mile-and-one-mile and one eighth is the largest ever offered for a filly race in Canada.

The owner of the winning horse will receive $26,965 and a $1,500 gold plate. Second money is $6,250 while the owner of the third horse receives $3,750. Fourth money is $2,500.

VETERAN RETURNS

NEW YORK (AP) — Linebacker Tom Scott of New York Giants signed Thursday for his 10th season in the National Football League. The 33-year-old defensive star was played on two Eastern Conference title teams since being obtained by the Giants from Philadelphia prior to the 1959 season.

Yesterdays Stars

Pitching—Bill Stafford, Yankees, faced only 29 men, allowing only two singles and walking none in 4-0 triumph over Cleveland.

Batting—Al Smith, White Sox, stroked five singles in five trips, driving in two runs in 5-4 victory over Los Angeles Angels.

Brewer Leads Golf Classic

That was the laughing analysis offered by two-time national amateur champion Jack Nicklaus when 45 players scored better than Arnold Palmer, golf's Mr. Moneybags, in the first round of the $100,000 Classic tournament at the Upper Montclair Country Club.

It was given, however, with a slightly rueful chuckle that indicated nobody, least of all his pro rivals, figures Arnie will be far away when the $25,000 first prize is handed out Sunday night.

Gay Brewer, a light-hearted, heavy-hitting Kentucky — bred pro, solved the tricky greens on the 7,005-yard course to take the first-round lead with 33-35—68.

He was one stroke ahead of Gene Littler, who is teeing up here to defend his U.S. Open championship at Oakmont, Pa., next week, and Earl Stewart, 40-year-old club pro from Dallas.

Palmer, winner of six tournaments this year, was back in the rush at 75, one over par. He was still feeling the effects of a cold that has bothered him for more than a week.

Fred Hawkins and Dave Ragan had 69s and six players had 69s, among them Nicklaus, who said he was happy with his score because he had played "sloppy" golf and deserved about a 72.

After today's second round the field will be cut to the low 60 pros and the four amateurs who started. Another cut to 50 and ties will be made before the final round.

Doug Sanders and Chandler Harper, shot holes-in-one, Sanders on the 210-yard third hole and Harper on the 230-yard 17th.

It was the first time two aces had been made on the same day on the PGA tour this year.

'Peek-a-Boos' Win Spring Bowling Title

The "Peek-a-Boos" are the new seasonal champions with the "Untouchables" finishing second and the "Alley Cats" third.

Horace Ormsbee in a fine last-game finish took both the high triple, 948 and the high single with a 400.

The league operated over a period of nine weeks.

O'Keefe Centre Season Opens On June 18th

TORONTO — O'Keefe Summer Holiday Theatre opens June 18 with the musical comedy "Guys and Dolls" for a three-week run. The final production is devoted to the Shriners' Convention in Toronto, July 16th to July 14th Bob Hope will star in the first visit to the Centre in "The Bob Newhart Show" July 16 to July 28th the O'Keefe Centre stage is taken over by another musical "Most Happy Fella" for two weeks. July 30th to August 4th singer Vic Damone and comedian Henry Youngman present a variety diversion; August 6 to August 18 features the Jack Carter Revue presenting the comedian as well known to television and TV audiences; August 18 to August 18 singer Tony Bennett and comedy team Ford and Hanna are entertaining audiences. Finale for the summer season, August 20 to September 1st is O'Keefe's first to show entitled "Holiday Theatre Ice Revue".

For eleven weeks of its "second season" the O'Keefe Centre invites the public to enjoy varied and melodious entertainment in a cool relaxed atmosphere. With "Holiday Theatre" as the theme, the theatre gets into the swing of warm weather preferences and up goes the bunting, down come the prices, out goes formality, on goes the air-conditioning and on comes a parade of varied entertainment. Prices range from a low 75c to $3.75 top, with seasons tickets available at 7 shows for the price of 5". The theatre plans to keep the building open ahead of show-time to encourage patrons to take advantage of the dining facilities in the air-conditioned lounges or on the brewery terrace in the cool garden setting. Plans are to exhibit al fresco displays of local artists' works in the accompaniment of gay summer music played from the theatre to the outdoors.

AT THE PARE — Audie Murphy and Joan O'Brien face troubles with warring Indians and avenging gunslingers in this scene from "Six Black Horses", outdoor adventure drama. They co-star in the Universal color drama with Dan Duryea showing today and Saturday at the Park Theatre. On the same program the wacky comedy "The Secret Man Was A Lady" starring Martin West, Venetia Stevenson and Bill Williams. Both shows are first showings. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Arlene French and James Cagney find themselves responsible for the irresponsible behavior of Pamela Tiffin, a visiting American heiress in West Berlin. Billy Wilder's new comedy, "One, Two, Three", showing tonight and Saturday at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. 2nd feature in Eastman color and Cinemascope stars Steve Reeves in "The Last Days of Pompeii" and co-stars Cristina Kaufman and Barbara Carroll.

Vera Walton To Appear in Guys and Dolls

TORONTO — Vera Walton of Graham Valley, one of the theatre's veteran performers, have signed for feature roles in "Guys and Dolls" the season-opening attraction at O'Keefe Centre Holiday Theatre. The Frank Loesser musical hit begins a three-week stage-shot on Monday June 18.

Miss Walton will play General Matilda B. Carswright, a role which Toronto audiences saw her perform in 1956-57 in the touring edition of "Guys and Dolls". In 1955, Miss Walton was seen here as Aunt Eller in the National company of "Oklahoma". Recently, she has turned to films and has been seen in "A Fever in the Crowd" and "Butterfield 8".

Mr. Valley, noting his 35th year in the theatre, is also at home before Toronto theatregoers. His first appearance here was in "Excuse Me," a Pulitzer Car comedy in 1954. He has played here numerous times since that long ago date, in addition to several other way assignments including "The Crucible," "Native Son" and "Harvey".

At The Park

Opens Monday
"JESSICA"

Chevalier Movie Has Color and Music.

"Jessica" is coming. She arrives Monday at the air-conditioned Park Theatre, starring beautiful Angie Dickinson in the title role. Maurice Chevalier and Noel-Noel share top billing in the musical romance which is shown in Technicolor and Panavision. Filmed on location in Sicily and Rome "Jessica" was produced and directed by Jean Negulesco, who made "Three Coins in The Fountain" in the same merry manner and is released through United Artists.

Co-starring Agnes Moorehead, Marcel Dalio, Gabriele Ferzetti, Sylva Dalio, Gebriele Ferzetti, Sylva Koscina and introducing lovely Danielle De Metz, "Jessica" is the provocative tale of an American beauty who turns an Italian town topsy turvy just by driving through on her motor scooter! Based on Fran Sandstrom's popular novel, "The Midwife of Pont Charry", the screenplay was written by Edith Sommer. Dmitry Negulesco, the producer's talented wife, penned the lyrics for the film's song, five of which were written by Marguerite Monnot, who also composed the music for the international actress "Irma La Douce". The catchy "Jessica" song and musical score for "Jessica" were composed and arranged by Mario Nascimbene.

Princess Grace Will Not Act For Hitchcock

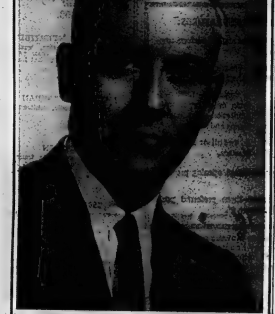
NICE, France (AP) — Princess Grace of Monaco says she definitely will not play in Alfred Hitchcock's film Marnie. She indicated she probably has retired from the movies permanently.

The former Grace Kelly announced two months ago that she would make her return to the screen this summer in the Hitchcock movie. Later the British director said he had postponed the production.

In an interview published today by the newspaper Nice-Matin, Princess Grace said of Marnie:

"On the one hand I will not have time and on the other I have been definitely influenced by the reaction provoked in Monaco at the announcement of my participation in the making of this film."

But Their Hair Cuts Were Cheaper



LONDON (AP) — A full-blooded Cherokee Indian said Thursday that his arrow-shooting ancestors couldn't match the archers of 1962.

"With our modern equipment," said Joe A. Thornton, 43, of Tulsa, Okla., "they wouldn't be fit."

"We're more accurate and we can shoot an arrow a lot further than the old Indians because of our equipment."

He arrived two days ago to participate in an international trial announced by Britain's Grand National Archery Society.

Universal Pictures Mark Happy 50th Anniversary

By BOB THOMAS

Carl Laemmle founded the company in New York City June 8, 1912. That makes it older than any other movie empire, although younger than many leading men.

From the start it was a scrappy, little independent, fighting the big studios with nerve and talent. It has undergone some big changes in operation, and soon will get its biggest change. But the image has always remained the same.

Laemmle, a crusty little German immigrant, may well have started the star system by hiring Florence Lawrence at $1,000 a week and billing Tom Mix and Mary Pickford with her own name, instead of "the girl with the curls."

Laemmle sold out in 1936, but the studio kept up his policy of making films cheap, good and often. Winning's born Deanna Durbin kept the wolf from the door in those depression years. Universal thrived during the war boom, largely on a diet of horse operas and cut-and-cased adventure films, plus Abbott and Costello.

The sausage operation failed in the more select post - war era. Another change in management saw the takeover by William Goetz and Leo Spitz with their International Pictures. This led to the redundant and bothersome title of Universal-International.

Decca Records started taking over the studio in the early 1950s. Everyone said that Universal had the smartest operation in those perilous times when television was assaulting the movie world.

There was only one trouble: The pictures weren't good.

SOLD STUDIO PROPERTY

Lacking hit products, Universal shut down. Eventually it sold its studio property to the bustling new television giant, Revue, and rented back space.

Universal converted to a policy of a few, specially tailored films, intended as blockbusters. Not all have buried blocks, but enough have to keep the firm in the black—Pillow Talk, Imitation of Life, Operation Petticoat, Come September, Lover Come Back, etc.

Now Universal is on the verge of a merger with Revue. With such an infusion of energy, Laemmle's lot is likely to be in business for another 50 years.

TV Connections Helped To Move Refugee to U.S.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The luckiest girl in refugee — clogged Hong Kong was 23-year-old Deanna Chu. She had U.S. television connections.

Thanks to them she never bet out of the city and into the United States.

Deanna became the first Chinese to reach New York under the administration's emergency program to admit several thousand emigrants from Hong Kong. She is in the first group leaving Hong Kong. Deanna's older sister is a writer on NBC's Today Show.

Doreen, the older sister, and the rest of the Chu family enlisted to get the United States visas for Deanna. Deanna was forced to remain behind because of a trace of tuberculosis, now cured.

Then, a couple of weeks ago, reporter Doreen was assigned to interview William Vanden Heuvel, president of the International Refugee Committee, a drama about the death of sent to arrange to bring in the first of the emigrees. Doreen told him about her sister's plight.

Deanna, who speaks excellent English, popped up on the Today Show Thursday morning. And with her was Vanden Heuvel, who had a chance to talk about the refugee committee's effort on network television.

If the subcommittee headed by Senator John McClellan decides to open its public hearings on the Billie Sol Estes case to television cameras, the viewing public may have ringside seats, the way they did at the Kefauver crime and McCarthy-army hearings.

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — An old-maidish-aura with a face "like a gnarled potato is the second best-known lady of the land.

To her fans from the Shetland Islands to Penzance—and there are enough of them to populate Canada—she is Ena Sharples, a sharp - tongued old gossip with a minute streak of goodness beneath the bulky grey exterior that is as familiar to British television viewers as Big Ben.

In private she is Violet Carson, a rather stylish, silver-haired bit - player who was thinking of retiring to her rose garden in Blackpool when she got the first long - run role of her 40-year career.

Now as Britain's angry old woman she is the unchallenged queen of the TV screen and the star of Coronation Street, a fantastically popular twice-weekly drama that has attracted fans from every shade of society.

Recently an estimated 30,427,500 people watched one episode —a record for any TV program in the country, including appearances by the Queen.

TOPS RATINGS

Coronation Street got off to a shaky start a year and a half ago after almost being discarded in the try - out stage. Now, because it is on twice weekly, Monday and Wednesday, it occupies the two top spots in the top-20 ratings.

When Miss Carson, who lives with her sister and mother, both widows, wrote for a part in the show she got no reply. Then, with time running out, scriptwriter Tony Warren recalled that when he was a child actor there was "an old sweetie who used to clip my ear when I was being just too ghastly."

They called in Miss Carson for an audition and handed her her part—one line. She was supposed to ask in a store for "half a dozen fancy cakes—and no eclairs." She delivered the line and then, for some unknown reason, turned back, pulled a scowl like a thundercloud and added, "I said no eclairs!"

The producers and director thought her try and thus was launched the most successful old republic since the late Marie Dressler" left Cobourg, Ont., and became Hollywood's Tugboat Annie.

ACCENTS GENUINE

Coronation Street is in Lancashire, a dingy row of smoky terrace houses without indoor plumbing. The heart of the social life is The Rover's Return, the local pub.

Although nothing terribly exciting ever happens, still the interest is sustained. Casting director Jose Scott says the program's appeal lies in the fact "it is real" and all the North of England accents are genuine.

Sidney Bernstein, head of Granada TV which produces the show, likes to recall what happened recently when he dropped in for cocktails with Oliver Messel, stage director and uncle of The Earl of Snowdon, Princess Margaret's husband. After a few drinks, Bernstein reports, Messel rose abruptly and said: "I'm afraid you'll have to move now. It's almost half past seven and we all go down to the maid's room to watch Coronation Street."

Such is the fame of Ena Sharples that when a weekly newspaper signed Miss Carson to write her own story it promoted the series with posters saying only, Ena—by Ena. But it is just such fame that may spell trouble for Miss Carson.

FRONT-PAGE NEWS

A couple of months ago Ena was discovered in a mess — on screen that is—and fans, recalling that scriptwriters had heartlessly killed off another member of the cast by having her run over by a truck, feared for her life.

It was front-page news for days. Get-well cards and flowers flooded into the Granada studios. When a bright young photographer got a picture of an ambulance going into the studio lot his paper announced that Ena was going to hospital and promised readers that she would survive one more episode, at least.

When, two weeks later, she fluttered her eyelashes and snarled at her two best beer-drinking companions, the nation sighed with relief.

Although she is up and around she is not out of danger. So far Miss Carson has refused since then and TV executives say this is because they dont want too much emphasis on any one character.

But TV columnists have hinted that the real reason for Carson's refusal is that they Miss Carson's contract comes up for renegotiation soon.

Be that as it may, if Miss Carson is half the tongue-lasher Ena Sharples is she will get the contract she wants.

ENGLISH ORIGIN

Glees, or songs for male groups unaccompanied by music, were first composed in England about 1750.

IS TOP TV STAR—Actress Violet Carson (right), a bit player for 40 years, has suddenly soared to stardom and top rating in a twice-weekly British television drama. Playing the role of Ena Sharples, a sharp-tongued old gossip, she has attracted fans from every walk of society. Minnie Caldwell. (CP Photo).

Winger Grabs $108,300 Seven Start In Belmont

NEW YORK (AP)—The richest and one of the most unpredictable of all Belmont Stakes since the classic was inaugurated in 1867, will be raced Saturday at Belmont Park.

Seven three - year olds are scheduled to go postward in the 1½-mile test, barring late developments. Seven starters would make the purse $152,050, with the winner grabbing $108,300. Sherlock took a record $104,050, last June.

Three others, who can't be counted out after that year's experience with Sherlock ($132.10 for $2), are Fred W. Hooper's Admiral's Voyage—Frank E. Power's Vimy Ridge, and Louis Wolfson's David K.

Decidedly broke the Churchill Downs track record in winning the Kentucky Derby five weeks ago but ran poorly in the Preakness at Pimlico May 19, as Greek Money nosed out Ridan.

Crimson Satan, who was voted the best two-year-old in 1961 but failed badly in the earlier classics this year, finished first by a nose in the Jersey Derby May 30 as Jaipur nosed out Admiral's Voyage for second. Then the stewards disqualified Crimson Satan, dropping him to third and Jaipur was made the winner, with the Admiral second.

Ownership Changes Hands
Teeps Now Black Hawks

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Ownership of the St. Catharines junior A hockey club changed hands Thursday and its name was switched to Black Hawks from Teepees, a title carried for 15 years.

The team retains the sponsorship of Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League and a new one-year agreement was signed at a meeting Thursday with Chicago general manager Tommy Ivan.

Among the former owners who resigned directorships with the sale of the club were Chicago Black Hawks coach Rudy Pilous, 1961-62 president Jack Wilson and George Stauffer, who named the club Teepees when he assumed control in 1947. The name came from the initial letters of a local firm, Thompson Products Limited, of which Stauffer then was president.

Ken Campbell remains as coach but a manager has not been chosen. The Teepees finished third in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series last season.

Sport Slices . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It was back in the days when hockey fans went to arenas to enjoy their favorite sport. The days when "salaries" were paid bankers and executives; when athletes played for the sheer love of the game and the box-office paid off in golden rivulets.

MIKE RODDEN

They were the placid days of senior "B" hockey before the sport-killing spears of "Senior A" and minor professional experts gave the coup-de-grace to the game in this part of Eastern Ontario.

The bitterest rivals in the senior "B" amphitheatre were Kingston and Belleville. No quarter was asked or given on either side of the boards. Trainloads of Belleville fans bawled to high heaven in the old Jock Harty arena. Hundreds of Kingstonians backed their big lumber, built rafter-shaking choruses in Memorial Arena here.

Rivalry was so intense that a "typewriter war" developed between this department and the dean of Canadian sports columnists, the late Michael J. Rodden, then sports editor of the Kingston Whig Standard.

It developed to the point where both rivals received telephone calls and notes of warning. What a lot of the fans found to both typewriters didn't know that it was all in fun. Many morning-after (the game, that is) guffaws Mike and I had over the telephone.

Mike Rodden was and is a very good friend of mine. No one regretted the fact more when Mike finally hung up the sports writing gear and went into the dressing room of retirement, than this reporter. I have always held him in the highest regard and esteem. He had qualities that placed him in the front rank of the country's sports columnists and writers.

Mike had an elephantine memory. Many a night in the press box I have listened to him reminisce of the good old days. He had color galore, the knack of telling stories and a repertoire that was seemingly endless. Mike has truly had a full and exciting sports life. My sincere wish is that he continues to enjoy many more years of the retirement he has so richly deserved.

Not too many years ago this agent with other sports columnists recommended in a poll that Mr. Rodden be honored with a niche in the hockey hall of fame. The other day our fondest wish came true, Mike will take his proper place along with other hockey greats, past and present. It is all honor he has deserved these many years.

But sports columning was not Mike's only forte in sport. He is famous as a football coach and a hockey referee, and was one of the best arbiters in the National Hockey League. He was a gridiron star in his younger days.

He played for the University of Ottawa, Queen's, McGill and the Toronto Argonauts, starting in his home town of Mattawa, at the tender age of 15. He played with Queen's for four seasons.

As a football coach Mike sent such later stalwarts to the National Hockey League, as Nels Stewart, Ace Bailey, Marty Burke, Shorty Horne, Babe Siebert, Bill Phillips, Bill Carrick, The Blake, and others.

He came to Belleville in the early forties and became associated with the Belleville Reliance Company. He gathered together and coached the Reliance senior "B" hockey club, with Ken Soden as secretary.

And so my congratulations to Michael J. Rodden, a gentleman, sportsman, athlete, coach and columnist who has been a credit to Canada and the sports he loved so much.

Min-Twins Take Over Second Place

Yanks Blank Tribe Again

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

It's June and Minnesota Twins are still within striking distance of the American League lead. That must rate as one of the more startling developments in the sport.

The Twins, who seemed to have a lease on a second-division berth in their 60 years as a Washington Senators, are peasant contenders in their second season in Minnesota. They climbed up a notch Thursday beating Kansas City Athletics 3-2 behind the sturdy pitching of rookie righthander Joe Bonikowski and the key hitting of Rich Rollins.

The victory, coupled with New York Yankees' 4-0 shutout of Cleveland Indians on Bill Stafford's two-hitter, reshuffled the top of the standings. The Yanks kept their hold on first place, Minnesota jumped to second, one game away, and the Indians fell to third, two games behind.

Boston Red Sox edged Detroit Tigers 5-4, Chicago White Sox put together a seven-run second inning and beat Los Angeles Angels 8-4 and Baltimore Orioles crushed Washington Senators 11-1.

STRIKES OUT FIVE

Bonikowski, 21, held the Athletics to six hits, five of them came in Kansas City's two scoring innings. Bonikowski struck out five men and did not allow a walk, winning his fifth game against four defeats this season.

Rollings singled as the Twins scored once in the first inning, drove in two runs with a double when they broke a 1-1 tie by scoring twice in the fifth and doubled home Minnesota's final run in the seventh.

Earl Battey also had three hits for the Twins. Kansas City starter Dave Wickersham took the defeat.

Stafford's shutout was the Yanks' second straight over Cleveland in a 24-hr. series with the Indians. And for the second straight time Roger Maris of the Yankees cracked a scoreless tie with a homer. Stafford fanned only 29 men, retiring the first 10 in order before allowing a single to Al Luplow in the fourth inning. After Bubba Phillips' single in the fifth, the Yankee righthander set down the final 13 Indians in a row.

HITS 37TH HOMER

Maris led off the fourth frame with his 10th homer of the season for New York's first hit off loser Jim Perry. The score stayed at 1-0 until the Yankees got some insurance in the eighth, when they picked up three runs on three hits, a walk, an error and a sacrifice fly.

Ralph Terry fired a four-hitter for the Yanks Wednesday when they won 5-0 and credit for the league lead with the victory.

The Red Sox nipped the Tigers' act on an eighth-inning run produced on Bob Tillman's triple and a single by Carroll Hardy. Before that it had been a home run duel, with pitcher Earl Wilson and Gary Geiger connecting for Boston and Rocky Colavito and Jake Wood for Detroit. Wilson got credit for the winning pitcher and Ron Nischwitz the loser.

Al Smith smacked the White Sox over the Angels, getting five hits in four times. Two Chicago outfielder started off the second inning with a single and drove in three six and seven with another hit.

Commercial Softball League

TRUDEAUS 12 — PT. ANNE 3

Trudeau Motors overcame an early 3-0 deficit with six runs in the fourth inning at Point Anne last night and went on to defeat the Point Anne Cementmen 13-3.

Point Anne opened up what looked like a comfortable lead with two runs in the first, four in the second and another pair in the third. Trudeaus, hitting well with men on base, plated three in the third and took a 10-3 lead with their big six-run explosion.

Lyle Wannamaker highlighted the winners' fourth-inning rally with a three-run homer after errors had paved the way. Another three runs in the sixth sewed up the decision.

Wannamaker's homer was the big blow for the winners while "Shaker" Baker and Jack Whiting each had a double. Ed Plata, Paul Meraw, Junior Day and Bob Brooks had a single each.

Jim Horwood banged a double and two singles to pace the Cementmen. Ron Hull, Bert Whalen and Jim Sheridan each had two singles while Denny Hull and "Whitey" Hull got one apiece.

Trudeaus	103 603 0 - 13 7 2
Pt. Anne	243 000 0 - 8 11 5
Batteries: Day and Meraw; Feeney and Sheridan.

FRENCH HORSE WINS

LIGHTFOOTS 18 — REID'S 8

Lightfoot Construction romped to their second easy victory in as many nights when they blanked Doc's Excavating 19-0 behind Perc Long's two-hit pitching last night.

Long, one of the Commercial League aces, fanned masterful ball last night. He got three singles by Rocky Davis and Frank Donovan and set 16 batters down on third strikes while walking but one man.

The winners scored three in the first and never let up, capping the game with seven runs in the sixth.

Larry Hull stayed the distance for Reid's, striking out 11 hits while his mates booted the ball around for ten errors. Hull fanned seven and walked ten.

Don Smith spearheaded the Lightfoot attack with a triple and two singles. Don Wood hit a double and single while Allan Dolan rapped two singles. Other base hits were by Carr, Mac Kenna, Jack Caddick, Lynch and Rusty Garvin.

The two leaders' victory gave Lightfoots a total of 46 runs in two nights while the opposition has scored none.

Lightfoots	302 470 0 - 18 11 2
Reid's	000 000 0 - 0 2 10
Batteries: Long and Wood; L. Hull and Smith.

LAVER WINS ANOTHER

OSLO (AP)—Rod Laver of Australia won by forwards in open tennis championship Thursday, defeating Sweden Erik Lundquist of 6-1, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3. It was Laver's fourth straight international crown. He previously had won the Swiss, Italian and French championships.

Disappointed With Deal

'Kicked Where It Hurt,' Olmstead

CALGARY (CP) — Veteran leftwinger Bert Olmstead is disappointed with the National Hockey League deal in which he was drafted from Toronto Maple Leafs by New York Rangers.

"It's a bit of a kick where it's hurts," the 35-year-old forward said Thursday.

Olmstead, who has toiled in the NHL for 13 seasons with Montreal Canadiens and the Leafs, said he had hoped to get the Toronto coaching job some day.

The Rangers grabbed Olmstead for the $20,000 draft price at the NHL meeting in Montreal earlier this week when the Leafs lick him off their list of protected players.

"I didn't see how they could protect an old man like me, but I thought they might convince other clubs I was too old to be useful," Olmstead said.

He talked with the Leafs after the 1961-62 season and indicated that he received no hint he would be left open for draft.

Olmstead, who operates a farm at Scepter, Sask., also denied reports of clashes with Punch Imlach, Leaf coach and general manager, but admitted "disagreements over the caliber of some players and how to combat certain things other clubs might have been doing."

"Just say that Imlach was the boss and when he told me to play, I did the best I could do. He gave me several assignments that nobody else was told about and I don't think I missed on any of them.

"The time came to get fired up because the Leafs will just say they let me open to the draft so I could be considered for the job of coaching with the Rangers.

Ranger playing coach Doug Harvey resigned earlier this week and there were reports Olmstead would take over. He said he talked to a New York representative Wednesday and there was "some mention" of an opportunity to coach.

"But I didn't hear a firm commitment and I didn't make a firm commitment. Following Harvey into that job is like going to bat right after Mickey Mantle."

Olmstead said Imlach will hold on to Leaf coach as long as possible.

'IMPOSSIBLE TO ARGUE'

"When he becomes strictly general manager he'll hire a coach he can manipulate. Imlach and King Clancy have convinced the boss they're doing the best job possible and it's impossible to argue with a Stanley Cup."

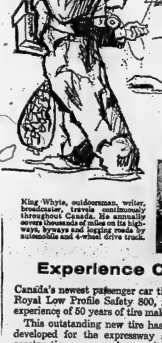
"We had just won the Stanley Cup when Montreal dropped me (in 1958) and it took us four years to win the cup in Toronto. Now I've got to start all over again. It's a bit of a kick where it hurts."

He said he had been promised that his next year in Toronto would be strictly spot duty, something to which he looked forward.

"I think I could have played that way for another year or two in Toronto or Montreal but it will be tougher if I report to New York."



Olmstead was here to discuss buying a home and to have some dental work done.

Bulldog Meets 'Haystack' Here Tonight

He meets the 500-pound Arkansas muleskinner "Hay stack" Muldoon who is no bored 'ourve when it comes to a full-course wrestling meal.

Muldoon who claims his forefathers hail from County Cork, is a sprightly bale of wrestling hay, can take everything that comes his way and can dish it out.

"Haystack" is a colorful performer, surprisingly agile for his size. Angered, he is like a big bull. Brower had better be on his behavior.

The "old favorites" Ivan and Karol Kalmikoff make their seasonal debut against Sam Steamboat and Tom "Emperor" Jones. This should be a must for the faithful.

Ray Gordon and Frank Valois are in the curtain raiser.

LIONS DRAFT ANOTHER

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions have drafted guard Bill Graham of Calgary Stampeders as their second choice in the Western Football Conference equalization pool. Lions earlier obtained backfielder Baz Nagle from Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the first round.

Associated Press Sports Writer

By MIKE RATHET

Andre Rodgers, traded for a manager and repeddled before he got to play a game with his new mates, may have saved his latest job with a sudden display of power for Chicago Cubs in the National League.

The shortstop hit a bases-loaded single in a three-run fourth inning, then tagged a homer in the sixth frame for the deciding run as the Cubs edged idle first-pleading San Francisco Giants 4-3 Thursday.

MISS FIRST SPOT

The win-place Los Angeles Dodgers lost an opportunity to take over first spot. They were beaten 3-2 by Pittsburgh Pirates when Dick Stuart hit a three-run homer in the last of the ninth inning. The setback kept the Dodgers half a game back of the Giants.

St. Louis Cardinals won their third straight game after snapping an eight - game losing streak by belting Cincinnati Reds 8-2 and Houston Colts came from behind to edge Milwaukee and Warren Spahn 3-2. New York Mets and Philadelphia Phillies were not scheduled for action.

Singles by Billy Williams and Ernie Banks, a walk to Lou Brock and singles by El Tappe and Rodgers accounted for three Chicago runs in the fourth inning before Rodgers took care of the final tally. Don Cardwell (2-6), who reclieved six hits, although he gave up a ninth-inning homer to Felipe Alou.

TAKE EARLY LEAD

The Dodgers gave Johnny Podres a 2-0 lead on Willie Davis' homer with a man on in the third inning. The stylish lefty later had a four-hit shutout until the ninth frame, when Dick Groat and Roberto Clemente hit consecutive singles leading off the inning. That chased Podres and brought on Larry Sherry, whose second pitch was hit by Stuart for the game-winner. Elroy Face (4-1) picked up the triumph in relief.

Chalk Up First Win

Rollins Take Bobcats

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Sonny Holoway's two-hit pitching snapped a five-game losing streak for the Rollins Construction Juniors last night and gave his club a 5-3 decision over the second-place Bobcats. It was their first league victory.

Holoway got off to a shaky start when the Bobcats scored their first run in the second inning off two walks and three errors.

The Juniors settled down and backed Holoway's pitching with errorless support over the remainder. They overtook the Cats with two runs in the fifth, added two more in the sixth and another in the seventh for a 5-1 lead.

The Bobcats picked up a scratch single by "Wiener" Brown in the third inning and Holoway blanked them after that until there were two out in the ninth. Lou Semrke punched a home run down the right-field foul line for the losers' second hit.

Holoway retired 12 batters in a row between Brown's hit and a walk in the seventh and struck out six. He walked four, three of them coming in the first two frames.

Workhorse Bobby Green sweated the route for the Bobcats. He gave up 10 hits and struck out half a dozen. Seven walks and five errors were no help.

Rollins stranded 12 base runners in all and appeared to be in for another frustrating night when they loaded the bases in the first and had two on in the second without scoring a run.

Rick Locke beat out an infield single to get the ball rolling in the fifth. Duggan doubled him home to tie it 1-1. Robitaille followed with another infield hit and Kellar's fly ball chased the run home.

Ethier doubled to open the sixth and rounded the bases on an error and a passed ball. Two walks, with two out, and Duggan's RBI single made it 4-2. A walk and two errors upped the score to 5-1.

Ricky Locke had a perfect night at the plate for the winners, collecting two singles, two walks, a sacrifice bunt and two runs. Gary Duggan drove home two runs with a double also had two hits. Bucky Ethier and single while Joe Robitaille contributed a two-bagger while singles-west to Cliff McGrimmon, Don Gardner and Billy McGuire.

NOTICE

THE BOARD OF THE CONSOLIDATED ROMAN CATHOLIC SEPARATE SCHOOLS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF RICHMOND AND THE VILLAGE OF RICHMOND

Take notice that the above-mentioned Board on the 12th day of June, 1962 passed a By-law No. 9 to authorize the borrowing of money by the issue and sale of Debentures in the principal amount of $60,000.00.

1. The money to be borrowed for the purposes of paying the cost of building and equipping a 3-classroom addition to St. Mary's School.

2. The amount to be borrowed is $60,000.00 and the security therefor shall be the said debentures which shall be a charge upon the school house site and upon the whole rateable property contributing and hereafter to be entered in the said Board and upon the separate school rates levied thereon.

3. The debentures are to be dated June 15th, 1962, in the several denominations of $1,000 each and are to be payable in twenty varying instalments of principal on December 15th in the years 1962 to 1981 inclusive. The debentures are to be issued for the years 1962 to 1971 inclusive with interest coupons for the payment of interest payable yearly in the years 1972 to 1981 inclusive thereof at the rate of 4% per annum. The first payment of interest shall be made on the 15th day of December, 1962, and every 6 month thereafter to June 15th, 1982; thereafter the principal shall be payable annually on the 15th day of December during currency of the debentures with the aggregate amount of principal and interest payable in each years varying from $4,700.00 to $5,000.00 except for the last which sum amount is $3,743.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

LOOK YOU HERE!

ONLY $1,500. DOWN

We have just listed a perfectly lovely brick bungalow for this low, low down payment of only $1,500. The owner is mighty anxious for a quick sale and has cut the price accordingly. Just look at these features: Large living room contains 3 bedrooms, fully modern attractive kitchen, plenty of room for growing family, a big living room, tiled bath and a full basement all for only $11,500. Conveniently to be located on the East Side just by Cannifton. Don't delay, call us today as you may be sure it won't stay long now — the price is only $11,500.

WE NEVER DID SEE

a home quite like this one at even a mere fraction of the price. What we are asking for this one. You would have to see this one to believe it, even to allow us the privilege of showing it to you and you just couldn't resist wanting it for your very own. Here's what you get: Large living room, dining room and kitchen, but everything is all done in landscaping effect, there's a double paved drive — the recreation room is finished, then it has even two baths and a real fireplace in the recreation room, and believe it a real one in the living room. It has hardwood floors throughout and is just a very short drive to the city. We are sure it will not last long, so why not call us today and let us agree that this is a modest statement. You will find it right here on Front Street next to Rohr's or right beside your phone.

2 Drivers, Owner Are Suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — The owner and driver of a pacer that won easily at knocked-down odds at Yonkers Raceway May 29 and precipitated a riot, and the driver of the second-place horse were suspended Wednesday by the New York State Harness Racing Commission.

The commission also disqualified the horses, forfeited their purses and fined Yonkers Raceway $3,000.

The action was taken by the three-man commission for violation of the rule requiring owners of horses with common interests to run the horses as an entry. Miss Chief Mokee, the winning pacer, and Chief Flinp, which was second, raced as separate betting interests.

Miss Chief Mokee, 10 to 1 in the morning line, went off in the eighth race at 5 to 2 odds and romped to victory by 2½ lengths.

About a hundred disgruntled fans, some yelling "fix," stormed on the track and did damage estimated at $3,000.

They'll Be Glad to See Her Back

LONDON (AP) — For the first time in history, this year's Wimbledon championships may see a bare-backed lady tennis player.

Beatrix Maria Bueno is expected to wear a darling dress that will plunge down her shapely back to her trim waistline.

This could cause almost as big a sensation as Gussie Moran's lace-trimmed panties in 1946.

"Miss Bueno's hasn't tried the dress on yet," said Wimbledon designer Teddy Tinling, "but she's very excited about it."

"Oh, we've thought of that," said one of Tinling's assistants, "definitely there'll be one, and definitely it won't show."

Asked to explain, he replied:

The Wimbledon championships begin June 25.

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR

For June 9

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): If you can determine what you want, odds are you will find it! Self-understanding of paramount importance. Others cannot tell you what you need. Search within!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Excellent for entertaining tonight and being entertained. Eminence highlighted. Creative hobbies — such as theatre, art — could bring great satisfaction. Be ready for baric change.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Restlessness today could cause you to "wander." Remember value of loyalty. Flirting carries penalty and you could lose respect of one close to you. Play it straight.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Could seem that the more you try the less you accomplish. Key is relaxation. Take time to "gather your wits." If too much pressure builds up, explosion is likely.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Use simple, direct language in putting across ideas. Temptation is to be "mysterious." But today chips are down, devotion is for factual information.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Much in your favor if you press original approach. No time to follow crowd. Make your plans. Seek own solutions. Then tackle problems your way. Cycle up, so make most of it!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Diversity effors. Putting all hope, money in one place could leave you holding empty bag. If you have question, step up and ask. Be direct, honest. No beating around bush.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Comprehensive study of problem today could find you "seeing the light." Obtain all facts available, then form conclusion. Once your mind is made up, act!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Entertaining at home or being with loved ones tonight could fulfill emotional need. Your ambitions can temporarily be put aside in favor of relaxation, entertainment.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Opportunity for "bargain" could present itself late this afternoon. Trick is to realize good offer when you hear or see it. Be perceptive and receptive.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Best to finish old projects rather than start new ones today. If you find yourself annoyed by friend's habit, speak up. Diplomatic but honest approach could clear the air.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Like Gretel, stick close to one who really cares. Your cycle not such that you should risk offending through careless action. Take time in making decisions. Listen rather than talk.

* * *

If today is your birthday . . . you are a humanitarian at heart. You fight for the underdog and often neglect your own needs in order to help others. Trouble arrives only if you help "wrong" people.

* * *

General Tendencies: Day when diplomacy is stressed. But feelings of nations, persons apt to be ultra-sensitive. Look for many surprises in connection with announcements from so-called big powers.

BID FOR CONTRACT

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Prime Minister Nehru told the lower house of Parliament Wednesday that Canadian, U.S., French and British firms have submitted bids to build India's first commercial atomic power plant. No contract has been awarded.

CANADA'S OAS' EKAT—Dr. Jose A. Mora, secretary-general of the Organization of American States, members would welcome Canada as a member. Mr. Mora is shown with the chair which the Canadian delegate would use. Built more than 50 years ago, the name Canada and the Canadian coat-of-arms are engraved on the chair.

Canada Would Not Have To End Trade With Cuba In Joining American States

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — As a member of the 21-country organization of American States, Canada would add "a strong, clear, new voice" to the affairs of inter - American relations, says Dr. Jose A. Mora, OAS secretary-general.

And if she joined under current conditions, Canada would not have to suspend her trade with Cuba, Mora added in an interview in which he suggested there is a great deal of misapprehension as to what it would cost Canada to become a member of the Western Hemisphere alliance.

Noting that the organization's total budget for the next fiscal year is around $13,000,000, he suggested Canada's contribution —if she joined—would be no more than about several million dollars a year.

The annual quota for Canada would be somewhere between the $8,500,000 United States contribution and the $1,000,000 which is put up by Brazil.

WOULDN'T ASK AID

Nor would the Latins expect that Canada's membership would immediately generate a demand for a large-scale Canadian aid program.

"Latin America would be more interested in a political and cultural contribution from Canada," Mora suggested. "For instance, Canada has excellent schools. Many Latin boys and girls are sent up there. A program of Canadian scholarships, especially in Canadian universities, would be an excellent contribution."

Latin hopes that Canada may eventually become a member of the inter-American system — and thereby create a new moderating balance between Latin and U.S. policies — have risen with Canadian political statements touching on the membership issue.

Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson says that if his party succeeds in the June 18 election, Canada would immediately apply for membership. External Affairs Minister Howard Green says that while the Progressive Conservative government is currently letting membership ride, Canada will "sooner or later" join the OAS.

CHAIR WAITING

This aroused Mora's interest to the point where he willingly hauled out Canada's half - century-old ceremonial chair in OAS headquarters here to show off to a photographer.

Mora observed that the chair's leather upholstery, now worn and cracked, would have to be replaced, but that, he said, could be easily done. If Canada joined, one of the first steps the OAS might take would be to hold one or more meetings at Ottawa or Montreal.

Q. Would you like to see Canada become a member of the OAS?

A. First of all, this is a matter for the Canada and Canadians to decide. But as secretary-general of the OAS, I feel sure the entry of Canada would be welcomed by all member countries. Canada has a twin heritage, from France and Great Britain, which would make its participation of great value to both our Latin-American and North American Members.

. . . I also would like to suggest that as Europe turns more and more toward itself, economically and politically, Canada can find an important and satisfying place in itself within the American family of nations.

RATIFY CHARTER

Q. What would Canada have to do to become a member?

A. The precise norms for the entry of new states now are under consideration by the judicial - political committee of the OAS council. It also must ratify and deposit its ratification of the 1948 charter of the OAS and the 1947 inter-American treaty of reciprocal assistance, so assuming all the obligations of these two treaties.

Q. If Canada should enter the OAS, would it have to stop trade with Cuba?

A. No. Canada, at present, would not have to suspend its trade with Cuba, with the exception of arms and implements of war.

Q. What would be some of the advantages to Canada?

A. Canada would have an additional forum, of ever-growing importance, for its voice to be heard on matters of political and economic significance for both the western hemisphere and the world.

Canada would have first-hand contact on hemispheric discussions of such primary products as cereals and minerals and in addition to its role in the United Nations, could help shape inter-national policy on such products.

It could have a more direct voice in hemispheric defence arrangements and ready access to developing regional economic groupings such as the Latin-America free trade area and the Central America Common Market. It could, it is wished, become a member of the Inter-American Development Bank and share in the Act of Bogota and the Alliance for Progress.

DESERONTO

No Vote Will Be Taken on School Question

DESERONTO — The town council met on Monday night at the town hall for their regular session with all members present except Councillor Houle.

In correspondence a letter was received from M. Cassidy and J. Heinge regarding the drains on the corner of Main and Dundas. This was referred to the Street committee for action.

A letter from the Board of Education was referred to our business. A petition from the residents of Mill St. regarding the debris remaining from the fire of the old Legion Hall was referred to the Board of Health. A request for a rebate of taxes on the old plant of the Ideal Venders was turned over to the Court of Revision.

Councillor Alford of the property committee reported on the tower for the siren and council gave him authority to obtain prices for the construction. His committee was also given authority to repair the steps of the town hall after considering the two estimates on hand.

The street committee reported that some work had been done on the streets and the arrival of favorable weather was necessary before the topping could be applied. He was given authority to remove a tree from the front of the property of Mrs. J. Roach on Mill St.

Councillor Howard of the Police committee recommended that Percy Browning be hired as police constable to assist Mr. Hills on June 15th. He was also given permission to purchase uniforms and necessary articles for the police force.

With the presentation of by-laws Councillor Detlor stated that he was unalterably opposed to the one by-law and asked that Councillor Alford present the by-law rescinding the by-law to appoint a dog catcher was passed as was a by-law authorizing an agreement with the Water Resources Commission for the purpose of securing better water for the police.

ONLY ONE OPPOSED

The by-law to rescind the by-law authorizing a vote on the school question was presented and Councillor Detlor asked for a recorded vote. Six councillors voted to rescind the by-law with Councillor Detlor registering the only opposing vote.

Reeve Lott presented two motions. One was for the consideration of the months of July and August and the other granted the town clerk leave of absence from July 16th to 23rd and from August 7th to 14th.

Councillor Howard moved that the request of the Board of Education be presented at County Council as soon as possible. In reply to a question Reeve Lott said that no special meeting of County council was scheduled yet but that he would ask for one. He promised to attend at the office of the county clerk on Tuesday and get in touch with Warden Harty. Councillor Detlor asked if a special meeting were called would it be publicized so that interested parties could attend. He was advised that the Reeve would be notified and he could give out the information. It was suggested that council request a special meeting was considered unnecessary.

Mrs. Bill Plue of Minnie Ave., returned to her home Thursday from Belleville General Hospital where she underwent surgery.

Mrs. Charles Wood suffered a fractured hip at her home and is now a patient in Belleville Hospital.

Carl Brewer, all-star defenseman of the Toronto Maple Leafs, will be the speaker at the annual Tweed Minor Hockey League "Presentation Night" scheduled for Thursday, June 14th, at Tweed High School.

Mr. Walter Higgins of Oshawa spent the weekend with his wife and family in town. Mrs. Higgins and family plan to join Mr. Higgins in Oshawa when the present school term is completed.

Many friends and relatives joined with Mr. and Mrs. John D. Courneya at St. Carthagh's Hall on Saturday evening on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

In the Bay of Quinte bowling tourney, sponsored by the Eastern Ontario Bowling Association, Mr. and Mrs. Carths Casidy of Tweed, topped them all in the doubles roll-off. They were pitted in the finals against the top lady bowler in Kingston. In their 4-game block their score of 2144 was the pins ahead of the Kingston stars. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dion, also of Tweed, came through with the second prize.

OUT OF HOSPITAL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dinah Washington, blues singer and recording star, was discharged Wednesday from hospital. Attendants said the Negro entertainer entered the hospital Monday for blood transfusions for treatment of anemia.

Second Firm Ready to Treat Rich Oil Sands

CALGARY (CP)—Plans for a $250,000,000 project to produce oil from the Athabasca sands were revealed Wednesday by a group of companies known as Cities Service Athabasca Ltd.

The announcement came as a surprise at a hearing by the Alberta oil and gas conservation board into a bid by Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. of New York for the right to develop what is believed to be the largest oil reserve in the world.

The Cities Service group, which includes Imperial Oil Ltd., Richfield Oil Corporation and Royalite Oil Co. Ltd., was expected to be the only rival to Great Canadian's proposal. No date has been set for that hearing.

The application says the project would be completed in 1966 and would include construction of a 100,000 barrel-a-day pipeline to transport the crude to Edmonton.

Thomas P. Clarke, managing director of Great Canadian, told the board the company has spent about $10,000,000 on preliminary research into development of the sands. It proposes a $100,000,000 project.

Spaniards Now Have To Reside Where Ordered

Jittery Franco Tries To Control Agitators

MADRID (AP) — Plagued by bombings and crippling strikes, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime today suspended for two years the Spanish people's constitutional right to choose where they they want to live in Spain.

Under the sweeping edict, the government can control the movement of anyone opposed to Franco and keep agitators out of industrial centres hit by a seven-week siege of strikes that paralyzed mines and key factories.

The strikes—illegal in Spain—dropped off sharply late last month after the government promised some workers pay increases of up to 50 per cent.

Franco's cabinet approved the decree suspending a key section of Spain's bill of rights a few hours after the second bomb incident in three days rocked the Basque capital, a big financial institution in the heart of Madrid.

Police blamed the left-wing Basque Liberation Front for the bombings which shattered windows in the bank and caused damage to a hotel. They were linked to recent strikes.

BLAMES SEPARATISTS

The government charged that Soviet subversion and "hot-headed separatist" Roman Catholic priests played a major role in the strikes which affected more than 70,000 workers in the provinces of Asturias, Leon, Bilbao, Barcelona, and Madrid itself.

Some priests have supported the north Basque region's demands for independence. Others have openly backed the strikes for higher wages.

On Wednesday a small bomb exploded at the gate of the former palace of the papal nuncio in Madrid, causing minor damage. The nuncio's palace is occupied by a Vatican tribunal which hears the recognizement of the Spanish armed forces.

Another group, some believed linked with Franco's fascist underground, began a series of bombings in April, directed against the Opus Dei, an organization of Catholic laymen. The students opposed to Franco's dictatorship government said to an Opus Dei university in Navarra.

SECOND TRUCK FIRM SIGNS WITH DRIVERS

Workers Given Raise, Benefits

TORONTO (CP) — Two of the 65 trucking firms employing striking highway transport drivers have broken ranks and signed with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.).

The firms, whose transport trucks are now in operation, signed similar agreements within the last two days after breaking away from the left-wing Transport Industrial Relations Bureau.

The bureau is bargaining agent for the trucking firms whose 2,500 drivers have been engaged in a province-wide strike since May 28.

M and P Transport, which first signed an agreement Thursday, was followed yesterday by McKinley Transport Limited in reaching an agreement with Teamster Local 938. Both are Toronto firms.

Both agreements call for a 20-cent-an-hour wage increase, a reduction of the work week to 45 hours from 48, welfare benefits and a flat payment of $108 in lieu of vacation.

BUREAU HOLDS FIRM

The bureau is holding firm on its offer of a 40-cent-an-hour increase over a three-year period from the date of signing.

Meanwhile, a similar break-through was made Friday in a separate labor dispute involving employees of 10 of 25 cartage firms.

Four of the firms ignored the Cub Cartage Association, its representatives, and signed individual contracts with the Teamsters.

Current five drivers get $1.67 an hour and checkers $1.63 and $1.62 for standard trucks.

The association, meanwhile, has obtained injunctions against picketing at the firms hit by the strike.

Brother of Pres. Endorsed for U.S. Senate

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Those ambitious, never-give-up Kennedys have done it again.

Edward M. Kennedy, another 30-year-old brother of the president and of attorney - general Robert Kennedy, was endorsed by weary, hoarse Massachusetts Democrats Friday night as a candidate for the U.S. senate.

In the big night of Democratic political names, Kennedy piled up such a margin over Edward J. McCormack, that Democratic gave up before the ballot was even completed.

With the score card showing Kennedy 987 to McCormack 360, the voting was stopped.

THE WEATHER

A trend to increasing cloudiness is beginning, particularly in western and southwestern sections of the province. Showers occurring west of Lake Michigan will likely spread north of Lake Superior today and showers now in the state of Michigan will likely move into southwestern Ontario later today or tonight. Despite this, it should still work out to be a pleasant warm weekend.

STILL A FAMILY AFFAIR—FIFTY YEARS LATER—Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Bittenbender, left, have coffee with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bittenbender in Philadelphia, as they have done many times before. But this occasion is a bit different—it's the two couples' 50th wedding anniversary. The two husbands are brothers and the two wives are sisters. Nicholas is 72, his brother Peter is 66, while Peter's wife is 70 and his wife is nearly 65. (AP Wirephoto).

13 May Be Dead In Hotel Fire At Flin Flon

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP) — Two persons are dead and 11 others missing today following a fire which destroyed the Flin Flon Hotel here.

Cause of the fire was not determined.

Night Manager Al Ball said he checked the upstairs area of the 80-room frame and stucco building about 3:45 a.m. and there was no sign of fire, but that a half hour later the second storey was filled with smoke.

Mr. Ball said a check of the room register indicates 11 persons still are not accounted for.

The 30-year-old building is the only hotel in this mining town on the Saskatchewan border about 300 miles northwest of Winnipeg. There now is only one hotel left in the town of 8,000.

Situated in the main business district of Flin Flon the fire threatened the business area but a north west wind kept the flames blowing the other way, toward the fire hall immediately across the street.

First Ballots in Election To Be Cast Today by Voters

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The first ballots in the June 18 federal general election will be cast today.

Advance polls will be open today and Monday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., local standard time, for eligible voters who have reason to believe they will be absent from their polling divisions on Election day.

This will be the first election in which the privilege of voting at an advance poll has been restricted to a relatively small segment of the population.

Prior to amendments in 1960 to the Canadian Elections Act, only commercial travellers, transportation employees, fishermen and members of the RCMP and the reserve forces could vote at advance polls. Now, all an elector has to do is sign an affidavit saying he believes he will be away on polling day.

There will be 1,850 advance polls across the country, compared with 256 for the 1958 election.

Electoral officials do not expect that the new system will result in a significant increase in the number of votes cast, in the 1958 election of the 11,421,223 advance ballots were cast.

As the second-last week of the election campaign drew to a close, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and General Leader Pearson spent Friday in the Atlantic provinces. New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas, campaigned in British Columbia and Social Credit Leader Robert N. Thompson was in Calgary.

The prime minister will continue his Atlantic Coast swing today with visits to Amherst, Truro, Port Hawkesbury and Sydney, N.S. Mr. Pearson will be in Trois - Rivieres and Quebec City, while Mr. Douglas will be in Edmonton, and Mr. Thompson in Vancouver and Burnaby, B.C.

Mr. Diefenbaker travelled by train through Quebec and New Brunswick to Moncton where he opened a $1,500,000 extension to the local post office and spoke at a night rally attended by 1,000 persons. He made five stops travelling through New Brunswick, speaking briefly to crowds at station platforms.

The prime minister told the Moncton rally that recommendations of the MacPherson royal commission on transportation will receive "appropriate attention" at the next session of Parliament. He gave no details but is was the first time he has indicated that the new act will be asked by the new Conservative government to consider the far-reaching proposals of the six-man royal commission on transportation.

Mr. Diefenbaker, also indicated that a Conservative government's policies have included cut-off immigration and caused large-scale migration, especially to the United States.

He said relatively few people now want to come to Canada and almost as many are leaving. There was virtually no immigration to Canada last year and "we are no longer the country that people look to as

Fulton Says Bread Price, Boost Would Bring Probe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton said Friday any general increase in the price of bread will result in immediate investigation of bakery companies involved under provisions of the Combines Act.

He told a political meeting the federal government will prevent any profiteering resulting from devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

Speaking of price increases announced by some oil companies, Mr. Fulton said that if the firms concerned are "beginning to help the country" and admit the increases were not based on devaluation,

"it now appears there may not be any increase at all," he added, adding that Imperial Oil Limited is leaving its prices unchanged.

Mr. Fulton said his department is adopting a wait-and-see attitude to the threatened gas and oil price increases. He said opposition parties have been guilty of dishonesty in attacks on the government for its devaluation policy.

He said Liberal candidate Jack Nicholson, seeking election in Vancouver Centre, told Ottawa last year on behalf of the British Columbia forest industry to demand that the dollar be devalued.

Queen Mother Dines on Haggis, Sniffs Snuff With Black Watch

MONTREAL (CP) — The Queen Mother and the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada, of which she is honorary colonel - in - chief, met intimately Friday.

She paid a visit to the regiment's armory on arrival at Bleury Street early in the day and attended the centennial dinner of the officers' mess in the evening. Both affairs were private, with the press and public excluded.

At the dinner, she was feted by the officers' mess. The ladies-in-waiting were the only women allowed as 300 officers and former officers of the Black Watch sat down to nibble haggis, applaud the bagpipe band and sniff snuff.

The snuff was served from the traditional ram's head caricature, and the colonel - in - chief sniffed at her delicately, without even a sneeze.

The dimmer featured mock turtle soup, cheese straws, fillet of cote bonne fermine in a white wine and mushroom sauce, roast crown of spring lamb, potatoes and green beans au gratin, vissiale Parisienne potatoes haggis, tarte a la Parlouche Chantilly, Stilton cheese - style French-Canadian bread.

The regiment presented her with a silver quaich cup—a two-handled bowl-like device traditionally used in Scotland for drinking toasts — with a wood and silver engraved base commemorating the dinner.

Earlier in the day, at the provincial luncheon, she had been presented with a brooch of an eagle mined in the Gaspe Peninsula, set in gold and decorated with a sprays of diamonds.

The brooch was presented by Premier Jean Lesage. Speaking for the province, Queen Mother said the jewel "proved in a unique way your taste and generosity."

ARRESTS TAKE COMMISSION BY SURPRISE

McDermott, Feeley Face Fraud Counts

TORONTO (CP) — Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley, long subjects of attention by the anti-gambling squad of the provincial police, were arrested Friday by a second OPP squad in a move that took officials of Ontario's royal commission on crime by surprise.

The two men, reputed cocaars of Ontario gambling and as such key figures in the royal commission hearings, were charged by the OPP anti-rackets squad with defrauding a mining concern of $25,000 in a transaction involving mineral claims they owned in North-western Ontario.

Coincidentally, the arrests come at a time when the commission is in recess while the Ontario Court of Appeal decides whether Feeley can be forced to testify about his personal finances.

Feeley's lawyer will argue before the high court tomorrow that the commission cannot force his client to give evidence that might incriminate him. He objected on this ground Thursday and the court reserved decision.

Feeley, 38, was arrested on a night rally attended by 1,000 persons. He made five stops travelling through New Brunswick, speaking briefly to crowds at station platforms.

The prime minister told the Moncton rally that recommendations of the MacPherson royal commission on transportation will receive "appropriate attention" at the next session of Parliament. He gave no details but is was the first time he has indicated that the new act will be asked by the new Conservative government to consider the far-reaching proposals of the six-man royal commission on transportation.

Ontario Socred Leader's Bid Has Failed

TORONTO (CP) — A bid to have Philip Kelly, Ontario Social Credit leader, reinstated as a member of parliament in Toronto Broadview has failed.

Mr. Kelly said Friday the pleas of his aide, David Barrett-man, before the chief electoral officer in Ottawa had "not changed the situation."

Mr. Barrett-man, former Ontario Progressive Conservative cabinet minister in the Leslie Frost government, was disqualified at the nomination deadline Monday when the electoral officer found his papers two days too short of the necessary 25.

The nomination papers, actually contained 29 names, but 16 were not listed for the addresses given and the papers were rejected.

Mr. Kelly said two of the 16 rules whose names were ruled out had moved to other addresses, but still lived within the riding.

Cut Cake and Drink Champagne In Toast to Composer Cole Porter

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway and Hollywood celebrities cut cake and drank champagne early today in a toast to the birthday of composer Cole Porter and enjoyed a midnight performance of an off-Broadway revue that is Anything Goes.

Among the 300 persons attending the special - invitation show were Marie McDonald, Ethel Merman, Jerry Lewis, O'Brien, Dolores Gray, Lillian Roth, Faye Emerson, Red Buttons, Ethel Smith, and Ann Corio.

Porter, a widower, resides in Manhattan but was spending the weekend at his country home in Williamstown, Mass., with no special celebration.

The composer has given no interviews since 1958 when his right leg was amputated after it was crushed in a horseback riding accident. But he answered some questions this week in his secretary, Mrs. Madeline Smith.

How did he happen to write Anything Goes? Porter replied:

The idea for You're the Top came to me while he was aboard a skiff sailing along the Rhine.

Some of the others, and where they originated:

It's Delovely — aboard an ocean liner.

Night and Day—at a beach in Newport.

Kiss Me Kate, which opened in 1948, was his favorite show, he said.

50 Doukhobor Homes Burned In 3 Villages

Nude Women's Parade To Court Is Blocked

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — RCMP Friday stopped about 23 nude women from marching out of the smouldering Sons of Freedom Doukhobor community at Krestova to the site of a court hearing of five sect members who stripped during a second rally of Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Police said the women apparently were headed for nearby Crescent Valley where the five appeared in RCMP court and were remanded one week.

They are charged with indecently under the Criminal Code.

The action in the community May 26 stripping and were picked up by RCMP Friday.

About 20 Doukhobor newspaper and plywood homes in three communities in this southeast British Columbia, Kootenay area were burned to the ground Friday—but only after many of the women had taken such belongings as sewing machines and stoves to safety.

Most Freedomite Children were kept from school, participating a past performance by the sect that resulted in the B.C. government taking many children from their parents.

FOSS WATER, STOVES

Some women at Krestova loosed buckets of water at police and firemen, but other women stripped, then started tossing stones.

"Get out, we're very upset today," they said. ("We can't be responsible for what we do. We'll pull your pants off. We'll throw rocks.)

The women said God told them to set their homes ablaze.

But authorities said the fires were likely in protest against Monday's preliminary hearing in New Westminster of 10 of the sects fraternal council who are charged with conspiring to intimidate the Legislature of B.C. and the Parliament of Canada with acts of violence.

T. G. Bowes-Colbourt of the attorney - general department said the hearing will go on as scheduled.

Homes burned were at Krestova, Shoreacres and Gilpin, Creek, B.C. Police are investigating, children played in gardens and women went about their work.

Mrs. Kay Maskoroff, 25-year-old mother of two, said she set fire to her house at Shoreacres because she needed her husband at home. Mr. Maskoroff is terrorist. The house was a wedding present from her husband five years ago.

"I need my husband with me and my home is no use to me unless we can be together," she said. The government has separated us and they might as well take everything."

Mrs. Maskoroff, recently sentenced to 15 years in prison after being convicted of trying to blow up a power tower owned by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, construction of the tower put 1,000 men out of work.

MAYOR DODGES BULLETS

HOME (AP) — Tumultuous campaigning for Italy's municipal elections wound up Friday as Communist snipers killed a Sicilian mayor. Police were investigating a shooting involving Francesco Barone, Socialist mayor of Raccuja. Barone, who had been campaigning for Socialist independent coalition, said another shot at him while he and two friends were campaigning.

Believe Doctor Who Slew Girl Is in Canada

NEW YORK (AP) — The search continued to centre today in Canada for Dr. Harvey Lothringer, wanted in the abortion death of a convent school-girl, whose dismembered body was found in a sewer leading from the physician's expensive home and office.

The victim was Barbara Lofrumento, 19, taken by her mother last Sunday to Lothringer for an abortion. The girl died at the College of New Rochelle, was four months pregnant.

Lothringer has been missing from his Queens office - home since Sunday, after telling Mrs. Lofrumento to go home and await a call from him. Also missing is the doctor's pretty receptionist, Theresa Cole.

In Brooklyn late Friday, a federal warrant was issued charging Lothringer with unlawful flight to avoid arrest on an abortion charge in connected with the Lofrumento death.

WAS INVESTIGATED

The Queens district attorney's office has been investigating activities of the doctor in recent years. Since Barbara's death, federal authorities entered the case.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Sullivan told reporters Lothringer has been traced to the area of his family's Canadian hunting lodge about 60 miles north of Montreal. Police have been notified.

The possibility also existed that Lothringer and Miss Cecilia may be in Cuba. She is a native of Havana and her mother resides in Havana. If they went there, this would pose a legal problem because the U.S. has no diplomatic relations with Castro's government.

Friday night, Assistant Queens District-Attorney Bernard Patten said an anonymous phone caller told him: "If you want Lothringer, go to Canada, Cuba." The caller then hung up.

Mexico also came under scrutiny in the case because Lothringer's wife, Mrs. Helen Dean, living in Mexico City.

Barbara's well-known friends, Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Lofrumento, said the girl told them last week she was pregnant.

Serious Days for Students In Three City High Schools, This Is Examination Time

Anybody noticed a quietening of spirits and a far-away look in the eyes of many local high school students during the past few days?

Whether or not it has been noticed these are serious days for students in the three Belleville high schools.

It's June examination time!

Final examinations for students in Grades 11 and 13 started on Wednesday of this week and will continue through until Thursday afternoon, next week.

Grades 9 and 10 will start exams on Monday and continue through until Friday afternoon.

But for students trying for their senior matriculation the exam period is a bit more drawn out. Their exams will continue through until June 27th and for certain subjects will continue on until the 29th.

At least that is the case at Belleville Collegiate where examinations for Greek and Latin will be held on June 28th and 29th.

The date of commencement for final examinations are the same for all three schools in the city.

The three principals of the schools got together and decided on the above dates, Belleville Collegiate Principal, E. A. Orr said.

Fire Rating

Tweed Forest District

With the fire rating in the Tweed Forest District said to be "extreme" Land and Forests officials are keeping a close watch on the area.

Smoke has been rolling in over the timber district from forest fires in Quebec.

With the forests district extremely dry, campers and others are urged to take every precaution to prevent fires.

200 Teachers Expected for Summer School

An enrolment of at least 200 teachers is expected when the Department of Education summer school in Junior education to be held this summer at the Harry J. Clarke School in Belleville.

The summer course for teachers of grades 4, 5 and 6 in the elementary schools was originally planned for an enrolment of about 100 with a staff of seven.

However, enrolment for the course has "ballooned" and has now reached 197 with enrolments still being accepted.

The department is now seeking additional staff to take care of the increased enrolment.

Principal for the summer course is J. G. Mitchell of Peterborough Teachers' College. Staff members are as follows:

Mrs. L. Campbell, Peterborough Teachers' College (Psychology); J. C. Gaffney, Ottawa Teachers' College (Comp., Gram., Spell., Wr.); J. Burns, East York Secondary School (Comp., Lit.); T. A. Hodgins, Toronto Teachers' College (Science, Health); C. W. Hodgson, Lakehead Teachers' College (Arithmetic); J. Hones, Forest Hill Schools (Read., Lit.); J. H. Long, London Teachers' College (Social Studies); H. E. Parliament, Stratford Teachers' College, (Comp. Gr., Sp., Wr.); Miss I. Raney, Belleville Schools (Geography).

Other staff names are yet to be announced.

As part of the program about 20 children now in Grades 3, 4 and 5 and who will expect to be in Grades 4, 5 and 6 next year, will be used for demonstration lessons.

Inspector J. M. Courtens of the Belleville Board is assembling the names of these children.

Some problem may exist in assuring suitable places for board and room for the many teachers from out-of-town who will be attending the course. The local committee of the Federation of Women Teachers is also collecting names and addresses for this purpose. It is expected that houses and apartments, as well as single rooms, will be required.

Two Buildings At Sulphide Plant Burn

The blaze started about 5.30 following completion of the day shift and destroyed the main building and caused a chemical filling building, both of which were isolated from the main plant buildings.

There were reports of an explosion during the time the fire started. No one was at the plant when the fire started.

The plant fire department and the Tweed fire department fought the blaze but had no chance to save either of the buildings. One fireman, Alan Bush of Tweed, suffered a gashed foot when an axe he was using slipped.

Plant manager, Mr. Andy Anderson of Tweed said there was no danger to the main plant buildings.

Mr. Anderson said the blaze would in no way affect the operation of the chemical plant which employs approximately 55 workers. There was no estimate of the loss, although Mr. Anderson said it would not be great.

Chief Secretary Salvation Army To Visit City

Colonel Herbert G. Wallace, Chief Secretary of the Canada and Bermuda Territory of the Salvation Army, will be in Belleville, Wednesday, June 13. His wife, also a colonel in the Salvation Army, will accompany him.

The visit is part of a series designed to assist Col. Wallace with the Territory. He has been in Canada for slightly more than a month. Previously, he was Chief Secretary of the Eastern Australia Territory. Born in Australia, his parents, both Salvation Army officers, Col. Wallace has held 14 different field appointments through Australia and New Zealand.

The Belleville visit will mark Col. Wallace's official welcome to the Mid-Ontario Division which includes Cobourg, Peterborough and Kingston. An officers' council is slated for 2.00 p.m. at which the Colonel will meet the officers of the Division. The public welcome is planned for evening, in the Pinnacle St. Church. Brigadier P. Sharpe, Minister of Belleville, the divisional commander, will preside.

Strawberries Sell Quickly On Local Market

Strawberries sold quickly on the local farmers' market this morning. This was the first marketing day of the season strawberries have been available, selling for 49c to 60c a box. The size of strawberries offered this morning is a good indication of a good berry crop this year.

Radishes, the largest seen in quite some time, were offered on the market at three bunches for 25c. Fresh leaf lettuce from the garden sold for 5c a bunch and two bunches for 25c.

Potatoes, for table use, were selling this morning at 40c a six quart basket, and green table onions sold for 5c a bunch.

Transplanting flowers were still plentiful today, remaining the same in price as previous weeks. Geraniums sold today at 30c a berry box, red and pink. Sweet William sold for 40c a berry box.

Eggs varied slightly this week. Extra-large, 50c a dozen; A large 45c a dozen and medium 40c a dozen.

Trenton Man New Postmaster For Belleville

John McManus, postmaster at Trenton, has been appointed acting postmaster at Belleville, effective today, announcement this new position. The appointment was announced on Monday.

He succeeds former postmaster, A. J. Mosey who has been transferred to Winnipeg as an acting area supervisor. Mr. Mosey has been postmaster at Belleville in January, 1961, leaving for Winnipeg today.

Mr. McManus was born in Perth and educated at St. John's Separate School and Perth Collegiate.

In 1941 Mr. McManus joined the RCAF and gave flying and air navigation instruction through the British Commonwealth Training Plan, and retired as flying officer in 1945 and resumed his former duties in Perth.

In June, 1952, Mr. McManus moved to Trenton to take over as local supervisor, and stepped up to postmaster in July, 1954.

Gordon Hanna, senior supervisor, will act as Trenton postmaster until an appointment is made.

Mr. McManus and his wife, Margaret, have four children, Elaine 17, Dianne 15, David 14 and Bruce 3.

Marilyn Monroe Removed From Current Film

Miss Remick, a spokesman said was pre-empted from another picture movie to take Miss Monroe's place in the film Something's Got to Give.

Peter Levathes, executive vice - president in charge of production, said the studio has suffered losses through Miss Monroe's absences "and Twentieth Century - Fox has started legal action against her."

The actress claimed that illness prevented her from appearing on the set. However, studio sources claimed she frequently appeared in Hollywood night clubs.

Archbishop Wright Will Be Preacher

The most notable visitor to the Diocese of Ontario now celebrating its Centennial Year, will be, the Most Reverend W. L. Wright, Archbishop of Algoma and Metropolitan of Ontario. The Archbishop will be the preacher at the great thanksgiving service to be held in the Bridge Memorial Centre on Sunday at 7.30 p.m.

Archbishop Wright is a son of this Diocese, Rustin, Ont., being his birthplace. He was educated in the schools of Kingston and at Queen's University. He received his theological training at Trinity College, Toronto. His early ministry was served in Toronto as Curate at St. George's Church. He came to as Rector at Tweed in this Diocese. Archbishop Wright served in Hamilton and again in St. George's Toronto, this time as Rector. He went to Sault Ste. Marie as Dean of Algoma and Rector of St. Luke's Procathedral. He was elected to succeed Bishop F. G. Kingston as Bishop of Algoma in 1944 and in 1955 was elected to be Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario and Archbishop.

PREMIER IN MINISTRY

The Archbishop's father, the Rev. Canon J. deP. Wright, served all his ministry in this Diocese, being at one time Rector of St. Luke's Church, Kingston and later Rector of St. James' in Kemptville. Mrs. J. deP. Wright was for some time president of the Diocesan Board of the Women's Auxiliary of this Diocese. She was also active in the Diocese and his reputation as a preacher made Archbishop Wright an especially welcome visitor on this' Centennial occasion.

A massed choir of over one hundred voices with the present and over five thousand people are expected to at the service.

IN MEMORIAM

BRIDGES — In loving memory of a dear father, Frederick Augustus Bridges, who passed away June 9th, 1956.

God's will be done,
I will.
But in our hearts we love him still.

His memory is as dear today,
As in the hour he passed away.
We often sit and think of him,
When memories flow,
Dear Father, we miss you now,
And always will.

Sadly missed and ever remembered by his wife Ethel, son Fred, brother-in-law "Al. Bronze" Phillips and family.

BRIDGES — In loving memory of dear husband, Frederick Augustus Bridges, who passed away June 9th, 1956.

We often sit and think of him,
When memories flow,
For memory is the only friend,
That grows dearer each day.
The love you gave will still be ours,
And never fade away.

Sadly missed by his sister Stella, brother-in-law Bob Hutchinson and family, also by sister Olga and brother-in-law Frank Hutchinson.

BROWN. — In loving memory of dear husband, father and grandfather, Thomas J. Brown, who passed away June 9th, 1958.

In tears we saw you sinking,
We watched you fade away,
We wrote you letters of farewell,
You fought so hard to stay.
We prayed that you might live,
So peacefully free from pain;
We would not have it so,
To suffer that again.

—Always loving, always remembered by wife Olive, son and wife Ronald and Jean, daughter and husband Ruth and Ken Hamilton and family.

BILL. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, James Bill, who passed away June 9th, 1957.

Time to dry eyes and follow Him,
Now that he's dead, to lay it down;
For only when we mourn we crown,
Any hope to wear the glorious crown.

In that bright eternal city,
Where there is no more pain,
In the home of many mansions,
Dad has his eternal gain.

Sadly missed and remembered by Jessie Bill and family.

Yukon New Kind of Land Says Man Home After 7 Yrs.

TRENTON — In the past week, the history-making flight of an RCAF "Yukon" aircraft, has made people in the Quinte district, (along with Canadians from coast to coast) over-conscious of the word "Yukon".

By way of a coincidence, Lorne Murphy of Trenton returned home this week after a seven-year stay in the Yukon Territory.

While in the Yukon, Lorne worked as a CNR telegraph operator, a postal clerk, an insurance adjustor, ran a travel agency and was a part-time reporter for the Whitehorse Star. While working in the last capacity, he accompanied the Shah of Iran and his beautiful wife, Farah, to the World's Fair in Seattle.

Wages are good in the Yukon and Lorne has now saved enough money to realize a lifelong ambition . . . to attend the University of British Columbia. He plans to become a teacher, and says that he would like to specialize in physical education, instruction.

Lorne first became acquainted with the Canadian northwest while serving with the RCAF. When he was discharged in 1957, he returned to this section of the country and plans to go back once his four year college course is completed.

The attraction?

"That's a new kind of country up there", says Lorne. "Actually, the country is developing a new race of people. People in the Yukon, the Northwest Territory and Alaska have learned to appreciate the basic and worthwhile things in life".

FINE SPIRIT

Lorne says that the 7,000 residents of Whitehorse have developed a community spirit unparalleled in any other part of Canada. Nearly every service club in Canada and the U.S. is represented by a unit in Whitehorse, although the Lions' Club has the largest membership. In the long winter, from September to May, residents (all ages) play hockey or attend one of the town's two theatres. In the summer, local sportsmen and visitors from "the outside", hunt moose, caribou, grizzly and Kodiak bears and mountain sheep or fish for the territory's teeming lakes and streams, for lake trout, (40 lbs. or more), Arctic char and grayling.

Lorne, who is an ardent skier, recalls with pride the time that Lowell Thomas was forced to fly to Whitehorse on his way to attend the Alaska statehood ceremonies. Mr. Thomas, also an ardent skier, was welcomed to Whitehorse by the ski club and given an honorary membership. Lowell Thomas Jr. is a resident of Anchorage, Alaska.

Schools in Whitehorse are run by the Department of Northern Affairs. About one-quarter of the school population is comprised of Indian children. The 11 Eskimo families in the Yukon live far to the north of Whitehorse.

Municipal affairs in Whitehorse are governed by an elected council, which is responsible to a territory council, which, in turn, is responsible to the Department of Northern Affairs.

The closest town to Whitehorse, on Canadian soil, is Dawson Creek, 1,000 miles to the south. Some cities in Alaska are relatively "closer".

Downs-Coulter To Put Plant In Bancroft

TRENTON — Downs-Coulter and Company (Canada) Limited, manufacturers of textiles, decided this week to locate a section of their Trenton business in Bancroft. Two members of management, including the grandson of the founder, were in Bancroft on Tuesday.

Due to the impossibility of expansion in Trenton, the firm began looking for a location for the burling and mending stage of repairing textiles for dyeing.

Bancroft was chosen over several other locations. This is an experimental project only, but if successful would lead to an expansion and consequently construction of a new building. Apparently the firm will use a section of the Broughton Block on Bridge St. W.

It is expected that from ten to twelve women will be employed full time, and it is hoped to commence operation about July 1st.

The parent firm is located in England, with another branch in Australia. The branch in Trenton was opened before the end of last war, with a staff of 30. About 305 men and women are now employed making the largest industrial payroll in Trenton.

Terry Keller, of Belleville, plants one of the flowers making up the Kiwanis Club's planted crest in front of the club house on Dundas St. Also working on the project completed last night, were Albert Phillip and John Astle.

Will Not Be Out of Car Until World's Fair in 1964

TRENTON — In the "People Make News" department, Trenton was visited yesterday by Don Haynes of Sheridan, Wyoming. Don was sealed inside a station wagon in October, 1958, and has sworn to remain in his cramped quarters until the World's Fair in New York in 1964. And after that, why not? Don is being paid $200 a day, just to sit tight.

The station wagon is equipped with a full-size bed, a refrigerator, building 'his boys' room," a television set, radio, hi-fi, record player, folding bathtub, air conditioning, public address system, hot and cold running water, electric heat, fire extinguishers, wall to wall carpets, portable typewriter, coffee maker, electric razor and, in fact, all the comforts of home, with the exception of a front door. Or any kind of a door for that matter. He just can't get out.

Don, who has travelled 288,000 miles since he set out from Sheridan, has sharpened-up Ann Linkletter's "People Are Funny" show. He says that there's a $5,000 cash award, (plus a new car launch, a station wagon and a trailer) awaiting anyone who can get him "out of the ding bonus" birthday breaking bending or cutting any part of the station wagon, including the restraining bars along the side windows.

To pay for supply buying, banking, etc., Don has to depend on the kindness of spectators in the towns he visits. He also has to ask them to enter the trailer he tows behind the station wagon and get him food or comforts.

Town Briefs

TRENTON — On Tuesday night, members of the Trenton Kiwanis Club were shown a colored film of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment "Parade for a Retiring Colonel." Military ceremonies in connection with the recent retirement of Lt. Col. Angus Duffy, regimental commanding officer, as recorded on film seemed almost as thrilling to the audience as the real ceremonies. Starting off the film is a close-up of the front page spread given to the event by the Ontario Intelligencer.

Kiwanis Club notes: Ted Soldier and several other club members marked examination papers, submitted by contestants in the recent Kiwanis bicycle rodeo, following Thursday's meeting.

Kiwanians are busy landscaping the grounds at the Quinte View Manor, Trenton's senior citizens' apartment. A picnic table will be placed on the lawn at the home.

The local club has realised close to $600 from the peanut drive and there's more to come says campaign chairman, Dietz Rolf.

A Prince Edward County resident reports seeing a fox near his home, about a mile and a half east of Carrying Place. He warned the members of a household close to the place where the fox was seen, as there are small children and a dog in the house.

Queen Mother Elizabeth will lunch at RCAF Station Trenton on June 16. The approximate hour is 11.30 a.m. Rumor has it that the special car in which will take her to former governor-general Vincent Massey's home near Port Hope, will take the 6 HD road; so on through Middleton Park, down Dixon Drive and up Sidney Street to Highway 401. This is the same route taken by Prince Philip's car last month, when he travelled to Port Hope after landing at the Trenton air station.

Criminals Said Smarter Than 25 Years Ago

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The head of Ontario's new police commission said Friday criminals are smarter today than they were 25 years ago so there is a greater need for police education.

Judge Bruce J. S. Macdonald told a police inspector's seminar: "Twenty - five years ago most of the criminals were illiterate and there was little trouble in apprehending them. Now, crimes are planned to the minor detail and the majority are timed to the last split second."

He said the Ontario police college in Aylmer will provide a first-class training program when it opens early in the fall. Besides training recruits, the college will have courses leading to promotions to sergeant, inspector and detective.

Judge Macdonald said 100 more men will be trained for the detective branch of the provincial police. He added that 17 detective sergeants will be appointed to each of the police inspectors in the province.

Judge Macdonald said other changes in police operations include replacement of radio officers with civilians and greater co - operation with municipal forces.

Adenauer Willing to Quit Just as Soon as Reds Do

BONN (AP) — Konrad Adenauer put on a lively performance this week to answer people who keep asking:

Isn't an 86-year-old man too old to run the country? Isn't the chancellor losing his grip after nearly 13 years in office?

He showed plenty of vitality during the four-hour meeting his Christian Democrat party was in convention. He showed few if any signs of inability to concentrate while he made two one-hour speeches and held a press conference where some of the questions got tricky.

Men who were with him from 8 a.m. to midnight for four days say his stamina was unbelievable.

His keynote speech was delivered from notes without text. He received 71 ovations. Applause interrupted him 38 times, and there were 18 outbursts of laughter.

SHOWS TIREDNESS

He showed tiredness during another 60-minute speech that same afternoon before a mass rally. It lacked some of the humor he displayed in the morning. At one point he paused for seconds to find one of the little cards on which he scribbles notes.

At one point the chancellor was asked to explain how his coalition partners, the Free Democrats, could give the press a report that he would retire in 1965. Adenauer smiled and said: "Haven't you ever read a false report in the press?"

Some party members and veteran political reporters say Adenauer was re - elected to head the party because there was no one groomed to do a better job.

But Adenauer still knows how to capture an audience. He opened the convention by saying: "Let's get down to work — you know Khrushchev is watching us."

Everybody laughed and relaxed.

He accepted Dufhues in the newly-created job of executive chairman because he knew the party needed an energetic man to reorganize, instill party discipline and recapture votes lost in last fall's election.

Neither publicly nor in private, say close associates, did Adenauer betray anyone whom he would like to see as his successor as chancellor. Possibilities include Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard, Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder and Defence Minister Franz-Josef Strauss.

Unpleasant Surprises

The average man's grasp of economics leaves much to be desired. Even the informed, intelligent layman finds he is frequently surprised at the effects of some economic changes.

When the Canadian dollar was pegged at 92½ cents, it was immediately plain that this devaluation would result in the cost of goods imported into Canada rising in terms of Canadian dollars. That was to be expected. It was also evident that the increase would not be nearly as sharp as some people were anticipating, because this devaluation had been a gradual process and a great proportion of the fall from the times when the Canadian dollar was at a premium had already been reflected in today's prices.

It was plain that Canadian industries which sell their products on the world market, at world prices, would receive more for their goods in Canadian dollars. There was a prospect of increased prosperity for many segments of the economy.

What many of us forgot was that there were certain Canadian products whose domestic prices are determined by the world market. We had envisioned the Canadian section of our economy being virtually unaffected, with wages, taxes, and the cost of goods produced in Canada, solely from Canadian materials, remaining unchanged.

This was probably much too simplified a picture in any case. There are few things Canadians produce which, somewhere along the line, do not require the use of foreign-purchased goods or services in their production and marketing. But if this had been the sole effect of higher world prices, in terms of Canadian dollars, it would have been negligible. Now, however, we are reminded that when Canadian wheat brings more on the world market, it sells at a higher price at home, too. The result will be an increase in the price of bread. Following this announcement, we find Canadian oil companies increasing their price for crude oil, to avoid increasing exports to the U.S. At the old price in Canadian dollars, Canadian crude oil would have been too big a bargain. Canadian motorists, whose wages in Canadian dollars remain unchanged, will find this a little thick. But if there develops any widespread demand for higher wages, the result will be to increase the cost of production of Canadian goods generally and to wipe out those possible benefits which devaluation could bring for our export industries.

Amongst the commodities which might logically be expected to rise in price in Canadian dollars is newsprint, a touchy subject for all Canadian newspapers. It almost makes one wonder whether there was not, perhaps, some sense to the two-price system which used to be advocated by Agnes Macphail and some others, back in the thirties. In those days the idea was to keep the domestic price above the world price; today the reverse effect would be the logical objective. But that might not please those people who were once so enamored of such a system.

It appears that we shall just have to grin and bear it; perhaps the knowledge that wheels turn and pendulums swing may help us to do so.

One pleasant prospect is that the increase in the price of wheat, in terms of Canadian dollars, ought to make it possible to reduce, if not to eliminate, subsidies to farmers, thereby helping to lighten the drain on the federal treasury.

They Are Tested and Guaranteed

Richard Jackson, The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa correspondent, in his column "Ottawa Offbeat" on this page Thursday, commented on the killing pace which the airplane imposes on party leaders in the present election campaign.

"Under the straight physical and mental pressures, it is possible that either man might snap, and in an always-to-be-regretted moment, make some dreadful gaff," he observed.

Nobody wants to see men exposed to a back-breaking, mind-torturing grind without reason.

But in this day and age, when political leaders in all the major countries are being continually exposed to this kind of treatment, not merely for the comparatively short duration of an election campaign but also, at slightly lower pressures, over the long haul of day-to-day government, there is something comforting about knowing that who ever is chosen as the country's first minister has been tested and, in a manner of speaking, carries a no-break, no-gaff guarantee.

It is perhaps the highest distinction of the Greeks that they recognized the indissoluble connection of beauty and goodness.—Charles Eliot Norton.

Pity the Poor Politician Pleads Veteran Campaigner

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA— . . . like they say . . . campaigning is not what it used to be . . . and they are not kidding.

It's a whole lot harder.

Today's campaigner has got to do a lot more things and do them better, quicker and more often than any ballot-beggar of bygone days.

Pity the poor politician these days, he pleaded . . .

. . . His day begins with phone calls even before he is awake and out of bed . . . and the phone is still ringing when he gets to his committee rooms.

He approves, with some misgivings, half-a-dozen advertisements for the final week of the campaign, okays his press releases, a new batch of posters, another printing of call cards, more blotters, his clerking letter to his constituents and a radio speech which he has to tape and reads for the first time on the way to the studio.

WORST AND BEST

He bolts his lunch, if he has any, surrounded by his strategists, half of whom pinch and he can't lose and the other half of whom insist he can't win.

He runs from there to tea which his women organizers have convened, pausing to gulp a sandwich and shake hands with 40 to 60 hands at each stop.

If there is a funeral, he attends.

If there is a fire, he is a member of the fire brigade.

And if there is a flood, he carries sandbags and looks beautiful, of course, that a camera is conveniently near.

He runs from tea to television, with further misgivings, the television plug in his scheduled one an hour now about to strike.

So he rushes to the studios and the public man-in-the-street and public woman (if he can afford the help) hand him a suggested spiel for the minutes before he goes on camera, with instructions to look into the lens while he is speaking, to look natural, to talk in an easy, informal fashion, but authoritative, and above all, to look sincere.

After his TV bit, he washes off his make-up and takes another quick look at the notes cue from his sister who thinks his appearance was wonderful and another from a complete stranger who says he had planned to vote for Diefenbaker now, having heard the speech, would not vote for him as dog-catcher.

THE ONE MINUTE STAND

Time is sweating, and he dashes out to his car to drive the five or six miles to the evening rally at which he is to be the main speaker.

Once there, he listens for two hours to the preliminary speakers, and finally people begin signs of starting to walk out, he is told to keep it short, to cut it down to not more than 10 minutes.

And by the time he gets up to speak, the audience, or what is left of it, is exhausted, all the appropriate jokes have been told, every point has been made and underlined, and he make him really uncomfortable he is brought on by the chairman who introduces him as one of the best speakers in the province. If he can keep it short, cut it down to not more than 10 minutes.

And by the time he gets up to speak, the audience, or what is left of it, is exhausted, all the appropriate jokes have been told, every point has been made and underlined, and he make him really uncomfortable he is brought on by the chairman who introduces him as one of the best speakers in the province. If he can keep it short,

Later, drawing on the last of his physical resources, he shakes hands with those other survivors who have stuck out the long haul.

And then he accepts an invitation to go to the chairman's home for a bit of refreshment, and perhaps a soothing drink, only to find his local committee committee loyally assembled there, anxious to go over the week's plans in minute detail.

He tries to snooze while somebody is telling him home at 70 miles an hour long after midnight, and staggers blindly up to his front door, only to find another little group of his campaign workers waiting for him.

GOT TO GET TO WORK

Among them is the publicity chairman who says they have got to have a story ready for the paper tomorrow, so might as well do it now . . .

Then, too, there are the verifax reporters from the two county weekly newspapers and the district farm publications.

And what about the speech for tomorrow night . . . may be the paper would like a short advance on it . . . and do not forget either to be up and shaking hands at the factory gate at 7.15 this morning . . . and would he like to take a quick look at the script for that two-minute radio plug.

"My boss would rather baby sit for us than train a new secretary."

Reds Seek Atlantis

NATO Letter

Atlantis was an island where life was perfect and plentiful. Its legend has spoken up with the world. Some have said that it sank beneath the waves; others have refused to believe that it ever existed. Hardly a century has gone by without someone seeking it somewhere.

Most explorers have followed the sentiment of Francis Bacon, Solon, who, so we are told, place Atlantis under the Atlantic, including the Pillars of Hercules. Now, Professor Galanopoulos, head of the seismological institute of Athens Observatory, claims that there was once a land mass where the utopia should be sought in the Aegean sea off the island of Santorin.

The mystery began with Solon, the Greek lawgiver. It was he who translated the Egyptian manuscripts and the story was passed on by Plato.

According to the tale, the Atlantis of Poseidon measured 3,450 by 2,300 miles and it sank as a result of violent earth tremors 9,000 years before Solon's time. Apparently, the gods became angry with the people for their greed and opened the earth below them.

Since then, the search for Atlantis has found its way into the folklore of many countries, imaginary islands of paradise have appeared in books and on maps. Among these are Ogygia, the Isles of the Blest, the Isle of the Seven Cities, the Boreon Isle of Is, the French Isles Vertes, the Portuguese Ilha Verde and the Celtic Hy-Brasil.

Some explorers have taken Atlantis more seriously; St. Brendan was one. He spent seven years in the search for the Land of Promise. Christopher Columbus read his account and was inspired. He set out to discover land which he thought to be the Indies, but instead, he found America.

There were others, too, many others. It is possibly because of the persistence of their search for Atlantis that the area beyond the Pillars of Hercules that the ocean was named Atlantic.

The legend remains alive today and there are explorers still eager to find out if Atlantis is fact or mere fiction. With modern means at their disposal and a growing knowledge of archaeology, geology and geophysics the likelihood of gaining proof one way or the other increases.

All the modern Atlantis scientists are working off Santorin on the 'lost continent.' Professor Galanopoulis claims that Solon systematically mistook the symbol for that of a year. And when the errors are adjusted they show that Atlantis was much smaller and resembled part of Santorin which erupted about the middle of the Bronze age.

Few will be surprised if seismology is found and Atlantis goes on being what it has been for centuries—mystery, but it will continue to lure men forth, for, as Aristotle says: "A plausible impossibility is always preferable to an unconvincing possibility."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Demonstrating a wealth of clear thinking, careful composition, and more than a little wit, the current edition of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School magazine, the "Elevator" carries a splendid and complete glossary of student activities for the session 1941-42. The magazine is a distinct credit to the school and especially to the competent "Elevator" staff who were responsible for its publication.

Announcement of the appointment of a complete local officer personnel for the Belleville company of the Canadian Women's Army Corps was made today by Major Pauline Wadsworth, officer in charge of the company since its inception two months ago. Miss Cecilia Mahony of the staff of the O.S.D. is the new commanding officer of the company with the rank of Major. Second in command with the rank of Captain is Captain Ruth Hand—a Lieutenant under the new appointments are Miss Peyton Webb; Lieutenant in the Nursing Division Gertrude Hanna.

The golf curtain was rung up officially at the Bay of Quinte Golf Club on Wednesday afternoon with the annual Duke and Duchess match. Harry Ridley, men's captain headed the Dukes' team, as Bill Little, the club pro led the Duffers. The Dubs won by a count 11 to 10 mention during the competition a "kickers' handicap" was also held in connection with the tourney, with H. Ridley, C. Jewell, R. E. Orr, W. Little and J. McIntosh emerging as winners.

30 YEARS AGO

Mrs. R. Hicks of Bloomfield is visiting her parents in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Black left yesterday from their home real on the steamship Duchess of Bedford to attend the Eucharistic Congress in Dublin.

Miss Stella M. Ford and Miss Agnes Gertrude Ham today for Montreal and will sail from there tomorrow on the steamship Canada for Europe. holiday abroad. They will attend the Eucharistic Congress in Dublin and will also visit places of interest in England and France.

The first locally grown strawberries were sold on the market, at 30 cents per basket only a few boxes were offered for sale as the season is yet early. Eggs sold at 12 cents to 15 cents per dozen; butter sold at two pounds for 55 cents and chickens sold at 65 cents to $1 each.

Mr. W. J. Campbell has retired from the teaching staff of the O.S.D. after 31-3 years of faithful and efficient service. At a meeting gathering at the school he was presented with a handsome walnut smoking cabinet.

The city clerk's offices of the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway will be located in the Sobuster Building at the corner of Pinnacle and Bridge Street.

At a meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board all cheese offered for sale was at thirteen and three-eighths cents. The following buyers were present: Messrs. Morton, Cook and Son, Sprague, Bird, Thompson, Ballard, Alexander, Smith Gillespie, W. H. Cook, Brenton and Watkin. Mr. Ronald Smith of Winnipeg, a new buyer, was welcomed to the Board.

Mrs. Alan Brownell of Ilion, N.Y., is here on a visit to her sister, Mrs. E. A. Bland.

Mr. P. White, the new chairman of the public works department in the city council, is a practical contractor and was on the job this morning getting information of the conditions to be met and also meeting the men under his direction Mr. White was elected to succeed Ald. Robinson who resigned the office recently.

Versatile Fellows
Hamilton Spectator

Some politicians are really versatile fellows. Actually, some of them are so double-jointed that they can sit down flat on the ground, their heads in the clouds, their eyes pointed to the heavens, their noses in the grindstone, and their ears on the ground, while all the time their backs are to the wall.

We wonder some of them never seem to know what they're saying, where they are, or what they're doing on a platform in the first place.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ARE WE GRATEFUL?

"What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me?" asks the Psalmist; and a good question it is. We can make declaration; "I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord" (Psalm 116: 12-13).

In other words, "I will thank the Lord and please Him by using what he has given me. The right use of His gifts will constitute my thanks for them."

This, of course, does not make utterances of gratitude unnecessary. Earnest words of thanksgiving should have a definite and important place in all our prayers. But words alone are not enough. There must be deeds. There must be the use of what God has given us. Has He given us health of body and mind? We thank Him best in these blessings by using them in a life devoted to His service. Has He given us a successful career? We must recognize Him as the Giver, dedicate success to His glory, and never do anything that detracts from His glory. Do we have beauty, attractive personality, abundant intelligence, display of these exclusively His gifts. We did life. If anything, to create these privileges and blessings.

Nothing pleases God so much as the right use on our part of what He has graciously given us. A grateful use of His blessings is the true indication of our gratitude.

How Big Is Bad?
Penticton Herald

Nuclear weapons, apparently have their own brand of morality. It is immoral to drop, or contemplate dropping a 50-megaton bomb on a city. It is immoral to explode, or drop, or contemplate dropping 1,000 bombs of varying weights up to 10,000 pounds, on the same cities. The nuclear bomb slays many thousands, the conventional bomb (what a wonderful word conventional is) slays only hundreds. Thus, with a peculiar twist of the human mind, one bomb is moral the other immoral.

Cancer Starts From Dirty Cells Improperly Cleansed

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I've been told a sore that doesn't heal, especially around the mouth, because or like might be a warning sign of cancer. Is this one of the seven danger signals?

What about a sore on the lip that heals immediately but leaves a tiny almost invisible spot or lump under the surface? Would this be a scar? — Mrs. J. H.

That's a pretty good question. Many people have been concerned about some wound that is slow to heal.

Unfortunately, there is no single, simple rule for knowing when any one of the "seven danger signals" does or does not mean cancer. The sore that does not heal may be one with an infection, or it may be subject to repeated irritation which prevents healing, yet have nothing to do with cancer.

A "scar" is the term of a cancer signal isn't usually painful. We pay attention to a painful spot. A painless one we are inclined to ignore. And we shouldn't, in this case.

Nor is it likely for a cut that doesn't heal or for a scar to be malignant. Cancer doesn't start from an injury of that sort. (True, some cancers start that are not treated suitably, and leave ugly, disfiguring cancerscars do, after years, sometimes give rise to cancer, but that's quite different.)

Cancer starts from a cell that becomes improperly cleansed. It remains mostly mysterious, but we do know that it starts as an irritation. A part of that irritation grows and grows and grows.

It would be a fantastically long coincidence for us to get a lucky break for the kind of circumstances over which he manifestly has no control!

If a man presents a physical object, a house, a machine or a highway, it he guarantees its efficiency performance for five years and if it breaks down in any or six years he is liable to pay compensation to whoever bought his product.

But could a unemployed man successfully sue a politician who has promised that if he is elected, nobody will be unemployed? Should a doctor be sticked sued by the heirs of a man who dies one year or two years sooner than the doctor expected? Should a broker be liable if the market goes down instead of, as he said, up?

Clearly there are some conditions that the reasonable man is asked to discount. The smile is all the quieter the "caveat creditor" — let the believer beware.

Jargon Tot-Wise
The Printed Word

With jargon in the kindergarten, it may really be time to blast off in search of new and simpler worlds.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Time without number, the Packsack has protested against all these young people getting married in June weddings, usually on Saturdays. Thus a man with a lot of nephews and nieces is liable to spend his whole life on even four June weekends, precious few of which he ever enjoys. And by-the time a man has a lot of nephews and nieces of marriageable age, he has also too many June fishing weekends left ahead of him.

I am happy, therefore, to report a new trend. Out of deference to the fishing, young men are starting to marry girls from up in the fishing country, so that weddings may be staged without a single sight of a trout lake, or at the very least within half an hour's drive, as soon as it gets dark on the road draw from the wedding reception.

The next step, therefore, in correcting the calendar so that weekends by city brides is to set a fashion of having June weddings in summer resorts instead of in the shitty city. It might be a little inconvenient for, say, most of the conventional type of wedding guests but wonderful for fishing uncles.

A Lift For Living

Attitude and Behavior Determine Our Worth

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

What are we worth? — In what direction does that question start your train of thought? Would it be correct in saying that this question most likely starts our thinking toward our possessions? "He is worth fifty thousand dollars" or "he is worth a million" — such expressions, so frequently heard, reveal our tendency to measure a man's worth by what he owns.

Or this question, "What are we worth?" may set us thinking about our earning power. We may be young and not yet possessed of much goods, but what can we sell our services for in the market? Am I a five-thousand-a-year man, or a ten-thousand-dollar-a-year man? In our modern world a person can sell almost any quality he has. If he has a pleasing personality he can capitalize on it. If he has ideas, he can sell them and he has patent laws and copyright laws to protect him in the sale.

But what about that which we cannot sell? Under in the form of shop is a lovely flower. Its price is high. But that flower may have equally beautiful sisters in the same family which are left to "blush unseen and waste their sweetness on the desert air." What determines the worth of the flower, its beauty or its nearness to the market?

And how is it with us as human beings? We boast that life is worth more in a free society like America, Canada or Britain than in the totalitarian states. We mean thereby that the Government has more respect for the individual's welfare and more regard for his rights.

When the Nazis were defeated and the peril of communism began to loom over the horizon, Winston Churchill made speech at the League in 1944. He said, in part: "What do men want? Is it not a fair chance to make a home, to reap the fruits of their toil, to cherish their wives, to bring up their children in peace and safety, without fear or bullying, monstrous oppression or exploitation? That is their heart's desire, and that is what we mean by to win for them."

But free governments along with free markets cannot give us the full sense of our worth. A man may be making plenty of money and yet feel cheap.

We must consider what we are worth to ourselves. Eight times in the Bible occurs the command: "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."

Now, to love oneself in the Biblical sense does not mean that one always likes himself. A healthy normal person often dislikes himself for what he is doing, often criticizes himself, sometimes punishes himself. Yet through all his self-chastening he loves himself in the sense that he is seeking to own highest good.

The godly man loves himself in that he seeks to keep his own self-respect and develop his own divine potentialities. He desires what the old Edinburgh weaver prayed for each Sunday: "O Lord, give me a high opinion of myself."

Jesus did not flatter men by telling them how good they were. He made them aware of the sin rooted in their natures. He caused them to feel how far short they were of their possibilities. He humbled His hearers. But He did not humiliate them. He turned them to repenting repentance but not to paralyzing remorse. He sought to give self-respect even to sinners.

TURNS SOUR

And without self-respect our sense of worth turns sour. However others may applaud us, in those searching moments of silence before slumber comes we take stock of our worth to ourselves. When President James A. Garfield was approached to do a commonplace thing and was told that no one would ever know if he responded to have replied: "No, but I have to live with myself."

What are we worth? Dollars don't tell us. The applause of others does not measure our values. Browning caught the deepest secret when he wrote: "All I could never be, All men ignored in me, That I was worth to God."

President Eliot of Harvard was fond to say that the strongest argument he could use to bring a wayward student to his senses was to remind him how much his parents had sacrificed to send him to college. So Saint Paul sought to lift his converts out of their low morale and low morals by writing: "You are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's."

Are we worth what God and our fellowmen paid for us?

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

Nestlings are always fully clothed before they leave home. Their first suits are lovely, soft down. But these are very soon changed for fluffy feather costumes called "juvenile plumage", and the "juveniles" are then ready to face the world. Later on, there is another moult, and the new clothes are referred to as "immature plumage". Migrants are then ready to travel south for the winter.

The growth of colors and the changes to feathers are most interesting. At first slender, hair-like fingers grow out from the skin and split into silky filaments. These form the "down". At the base of this stiff, horny sheaths soon push upward, sending the down right out of the skin. These stiff growths contain the true feathers, and are unfolded at about the time the bird reaches full growth.

OFTEN DIFFERENT

Strangely enough, the color of the infant dress is often quite different from that of either parent. Many chestnut-sided warblers are at first silvery grey while the adults are yellow-ish green above, white below, and have yellow caps. Myrtle warblers just out of the nest are a mixture of dark and light with brown predominating, so that they somewhat resemble their mothers. Red-eyed vireos, born with only a bit of fluff sprinkled over their red-brown skins, are in a week or so covered with grey down except for white on the throats. But chipping sparrows come from the nest looking much like their parents in streaked brown suits. However, they look be red caps.

No matter what the color of mother and father owl or hawk, their nestlings always wear pure white down dresses.

The young of water birds seem to have clothes of greatest color contrast to their parents. Adult gannets are snowy white. Their infants' first dresses are very dark; tops by the end of July a few grey feathers are mixed in with the down on wings and back. When a baby sora rail emerges from the egg it is jet black though the parents are dark brown above and grey beneath. Once it has acquired immature plumage it has fluffy brown feathers. An adult coot is extremely dark; the downy young, though otherwise dark, have orange-red heads. While pelican babies come out with only a bit of fluff sprinkled on their bare white and fuzzy. It is hard to say which kind of baby is most attractive.

Once again Visitors' Day at the Ontario School for the Deaf dawned bright and clear with balmy breezes. Warm sunshine from cloudless blue skies dotted through the green leaves of the maples casting mosaic patterns on the well-kept lawns. The songs of many birds could be heard amid the prevailing peace — all students were still at class until 3.00 p.m.

As one day during the year is set aside especially for the visitors to view the school and its many privileges, during the meeting yesterday afternoon assembled in the Activities' Room of the new Junior School where selected groups were taken on guided tours. Those viewing the Junior School were welcomed by the superintendent, Mr. J. G. Dennis, and those viewing the Main School, were received by the assistant superintendent, Mr. D. E. Kennedy.

GUIDED GROUPS

The Junior School included four groups, directed by teachers, Davieson; Cox; Wilson; Cockburn; Shannon; Hill; W. Maloney, and Angus; section 2 the main building, consisting of five groups, directed by teachers, Mrs. Sanford; Forester; Mrs. Hall; Mrs. Gowan; Van Rassel; Mann; Williams; and Mrs. Maloney, while the general tour of both buildings was directed by Messrs. Mound; Keeler; Cowling; Bailey; Chapelle; G. Simpson; Bailfman and Graham.

Special privileges for those guests visiting the Junior School, were the showing of the new Junior School, the junior dining room, and a short rhythmic demonstration, or pay a visit to the vocational shops where complete oral and articles in the process of manufacture were shown. Those in groups visiting the main building were also entitled to view the classes in session and the residences.

SPECIAL FEATURE

After viewing the various buildings, seeing the fine equipment; the manner of teaching; a special feature of the afternoon was the "Fashion Show, held in the main auditorium, with Miss W. Mallooey as commentator. Here, 74 girl students modelled the dresses, coats and two-piece ensembles which they had made during the past year in the sewing class under the direction of Miss Mary Vincent.

At the completion of the show, Miss Vincent spoke briefly commending the girls on their fine modelling, and the excellent quality of work shown in their young people. She also thanked Mrs. Ruth Hanley, who left the school for work in the outside world, would put into practice what she had learned in the sewing course.

COMMENDABLE FASHIONS

Among the many dresses shown, a number were cotton with printed patterns, some in plaids featuring the modern trend, jumpers in dark, with white blouses; cotton sheaths with jackets in shades of blue and green; black and white checks; suits of jackets and skirts of cotton and linen; some were scalloped at the edge, and some had contrasting trim. Mrs. Glazed cotton had its place in the showing in the sheath dresses, skirts and two piece ensembles were also shown. One dress of this type that caught the eye was red with white blouse accented by wide white collar and cuffs, and pearls in mulberry shade was very pretty and practical.

Sport dress included red and white outfit, part of blouse in white, and the rest in red, trimmed on alternating sides with red sash. Other dresses were suitable for afternoon wear and mostly of shimmering materials, figured. The jacket ensembles were for the most part in dressier material and of darker colors. One ensemble in blue was shown with white lace collar and cuffs, a commendable showing of teen age clothes.

Those modelling included the following:

Group 5 — Lynda Baetz, Joan Brooks, Janice Cameron, Dorothy Cook, June Flisick, Judy Ann Wilson.

Group 11, 12, 13 were a repeat display.

Following the fashion show, Mr. Williamson, vice-president of the Ontario Parents' Council for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing, spoke briefly explaining of what the work of the Council consisted mentioning that there is in Toronto, Ottawa, and making them ready for regular meetings. It was announced that a council convention would be held in Brantford on June 30 and all parents of deaf children were invited to attend.

DISPLAY OF WORK

At 7.00 p.m. the students work during the year, including the fashion show and recreational was open to inspection by the visitors, at the girls' building, the display consisted of pieces of the industrial arts, under the direction of Stretton, teacher, of lawn furniture, tables, coffee chest stools, bookends; and bookcases; and others, as well as discus trophy.

Metal work, under J. W. Hodgson, included steel pay box; magazine racks; wrought iron candlesticks; magnetic tool box; aluminum candle holders, and a merry-go-round and picture frames; a magnetic tool tray; outdoor bar-B-Q; sprinkler.

Wood craft showed bedsteads with magazine headboard; a cradle; a chest design; child's cradle on platform with spindle sides; and many others, including a bed with fancy cutout headboard.

Photography was also shown and included snaps of the new school, by Mr. Stretton at Miller, Ontario. Printing samples were on display, showing calendars, copies of the OSD paper, "The Canadian."

In the home economics there was a display of plain sewn articles, samples of canned goods, jams, jellies and fruits, also meal menus.

The typing included "Do's and Don'ts" in typing and also looseleaf notebooks.

Under the car presented to the school by courtesy of Trudeau Motors, drew many favorable comments. Mechanic also posters on "Safe Driving."

NICE UPHOLSTERING

As well as samples of carpentry, there was shown, including leather covering.

As well as samples of carpentry, there was shown, including boys' arts and crafts in the sight saving, mosaic tile craft work were shown.

The academic display included both intermediate and senior work; language and composition; social studies, mathematics, nature study, senior science and speech work.

One outstanding part of display was that of the sewing crafts, needlepoint, cushions, tea towels machine embroidered, swim suit bags, fancy tray cloths, doilies, aprons, baby clothes, bulky-knit sweaters, to mention but a few.

Gymnastic display by boys and girls was held in the boys' gymnasium at 3.30 p.m., bringing to a close a delightful Visitors' Day for another year.

45 Attend Bridal Shower

A bridal-shower was held recently in the Belmont banquet room, Bellleville, in honor of Miss Linda Ann Hayes, Trenton bride-to-be and about 45 relatives and friends of the bridegroom-tobe Mr. Ronald Fridgeon.

The first portion of the evening was spent in playing games at which three various prizes were awarded.

The honored guest was presented with many varied and useful gifts, after which she expressed sincere appreciation for the hostesses and to all those present.

Women's Influence in Home' Topic at Cannifton UCW Meet

The open meeting of the Cannifton U.C.W. was well attended on Thursday 8th when the doors of Cannifton United Church were opened to members of all Auxiliaries of the U.C.W. from the surrounding districts. Mrs. Stephen Wood, of Trenton, welcomed the guests, and introduced the new members of the Cannifton U.C.W. evening group.

The ladies enjoyed a piano solo by Mrs. Lyle Maffin, of Belleville, following which Mrs. G. Brenton conducted the worship service. Mrs. Brenton saying in part that "We live in the same inborn desire to accomplish into society, to enjoy community life. However, to be accepted and to find social satisfaction desires satisfied, we should live Christian lives. If we could see our lives, as reflected in the looking glass of life, would we measure up to the required standard of Christian living?"

Appropriate verses from the Bible were read by Mrs. Ruth Boyce, Cannifton W.C.W. evening group, to illustrate the various points of Mrs. Brenton's talk. Mrs. Brenton then read "Times Like These We Live," which "Influence" was sung as a solo by Mrs. Don Thompson, Shannonville.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Joy Putman introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Morgan McFarlane. Mrs. McFarlane is the daughter of a minister and also the wife of one, her husband, who is the minister of Tabernacle United Church.

The theme of her talk, "Women's Influence in the Home and Family Life." She asked some thought-provoking questions: "What are we, as wives and mothers doing to contribute to a Christian organization do we strive for our children's spiritual welfare? How do we help the needy, both physically and spiritually? What can we do to improve the world? We can bring a spark in many ways, and with provide the answer. Jesus not concerned with outward and modern looks into our hearts and sees us for what we really are," Mrs. McFarlane closed with prayer.

Mrs. Furmidge Sr. tendered a vote of thanks to the guest speaker on behalf of Cannifton U.C.W.

Mrs. Rombough, Foxboro spoke "His Eyes Are On the Sparrow," a solo much appreciated by the ladies.

Mrs. G. Brenton, president, thanked all who had taken part in the service after which Mr. C. Dawson pronounced the benediction and the ladies adjourned to the Sunday school rooms where a delicious lunch was served by the Cannifton U.C.W. afternoon group.

Before the meeting dispersed a vote of thanks to Cannifton U.C.W. for their kind hospitality was tendered on behalf of, the visiting auxiliaries by Mrs. Hubble, Foxboro.

X1 Alpha Mu Unveils Water Slides

One of the highlights of the closing meeting of X1 Alpha Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was the showing of a number of water-moving pictures in color on bestie driving taken by Dr. S. Reynolds, with commentary by Mrs. Murphy on their trip to the Bahamas. This was a most unusual and interesting presentation and much enjoyed by all present.

The other highlight of the evening was a talk presented by Mrs. S. Woonwood on the "Enjoyment of Music". This was stimulating to the members as Mrs. Woonwood had put a great deal of thought, time and effort into her topic.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

The business portion of the meeting came to order with the reading of the new slate of officers and committees for the coming year and plans were discussed for various projects which are under way.

The social hour also finalized for the pot-luck supper which was held last Monday evening at the Bayshore home of Mrs. Vince McLean. Most of the entertainment was presented for this delicious repast and a very enjoyable time was experienced by all at this final social function of the year. Meetings will again resume in September of this year.

Women's S.G. Discusses Heritages

At the Women's Study Guild meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. E. A. Fleming, Mrs. R. Ellis was appointed permanent convener with the "Save the Children Fund," to look after the correspondence regarding the Guild's Tunisian protegee. Notice of motion was given re raising the annual membership fee to $1, and changing the due date for collection of same to the June meeting, rather than the September meeting. The nominating committee was appointed as follows: Mesdames, Beresford, Varcoe and Ashley.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. J. R. Reynolds and was based on several verses of Scripture and the 103rd Psalm. The meditation stressed the moral obligations of Christianity be used as a basis for all decisions, be they personal or national, as the true Christian lives all of his life by the principles found in the teachings of Jesus.

The program, presented in parts, was on The French Canadian Heritage. Part one, which was compiled by Mrs. Gordon D. Williamson, was based on Mason Wade's recent book "The French Canadians". This dealt with the basis of conflict which exists between Canada's two races dating back to the conquest in Lower Canada. It was definitely recently that the physical face of Canada has taken any appreciable change, and this has been brought about by the industrialization which has taken place.

GEOGRAPHY INFLUENCES

During the years of 'status quo,' the masses of the people were relatively unaffected by the influence of the clergy, and social and cultural intermingling with Anglo-Saxons was the exception rather than the rule. During Second World War telescoped a great many changes into a brief span of years, and the increasingly industrial aspirations and pride, which are feeling among the people of French Canadian lives, and now the meeting of these races is reflected against the rule of the clergy is waging war on cultural assimilation.

This result, indeed, even has some characters among the younger clerical men and the next decade will undoubtedly be a difficult one for both laity and clergy.

A social time was enjoyed at the close of the meeting, with refreshments in charge Mesdam. Jr. and Mrs. R. Ellis.

Mme. Therese Casgrain, NDP Candidate in Que., In Politics All Her Life

MONTREAL (CP) — Mme Therese Casgrain, veteran champion of women's causes, has been named New Democratic Party candidate for Montreal's Outremont-St. Jean riding in the June 18 general election.

"After careful consideration I have decided to offer myself as a candidate for peace," she told the nomination meeting. Mrs. Casgrain is also head of the Quebec committee of Voice of Women, an organization that seeks an international ban on nuclear weapons.

The handsome, 65-year - old grandmother of 14 has for one of the most active and varied political careers of any Canadian woman. Credited with the most singlehandedly winning the vote for women in Quebec she later became the first of her sex to lead a Canadian political party, heading the provincial CCF from 1951 to 1957.

A member of the party since the mid-40s, she ran unsuccessfully under its banner six times in federal elections.

"Yes, I lost," she says, "but ye gods, the company I've kept!"

DAUGHTER OF JUDGE

Mme. Casgrain says politics came naturally to her because she grew up with the daughter of Conservative MP Sir Rodolph Forget, she knew prime ministers Arthur Meighen and Robert Borden as a child. At 18 she married the late Pierre Casgrain, a Liberal MP who was Speaker of the Commons from 1936 to 1940.

"If I later switched parties, it wasn't because I didn't know any better," she said in an interview.

The switch came a few years after she was defeated as an Independent Liberal in 1945 while seeking the seat her husband vacated for an appointment as superior court judge. The Charlevoix - Saguenay seat had been in the family since 1904 when her father won it for the Conservatives.

Of her husband, who died in 1950, Mme. Casgrain said:

"He was a big enough man that his wife to do what she thought necessary, although there were many people who kept telling him he should take care of."

Besides becoming actively involved in politics, she helped in founding the French Federation of Charities and is a French-speaking section of the Canadian Association of Adult Education.

OPPOSED CONSCRIPTION

After the Second World War, in which she stirred criticism by opposing conscription for overseas service — she was among those who helped draft countless petitions.

Earlier this year she and two other women flew to Geneva to present the VoW's case to the 18-nation disarmament conference.

After her return, she took off again for Washington to join an all-night picket line outside the White House, then headed for Western Canada on a speaking tour for the Association of Canadian Clubs.

Mme. Casgrain also finds time to write a weekly column on current affairs for Le Nouveau Journal, Montreal French-language daily.

"LETTER FROM MILDRED DILLING: HARPIST.

"Such Musick" (as "tis said) before we never made."—Milton.

We continue with Miss Dilling's letter to Mrs. John Deacon, 221 John Street. Interested readers recall hearing the beautiful harpist, when she appeared in Belleville several years ago. Miss Dilling writes:

In January Mr. Wheeler Beckett, the American conductor, had taken with him to Dykaria where he was conducting and training a symphony orchestra, Indonesia Symphony Orchestra, a beautiful Ipon and Healy concert harp. This harp had evidenced a sensation as it was the only one they had ever seen.

Everyone wanted to hear it and many wanted to play it. Therefore Mr. Beckett stated that I be sent over on the cultural exchange program of the State Department. So when I came to me in April during the last part of my tour, so that between the last concerts I was being punctured with inoculations for Dykaria, Washington, shopping, etc.

I left Sept. to New York on May. I had just enough time to repack and fly away on May 10th. I arrived at the airport on May 8th for lunch with Mr. Beckett and played an impromptu program for him and a select crowd of VIPs, two brass bands, one quarter of a mile of red carpet, a great display of flowers and decorations, and a 21-gun salute! At that moment President Prado and his party came down from our plane. (I was next in line after him in the washroom. I had cleaned up after his shaving and the valet was busy making him look very handsome.) But I was there with my note pressed against the window and taking pictures of it.

I found out weeks later when I remembered to have them developed that I had forgotten to put in a film. (That's why a camera dealer in Berlin, Germany, refused to sell me a Rolleiflex, and made me settle for a 35 mm camera which he said was adequate—when loaded.)

On my way to Indonesia, I had tantalizing glimpses of Tokyo, Hong Kong and Singapore, in each place I met the Cultural Affairs Officer at our Embassies; they all requested from Washington to send me back to Tokyo for two and Washington very graciously complied. On May 15th I flew into Djakarta for six months as the island of Java.

But now I'll go back to the beginning of this trip and bring you up to date. Probably most of you know that in April I went to the word from the U.S. State Department that they had an urgent call from Indonesia to send me there to introduce the harp.

Part of my job there was to train harpists for the Radio Republik Indonesia Symphony Orchestra and that was a joy. There were 64 applicants, but we limited the class to seven — especially talented young women and girls and one young man, all fine pianists but no harpists. I had many hardworking and enthusiastic pupils and the results of our intensive courses were gratifying and amazing.

The pupils' recital which they gave in August was really a concert, open to listen to them and at least two of the girls played solos in the orchestra. The one young pupil, a musicologist from Holland, is off to teach at the East West Centre in Honolulu next month where he can continue to play the harp.

My sister, Charlene Dilling Brewer, the violinist from Chicago, joined me for a month, for about three wonderful weeks. Together we gave the first concert of Western music given on the island of Bali. It was given in the large radio studio auditorium for a group of VIPs with hundreds standing outside the doors to listen.

The concert was also broadcast so they took no chances on perfect listening. Although this odd Western music on our peculiar instruments. Therefore, between each group they had Balinese music and singing which to me was in fun very strange. They were very enthusiastic and afterwards everyone remarked how amazing it was that we musicians were "ladies" as Balinese thought all musicians were males and artists.

Bali is another place you really miss seeing — when you're in Java. It is very much apart. We also played a number of times in Djakarta and in Surabaya. I was never busier in my life than during this last summer on the Equator. In Djakarta alone, I gave 11 programs plus three appearances with the orchestra and I also went to Sumatra for three concerts. My lovely pupil Charlotte, came from there and flew back with me to visit friends and to assist me in one of the concerts.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

LET YOUR HUSBAND SELECT HIS VACATION

Politeness often begins at home, and there's no better time than during vacation planning. A husband's upcoming vacation is special.

In fact, it starts even before that glorious day when he bursts in the front door and happily announces that commuter schedules and office chores will finally be forgotten for a couple two or three weeks.

The smart wife, by due politeness, example, to defer to the man's likes concerning his vacation. If he likes fishing, golfing, hiking, etc. he takes the shots, try not to bother him, but find your heart set on a cottage by the sea.

If he's an avid golfer and announces that he's going to golf his way through this glorious time off, don't criticize him for his frivolous attitude.

The smart wife will be out husband relax. The last thing in the world you want is a man out his vacation period with enough golf to cover a social directory who feels that he must be devoted to stimulating activity. Remember, golf doesn't want to be stimulated.

So, on the positive side, ask him what he wants to do on his vacation time. Keep your answers to yourself when he answers that he plans to do nothing.

If you're staying at home, let him suggest that you have some friends over for a meal or a few cocktails and let him make up the guest list. Invite all his favorite people. Let him cook you a steak, or a quiet dinner in the country or a fish fry on the beach. In other words, let him be his own social director on his holiday.

Above all, don't react to the fact that he's around all day, aches, or to complain about his being home. Remember that the behavior of the offspring or the neighbors down the road. As a matter of fact, at present a brave, happy front is the best policy.

Of course, home-made etiquette, as a two-way street, and the husband may be so wrapped up in his part of the matrimonial relationship that he completely failed above may not apply.

But by the way, what you'd like to do on his vacation? Now that he has time to share the experience, he should want to know all about the kids and the household, and the household problems, subjects that don't allow for much discussion in the hurry-up-and-get-home days.

Just remember that a man's vacation may be the only time during the year when he has the chance to act as lord of his own home.

Busy Toronto Mother Again IODE President

TORONTO (CP) — The national president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire is a busy Toronto mother who comes naturally by her interest in the organization.

Mrs. Peter L. Robinson, re-elected for a third term at the IODE's annual meeting in Charlottetown, is really the great-grandmother was a member of the 48th Highlanders chapter of Toronto.

Her mother also joined the chapter and although Mrs. Robinson originally became an IODE member while living in England she, too, is a native-born of the 48th.

For her service to the order she has been awarded a life membership in both her own chapter and the national IODE.

Mrs. Robinson says her greatest satisfaction comes from "seeing women in Canada united in the cause of education of youth and to help those less fortunate than ourselves."

Although duty is usually stressed in connection with IODE work, it is equally concerned with such matters as Commonwealth relations, citizenship and immigration, world affairs and welfare, she says, adding that she is convinced "any woman, no matter what her interests, can find a niche in the society."

Mrs. Robinson, who has a school-age daughter, is the wife of a stockbroker and daughter of the late Rev. T. Crawford-Brown, padre to the 48th Highlanders for 25 years.

Several other members were re-elected to their posts at the Charlottetown meeting, including Mrs. Wesley Parker Fisher, La Brown of Hamilton and Mrs. M. M. Falley and Mrs. G. Douglas Little of Toronto.

Mrs. R. S. Bray of Toronto is back as secretary for Ontario, a quarterly publication founded in 1900, the same year as the Canadian IODE.

Mrs. D. W. McGibbon of Toronto moved up to first vice-president from second vice-president and Mrs. J. Noel Gordon of Toronto became second vice - president, succeeded as treasurer by Mrs. R. C. Latimer of Toronto.

Other vice-presidents are Mrs. Reginald M. Brophy, Toronto, Mrs. J. G. Sprague, Ashburn, Ont., and Mrs. Gordon D. Leggett, Toronto.

Mrs. H. G. Chant, Toronto, was returned as national secretary and Mrs. F. C. Woolley, Toronto, is back as assistant secretary.

Other officers: Organizing secretary, Mrs. J. Jeanne Knapman, Hamilton; educational secretary, Mrs. George E. Tee, Toronto; war memorial secretary, Mrs. C. Bennett, Hamilton; secretary for services at home and abroad, Mrs. W. P. Atkins, Toronto; public relations secretary, Mrs. Bruce Butler, Toronto.

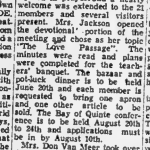
Conveners are: Immigration and citizenship, Mrs. R. Douglas Jennings, Toronto; hospital-ity, Mrs. Brophy; world affairs, Mrs. Harry Brook, Hamilton; constitution, Mrs. Sprague, Commonwealth relations, Mrs. F. R. Jacob, Toronto; civic defence, Mrs. J. E. Rooney, Ottawa.

U.C.W. Meetings

UNIT 2 U.C.W.

WELLINGTON — The June meeting of Unit 2 U.C.W. was held in the Centennial Parlors on June 5th and opened with a quiet music played by Mrs. Norman Foster.



The president, Mrs. F. Brimley led in prayer and a hearty welcome was extended to the 21 members and several visitors present. Mrs. Jackson opened the devotional portion of the meeting and chose as her topic "The Love Passage". The minutes were read and plans were completed for the teach-in banquet. The bazaar and pot-luck dinner is to be held in June and each member is required to bring one apron and one other article to be sold. The Bay of Quinte conference is to be held August 20th and applications must be in by August 1st.

Mrs. Don Van Meer took over the worship service with a study book on "Heard in the Echo" about a young village student and his fight with himself and God for fresh thing.

Mrs. Elmer McFaul favored with a vocal solo accompanied by Mrs. G. Foster. Mrs. C. E. Freeman brought a fine thought of the section taken so far in the Bible Study.

Mrs. Brimley expressed appreciative thanks to all who had helped with the program.

Delicious refreshments were served and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

GREEN PEAS AND CUCUMBERS IN CREAM — New peas and cucumbers in tangy sour cream make a delicious combination vegetable dish. Here is how the Consumer Section makes it: Place 2 cups shelled peas and, if medium sized, onion in a saucepan with ½ cup boiling water and 1 teaspoon salt. Cover and cook until almost tender, about 6 minutes. Add 2 cups of peeled, cubed cucumbers. Continue cooking until tender. Drain. Add 3 tablespoons butter; 1½ teaspoon salt and ½ cup dairy sour cream; mix and serve immediately. Serves 6. (Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.)

Mother of Five Seeks Election as a Liberal

LA SARRE, Que. (CP)—The federal riding of Chapleau is in a land of scrubby evergreens, swamps, scratch farms and rich rocks. Its people are mainly hard-rock miners and lumbermen.

It is in this land that a housewife from La Sarre is campaigning for the Liberals — Jacqueline Forget Casgrain, mother of five children, is the Liberal candidate for Chapleau in the June 18 federal election. Mrs. Mercier, shown in this photo with Patsy of Montreal, hopes to become the first French-Canadian woman member of the Commons. (CP Photo).

Mrs. Jacqueline Mercier, 35-year mother of five, is the Liberal candidate in the sprawling constituency that is one of the frontier outposts of civilization in northwestern Quebec. She is fighting a door-to-door battle against Mrs. Jacques Marial, Progressive Conservative MP in the last Parliament, Gerard Laprise of the Social Credit party, and Jean - Paul Gravel of the New Democratic Party.

Door - to - door in the areas means travelling many miles over bumpy gravel roads. It means going each way to the polls, cooped over zinc mines to the Noranda smelting off shift.

SOME SURPRISED

"I can't say that some of them don't say: What, another woman? But I don't think they'd represent more than 50 per cent.

"At my nomination I got a large majority and certainly in the end they there were 3 men."

Mrs. Mercier has complete support from the most powerful man in the picture, her husband, Gerard Mercier, who is the 11th son of 3,800 population in the town of Ottawa.

"I'm not saying that I'm running simply because my husband is in politics. On the other hand I wouldn't run if he disapproved."

Mrs. Mercier has been active in politics for 14 years and campaigned for her husband but always for other candidates.

She is the only woman delegate to speak at the federal party convention that chose Lester Pearson as leader. Afterwards, retired leader Louis St. Laurent asked her if she had ever considered running as candidate for Parliament herself.

PROMISE KEPT

Mrs. Mercier also has support from another precedent-setting woman, Mrs. Claire Kirkland-Casgrain of Lachine, Que., also a mother and the first woman elected to the Quebec legislature.

Mrs. Kirkland -- Casgrain's father, Dr. C. A. Kirkland, once nominated Mrs. Mercier that if she ever ran for office he would speak in her support. Now his death has brought the latter's succession to the seat last held by her predecessor, Mrs. Kirkland-Casgrain — to fulfill her father's promise. She consented to speak at a rally for Mrs. Mercier at Amos, Que.

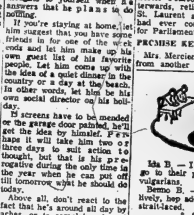
"Often people think it's terrible that I would consider leaving an 18-month-old child. I would be leaving plenty of people because certain problems arise in my family. But I have good help—my husband, myself and my home."



Certain restrictions have loosened up, we admit. Small boys don't have to wait for manhood to get a haircut. Formerly taboo subjects are now discussed in the open and even put in pulpits. Recently we heard a woman exploring the use of terrace furniture. What's because the top is glass and she can't sit on it. Also discussed was the table when he starts a "blue" period. Yes, some of the bulwarks are crumbling.

But, marital love and marital bliss, as best they have been, are the same as when they were envisioned in the Bible and in the impassioned words of art which they inspired through the centuries. Love for a man was offered to man. Benno's responses to vulgarize these, His taste and sense of values are perverted.

Let's leave with Ida. Benno and she can find more constructive and interesting ways to spend that evening.

LARGEST SAPPHIRE

Believed to be the largest cut sapphire in existence, the Star of India now is in New York's American Museum of Natural History.

Ida B. — We've been invited to attend a dinner party at the home of a fashion friend of Benno's. This fellow is divorced and now makes it a point to do the right entertaining to a man who "happy" he is. But one of features of its hospitality is sexy movie strips. I feel that's where he gets them, but they're a bit much. Should we accept the invitation because I can't stomach that sort of thing?

Benno B. — This fellow has some enough not to show his erotic leanings in the bunch of kids, or yokels. He fugues in inviting intelligent people who have a strong grip on reality, as documentary material. If we accept, we'll just have to put a pair of milquetoasts, like squares. We skipped the last party.

I made up some excuse for Ida's sake. But we suggest that other guests brought along their own pornographic "treasures" and the party could be a real educational not is a sensational. Also, if the movies merely opened the way to a lively discussion of morals and sex-life in our confused world.

Ida should be able to review the stuff like an adult. Most of it will be stupid or funny. It shouldn't throw her.

The Council: Rather than being merely stupid or funny, this type of pornographic film show will be sad. Watching it stolidly and phlegmatically is supposed to be the mark of "scientific," whereas an outright giggle would mark the immature adolescent company.

Sad is the word for a host who must get his kicks that way. Sadder still is the plight of the "addits" who fall for his challenge to see whether they can "take it." Bravo for Ida and husband if they can't take it, she'll leave it. As for Benno, even though he can't take it, he should be

Saw request for Cornucopias. Following are

"CALLA LILLIES" (Cornucopias) (courtesy Lilian F.):

2 eggs, 1 cup sifted pastry flour (if all-purpose flour is used reduce amount to ¾ cup).

¼ teaspoon granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon baking powder, pinch of salt.

Beat eggs until light. Gradually beat in sugar, beating well after each addition. Sift the flour with baking powder and salt and beat gradually into eggs and sugar. Drop by tablespoonfuls onto a well-greased pan. Bake at once at 375 deg. Fahr. about 10 minutes. The cookies must be kept chilled until required and no more than eight "cookies" should be baked at a time, as they require immediate attention after baking. At serving time fill with lightly sweetened and flavored whipped cream and arrange on platter. Candied orange peel or drained maraschino cherries as stamens — a little sliver of candied orange peel might be tucked in under the cream and used as imaginary stalk.

I've had this recipe for donkey's years . . . Lilian F.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Stepdaughters Are Unhappy

DORIS CLARKE

DEAR DORIS:—My father married again and I hate my stepmother. Last August I left home... I had a job and my nerves were so bad I had a stomach ulcer.

Until January I lived a normal life. Then I heard how unhappy my sister was with her (she is 17, I am 19). I worried all the time and lost my job over it. I got another job and lost that too.

Now I am staying with my grandmother but this can't go on. My stepmother does everything to make my dad lose faith in me, and now she is doing it to my sister — DEE BRANT.

• • •

DEAR DEE—You pulled out. Could you help your sister do the same? Obviously the woman your father married wants him all to herself.

Perhaps you could start by having rooms at the YMCA. Talk with your dad and your grandmother. Ask if they would help a little to get you settled in a place of your own. Your dad can't be entirely unconscious about what's going on—and there are some situations it is wisest to get away from.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I broke up with my girl friend about a month ago, and it looks like it was a very good idea. She had me wrapped around her little finger like a piece of string.

Just after we broke up I wrote her a letter telling her that I still liked her and that it had been all my fault for our break-up. Well that was where I really goofed because she went and told all her girl friends that I was blindly in love with her and that I wrote love letters to her every day. Now, a lot of the girls think I'm a real dope because of it.

What I would like to know is what should I tell my friends when they ask me about her? Because of her I have lost all respect for girls.—FROSTED.

• • •

DEAR FROSTED—Look happy. Take some new girls out. Unless your friends were all born yesterday they won't believe that you are writing her a letter every day and going out with others.

When you see her, just say hello. Then say good-bye right away. No conversations. No indication of interest. And don't be foolish enough to stop respecting and enjoying the other sex just because one of them acts childish.

• • •

TO MRS. A. S.:—It is most unlikely that you will be able to obtain a birth certificate from the Ukraine for your grandmother now. This, of course, is the most desirable proof of age.

Failing this, there are other proofs which are acceptable for an Old Age Pension. You have to have both of these.

The first one is a landing card or its equivalent, which would give information about when your grandmother came to Canada. It should state the month, at least, and year, and the port of entry. It should name the boat.

The second required proof is what the census records show. This would be information as to where she was during each year—1941, 1951, 1961. Your own provincial library should be able to complete the records after you have completed certain forms for him. Start your enquiry now, since she will be 70 this year.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I wonder if you can help me with this problem. I purchased a used Imperia Noodle Chey (which was made in Italy) in an auction sale and I need some repairs for it. The gentleman moved to Quebec and I have no address where he moved.

A lot of people laughed at me for buying this machine. Can you find the company or agent handling it in Canada? If so, please send it to me at once.—IN A FIX.

• • •

DEAR IN A FIX—The name is not familiar. Since this is an imported line, it will only be sold by certain hardware dealers. Probably the central organization of hardware merchants can guide you. I am sending you an address to write to.

Meanwhile, has anyone a clue? Let's help her have the last laugh if we can.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—1. When the wedding march starts to play and the bride starts down the aisle, do the bridesgroom and best man (who are standing at the front of the church facing the altar) turn and face the bride coming down the aisle?

2. Do the bride's attendants walk ahead or follow her down the aisle?

3. Should the bridegroom toast his bride?—WONDERING.

• • •

DEAR WONDERING—1. The groom turns slightly so that he is facing a little into the nave and is ready to step forward and assist the bride up the chancel steps. Below and behind him, a little to the right, is the best man.

2. They all walk ahead of her.

2. No. The bridegroom usually responds to the toast to the bride and follows this by proposing a toast to the bridesmaids.

• • •

TO D. B.:—Your romance may sound rosy, but it could mean tragedy. If the man is sincere, let him get his divorce first; then come to you.

It's an old pattern: "Dear, I love you. Trust me." In many cases the divorce never materializes. Then where would you be?

a model of progress."

The Liberal leader said other countries, particularly those in Western Europe, are making more progress than Canada. Canadian productivity has dropped since 1956, and "hundreds of thousands of Canadian families have been experiencing the bitterness, the hopelessness, the loneliness of massive, prolonged unemployment."

DERIDES PRICE THREAT

Mr. Douglas charged at Kelowna, B.C., that Mr. Diefenbaker's threat of action against consumer price increases as a result of the devaluation of the dollar is nothing but an election gimmick.

He told 1,500 persons at an election rally that Mr. Diefenbaker has no power to do a thing anything against the wishes of the consumer good corporations.

Mr. Douglas said the prime minister has had two reports on his desk for the last two years containing proof of overpricing of consumer goods. They were the royal commission on farm price spreads and the combines report on the meat packing industry.

"Both these reports show how the consumer is being fleeced and he is a fleece that is unnecessarily," he said.

At Calgary Mr. Thompson proposed a department of national security to co - ordinate Canada's defence program. He told a rally of 900 persons that such a department would handle the affairs of nine segments of the department of national defence.

MUST HELP U.S.

Mr. Thompson said Canada's best defence position is to help the U.S. maintain a high retaliation potential. Canada also must play a leading role in strengthening the original concept of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Earlier at a press conference, Mr. Thompson said the Social Credit party's thinking about a $25 - a - month dividend has changed in favor of a "basic annual income." He said conditions have changed since the $25 - a - month dividend was proposed by William Aberhart, the first Social Credit premier of Alberta.

The basic annual income, he said would be made available through the atomic expansion, development of automation and "the facilities of the Bank of Canada once it is allowed to control the nation's credit."

In Waterloo, Agriculture Minister Alvio Hamilton said he expects a further development in the Canadian dollar to 90 cents.

He told a press conference that the present level of 92½ cents is in effect a compromise among Conservative government members. Some members of the government had favored devaluation of the dollar to 95 cents, while others supported his view that the dollar should be reduced to 90 cents in terms of U.S. funds.

HEES OPTIMISTIC

Trade Minister Hees said in a CBC television five-time poll-tical broadcast that economic expansion in Canada this year will be even more spectacular than last year.

"I am forecasting at least another increase in trade of 10 per cent and that by the end of the year we will be employing in Canada about 250,000 more people than were employed at the beginning of the year," he said.

In St. Catharines, Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister and candidate in Essex East, said the Conservative government's bond conversion in 1958 misled the Canadian people with a $100,000,000 debut.

He said that if the Liberals are elected June 18 they will get into the files and find out what was behind the decision by which Canada war bonds were called in and exchanged for new bonds at 50 per cent higher interest rates.

Another former Liberal cabinet minister, said in Lunenburg, N.S., that Canada has been brought to the verge of national bankruptcy. Mr. Pinet-ing said Mr. Whelers should be ashamed of himself for making such an irresponsible statement.

The Golden Years

This Man Believes It Best To Retire in Own Home Town

"I am not going to move away from my home when I retire because. I'm a coward, think a lot of other people would be better off if they were, too.

This is how a man named Miller answers a man named Harris who advocated last week that retiring people move away from the old home when the pension came.

"I kid you somewhat when I say 'I'm a coward,'" says Mr. Miller, "and I don't think that is 'conservative.' But it's all the same. I am simply afraid of what I would run into if I moved from a community that has been my friend for 35 years.

"Suppose I retired north, the typical cold, the rental problems, the big-town politics — I wouldn't know how to cope with those problems. Suppose I moved west, or south. I'd run into weather problems, insect problems and air conditioners. Again, I wouldn't be equipped to cope.

"But here where I live I know the problems intimately and I know how to handle or dodge every one of them. I know which are good folks and which are flibs, safe streets and mean ones, where to buy things, for the lowest price, and where I can get to see a doctor for per office call instead of going to a specialist for $15."

Mr. Miller is afraid to swap his problems for some he won't understand. He says he's afraid, too, to give up his status as a law-abiding citizen, his reputation as a neighborly decent fellow, and his credit rating . . . and he's foolish them again in a community that doesn't know him.

IS VERY IMPORTANT

"This is very important," he says, "and some people don't realize it. If my self - respect moved into a new area the people there would presume we were shiftless and that I had to move while to convince them. And I'm still in the corner store or at the hardware which I have now, would probably never come — not to a strange place in a new town. All right, you don't need it. Still, it's a great comfort to know you don't have to prove things all over again to get it back.

"I am almost as big a coward about giving up my friendships as I am about giving up my problems.

Mr. Miller also feels quite negative about the effort he and his wife would have to make to gain new friends if they move away. "I don't want to have to promote on to the right places, select us into new groups, always be careful to go to the proper events and say the proper things. After all these years of being comfortable among the people around us I would be embarrassed to be a pusher again."

Lassitude looms large also in Mr. Miller's horizon. He admits that he and Mrs. Miller have only a few intimate friends where they now live, and says they go out only occasionally. "Still, we know most of the neighbors for four blocks around and there's companionship of sorts in that. I would feel like I lived on an abandoned island if I lived in a neighborhood where I knew nobody."

Mr. Miller has figured that it will cost him $1,720 a year to live on in his $14,000 house, and $1,800 a year to move away to a retirement apartment. "I'll take $150 a month to get a an apartment that is even close to the level of living we have in our six-room house," he explains. "All these people who talk about moving away to cheaper quarters are talking about lesser quarters."

He breaks down the $1,720 per year on his house as follows: $600 in taxes, $200 in insurance, $300 for upkeep, and $620 he could get in interest on the $14,000 if he sold the house and invested the money.

"And you mustn't forget that you don't sell and move for nothing. You pay a commission on the sale of the house, and you pay a big fat sum for transfer of all the stuff your wife won't throw away.

"I don't doubt that you can get out of sight in retirement and go barefoot and eat flapjacks, but I won't be entirely razzed because nobody knows you. But is this a good retirement? Dollar for dollar, the couple who stays where they are in retirement of if it is their own home and not in an apartment are going to come out about as well as the other fellow . . ."

EDITORS TOUR

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Thirty United States newspaper editors will be taken on an 1,800-mile tour through Ontario, starting in Windsor Monday. The 13-day tour is organized annually by the Ontario department of travel and publicity to give the editors a first-hand look at what the province has to offer tourists.

3,000 Leave Algeria Daily; Young Men Stay

ALGIERS (AP)—A child was asking: "Why do we have to leave?"

An old man shouted that France owed him better treatment for his First World War wounds.

Someone around the crowded buffet called for beer, and a loudspeaker repeated that no planes would leave for France until the following morning.

This was Algiers' Maison Blanche airport, the airport of European exodus, the airport of uncertain future.

Nearly 3,000 persons daily pass through the crowded, noisy waiting room where security guards carrying tommy - guns keep order stacks of suitcases.

Armored cars and riot police vans bar access to the airport, 12 miles from Algiers, to control the flow of cars bringing refugees.

Each family is given a number at the entrance. The number entitles it to penetrate into the guarded area and line up before for baggage security search and later for plane seat assignment.

With luck, a family arriving at dawn can leave by nightfall. But not all are lucky.

SLEEP IN AIRPORT

Almost all the Europeans leaving Algiers by plane are brought to the airport in cars of relatives and friends.

Most are women and children and elderly persons. They conform with the orders of the terrorist Secret Army Organization which wants to keep able-bodied men in Algeria.

Many want to leave simply to avoid terrorism and the uncertainty of the days of independence, hoping to come back "at least to salvage something from the apartment."

Some hope that perhaps "the war will work out" and that they will be able to return to this land of orange trees.

Dusk was falling on the airport. Behind the information counter a pretty girl in an airline uniform was announcing a plane from Paris.

121 of Canada's Ridings Dominated by Rural Voters

OTTAWA (CP) — A preliminary survey of rural and urban voting strength indicates why all four political parties are digging hard for farm support in the June 18 federal election.

Although census figure shows a continuing decline in the farm population, 121 of Canada's 263 constituencies appear to be dominated by rural voters.

The survey is based on designation of the estimated 44,400 polling divisions across the country as either urban or rural.

By that yardstick, 44 constituencies are completely rural and 62 completely urban. There are another 77 with a predominantly rural vote and 45 where urban voters hold a decisive edge. The remaining 35 are a balanced urban-rural mixture.

Not all rural voters are farmers, of course. The rural log includes small communities, usually ones likely to be substantially affected by the same issues as the farm community.

Rural voting divisions usually have fewer voters than urban ones. In 1958, voters cast in urban polls averaged 183 compared with 137 in rural polls.

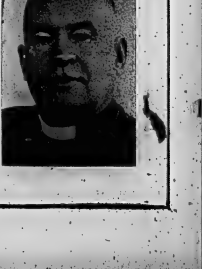
Ontario's Parry Sound-Muskoka is an example of a constituency dominated by the rural vote. It has only 11 polling divisions classified as urban while 179 are rural. Another is Quebec's Compton - Frontenac with 18 urban polling divisions out of 115.

Conversely, New Westminster, B.C. has 221 urban divisions to 39 rural ones. Halifax, one of two constituencies electing two members, has 363 urban polling divisions to 100 rural.

Some others are more balanced. Moose Jaw-Lake Centre in Saskatchewan has 104 urban and 102 rural, although the edge probably goes to the urban voter since he usually finds it easier to vote. Another is Ontario's Wentworth which has 119 urban divisions to 109 rural.

Since Confederation, no party has skipped lightly over the farm population and none is doing so in this campaign. But farm campaign speeches vary regionally.

Five y several of Canada's farmland is in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta which have 48 seats, of which 34 are wholly rural and 20 substantially so. Grain and beef and trade are vital topics of campaigns in that region.



There is preoccupation with fruit in B.C., Nova Scotia and parts of Ontario and Quebec. The potato surplus in Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick had drawn attention. Dairy and poultry, mainstays of many mixed and specialty farmers across the country, are good topics almost everywhere.

Anyone Can Now Vote at Advance Poll

OTTAWA (CP) — The privilege of voting at an advance poll used to be restricted to a relatively small segment of the population.

Now any eligible voter may vote should he has reason to believe he will be absent from his polling division on election day.

The change was made as an amendment to the Canada Elections Act at the 1960 session of parliament and will be in effect at the general election June 18.

Under the old rules only commercial travellers, transportation employees, fishermen and members of the RCMP and reserve forces could vote at advance polls.

To enjoy the right now, all an elector has to do is sign an affidavit saying he believes he will be away on polling day.

The advance poll used to be held on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday immediately preceding election day, which by tradition is on a Monday.

Now it is held on Saturday to Monday, the ninth and seventh days before the election—June 9 and 11 this year.

HOURS LONGER

The hours for advance voting have also been revised. They used to be from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. local standard time. Now they are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. standard time or 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daylight time.

In urban centres, for election purposes communities with 5,000 or more population, there will be one advance polling station for each 35 regular voting divisions. In rural areas, any community with population of 1,000 or less is entitled to an advance poll.

Electoral officials don't expect relaxation of restrictions to lead to a very great increase in the number of advance ballots cast.

They point to experience in Ontario which abolished restrictions before the 1955 provincial election. Total advance poll that year was 9,444 compared with 3,463 votes in 1948.

As a result of the changes there will be 1,850 advance polls this year compared with 256 in 1958.

Recount Costs In Elections Have Gone Up

OTTAWA (CP)—The cost of election recounts, like everything else, has gone up.

A defeated candidate in the June 18 election, if he wants the ballots recounted, will have to cough up $250. The price used to be $100.

It was increased through an amendment to the Canada Elections Act passed at the 1960 session of parliament.

The commons committee on privileges and elections, which proposed the boost, agreed that $100 no longer covers the cost of a judicial recount. Some members felt that even $500 would not cover it.

Another factor was the desire to discourage indiscriminate and far-fetched recounts.

"I hate to imply any ulterior motives to candidates but there have been recounts where the majority has been 1,000," chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay told the committee.

"That may be a fishing expedition on the part of the person applying for the recount to examine all documents, to ascertain whether there are grounds to contest an election. But I think the members of the committee will agree that to apply for a recount with a majority of 1,000 is not reasonable."

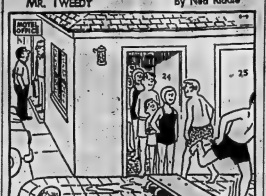
LONG WAIT

The candidate wishing a recount will have to be patient. Before it can take place the armed services vote must be added to the civilian count. The service vote is made known a week after election day.

Then DnRs in the official count—a tally of the vote totals listed on a slip of paper inside each ballot box.

The constituency returning officer sets the date for the official recount, held no earlier than a week after the election.

Within four days a candidate may appear before a judge and ask for a recount.



He must have the sworn affidavit of a "credible witness" in the words of the election act —alleging that ballots were improperly counted or rejected on election night, or that the returning officer improperly added the vote totals from each poll.

Taping this week: Gulf Stream lore, a chirping radiation detector and obstacles met by booster rockets.

OCEANIC HIGHWAY

The Gulf Stream is an oceanic superhighway, the "most influential river in the ocean," says Dr. Donald J. Zinn, University of Rhode Island zoologist.

Each summer and early fall, it carries dozens of species of tropical fish northward from the areas of Florida and Brazil into protected harbors of Rhode Island Sound and the Woods Hole, Mass., region. They die when the temperature falls.

Each year, millions of American and European eels, in larval stage, travel up from their common birthplace in the Sargasso Sea southwest of Bermuda.

Carried northwest by the stream, young American eels veer northeast with the Gulf Stream and by the time they reach the young adult stage —two years after the European eels do — they are off the coast of Europe.

Although both types share the Gulf Stream highway, no American eel has ever been recognized in Europe, and no European eel has been recorded in North America, Dr. Zinn writes in The Biologist magazine.

RADIATION DETECTOR

For instant warning if you are being exposed to radiation, a new device resembling an over - sized fountain pen flashes a neon light and makes a chirping sound.

SPACE OBSTACLE COURSE

Booster rockets to launch men or satellites into space run a gantlet of obstacles.

They may encounter turbulent winds racing through the earth's atmosphere at speeds of more than 150 miles an hour.

They're subjected to increased gravity force, the motion of loss of shaking propellant, numerous types of stresses, shocks and vibrations, and even the thunderous noise may create harmonic vibrations capable of shaking the structure to pieces.

Elect An Active Representative

Liberals' Positive Program Favored By Canadians, Observes Candidate

HASTINGS SOUTH—Throughout this riding more and more people are casting their support behind Liberal candidate Robert Temple and the Liberal Party's positive approach to Canada's problems. From an unsurpassed meeting at Tweed through the many industries of the riding to the recent Farmers' Union at Melrose citizens are showing increasing support for the active and earnest Mr. Temple who has been called the future Paul Martin of the Liberal Party.

This support being shown Mr. Temple is undoubtedly due just as much to his outstanding capacity for perseverance and hard work as it is to the Liberal Party Platform which he represents.

At the Melrose meeting, Mr. Temple's forthright approach to the problems of local farmers and his explanation of just how the Liberal Party was prepared to solve these problems contrasted sharply with the other candidates, who either merely acknowledged that such existed or stated that they were prepared to learn about them.

Mr. Temple justifiably received the approval of those present for having presented an actual, factual plan to overcome the problem of vertical integration without sacrificing any person's individual freedom through restrictive measures.

This policy of finding out the facts and then determining what can be done without compromising the welfare of the country or the freedom of the individual is typical of the approach of Hastings South's Liberal candidate in his riding and of the Liberal Party on the national scene.

Electorals most vividly with the indifferent, easy going attitude of the Conservative government which has assumed that there is nothing wrong and that no serious issues face the Canadian people in this election.

Few thinking people have accepted this attitude, according to the reports which may be seen in the leading newspapers of the country, Mr. Temple has stated. "It is also significant," he says, "that a number of newspapers which gave their full support to Mr. Diefenbaker in the last federal election are not supporting his view that all is well in Canada and have thrown their support behind Mr. Pearson and the Liberal Party.

"This is because it is readily apparent that on June 18th Canadians will be participating in possibly the most important election in Canada since Confederation. The very serious issues at stake and only the Liberal Party seems to have a program adequate to meet these issues. A political party which does not even admit that these issues exist can hardly be trusted to cope with the problems of declining national productivity, a devalued dollar, a $2,000,000,000 national debt, and the prospect of finding jobs for 1,000,000 unemployed."

"An active, determined and sound approach must be made and this the Hon. Lester B. "Mike" Pearson and the Liberal Party can, have and will do," emphasizes Mr. Temple, who also personally commits himself to fight for the needs and the rights of the citizens of Hastings South without compromise if elected on June 18th.

Presbyterians Gave Record Of $1,735,000

TORONTO (CP) — Presbyterians gave a record $1,735,000 to their Church in 1961, the 88th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was told Thursday.

Robert Eakins of Toronto, chairman of the board of stewardship and budget, said the money given by the Church's 200,000 communicants exceeded the 1960 total by $113,181.

Rev. H. F. Davidson, secretary of the board, said that through its budget the Church maintains its colleges, institutions, home mission fields and representatives on five overseas fields.

The assembly heard a special report on nuclear arms by Rev. William Lawson of Windsor, Ont., chairman of the board of evangelism and social action.

The report repudiated the use of nuclear weapons as a means of enforcing or restoring peace.

A proposal from the presbytery of Sarnia that a fund be established to provide the purchase of house accommodation for ministers on retirement was rejected on the recommendation of the administrative council.

The council agreed that the present pension for ministers in vacancies should be supported but congregations apply any additional distribution directly to the pension fund rather than divert them into the purchase of houses.

Fuel System May Have Many Bugs

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Theres one fuel trouble which thousands of drivers experience every year . . . an empty tank. But, let's assume your gauge is working right, and you keep an eye on it. What are the other fuel system conditions which prevent engine starting?

The list covers the route from tank through carburetor. It includes a faulty choke . . . one that's incorrectly set or binding, so that fuel mixture is much too lean or too rich. Too much or too little fuel also results when the carburetor float level is too high or too low. If the float is sticking or leaking, it will also produce an incombustible mixture. A failing fuel pump, a clogged or loose sediment bowl — even a gas tank cap with a clogged vent will cut fuel feed just as effectively as a restricted or leaking line. Keep in mind, too, that as the car ages, pump, choke and carburetor must work harder against dirt and gum.

C.F. writes: "If oil burning is caused by leaky piston rings, can anything be done to avoid the expense of a ring job?

(A) Well, leaky rings can be due to gummy formation which causes sticking. In such cases, a solvent added to the gas will usually cure the trouble.

L.C. asks: We bought a new car several weeks ago. Believe it or not I just noticed yesterday that the power switch moves the windows up when they are supposed to go down and vice versa. I suppose this is due to an incorrect hookup.

(A) Yes — the lead wires aren't connected to their proper terminals. Your dealer will correct this.

From M.K.: In a new car showroom, my curious wife asked why today's cars have the 12-volt electrical system. I was about to say, "because of all the electrically operated accessories" but the salesman said it was mainly because of higher engine compression. Is this so?

(A) Yes. Higher compression means higher voltage resistance and this resistance weakens the spark. The 12-volt system helps to assure a good fat spark, and better supplies the power to operate the increasing line-up of accessories.

S.M. writes: "I'm thinking of buying a '53 sedan from a private party, but there is a frequent noise from the rear end — the axle, I think. Would this indicate that repairs are needed?"

(A) It could mean costly gear and bearing work. It might also be that it's running dry of lubricant or that the wrong grade of lube is being used.

Diefenbaker To Campaign In Big Cities

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker's itinerary for the first five days of next week, during which he will campaign in Canada's two biggest cities, was announced Thursday by Progressive Conservative campaign headquarters.

After a free day in Ottawa next Sunday, Mr. Diefenbaker will continue campaigning for the June 18 general election in Montreal.

The following morning he returns to Ottawa for campaigning in areas around the capital.

He flies to Mount Hope Airport, near Hamilton, Wednesday morning and drives to Brantford for a morning reception. In the afternoon he visits Galt before going on to Guelph for an evening meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker leaves Guelph Thursday morning by car, arriving in Toronto in time for lunch. While Mrs. Diefenbaker attends a reception in Ajax, near Toronto, Mr. Diefenbaker will meet with party officials.

Communists and Castroist Allies Work to Bring About Another Explosion in West

Communists and their Castroist allies work throughout the Western Hemisphere to bring about a new explosion. They operate on the theory that one more such upheaval would wreck U.S. hopes for the area.

Many Latin leaders believe another Cuba would set off a chain reaction whose effects would indeed spell disaster for the United States.

A special consultative committee of the Organization of American States has warned that "prominent persons in the hemisphere underestimate the Communist danger."

The committee says the numbers Communists might not seem large, but their efforts are dangerous because of Communist operations among mass groups: Students, workers, farmers, intellectuals, even political leaders.

TWO PRIME TARGETS

Recently, the left-extremists seemed to have been two prime targets for their efforts: Venezuela and Ecuador. In Venezuela they met two successive defeats in attempted military uprisings. Such triumphs set them back. They may now find themselves required to mark time in Venezuela for another two years.

This could make little Ecuador, a land of perplexing paradoxes, a promising booty for the Communists. A country of towering mountains and fertile soil, it is rich in possibilities but poor in social and economic development.

Ecuador's president, Carlos Julio Arosemena, 42, will visit the U.S. in July for talks with President Kennedy. Arosemena has indicated he is no admirer of the U.S.—that, in fact, he has an anti-Yankee complex.

Arosemena has publicly proclaimed himself the "good friend" of Dr. Pedro Saad, Ecuador's Communist party boss. The president has been under army pressure to oust Communists and left-extremists from high places, but has not done so.

He has, however, succeeded in maneuvering the military, for the time being.

BEGAN IN 1961

Ecuador's current situation had its beginnings in 1960. Arosemena, then vice-president, made a delegation on a junket to the Soviet Union and satellite countries. On some in Quito it seemed an odd coincidence that President Jose Velasco Ibarra was in Germany under attack shortly after Arosemena returned from Moscow.

The spark was a new tax decree. Students demonstrated. Ibarra fled. Then came the rioting, but people were killed and the government grew more worried army pushed Ibarra aside and tried to install a provisional government pending new elections, but rioting broke out once again. This time it was with demands for Arosemena's constitutional accession to the presidency. The army bowed.

Later, flushed with victory, the Communist party demanding an armed student militia. That may have scared Arosemena.

In April, the army command gave Arosemena an ultimatum to break with Cuba and the Soviet bloc and to kick Communists out of all posts.

Arosemena bowed to the ultimatum, but the Communists and extremists remained in influential positions: In the university; under attack; in the government "house of culture," in information and the communications spots, in the student festivities.

Fleming Wants Pearson's View On Controversy

HALIFAX (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming said Friday night that Liberal Leader Pearson "cannot escape" comment on Premier Smallwood's action Thursday in forcing cancellation of Mr. Fleming's address to the Rotary Club of St. John's, Nfld., on devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

Mr. Fleming said Mr. Pearson earlier Friday "chose to run away from the opportunity" of either defending or protesting Mr. Smallwood's intervention.

Mr. Fleming, addressing a Progressive Conservative rally attended by about 850 persons in a 1,294-seat high school auditorium, was referring to Premier Smallwood's ultimatum to the Rotary Club that it either withdraw its speaking invitation to Mr. Fleming or lose provincial government support of a Rotary convention planned for next week. The invitation was withdrawn.

"Whenever there is an interjection opinion or denial of free speech . . . It must be an issue in an election campaign," Mr. Fleming said. He hoped Mr. Pearson would "measure up to this responsibility at least."

Mr. Fleming said that "to the will of one man . . . who possesses and abuses government powers" he was denied the fundamental Canadian right of free speech. "Perhaps the greatest dangers we face lie within and not without," he said.

Th dictatorship yesterday there was added falsehood."

Mr. Fleming was referring to three statements made by the premier in a paid political telecast over CJON-TV through night.

Mr. Smallwood's "rough-and-ing falsehoods," Mr. Fleming said, were that he had told the Canadian Manufacturers Association in Montreal earlier that he was delivering before it the last non-political speech until the end of the election campaign, that he had arranged to have the Rotary Club invite him to speak and that he had selected is own topic, devaluation of the dollar.

These statements were "lies."

Mr. Fleming said he had not received the Rotary speaking invitation until after he addressed the CMA.

A St. John's Rotary Club statement said Thursday Fleming "chose his own topic for the address.

The club statement said it had invited the finance minister but left the subject of the address to the speaker.

Unfrocked R.C. Priest Upheld In Contention

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Superior Court judge Friday upheld the contention of an unfrocked Roman Catholic priest that he is not the father of a fourth daughter born to his wife in Long Island, N.Y.

She filed suit in March for $2,500,000 damages against the Catholic church, declaring church officials abducted Ryan and kept him from her against his will.

Ryan denied the church had anything to do with the breakup of their 1950 marriage, which took place when he was a parish priest in New York. He left the church at that time.

When Ryan was found in San Francisco after Mrs. Ryan's suit, she asked for support money for four daughters. Ryan said he was not the father of the fourth, born seven days old.

Mrs. Ryan's 13-page affidavit read in court Friday said that in May, 1961, Ryan visited her at her home and that during this visit he found that she was reconceived.

As more funds come in, other needed facilities will be added to it.

Cannot Meet Giants of Life Without God

— Graham

CHICAGO (AP) — Modern man, evangelist Billy Graham said Friday night, is unprepared to meet the giants of life until he is prepared to meet God.

"David threw the stone and the giant was slain," he said. "You cannot possibly face the giants of life without the help of Jesus Christ."

Graham, in his nightly sermon of his Crusade for Christ in McCormick Place, vast Lake Michigan shore amphitheatre, identified some Goliaths of today as communism, the hydrogen bomb, racial tensions, economic pressures and moral deterioration.

David's victory over Goliath, Graham said, was embodied in his faith in God and his disciplined life.

"God made the decision to live for God," the evangelist said.

Defence Problems Provide Example of Conflicting Pulls

By DAVID QANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain's defence problems provide a clear example of the conflicting pulls affecting the country as its government seeks to become part of the European Economic Community.

The stresses were graphically illustrated by an address given to the Paris meeting of the Western European Union Assembly this week.

Defence Minister Watkinson ranged over the gamut of commitments and problems that are legacies from Britain's imperial past.

The government would like to shed some of these, partly for reasons of economy and partly because of the transition to independence of former colonies.

The defence minister spoke as the British Parliament spent two days debating the government's decision to seek membership in the Common Market.

The main emphasis of his speech was on a contention that Britain's defence activities overseas were those of a European nation.

"What we do outside Europe and NATO, we do as good Europeans and allies," he said at one point.

He referred to Britain's Commonwealth and other world defence commitments and he added that the government was not working for a Europe cut off from the rest of the world.

"It would be tragic to cut other language.

these ties or, by neglect, to let them wither on the vine," he added.

They are our inheritance from history, the common patrimony of the new Europe. We should like to see Europe the heartland of a world - wide assemblage of peoples."

He then went on to develop British thinking on defence for the future. Forces would become less dependent on fixed bases. The only two big defence establishments outside Britain are to be Aden and Singapore.

They will be supported by staging stations and small garrisons. The emphasis will be on greater mobility and flexibility to bring force to bear over great distances.

Overseas the three services eventually would be brought to work as a joint task force.

At the same time, Britain expressed a willingness to increase to 53,000 from 51,000 the number of troops now stationed on the European continent.

In the military sphere, Britain appears to be placing more and more emphasis on her European role, but still feels the stresses generated by the age of empire.

Cocktail Bars Open Till One After July 1st

TORONTO (CP) — Cocktail bars and other licensed lounges are expected to remain intoxicating 1 a.m. closing in July, in line with changes in Ontario liquor laws and policy announced at the last session of the legislature.

It was learned Friday that regulations governing the closing hours will be altered by the end of June. After that, it will be up to operators of the lounges to adopt the later closing hours.

The changes put cocktail bars in the same category as dining lounges, which can remain open to 1 a.m. weekdays at present. Licensed lounges now close at midnight.

Also as a result of previously announced changes in policy, the liquor control board is expected to have a number of outlets licensed in Northern Ontario by mid - July for sale of bottled liquor.

The outlets will be set up in tourist outfitting establishments under LCBO control, but with the outfitter himself being bonded and licensed to handle sales. They will operate in areas remote from normal stores in that portion of Ontario north and west of North Bay.

Many Merchants Indicate They Are 'Holding Line' Following Few Price Boosts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Price increases showed up at scattered points across Canada today following a few boosts earlier in the week blamed on the devalued dollar. But many merchants indicated they were holding the line.

Bread seemed to be under heaviest price pressure, with increases in effect or planned in St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, Ottawa, Toronto and in some Saskatchewan cities. But one of Canada's biggest bakers said there is no "justification" for a bread price increase.

George C. Metcalf, president of George Weston Limited which operates bakeries at Toronto, Brantford, Ont., Montreal and Edmonton, said Westons will not increase the price of bread.

"The latest devaluation of the dollar should not be used as an excuse for increasing the price of bread," he added.

The first price increases appeared last Tuesday when two large oil companies raised the wholesale price of gasoline. The air transport board announced it had approved a request to increase trans-oceanic fares eight per cent. Company spokesmen predicted then that almost all products would be affected since Canadian wheat is sold at prices internationally-fixed price in terms of U.S. dollars.

DIEF ISSUES THREAT

The next development was a statement by Prime Minister Diefenbaker in a campaign speech at Magog, Que., Thursday that his government will reject quickly against "greedy people" who take advantage of the May 3 dollar devaluation to raise prices.

Friday, D. H. W. Henry, in charge of combines investigations in Canada, said at Ottawa that he and Justice Minister Fulton have been discussing the question of price increases in the light of the Combines Investigation Act.

Mr. Henry said he had received no instructions from the minister and he did not specify the products under discussion. But he said his office had received a complaint from the Ontario Retail Gasoline and Automotive Dealers Association in connection with rises in certain oil products.

Earlier in the week Canadian Oil Companies Limited, British American Oil Limited and Shell Oil of Canada announced wholesale price increases of seven-tenths of a cent a gallon. Imperial Oil Limited announced it was making no general increase in price of gasoline sold through its service stations but posted higher prices for its industrial and commercial customers.

DEFEND INCREASES

Oil company spokesman said gasoline pump prices had been depressed for more than two years and the situation was being made increasingly difficult for dealers and refiners alike.

H. J. McEntee, president of Imperial Fuels Limited of London, said his firm plans to increase heating oil prices as has already raised the price of coal by wholesalers throughout Western Ontario. He blamed devaluation.

There was the picture given by merchants at points across the country:

St. John's, Nfld.—A spokesman for Our Own Bakery Limited, which has increased bread one cent a loaf, attributed it to rising wheat costs affected by devaluation.

Halifax—E. M. Ritcey, vice-president of Howard's Limited, one of the city's biggest wholesalers, said devaluation "has had no effect on our firm." He foresaw no price increases for meat, vegetables or other groceries but he said the price of bread is going up "due to increased wheat costs."

BLAMES OTHER FACTORS

A spokesman for Irving Oil Company Limited which announced a seventh - tenths - of - a-cent increase for retail gasoline outlets in the Maritime Provinces and Quebec four days ago, said the boost was due in part to devaluation. A factor also was an increase in refining costs.

Montreal—A spokesman for Steinberg's Limited said there are no noticeable price increases yet and probably won't be for some time. In fact, prices of some fruit and vegetables may drop because they are coming into season.

Ottawa—An executive of Morris-Lamothe, big Ottawa bakery, said there has been no bread increase yet but development added heavily to baking industry costs.

One Shell gasoline station operator said he had actually reduced prices by two cents from 69.9 cents a gallon to meet competition.

Norman Lesh, director of merchandising for M. Loeb Limited, grocery wholesalers, said devaluation so far has had little effect on canned goods. But an imported fresh fruit is affected. He expected further price increases when dealers run out of existing imported stocks.

BREAD GOING UP.

Toronto — Boundary Guennel, president of Associated Retail Bakers of Metro operating 80 shops in the Toronto area, said his firm will definitely increase bread prices by next Friday.

"I would like to have Mr. Diefenbaker in my shop, and show him my costs," said Mr. Guennel.

Winnipeg — Codville Company Limited, grocery wholesalers, said "there has been no visible change in prices as far as we are concerned. I can't say what the future will be."

The Winnipeg area, considered a gasoline price-war region, saw increases of three cents a gallon this week imposed by some major companies. But a spokesman said in view of the fierce competition, prices could readily come down again.

Edmonton—A McGavin Toast-master Limited executive said the increase in the bread price should come soon. Many Edmonton cities have had a one cent increase. It would most likely be due to a gradual increase in production costs.

Vancouver — Spokesmen for Canadian Safeway and MacDonald's Consolidated, a wholesale firm, saw no immediate general increase in prices of imported goods but only as available stocks were used up.

Accused Says He Was Afraid Of Policemen

TORONTO (CP) — Ronald Turpin, charged with the capital murder of Const. Robert Nash, said Friday most Toronto policemen are good but there are some "rotten apples" among them.

The 28-year-old Turpin, testifying at his trial, said it was his fear of the rotten apples on the force that caused him to leave Toronto and go to North-ern Ontario. He finally ended in Buffalo, N.Y., to avoid surrendering a gun to police.

He said he attended a party last October in a Toronto apartment. A fight broke out and some shots were fired. Someone dropped the revolver and Turpin picked it up.

He said Det-Sgt. John Failis, who had been questioning him about the party next day, told him he wanted the gun.

"I was afraid because of the police. I would be in physical trouble — I wouldn't say they would kill me — but I would be in tough shape if I couldn't produce the gun," he said.

The trial is continuing.

TCS Headmaster Retires at End of June

PORT HOPE (CP) — Dr. Philip Lee, 55, presided at his final speech here Friday before retiring at the end of June as headmaster of Trinity College School. He has been a member of the governors and named headmaster emeritus.

Now serving a fourth term, he is successor to Angus Scott, now acting headmaster.

Appointed headmaster in 1933 the force that caused him to leave Toronto and go to North-ern Ontario. He finally ended in Buffalo, N.Y., to avoid surrendering a gun to police.

He said he attended a party last October in a Toronto apartment. A fight broke out and some shots were fired. Someone dropped the revolver and Turpin picked it up.

He said Det-Sgt. John Failis, who had been questioning him about the party next day, told him he wanted the gun.

"I was afraid because of the police. I would be in physical trouble — I wouldn't say they would kill me — but I would be in tough shape if I couldn't produce the gun," he said.

The trial is continuing.

WILL SEEK PACTS

JOHANNES BURG (AP) — South Africa will not seek any form of associate membership with the European Common Market but will seek new trade agreements on individual members, Economics Minister Nicolaas Diederichs said Thursday. Diederichs is flying to Europe today for discussions with Common Market members.

Has Two-Stroke Margin

Snead Leads Golf Classic

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — For years, Sam Snead wasn't complaining about his putting. He couldn't very well.

But he must have thrown a few apprehensive glances over his shoulder Friday after leaving the Upper Montclair Country Club, where he posted a second-round 68 and a 136 total for the 36-hole lead in the $100,000 classic golf tournament.

Snead, who habitually misses short putts that won't drop, seemed a dozen good ones Friday.

One stroke farther back was leader Paul Harney and at 140 were Gay Brewer, first-round leader, Dow Finsterwald, Frank Boynton, Wes Ellis and Buster Cupit.

Of the four Canadian pros in the tournament, Al Johnston of Montreal shot the day's best round, a 71 that just qualified him for today's third round. Johnston had a 78 Thursday. The cut-off point was 149 or better.

Al Balding of Toronto added a 73 to his first-round 77, putting him one stroke over the necessary 149 and eliminating him from further play.

George Knudson of Toronto and Stan Leonard of Vancouver qualified easily. Knudson fired a 77 for a 143 total and Leonard shot his second straight 72 for 144.

AHL TO MEET

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Hockey League will hold its annual meeting in Cleveland June 11-13 when it will consider granting a franchise to Baltimore. Jim Ellery, league publicity chief, said the Baltimore franchise probably would depend on the availability of an arena.

AT THE BELLE — Shapely and lovely Nancy Kwan, star of "Route Wong", whose fiery Eurasian beauty and charm is drawn from a delightful blend of Chinese, Scottish, British, Dutch and Malaysian, starred as a night club entertainer in "Flower Drum Song", the screen version of Rodgers and Hammerstein's Broadway musical hit. The Universal color film now attracting capacity crowds to the Belle Theatre, Picton, also features James Shigeta, Myoshi Umeki and Juanita Hall, who recovered for her classic portrayal of Bloody Mary in "South Pacific".

Leafs Edge Jets 4-3, Bisons Win

Claude Raymond, of St. Jean, Que., the international League's top relief pitcher, has found that there is more than one way to win a ball game.

He took matters into his own hands Friday night for the Toronto Maple Leafs and banged out a single in the bottom of the ninth that drove in the deciding run in the Leafs' 4-3 victory over Columbus.

The victory moved Toronto to within a game of second place Buffalo, which beat Richmond 7-3. League-leading Jacksonville beat Syracuse 4-2 and Rochester edged Atlanta 2-1 in 10 innings.

Raymond appeared in his 13th game Friday night, during which time he's give only six hits in 12 innings, all in relief, and two runs for a niggardly earned run average of 1.00. With the bases loaded, he hit the first pitch from reliever Ron Blackburn for a single, banging the loss on Columbus starter Tom Parsons (0-3).

WINS SIXTH GAME

Pinch hitter Jim Frey of Buffalo pulled off some heroics of his own with a bases loaded homer with two out in the last of the ninth. It came off loser Gary Blaylock. Bill Smith won his sixth.

Dan Morejon drove in all four Jacksonville runs with a pair. Ron Taylor gave the Chiefs only four hits, Morejon had a two-run single in the fourth and another in the eighth as Jacksonville overcame a 2-0 deficit. Joe McClain was the loser.

Sam Bowen's leadoff homer in the 10th inning put Rochester ahead to stay. Bowen had scored the tying run in the eighth and his homer came off loser Leroy Gregory. Dick Leabbs was the winner.

AT THE PARK—Beautiful Angie Dickinson stars in the title role of "Jessica," opening Monday at the air-conditioned Park Theatre, for its first showings, in Technicolor and Panavision. Maurice Chevalier and Noel-Noel share top billing, as Jean Negulesco's sunny, funny, tuneful romance with music, on the same program "The Young Doctors," starring Frederic March, Ben Gazzara, Dick Clark, Ina Balin and Eddie Albert. One complete show starts at 7.30 p.m.

The Rebel Has Turned In His Rifle for Typewriter

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The rebel has turned in his rifle for a typewriter and a newspaper pencil.

Nick Adams had two good years as The Rebel on television. That's all behind him now as he prepares for a second series, Saints and Sinners.

Nick says it's going to be a switch.

"It's a newspaper story, only it's going to be done right," he explained. "None of this 'stop the presses' jazz. This will be the real thing—the way newspaper men really work."

I hated to tell him that such can also be dull on occasion. Nick himself is a graduate of a newspaper, having matriculated at copy boy on the Jersey City Journal. He also served under editor Clark Gable in Teacher's Pet. And some of his best friends are newspaper men.

Saints and Sinners is an hour-long show scheduled for Monday nights on NBC. Nick will be the star reporter of a New York tabloid, The Bulletin, but he'll be spelled by John Larkin, Richard Erdman and Ann Blyth.

Some folks were surprised to see Nick tie up with another series. His feature career has been thriving since he left The Rebel. He has gone from Hell to Heroo to The Interns to The Hook, his current film with Kirk Douglas.

His reasoning: "By the time I finish the second series, I should be independently wealthy. I had a 16 2-3 per cent interest in The Rebel, which so far has netted me $240,000 in capital gains. Saints and Sinners should bring me $500,000. I expect it will run a couple of years at least. Then I will go into television and devote myself to films."

Pitching — Jim Coates, Yankees, came on relief in second inning when Whitey Ford had to leave with shoulder pains and allowed only a single the rest of the way to blank Baltimore Orioles 1-0 and register New York's third consecutive shutout.

Batting—Willie Kirkland, Indians, hitting .189 going into the game, drove in four runs, the last two with a homer in the 13th that started a six-run rally for Cleveland's 15-9 victory over Boston Red Sox.

Moose, Deer Hunting

No Change In Seasons

TORONTO (CP) — Moose and deer seasons in Ontario will remain relatively unchanged from last year for the next three years.

Announcing the open seasons for hunting the two animals today, Lands and Forests Minister Spooner said Northern Ontario seasons have been modified in line with recent trends in abundance of game.

For deer, the normal two-week season in the Kenora district range throughout southcentral Ontario has been extended northward to include Manitoulin and Cockburn Island and the southern portions of Nipissing, Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie districts. Opening dates for the next three years are Nov. 5, Nov. 4 and Nov. 2 respectively.

In Kenora district north of the 11th base line, the deer season will open Oct. 1 each year and close Jan. 3 to provide additional hunting of the greatly increased herd.

The deer season in the agricultural portion of Rainy River will open Nov. 1 in 1963 and 1964 and Oct. 31 in 1964, closing Dec. 5 each year.

Throughout most of the remainder of Northern Ontario, the season will open Oct. 1 each year, closing Dec. 15 in 1963 and 1964 and Dec. 14 in 1965.

For moose, the closing date has been extended throughout the main moose range in Northern Ontario to Jan. 7 of the year following, to include the Christmas-New Year holiday period.

In Cochrane and Kapuskasing districts north of CNR, the season will open Sept. 15 in 1962 and 1964 and Sept. 14 in 1963. Opening date through most of the remainder of the main moose range will be Oct. 1.

In North Bay district north of Highway 11, the southern portion of Sudbury district north of Highway 17, and the southern portion of Sault Ste. Marie district, both resident and non-resident hunters may begin hunting Nov. 8 this year, Nov. 4 next year and Nov. 3 in 1964, with the closing date Nov. 30 each year.

A six-day moose season starting Nov. 15, Nov. 13 and Nov. 16 respectively in the next three years will be held on St. Joseph Island in the Sault Ste. Marie district.

Throughout the remainder of the province having a two-week season for deer, moose may be hunted by residents only during the deer season.

The thoroughbreds will have to hustle to keep up the social set in Toronto next week. The grey topper and mink crowd have arranged a formidable lineup of official parties, dinners, breakfasts and so on to coincide with what they like to call the "royal week of racing" in Canada.

The Queen's Plate classic, always a colorful affair and a good excuse for partying, doesn't go until a week Saturday but the clubhouse and Turf Club reception of the $15,000,000 Woodbine plant in the northwest suburbs will be starting early. Unofficially, the celebrating could go on all week.

Monday afternoon horsemen will show off their plate eligibles in the trials. Fifty - six horses still are eligible for the 1¼-mile gallop, but probably only 12 will qualify for the starter's gate on June 16.

HONOR HORSE OF YEAR

Tuesday night the Jockey Club will be host to another party at a downtown hotel. The next night Bill Beasley of Toronto will be guest of honor at another big gathering at the annual "horse of the year" dinner. Beasley's five-year - old Hidden Treasure has more than $150,000 in his racing career and in 1961 won Canadian honors as the horse of the year.

The dressed - up guests will still have to get home for a few hours' sleep before going to the track for the Queen's Plate breakfast. Horsemen from many parts of Canada and the United States will be on hand when the draw for post positions in the plate is made by a dozen fashion models.

Then, on Friday night, the Queen's Plate will be held at the Turf Club's plush perch in the Woodbine clubhouse. They can dance all night and still make the Plate.

QUEEN MOTHER PRESENT

Post time for the $75,000 stakes is 5:06 p.m. EDT. Every jockey and mink will again be in order of the day for the club house patrons who will get a good chance for a close-up view of the Queen Mother who will present the winning owner with the Queen's gift of 50 guineas and the $5,000 gold cup.

There will be the second time the Queen Mother has been on hand to present the guineas. She was at Dufferin Park in Toronto in 1939 when the 80th running of North America's oldest continuously run stakes race was won by Archworth, owned by the late C. George McCullagh.

Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by Prince Philip, attended the 100th running of the plate in 1959 when Prince Providence owned by Jockey Club chairman E. P. Taylor and Mrs. Taylor, romped home an easy winner.

The Queen Mother, a keen racing enthusiast, indicated she would welcome the relaxation of a day at the races on her visit to Canada. The government included the trip to Woodbine in her itinerary.

★ ★ ★ ★

The pictures showed Chopper Joe the winner, followed by Peters Chop, Flaming Page and Sun Dan. The frisky two-year-olds never did get together again for another whirl, but that time of evening and in a setting and under circumstances that would be natural for a re-run.

The long - awaited reunion is set for Saturday, but whether it happens to be the 103rd running of the $75,000, Queen's Plate, a classic for Canadian-bred three - year - olds and the most crowded crowd-appealing event on the Canadian racing calendar.

All four are eligible. Their owners have paid out the necessary nomination fees to date and, unless something unexpected happens, they'll ante the final $500 starting fee for each horse next Thursday.

SUN DAN FAVORED

Then, everything will be set for a big day at the races. The Queen's Plate will be in the royal box at the suburban Toronto Woodbine track and he will present a $5,000 cup to the winner. The big payoff, nearly $30,000, comes later.

About 12 horses are expected to go to the post and word from the bettors, who make the form chart their bible, is that you needn't look for another photo-finish. Sun Dan, they say, is back to beat, along with King Gorm, a $25,000 beauty owned by mining man Jim Coleman of Canada.

But Sun Dan, owned by William J. Ziff, a long - ago lacrosse player in the province of Weston, but outside of Toronto, hasn't given anyone much to go on this year. And there's hardly a gossip, the boy son of Ardan and Tabu Talent will pass up Monday's Queen's Plate and wait for the Plate itself to show his stuff.

TOOK OUTSIDE ROUTE

Sun Dan started at times as a juvenile and won five. And he has won all three starts this year, including a five - length score over King Gorm. His earnings so far total $28,794—$20,432 earned in 1961 and $8,362 this year.

Trainer Bill Thurner is going for his second Plate victory. He saddled long - shot Paolilla back in 1945, but with Jockey Pat Remillard aboard, paid $16.50.

That's the race that Remillard — now 56 and still an active rider — remembers most. The track was muddy and on the morning of the Plate Remillard went for a walk and discovered that the going was by far the best along the outside rail, especially from the three-quarter pole home.

That afternoon Remillard took the filly wide in the stretch and made a galloping finish while the others were mired in the mud along the rail.

Thurner hasn't named his jockey for the Plate. Remillard is available.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Absent Son surprised most of the 6,500 spectators at Woodbine Raceway by winning the featured Sun Dial Purse in the seventh race.

Despite showing improvement in his workouts and in a recent race, Absent Son was lightly regarded and paid $40.40 to win, $12.80 to place and $6.50 to show. Roman Pender was second and Small Type third.

Absent Son's time of 1:37 over the mile run on the grass course was 1-5 of a second behind the track record.

For the second successive day there was a dead heat for win when Sea Trap and Little Welsh reached the wire at the same time in the fourth race.

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Duke Rodney, driven by William Horton, flew past Elaine Rodney in the stretch and won the $12,000 Handicap trot by three-quarters of a length before 27,423 at Yonkers Race Friday night. Time for the mile was 2:02 3/5.

The winner, a four - year - old son of Rodney owned by Mr. and Mrs. Pat DiGennaro of Rochester, N.Y., returned $7.10 in gaining his fifth victory in seven starts.

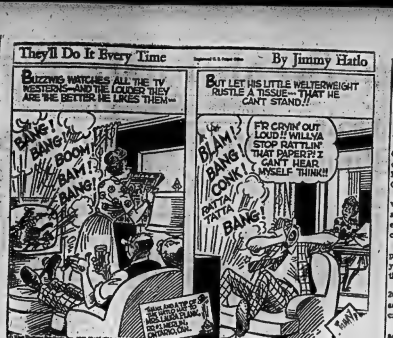
Rodare finished third.

REDS DROP NUNN

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds released pitcher Hawk Nunn to the club's San Diego farm team of the Pacific Coast League Friday to make way for pitcher Jim Maloney, who was called up from San Diego. Nunn pitched only 9 3-3 innings in six games for the Reds this season and gave up six runs.

Fullmer Pender Bout Gets Nod

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The middleweight title defense fight between Gene Fullmer and Paul Pender will have the National Boxing Association's blessing after all.



The NBA said Friday it is "very happy" that the two title claimants will meet at Boxtown, Mont., Aug. 28 in Pender's hometown.

Fullmer, of West Jordan, Utah, is recognized as world champion by the NBA and Pender, of Brookline, Mass., is considered the king of the 160-pound set by New York, Massachusetts, Europe and other parts of the world.

Apparently the NBA's ruling to Fullmer last Wednesday that he had to defend his title by Aug. 5 and against Dick Tiger of Nigeria was a result of a misleading. The edict was issued by Paul Sullivan, chairman of the NBA's world championship committee, but without the approval of Dr. Charles P. Larson, NBA president.

CUBS CUT SHORTSTOP

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs optioned shortstop Elder White to San Antonio Friday to make room for infielder Alex Grammas, acquired in a deal with St. Louis Cardinals earlier in the week. Grammas and outfielder Don Landrum were sent to the Cubs for shortstop Daryl Robertson and R. C. Smith.

McNeely Disqualified

Wild Riot Marks Bout

TOTOWA, N.J. (AP) — A riot erupted at ringside Friday night when Tom McNeely of Boston was disqualified for low blows in his heavyweight boxing bout against Jim McAteer of Paterson, N.J.

McNeeley, who was declared by Floyd Patterson for the heavyweight championship in Toronto last December, was disqualified at 2:40 of the sixth round by referee Paul Cavalier.

A capacity crowd of 2,000 that jammed Gladstore Arena tossed chairs around and stormed the ring.

A spokesman for the New Jersey Athletic Commission said the purses of both fighters would be held up pending an investigation.

McNeeley weighed 190, and McAteer 179.

Both fighters were warned by Cavalier for butting at the start. Then, in the sixth, Cavalier ruled that McNeeley had thrown four low blows and he stopped the bout.

Feelings among the spectators were running high. At the end of the fifth round, a brawl broke out at ringside involving, presumably, McNeeley and McAteer fans.

A group of about 20 spectators jumped into the ring and tried to attack McNeeley after Cavalier had stopped the bout. At the time, he still hadn't announced his decision.

When he announced that McAteer had won on a disqualification bedlam broke loose. Finally, police climbed into the ring and escorted Cavalier and both fighters to dressing rooms.

Support An Active Candidate

A PLEASANT EXPERIENCE — Robert Temple (right), Liberal candidate for Hastings South, is shown above with Mr. and Mrs. John Hayes at a tea which Mr. Hayes, a noted Canadian industrialist, and former Belleville resident, gave in honor of Mr. Temple last Wednesday. Mr. Hayes, who employed the Hon. Paul Martin in one of his firms, when Mr. Martin was working his way through university, has spoken of Mr. Temple as the future "Paul Martin" of the Liberal Party. It was a pleasure, Mr. Hayes advised, to show his support for such an energetic and active candidate who was clearly capable of representing his riding most capably.

For the Liberal candidate also the tea was a very pleasant experience as he greeted the over 700 guests and well wishers. The highlight of the spring season of Belleville society's afternoon teas was further polished by the unexpected appearance of Hon. Paul Martin, who took a couple of hours out of his busy national campaign schedule to attend.

That was the general observation today as a field of eight three-year-olds lined up for the 94th running of the 1¼-mile gallop. Jaipur has been producing champions since it was inaugurated in 1867.

Jaipur is owned by George D. Widener, a New York and Philadelphia sportsman who has been trying to win a Belmont since 1929. Widener held Jaipur out of the Kentucky Derby to point for the Belmont. Jaipur ran a poor 9th in the Preakness, then came back and took the $130,000 Jersey Derby May 30 when Crimson Satan was disqualified.

Rounding out the field are Vimy Ridge, owned by Frank E. Powers, a native of Lafayette Que., who now runs a farm in Gordonsville, Va.; Admiral's Voyage, second in the Jersey Derby; David K., and Folk Dancer.

Some horsemen believe the absence of Preakness winner Carry Back from the Belmont will be a big factor in the race. Carry Back is considered by many to be the best horse in training.

Decidedly, a fighter in the Preakness, comes from behind. So does Greek Money, Crimson Satan, Vimy Ridge and Folk Dancer. Admiral's Voyage is expected to be closest to Jaipur in the early part of the Belmont. It has the lead after one mile in Kentucky, then tried to finish ninth.

TRUE OPTIONS SHORTSTOP

BOSTON (AP) — Cleveland Indians optioned infielder Mike Hart to Jacksonville of the International League to be recalled Friday night and called up infielder Jim Mahoney from Louisville of the American Association. De la Hoz had one hit in 12 trips for the Indians this season for an average of .083.

Bing's Wealth Said Hurting Career of His Son, Gary

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gary Crosby wishes Bob Hope would ease up on some of those jokes about Bing's wealth. It's hurting Gary's career.

"I just gotta talk to Hope's writers," bemoans Bing's eldest son. "I can't convince producers that I'm serious about a career.

"After 10 years of trying, the producers still ask: 'What do you want to work for, with all that money?'"

Gary had a brief fling with 20th Century-Fox contract, in personal pictures, he got good critical notices.

"But that's as far as it went," says Gary, "I got hit with dad's wealth all over again."

Gary, most independent of Bing's brood, never asked his dad for money, doesn't now. He got an income from his share of mother, the late Dixie Lee Crosby, which takes only the forinterest.

WAYS OWN CAREER

"I want to earn a living on my own," he says, "and preferably here in show business.

"I haven't inherited anything from my father—except my derriere—and I'm cutting off three inches of that in recent exercise."

But there are some who say that Gary has a better rhythm singer right now than dad was at the same age—it.

Gary has made a great living in recent years from night clubs and from not the Mfe for the new Gary Crosby.

"I have a wonderful wife and family," he says, "and I like to stay home with them. I used to be a playboy but that was because I had nothing else to do. I don't even take a drink any more."

"Now that I don't drink, I worry. I worry about my career, getting some new furniture in the house. I think I'll get ulcers next."

Yes, it's a new serious Gary Crosby. And, he says, a much happier one — if Bope will lay off the jokes for a while.

ANNOUNCE HOOKUP

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings announced Friday they have added Pittsburgh of the American Hockey League to their farm system.

Sid Abel, general manager and coach of the National League club, said the Wings will "immediately" start the complete stocking of the 1962-63 Hornets because Pittsburgh only owns a few players. Pittsburgh finished last in the AHL last season, winning only 19 games.

Detroit's other farm clubs are at Edmonton and Sudbury. The Wings also have a working agreement with Hershey of the AHL.

AN INVITATION

The Bay of Quinte Yacht Club extends a cordial invitation to parents for their sons and daughters, to enjoy a happy, zestful summer holiday — right here on the beautiful Bay of Quinte.

The Yacht Club is once again sponsoring a complete summer course in Canada's fastest growing participant sport—sailing.

Starting 2 July there will be available at the Clubhouse at Victoria Park full facilities for Junior and Senior members — including the following:

(1) 2 fine 15½' Snipe Class day sailors and 3 Nor Bergs (fast and lively yet safe — recommended for instructional purposes).

(2) Full time instruction from 9.00 a.m. to 5.00 p.m. five days a week throughout the summer.

(3) The finest full time instructional staff available.

(4) Water Safety — is strictly enforced with all regulation life jackets, etc. mandatory and supplied by the Club.

(5) Free Sailing — use of the boats when not in service for instructional purpose, plus occasional other regular senior club craft — for the older members who have completed the course.

(6) Who Can Join — any district student attending public or high school ten years old and over and who can swim at least 100 yards (no one had to last year).

Finances — The Bay of Quinte Yacht Club both sponsors and subsidizes Junior Sailing and several free memberships are available — but as no one appreciates anything free — membership fees — for the 1962 season — which includes the winter dance and skating party.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Reports have it they're digging a third grave in the mythical Eastern Ontario hockey cemetery.

Skeletons of senior "B" and senior "A" are preparing a rattling welcome for the Eastern Professional League, and if its pattern resolves itself next year they will be joined by Intermediate "A" as a fourth for boneyard bridge.

And if the kegling game maintains its unsurgence in popularity, it wouldn't surprise this department to see Eastern Ontario hockey arenas converted in five-pin and/or ten-pin bowling alleys next year.

As for the obsequies for the Eastern Pros, don't rush your order to the florist or your favorite sympathy cards purveyor.

For once, and this could be called treason by the downstairs office—you can hardly be blamed if you don't believe all that you see in the papers—or hear over the airwaves.

The printed-word scoopsters were busy in some sections with the dramatic announcement, "The EPL has folded." Others took the affair in stride and called the shot as it was released by the National Hockey League. Actually the NHL meisters voted to withdraw financial support from the Eastern Pro star boarders and the natural inference was that the miners would have grounds for non-support.

Even that fearsome, twosome, Sam Pollock, the originator of the Eastern Professional League and his onetime, cheerleader Jovi Imadry, but later an opposition‑ist, Wren Blair, were, or are, divided in their opinions.

The ebullient Blair with his kiss-curl at half-staff, came out flatfooted with the statement, "The league has folded." He repeated the statement in a black-bordered obituary notice interview the other night, with reservations that he was trying to work out something hockey-wise for the people of Kingston.

But La Pollock didn't give up so easily.

He is reported as saying at an Ottawa press conference that "Ottawa and Kingston would be in pro hockey next year." He said, dying hard, that there is a good chance the EPL would operate again, adding that it could survive even with Kingston and Hull-Ottawa the only Canadian teams. He mentioned possible American entries.

But even magician Pollock who pulled the Eastern Pro League out of the hat after he had removed, with Hindley's assistance, the Eastern senior "A" roadblock, can hardly be expected to "Alakazam" a league without the financial blessing of the National Hockey League.

Blair, who it seems, is firmly convinced there will be a farewell for the Eastern Pro League, apparently is working in a desperate move to retrieve something for the Limestone City fans.

As is well known, he was closely associated with the Clinton Comets of the Eastern "Amateur" League. One source has it he may try to get a Kingston franchise in that organization. Of course the Eastern loop people may have something to say about that.

Wren said in his picture tube interview that another suggestion is to form a new EPHL consisting of players 22 years and under. Over-age juniors would either graduate to the NHL or be reinstated as amateurs after reaching the age limit. He didn't say where the "reinstated amateurs" would play.

The demise of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, if such is the case, and all indications point that way, adds another argument in favor of those who insist that hockey in general, with the exception of the National Hockey League, is suffering from a virus of non-support.

It seems, in Ontario, at least, that attendance has reached the lowest arc of the cycle, and if it is to be revived, we'll have to start from scratch again with the lowly amateurs.

George Mansfield, CLTA pro, will conduct a free clinic for youngsters at the Quinte Tennis Club this afternoon, starting at three o'clock. All juniors and youngsters are welcome, regardless of membership.

Dodgers Steal First, Place That Is

Wills Steals Colts Blind

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Who says you can't steal first?

Los Angeles Dodgers did it Friday night, snatching first place in the National League on the base stealing of mercurial Maury Wills. The swift shortstop ran the Dodgers to a 4-2 victory over Houston Colts when in the 13th inning, swiped two bases, then scored the winning run on a short sacrifice fly. The stolen bases were 32nd and 33rd for Wills this season.

By winning, the Dodgers took a half-game edge over San Francisco Giants, who were trounced by St. Louis Cardinals 8-4. It was the third setback in a row for the Giants and the fourth straight victory for the Cards, on the rebound after a string of eight defeats.

Elsewhere in the NL, Philadelphia Phillies beat Cincinnati's slumping Reds 10-3 and New York Mets snapped their losing streak at 17, trimming the Cubs 4-3 in the opener of a doubleheader. The Cubs won 3-2 in the nightcap. It called in the eighth inning because of darkness. Ralph Kiner knocked out the Pittsburgh Braves game at Milwaukee.

WILLS RUNS WILD

Wills drew a walk off reliever Don McMahon leading off the Dodger 13th. Junior Gilliam, stole second and third, then sprinted home on Willie Davis' fly to centre. Larry Sherry held off the stubborn Colts in the last of the inning for the win, his owner with 4 1-3 scoreless innings of relief.

Ken Johnson went the first nine for Houston, giving up two runs in the seventh on Ron Fairly's triple, Wally Moon's double and John Roseboro's single, and a pinch homer by Frank Howard that tied it at 2-2 in the eighth. Bob Aspromonte singled home a Colt run in the fourth against Sandy Koufax but the west coast ace fell in the sixth with walks off Koufax and Ed Bressoud, a wild pitch and Merritt Ranew's two-run single.

Sherry balked Ron Perranoski out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth by striking out Carl Warwick, then put down the Colts the rest of the way.

GIANTS DETHRONED

Ken Boyer and Bill White led a 14-hit barrage and Lindy McDaniel turned in a perfect relief stint as the Cards rolled over the Giants, who find themselves out of first place for the first time since April 30. Boyer climaxed a dazzling four-run uprising in the fifth against Juan Marichal by homering with one on and also had a single. White knocked in three runs with a homer and single.

Dennis Bennett's four - hit pitching and the Phils' six-run fifth inning pushed the Reds to their fifth straight loss. Bennett chipped in with a two-run single during the fifth as the Phils piled up a 7-0 lead against loser Johnny Klippstein and reliever Jim Brosnan. Roy Sievers knocked in three Philadelphia runs with a double and single and Tony Taylor and Don Demeter added two more.

The Mets ended their long famine and made it 4-for-4 against the Cubs in the nightcap as Jesse Gonder

Tribe, Twins Keep Pace

Blank-Happy Yankees Zero Orioles

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

First it was Ralph Terry. Then it was Bill Stafford. Now it's Jim Coates. And in the last three games New York Yankees' problem-plagued pitching staff has allowed a grand total of eight hits and no runs.

Coates added to the string Friday night, taking over where last left-hander Whitey Ford was forced out with shoulder pains after the first inning. He permitted only one hit the rest of the way as the Yankees blanked Baltimore Orioles 1-0.

The Yankees' mound crew is weakened by the absence of relief specialist Luis Arroyo and Ford's inability to post a victory since May 9. The stylish southpaw, who posted a 25-4 record during the 1961 campaign, is 3-4 this year.

Ford gave up one hit, making it a two-hitter for the Ford-Coates combination and extending the scoreless innings streak to 20⅓. Terry started it with a four-hit 5-0 triumph over Cleveland and Stafford followed with a two-hit job that beat the Indians 4-0.

The latest victory kept the Yankees' American League lead at one game over Minnesota Twins, who edged Chicago White Sox 2-1. Third place Cleveland belted Boston Red Sox 13-9 with a six-run uprising in the closing inning and remained two games off the pace.

ANGELS GET TWO-HITTER

Los Angeles Angels got a two-hit pitching performance from newly-acquired Don Lee and defeated Kansas City Athletics 7-1 and Detroit and Washington split a doubleheader. The Tigers took the first 7-6 in 10 innings, then were shut out 2-0 in six hits by Dave Stenhouse.

Held to two hits by Chuck Estrada for seven innings, the Yankees cut loose against reliever Hoyt Wilhelm (0-4) when Estrada was forced to leave in the eighth with a pulled elbow muscle. Singles by Tom Tresh, Coates and Bobby Richardson accounted for the game's lone run. Johnny Temple got both Baltimore hits, a first inning single off Ford and a sixth inning single off Coates (5-2).

Don Mincher broke up the pitching duel between the Twins' Jack Kralick (5-4) and John Buzhardt (6-5) of the White Sox when he lined a single in the last of the eighth, driving in Lenny Green with the deciding run. The Twins took a 1-0 lead on Zoilo Versalles' homer in the fifth but the White Sox came back to tie it in the sixth when Luis Aparicio singled and scored on Floyd Robinson's triple.

Ed Brinsoul's two-out homer for the Red Sox in the last of the ninth tied it, but the Indians wound up winning it big when Willie Kirkland's game-ending homer started a six-run 10th inning outburst. Kirkland, hitting .189 before the game, drove in four runs and was joined by Woodie Held and Tito Francona in the homer department. Wynn Hawkins (1-0) won it with Hal Kolstad (0-1) the loser.

Lee (4-3), making his first appearance for the Angels since they acquired him in a trade with Minnesota, gave up three Athletics only run when Joe Azcue doubled in the sixth and eventually scored on Bob Del Greco's grounder. Lee Thomas led an 11-hit Los Angeles attack with three hits, including a seventh-inning homer with two on. Ed Rakow (4-6) was charged with the defeat.

The Tigers scored the tying run in the opener on Chuck Cottier's error, then won it in the 10th for Ron Nischwitz (2-0) on Rocky Colavito's sacrifice fly. Carl Boulden (0-1) was the loser. Stenhouse (4-1) became the first pitcher to start out the Tigers this season when he turned in his six-hitter in the nightcap. The winning run crossed against Don Mossi (6-5) in the eighth when Ken Hamlin singled, moved to second on Stenhouse's sacrifice and scored on a single by Chuck Hinton.

Expect Record Broken

Hot Field For Mosport

By FRED CHAFE

TORONTO, Ont. (CP) —A hot field of international competitors turned up the Mosport Park circuit Friday, indicating the lap record of Stirling Moss may be in danger in today's 200-mile sports car race.

Leading the assault was Dan Gurney of Riverside, Calif., who drew the preferred position on the starting grid with a qualifying run of one minute, 23.3 seconds in a Lotus 19.

Slightly more than two seconds back was Roger Penske of Philadelphia, who's Cooper Monaco recorded a time of 1:25.4.

Gurney improved on that figure Friday, but the British star's mark will stand until at least Sunday's competition rather than a trial run.

POSTS THIRD-BEST TIME

The Lotus 19 Moss drove while winning the 200 last year was piloted Friday by Masten Gregory of Kansas City but now living in British. Gregory turned in the third best time—1:25.6.

Innes Ireland of England, driving a rear-engine Ferrari, was fourth in 1:27.

The non-starts today also include two Canadian-built cars for which considerable hope had been placed.

The Dallu Mark 1, built by Dave Greenblatt of Montreal and scheduled to be driven by Olivier Gendebien of Belgium, refused to develop power after a day of much trouble. A new Porsche was to be flown in from Milwaukee for the Belgian to drive.

FIND MINOR FAULTS

The Comstock EXP2, to be driven by Fred Hayes of Toronto in its racing debut, also was withdrawn after a couple of trial laps. Sponsor Chuck Rathgeb said the newly-built machine had several minor bugs which there just wasn't time to eliminate.

Fifth place among qualifiers was taken by Jim Hall of Midland, Tex., in a smooth-running Corvette - powered Chaparral. He lapped in 1:27.2 and was followed by the first Canadian entry, Dan Shaw of Port Credit, Ont., who recorded 1:27.7, in a Sadler Mark 5.

Other notable qualifiers included Joakim Bonnier of Sweden and Bob Holbert of Warrington, Ohio, both in Porches, and Rodger Ward of Indianapolis, winner of the 500-mile Memorial Day classic in a Cooper Buick.

World Soccer

Injuries Affect Clubs

SANTIAGO, Chile (CP-AP)—Injuries and sickness left world soccer coaches wondering today over what lineups to send on the field for Sunday's quarter-finals in the World Soccer Cup championships.

All of the eight teams are playing a cat-and-mouse game, each trying to make shrewd guesses until the last minute. But some clubs just don't know what players they can field.

Several West Germas players have fallen to "Chilean Revenge" — stomach upset brought on by the change in climate and food.

West Germany meets Yugoslavia's All Africa, Hungary meets Czechoslovakia at Sanctaunga and Brazil clashes with England at Vina del Mar. Only England, Russia and Czechoslovakia are free of injuries and illness.

TOP FORWARDS OUT

Brazil has inside forward star Pele on the injured list and Chile is worried about injuries to forward stars Fouilloux and Toro. Yugoslavia has inside left Galic and left winger Melic out of action. Inside forward Goncees of Hungary has a leg injury.

So far in the tournament few teams have shown their true strength.

Paolo Maiza, Italy's technical director, described the championships as "the worst since it started in 1930."

"The football technique has been awfully low and tough play has been the main resource of the so - called soccer teams," he said.

The Braves got off to a flying start and finished up the game way while defeating the Cardinals 16-7 in a Peewee baseball league game at the Alemite field last night.

Braves scored half a dozen runs in the first inning and finished up with another five in the last frame. The Cards' best inning was the fifth when they scored four runs.

The Braves collected 13 base hits while the Cardinals had eight.

Soccer Club May Quit Pro Loop

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Roma, fined $1,000 for walking off the field with 23 minutes to play in an Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League game against Buffalo White Eagles Thursday night, may leave the league.

Roma left the field after referee Bill Divorski ruled that a Buffalo penalty kick be retaken. Divorski said the Roma goalie had moved before the shot.

Angelo Currierre, Roma vice-president, said Friday the team feels it was justified in walking off the field after this ruling. He claimed officials should hear Roma's side of the story.

"We have spent more than $50,000 to belong to the pro league and believe we should be heard," he said. "If the decision sticks they might as well forget about Roma."

PAKISTAN WINS FIRST

LONDON (Reuters) — The Pakistani cricket tourists snatched a thrilling victory against Surrey—their first this year against a county—by 82 runs at the Oval here Friday with only three minutes to spare. Surrey lost its last seven wickets for 25 runs in less than an hour and the Pakistani fielders leaped in the air with glee when skipper Javed Burki caught wicket - keeper Arnold Long to end the match.

Douglas Signed By Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup champions in the National Hockey League, Friday signed Kent Douglas, 25-year-old defenceman, to a five - for - one trade with Springfield Indians of the American League.

The Leafs sent four defencemen — Roger Cote, 23, Bill White, 24, Ron Wilson, 22, and Dick Mattiussi — and centre Wally Boyer, 24, to the Indians for Douglas.

Cote, White and Boyer played for Rochester of the AHL last season, Wilson for San Francisco of the Western League and Mattiussi for Pittsburgh of the AHL.

Douglas scored 18 goals and had 41 assists last season.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE
LOOK YOU
HERE !
ONLY $1,500. DOWN
We have just listed a perfectly lovely brick bungalow for this low down payment of only $1,500. The owner is mighty anxious for a quick sale and has priced it accordingly. The home consists of 3 bedrooms, living room, modern kitchen, pantry or room for the growing family, 4-piece tiled bath and a full basement all ready for recreation. It is in the Bell Subdivision on the East Side just beyond the Cannifton Road. Don't delay, call us today and we'll get you right now — the asking price is $14,500.
WE NEVER DID SEE
a home quite like this one at even the asking price but we are sure we are asking for this one. You would be hard pressed to find a home quite so ideal to allow to the privacy of your own yard. Situated on a beautiful treed lot, it is waiting for your very own. The home itself is a delight. You will find all that everything but everything is all done in modern decor. Beautiful wall to wall carpeting — the panelled dining room — the recreation room in the basement — the 3 big bedrooms and a real fireplace in the living room. Yes, everything is there except the living room. It is big, roomy and inviting and it is just as we say it is terrific value at $19,200. Why not call us today and agree that this is a modest asking price. You will find all right here on Front Street next to Kelso's or right beside your phone.

Socred Leader Reiterates Stand On Nuclear Arms

By JOHN MATTERS

CALGARY (CP) — National Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson Friday advocated creation of a new department of national security and reiterated the party's stand opposing nuclear weapons.

He told 300 persons at a rally that Canada's best defence precaution is helping the United States maintain a high retaliatory potential. If the U.S. deterrent fails "no amount of defence paraphenalia Canada could afford would turn the trick."

Mr. Thompson said a department of national security would co-ordinate the country's defence program and would handle the activities of nine segments of the present national defence department.

"We must co - ordinate our piecemeal defence programs into a wisely, effective organization. Under the guidance of a minister of national security our forces would be co-ordinated and organized into a number of highly-mobile flying squads and task forces trained to cope with variety of emergencies at home and abroad.

MANNING JOINS HIM

It was Mr. Thompson's first major appearance before an audience here during the election campaign. With him on the platform were Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta and Bob Woodman, Bob Sompson and J. Francis Porter, the three Social Credit candidates for the Calgary area.

He said the argument over whether Canada should accept nuclear weapons is "simply too tattered, futile and ridiculous.

"To a common sense, practical approach it seems obvious that a few nuclear warheads can only be maintained if they are in the hands of a few nations as possible."

The Canadian defence program is "policy - less, futile, helpless laugh to pretence", which costs $17,000,000 a year, said Mr. Thompson. Canada should have a practical defence policy before the Russian "forest fire" spreads and "scorches the pants of our backsides."

Consumer Prices In Hands of Economic Czars - - Douglas

By BEN WARD

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Consumer prices in Canada are in the hands of a small group of "economic czars," New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas said Friday night, and neither of the old-line political parties intends to do a thing about it.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's threat to clamp down on the new round of price boosts was an "election gimmick" without an iota of sincerity behind it.

"Yesterday Mr. Diefenbaker said some greedy corporations were putting up prices and blaming them on the dollar devaluation. He said that if they don't stop, some drastic action will be taken."

Mr. Douglas, speaking to 1,300 at an election rally in the Kelowna Arena, said Mr. Diefenbaker should have taken this kind of action two years ago.

"For the last two years he has had on his desk two reports, one from the royal commission on price spreads in food products and the other from the restrictive trade practices commission on the meat-packing industry."

Both reports showed "that the consumer is being fleeced, and fleeced unmercifully."

WOULD TAKE ACTION

He said the NDP would take the kind of action needed to bear down on the profiteering corporations. It would put "real teeth" into the Combines Act to bring the companies into line.

Mr. Douglas heads today for a meeting at Edmonton.

During a press conference earlier, he said Mr. Diefenbaker is trying to appear "like a knight on a white charger" by talking of action against price boosts.

It was an obvious attempt to copy President Kennedy but had turned out to be "a pretty pathetic performance."

Mr. Douglas said the United States president acted, but Mr. Diefenbaker only talked.

He recalled how "a few weeks ago Mr. Kennedy caught the U.S. steel companies with the cream still wet on their whiskers" and stepped in to wipe out a steel price boost. That was the kind of action Mr. Diefenbaker never would attempt.

He also repeated the NDP Credit r. F. D. Shaw.

Must Restore Confidence in Canadian Dollar - - Pearson

By ARCH MacKENZIE

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian cost of living can rise to a "point where it will be very dangerous indeed" unless action is taken, Liberal Leader Pearson told a big turn-away political rally here Friday night.

Confidence has to be restored in the Canadian dollar, the budget balanced, and "we have to clean up the mess," he said in an address in a 1,300-seat theatre filled to capacity.

He touched all the main points in the platform preached since the start of the June 18 election campaign and—while a box of live lobsters stirred at his feet—tossed in regional interests too.

It was a last bid to shake the Progressive Conservative grip in all 12 Nova Scotia ridings. His flew from Windsor, Ont., motored into Halifax at the head of a horn-blaring cavalcade of more than 60 cars and paid visits to local clergy before the night rally.

GOES TO QUEBEC

Today he was flying to Trois-Rivieres for a visit and then a Quebec City rally tonight.

His last week of campaigning will include New Brunswick Monday, Montreal Tuesday and Ontario points the rest of the period before June 18.

Mr. Pearson was applauded frequently Friday night. The management said more than 200 were turned away from the sweltering theatre to comply with fire precautions.

Not far away in a high school auditorium, Finance Minister Donald Fleming was speaking to about 850 on the "truth about devaluation" and Mr. Pearson had a few words about his version of the circumstances surrounding the May 3 pegging of the dollar at 92.5 cents in terms of United States currency.

"I can't give you a loud and ringing evangelistic creation," Mr. Pearson told his audience. He accused Trade Minister Hees of being "completely and 100 per cent" "false" in alleging that Liberals organized obstruction of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's speeches at Vancouver and Chalmsford, Ont.

ALLEGED MARTYRDOM

When a five-year plan failed to get off the ground, Mr. Pearson said, it was getting "ridiculous" to portray "alleged martyrdom."

He said Canadian regions have peculiar problems and each required different solutions: It was a Liberal target to find those solutions and build the right regional machinery for that.

Thermal power plants to burn coal, coal marketing assistance, extensions of the three-mile fishing limit to 12 miles—multilaterally if necessary—and expanded trade were programs for the Atlantic provinces.

He said one example of the issues for Nova Scotia is a message received at Sydney from a voluntary Boston committee established "to help immigrants from this part of Canada find jobs on the Boston area."

SWAMPED WITH REPLIES

The message, he said, reported that the committee has been swamped in recent weeks and requested patience from prospective migrants from the Atlantic provinces.

Almost as many people had left Canada last year as had entered the country—a contrast to the boom years in the 1940s and the 1950s.

Canada should be doing all it could to strengthen relations with the West Indies "botched" relations with the United Kingdom should be repaired.

He said it is "absolutely false" to allege that Canada's navy will become a poor relation in a Liberal government's defence pattern—a statement aimed at the big Halifax naval personnel vote.

Liberals wanted an efficient mobile force fighting for including navy, army and air force components, preferrably for duty anywhere under the United Nations. The navy would retain its role.

He outlined the party program for economic planning, saying countries such as Sweden and Germany have used it to create expansion and full employment.

Mr. Douglas made a strong pitch for the election of Owen Jones, 72, NDP candidate in Okanagan - Boundary riding where four former members of Parliament are fighting for the seat. The others are David Pugh, Conservative who held it in the last Parliament, Liberal Elmore Philpott and Social

Liberals Party That Seeks to 'Rule or Ruin' - - Diefenbaker

By ROBERT REM

MONCTON (CP) — The far-reaching proposals of the MacPherson royal commission on transportation will be placed before Parliament at its next session, says Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

In a speech just 10 days before the June 18 election, Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday night that his Progressive Conservative government is studying the two-volume MacPherson transportation report.

The recommendations — involving a fundamental overhaul of federal transportation policy and regulation plus multimillion-dollar railway subsidies—will receive "appropriate attention at the next parliamentary session, he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker has said his plans, if returned to power, to summon Parliament into session this fall.

The prime minister made the declaration on the MacPherson report during an election speech to 1,000 persons at a Moncton high school on behalf of W. L. M. Creaghan, Conservative candidate in Westmorland.

ATTACKS LIBERALS

In his 53-minute speech, the prime minister also:

1. Played the Liberals as a party that seeks to "rule or ruin."

2. Blistered Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland as a "destroyer of freedom," an apparent reference to Mr. Smallwood's action barring Finance Minister Fleming from making a speech earlier this week in St. John's.

3. Indicated, without elaborating, that consideration is being given to special aid for Atlantic provinces universities because of their special circumstances.

4. Said the financial adviser of the Liberal party had sent out letters to all Liberal candidates advising them not to say anything against the prime minister "because it's not helping them."

His reference to the MacPherson report put, for the first time, a deadline for "action." It is going to be difficult for the government to get the report all debated and passed in two volumes in one year, the other early this year.

WOULD AID RAILWAYS

The six - man commission, headed by Regina lawyer M. A. MacPherson, advocated a basic revision of transport policies aimed at freeing the major railways to compete for business against their rivals, chiefly highway truckers.

It also lauded federal subsidies—starting at almost $100,000,000 the first year but declining to $22,000,000 in 15 years. The subsidies would compensate the railways for losses from uneconomic branch lines, unprofitable passenger trains and western export grain traffic.

They would be used to assist the railways during a gradual streamlining program.

Mr. Diefenbaker sets out today by train for Sydney, N.S., with whistle stops at communities en route.

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR

For June 10

Aries (Mar. 21, to Apr. 19): The more you listen, and the less you assert, the better the day. Especially good for obtaining spiritual guidance. Fulfill requests or friends if you can.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): You could gain what you seek quicker than you dared hope. Much in your favor if you go at it with method. Haphazard ways amount to waste, delay. Take long-range view.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): If you look closely, you could discern much that escaped your attention in recent past. Day belongs good for family gatherings, redirection, attendance church of choice.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Favorable lunar aspect . . . today means ideas can pay off. Moon in first quarter symbolizes excellent time for beginning projects. In your case, means putting ideas into action.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): If you could surround yourself with friends . . . you would be happy. This not always possible. Today face reality. Go out and make new friends, contacts, create opportunities.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): One you love, respect could make you extremely happy. But you must be receptive. If you look for faults, deficiencies, you will find them. Open mind, and heart!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Today you have answer in "back of your mind." Permit fruit to come forward. You will be happier if you do. Older member of community gives excellent advice.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): What may seem "low point" could turn out to be high one. Friends come forward when needed. Your key is diplomacy. Stay away from those who spread malicious gossip.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Confidence in face of great odds will pay off. Otherwise, you disintegrate into one who broods, worries, accomplishes nothing. What appears an adversity boomerangs in your favor.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Lessons learned from reading, listening to erudite persons could prove invaluable. Be willing to cooperate. No time for assuming know-it-all attitude.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb 19): Probe, ask questions. Do not permit yourself to accept half-truths. Examine motives, including your own! Could be day when you "see the light."

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Look closely . . . you may see something which previously escaped your attention. Cycle has been higher, but you can gain by perceiving. Do more listening than talking.

For June 11

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Demanding quick action today could be mistake. Take things as they come. Many persons on your side, but this may not be obvious. Take positive view. Stress understanding.

Taurus April 20 to May 20): Attend to personal needs early. With details out of way . . . tonight could provide opportunities for creative activity. Let others know you appreciate their efforts.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): May seem that no matter what you do, efforts go for naught. Truth, however, is that work, ideas are being given close scrutiny. Today may bring pleasant surprise.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Refuse to be impressed by "mob psychology." Stick with convictions, principles. Those who would have you heed rumors should be dismissed. Maintain faith in one you respect, and yourself.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Strengthen basic position by "plugging up" loopholes. Leave nothing to chance. Survey situation personally. Trusting others today might be noble but unsure, but certainly not wise.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Lunar stress on income, future prospects, potentials. You gain by being flexible. Be the opposite of stubborn. This applies to personal relationships, as well as to professional activity.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Cycle high. Excellent day to stress originality, independence. Be diplomatic, but do not back down on basic beliefs. Professional associate offers advice which could prove profitable.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Follow "heart's desire." For once let emotions rule. One who sincerely cares deserves to be given whatever appreciation you can offer. Fight tendency to worry.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Bet should "ring" now and idea could become solid reality. Recognize "mood" when you hear it. Long-time associate speaks truth. Listen! Think!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Stress on professional accomplishment, but real value comes from how happy you can make loved ones. Know this and base actions on it. Tonight relax with congenial persons.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Lake Taurus, get details out of way early. Original ideas, sparkling conversation tonight offer opportunity for future reward. Work in your favor, so be alert.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): If you attempt to avoid basic issues, you not only waste day, but alienate friends. If you speak truth as you see it, you gain admiration, from those you respect.

The Social Credit Party Has Introduced Unorthodox Kind of Political Meeting

By DAL J. WARRINGTON

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — The Social Credit party, founded on unorthodox monetary ideas, has introduced an unorthodox kind of political meeting to the Canadian election scene.

Social Creditors call it a seminar, attendance is limited to party leaders, candidates, prospective candidates and party workers.

A seminar by ordinary definition is a meeting of students and teachers to discuss problems of study and research. In Social Credit circles it's a discussion of party principles, policies and organization and the prospects for wooing voters.

Public meetings and nominating conventions are held in the traditional fashion but seminars lay the ground work.

Up to now Social Credit has failed to gain a secure foothold in federal or provincial politics east of Alberta. This time the party nominated about 220 candidates coast to coast for the 265 Commons seats.

SEMS UNFAMILIAR

But Social Credit policies were not familiar to many Canadians, especially in the East. Party organization was weak or non-existent. The seminars were planned to help overcome these handicaps. Robert Thompson, the 48 - year - old new national leader, had the idea; David Wilson, a national campaign chairman, refined it.

"A lot of people thought Social Credit was some form of socialism," says Colin Burgess, the party's national press officer. "They've just found out that there is a third free-enterprise party."

He made that comment here at the last of eight seminars held across the country starting in Ottawa April 7. Since the June 18 election was called there have been held in Lac Beauport, Que., Vancouver, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Hamilton and Saint John.

A typical seminar consists of Mr. Thompson giving a general address, a more detailed report by campaign manager Wilson and a briefing on public relations by Mr. Burgess. Then regional officers and candidates discuss the local situation.

LEADER DELAYED

The Saint John seminar ran into unexpected trouble. Mr. Thompson was to flog — bound at Halifax airport and couldn't get here in time. Neither could Mr. Wilson make it. "He's out raising money," Mr. Burgess explained. "We have the same money problems nationally that we have locally."

This seminar was held in a broadcasting studio. Twenty people attended, including four New Brunswick candidates already nominated and three expecting to be named. The others were party workers except for a reporter invited in to see how a seminar worked.

The chairman was Rev. Harvey Lainson, minister of a local missionary church and Social Credit candidate in Saint John-Albert. The various candidates introduced themselves and talked of campaign problems.

Mr. Burgess reviewed the Social Credit campaign, suggesting how candidates and workers could get help from national headquarters and use campaign literature.

He said they should keep their eyes on what people are saying and writing about monetary and economic matters in national papers and magazines. They often advocate Social Credit policies without naming the party. This was good campaign material.

"A lot of people have been thinking on Social Credit lines but don't know it," he said.

Mr. Burgess devised considerable time to explaining how a press release should be written.

"Keep it simple so the average person can understand it," he said.

He passed around copies of party handbooks telling how to organize a campaign and how to carry it out. The candidates got kits with samples of speeches, posters and advertisements prepared at national headquarters.

"A terrific amount of work has gone into this stuff," he said. "You may not be able to use all of it before June 18 but just remember it for next time."

Murals Will Depict Two Canadian Races

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP)—Among the first things the Queen Mother will see when she arrives in Ottawa Monday, June 11, will be giant murals depicting two ancient Canadian races—Indian and Eskimo.

The murals, four of them, each 17 feet by 12, are being hung in a 23-year-old hanger at suburban Uplands airport.

The huge hangar, almost an acre in size, is used daily by RCAF aircraft but for the arrival of important persons it is transformed into a giant welcoming centre with bleachers for 800 and space for guard of honor inspections.

To speed the transformation, the decorations along both side walls are semi - permanent, changed every few years.

The previous decorations, a mixture of maple leaves, bunting, flags and basket - weave, were put up for the 1959 royal visit.

"They were getting pretty dog-eared," said W. M. (Wally) Dicks, the man in charge of dolling up the capital for special occasions. He is a member of a special committee charged with the details for welcoming guests.

The committee sought a new design that would provide a little gaiety" and was typically Canadian.

The murals are the creation of American-born Vern Ridgeway, 50-year-old architectural designer and artist in the works department. He hit on the idea of native art and searched through volumes on the works of both races.

The result was a water-color of an Eskimo, head in hand, fighting an animal. The northern lights form the background.

"The furs were short and as animal is it," he said. "It's a symbolic. Most Eskimo work is symbolic."

His other mural depicts a totem pole in a valley with totem poles in the foreground and a background of mountains. It represents British Columbia Indians.

Both are done in a style as close as possible to the sort of thing a native would do by himself, said Mr. Ridgeway, a native of Omaha, Neb., who came to Ottawa from New York in 1953 with his Ottawa-born wife, the former Nina Cherry.

A copy of each of the two murals has been placed at either end of the side walls of the hangar. Between them run brightly colored maple leaves and coats of arms of each of the provinces.

Garden Notes

Soils, Fertilizers and Water

By FLORA M. SAVELLE

If a little is good a lot will be better."Is not always true in the garden. Over feeding or overwatering can over stimulate the plants or throw the growth off and in either case the plants never really recover.

At best stations it has been established that over watering can form crusts on the soil surface which prevents proper ventilation. Roots need air as well as food and moisture. It has also formed a surface on a garden which seriously impedes young plants.

If the water is applied in large droplets as in a thunder shower the soil is apt to be run or damaged and the crops materially reduced. For instance a bed of lettuce watered with large droplets gave a poor crop compared with one watered with a fine spray.

When water is supplied faster than the soil can absorb it the crop is reduced. Waterlogging occurs when heavy watering is followed by rain. Warning; stop watering before the soil reaches the saturation point.

SELDOM RECOVER

If these mistakes are made during the seedling stage the plants seldom recover and remain stunted and unproductive. The station finds that if the soil is somewhat dry it should be watered thoroughly before seed is planted then not given any more water by hose until the seedlings are well up.

The old time gardener did not know why, but he believed that farmyard manure was the best fertilizer. Experiments prove that he was right. It supplies the basic nutrients and good bulky humus. Soils which receive regular applications hold more water then soils that do not have it.

Plants that are grown in manured soils take up about six percent potassium in the first ten days while those grown in untreated soils take up less than three percent. This gets such root crops as carrots and beets off to a quick start and means for good flavor and fine texture. All plants need more much better in the treated soil, than in untreated or in soils losing other types of fertilizer.

Since manure is not available to most gardeners they can improve their soils with generous quantities of humus such as peat, ground corn cobs, rotted sawdust, leaf mold or compost. Add to them sheep manure and sludge type fertilizers. These are always available at your seed stores and can be bolstered for quicker results with balanced chemical fertilizer.

SEAWEED FERTILIZER

To break up clay soil and to give body to sandy soil man has long been trying all manner of material. Recently a London England University lecturer, Dr. Stephenson, made up some samples for his friends to try. It was made from seaweed and was in powder form. A company has been formed to manufacture it for general distribution. It contains sodium alginate and is called Alginure. Seaweed has long been known as an excellent fertilizer but there is only too high for the average gardener. Alginure costs about two cents per square yard which is about one tenth the cost of the raw material. Alginure is free draining through sand. So far this product is only processed and marketed in England.

As soon as the tulip leaves turn yellow the bulbs can be lifted. Clean off soil and dry one full day in the sun. Store in dry, airy, dark place such as basement. Hang in mesh bags such as onions are packed in. They must be kept dry or molds will destroy the bulbs. Keep the bulbs separate and plant carefully. In two or three years they will reach bloom size.

Nuclear Danger Zone Extended To 1,000 Miles

Eye-Burn Danger Area Covers Hawaii Airways

HONOLULU (AP) — Extension of the Johnston Island danger area around Johnston Island was seen today as a preliminary to the firing of the biggest nuclear blast in the current United States test series in the Pacific.

There was no official comment on the precise altitude and size of the detonation, but unofficial sources said it will be from 50 to 500 times as powerful as the bomb that destroyed Hiroshima.

There have been reports it will be of several megatons in force, a megaton being the equivalent of the explosion of 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

The big blast will be set off about 200 miles high, the sources said. It will be the highest and biggest U.S. nuclear blast. It will be seen in Hawaii, 750 miles northeast of Johnston.

The Atomic Energy Commission and the defence department announced Saturday that the nuclear danger area surrounding Johnston Island will be extended to 1,000 miles a radius of 930 nautical miles at sea level. It will be increased 390 miles vertically to 30,000 feet, to a radius of 990 miles.

HEIGHT INCREASED

The area will be extended 10,000 feet in altitude to a height of 30,000 feet, where the radius will be 1,050 miles. At 30,000 feet the zone will cover the entire Hawaiian group.

The zone is being extended to 1,000 miles because of the height they could be a hazard to fires looking directly at the explosion, and because the blast scopes or other optical instruments could be damaged. It is believed lead to permanent eye damage or possible blindness, like the sun. It could be permanent damage to aircraft engines they realize the flight is hopeless.

They said hold bargaining powers, however, because a mass exodus of skilled Europeans would cripple the economy of the independent nation that will emerge.

New explosions and fires raged in Algiers Sunday as crowds poured out to the beaches as usual.

Secret Army bomb and arson commandos destroyed three more schools, an agricultural co-operative, a tax office and an Algiers hydraulics centre. Thousands of records were burned.

Machine-gunners shot up a bus carrying Moslem hospital employees and fired on a truckload of French gendarmes, who fired back. Casualties were not reported.

SECRET ARMY SABOTEURS FIRE SAHARA OIL WELL

Moslem Asserts OAS Power Fades

ALGIERS (AP)—Secret Army commandos struck in a Sahara oil field Sunday in their "scorched earth" warfare but a Moslem nationalist leader said the terrorist drive power is fading.

Terrorist saboteurs blasted a well being drilled in the Sahara, about 60 miles south of the big Hassi Messaoud oil field, and set off a spectacular gas fire.

French officials expressed fears that the Secret Army, whose hard core now is believed to be largely French Army deserters, would attempt to blow up dams, railroads and oil installations in their campaign to leave the country in ruins for the future Moslem rulers.

Chawki Mostefai, a spokesman for the Moslem National Liberation Front, told reporters Algeria's future was not threatened against the Secret Army ruthless. "We would be in truth to increase a halt in the present events," he said.

ARMY WEAKENING

The European settlers were the backbone of the Secret Army in an attempt to block Algerian independence but there have been increasing signs they realize the fight is hopeless.

They still hold bargaining powers, however, because a mass exodus of skilled Europeans would cripple the economy of the independent nation that will emerge.

Fourteen Fined For Staging A Sitdown

DUNNOON, Scotland (Reuters) Fourteen anti-nuclear demonstrators who staged a sitdown outside the U.S. Polaris submarine pier at Holy Loch near here appeared in court today accused of a breach of the peace.

The 11 men and three women received fines ranging from £5 10s ($4.50) to ($86.50). Three who allegedly refused to pay their names were remanded in custody.

Forty-six ban-the-bomb demonstrators were arrested Sunday.

Fire Rating Tweed Forest District

Rainfall was general over the Tweed Forest District over the weekend bringing moisture to the rapidly drying area and reducing the fire rating to low.

Two fires one in Kaladar township and the other in Barrie township were put out, whole or another in Sebastopol township ½ being patrolled.

Land and Forests official reported today that the rainfall was heaviest in the north eastern section of the district.

While Lake had a fall of 1.32 inches, while the Fiavus area had 1.71 inches. Bancroft collected under a .01 inches fall.

Other statistics are, Tweed, .55 inch; Gilmour .36 inch; Palmer Rapids .40 inch and Dacre .03 inch.

The lightning was general over the forest area but up to nine a.m. today no resulting fires had been reported.

Voting Is Close, Political Crisis Feared in Peru

LIMA (Reuters)—The three main presidential candidates were running neck and neck in early returns today from Peru's national elections Sunday.

Though only 10 per cent of some 1,800,000 votes cast have so far been counted, 85 per cent from areas where she will drive Haya de la Torre, Fernando Belaunde Terry and Gen. Manuel Odria.

Unless one of the three obtains more than one-third of the total poll the election will be thrown to Congress—a tricky situation which Peruvians fear may lead to a political crisis.

Returns also were pouring in from the voting for two vice-presidents, 52 senators and 186 members of the lower house of Congress.

The results were tallied following a day of peaceful voting in the election for a new government to rule this South American nation for six years.

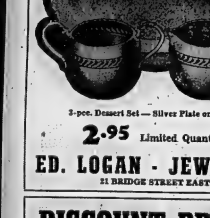
Overseeing the polls were the armed forces, which patrolled the streets with 50 machine guns, half-track armored vehicles and mounted soldiers at most polling stations.

DENT 'COUP' PLANS

Th military Saturday denied newspaper reports that an army coup was planned if a leftist candidate was elected.

War Minister Gen. Alejandro Cuadra declared that the army will "uphold the will of the people." He made it clear that his pledge covered de la Torre, the most leftist of the three main candidates for president.

The 67 - year - old de la Torre is leader of the Alianza Popular Revolucionara Americana (APRA). He has campaigned in the past for a sweeping Latin American revolution but in recent years his political views have shifted close to the centre.



De la Torre,' Belaunde and Odria all campaigned on a program of social reform.

But Belaunde and Odria both came under the category of conservative with Odria farther to the right of the two.

The remaining four parties to the race all stand to the left of de la Torre with some of them backing the policies of Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro.

Akela Honored On Departure

Fifth Belleville Scouts and Cubs held family night and a colorful ceremony on the lawn of College Hill United Church recently. For cubs, Ricky McIlquham, Billy Arscott, Paul Crossen and Eddie Dixon, it was a never-to-be-forgotten experience as they received their 1st star scouts. This swelled Scout Master Steenburgh's troop to 19 members.

After a number of games on the lawns all went indoors where a turning over ceremony took place. Akela Wagner is leaving the city, the pack was formed over to Cubmaster Nash who will assume the rank of Akela.

As a mark of appreciation for his efforts on behalf of the boys, Mr. Wagner was the recipient of a picnic jug and table from the Cubs and leaders and of a bar and cuff link set with the cub emblem from the Group Committee and Ladies Auxiliary.

Also to show appreciation for help at camp Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. McIlquham and Mrs. Crossen were presented with ferns by the cubs and their leaders.

After the partaking of refreshments the meeting adjourned.

175 Registered At Advance Poll

Approximately 175 voters in the riding of South Hastings took advantage of voting at the advance polls on Saturday, it was noted today by Returning Officer William Van Tassel.

Advance polls also are open today, it was noted.

The poll in Belleville on Saturday was at Station Street where 106 residents cast their ballots. At Trenton 26 had voted at six o'clock while no word had been received this morning from polls at Frankford or Percy.

New Moderator Questions Value Of Church Union

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Ross K.tchen Cameron, newly-elected moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, says he favors co-operation between Christian churches—but he questions the value of union.

"We stress the deeper spiritual unity, leaving aside the leaving people," he said.

The new moderator, elected Wednesday night at the church's general assembly here, said he believes that would emphasize unity of purpose rather than of administration.

"The Christian churches must work out some form of close co-operation, but this must not mean loss of identity."

Dr. Cameron said he does not think the Presbyterian Church will be submerged by the larger United Church. "despite their unifying tendencies."

"Although our form of government and that of the United Church are similar, doctrinally we are closer to the Anglican Church than to the United Church."

Dr. Cameron said the practice of Presbyterian and United Church clergymen exchanging pulpits is a good idea.

"You will see more Anglican clergy participating in this too-But we Presbyterians will not eliminate the doctrinal differences between the Presbyterian Church and the United Church."

He was born at Stratford 57 years ago and was graduated at Georgetown High School, the University of Toronto and Knox College.

Dr. Cameron has been minister of Dovercourt Presbyterian Church in Toronto for the last 27 years, except for four years as an RCAF chaplain during the Second World War.

He has been moderator of the synod of Toronto and Kingston and of the presbytery of West Toronto.

Shortly after the conclusion of the general assembly Dr. Cameron will leave the country from coast to coast, visiting all presbyteries of the Church.

Moslem Police Kill Europeans

ALGIERS (AP) — Moslem auxiliary policemen today fired on Europeans near the Algiers dockyards, killing three and wounding six.

The uniformed Moslem police men said Europeans attacked them and they shot back. Two European civilians died in a car near the scene of the shooting. Seven were seized and held as hostages.

FURTHER DOLLAR

like to see the dollar devalued further.

MINISTERS DISAGREED

There were several ministers who wanted a 90 cent dollar, but Mr. Fleming stayed pegged at 92 cents, he said. The 90 cent rate was a compromise.

"If I want to run the country," said Liberal Leader Pearson in Quebec City, where he rested Sunday before leaving last tour of New Brunswick.

The Conservative Liberal campaign chairman and candidate in Dartmouth-Dovenport who, the Liberal sources say, probably will become finance minister if the party wins power, was described Mr. Hamilton's remarks as "most disturbing" and "bound to create further lack of confidence in the ability of the Conservative government to manage our finances."

LUMBER DISPUTE

In Campbellton, Mr. Fleming rejected a proposal, endorsed by Conservative MP Hector Dinsmore of Smallwood, that he debate the lumber issue his personal opponent in Toronto Eglinton, Liberal Mitchell Sharp.

"I am not afraid of a proposition," Mr. Fleming said. It was a ridiculous one, he said, to try to cover up Mr. Smallwood's interference with the right of free trade in pressuring John's Rotary Club into withdrawing an invitation to Mr. Fleming to speak to a meeting last week.

In Sydney, N.S., Saturday night, Mr. Diefenbaker spoke to a crowd of 3,000 in what the 2,200 seat main auditorium—the building superintendent said was the largest audience in the history of the hall. But one man was arrested for throwing eggs at the Conservative party leader.

The prime minister, reminded by the crowd of what his government has already done for the Maritimes, said there would be further aid for the area's rural Atlantic provinces adjustment grants, further incentives to secondary industry and a national highways program.

In Quebec City, Mr. Pearson spoke almost entirely in French—a crowd of 10,000, many of whom milled around the hall. He said the Conservative government has not given French-speaking Canadians equal opportunities to fill positions they are entitled to have.

Mr. Douglas told an Edmonton press conference that his biggest challenge on behalf of the New Democratic Party is to compete with the high spending of the parties. He is touring the tourist class with two aides on scheduled airlines, while Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson have a 1,000-a-day chartered aircraft and large staffs.

The NDP, if elected, would "pump enormous sums" into a national medical care program, paying the provinces which want to join 50 per cent of the cost, he said.

Social Credit Leader Thompson drew 750 to a suburban Vancouver high school Saturday night, and said that if Mr. Diefenbaker slips a bid on price increases "he will be putting the business out of business, and willfully destroying any hope we have of economic recovery."

"Canada's lily pond economy, caused by reckless government borrowing, higher taxes and resulting inflation, makes it impossible for more than a few companies to make a reasonable profit today," he said.

Belleville Couple Attends Rotary Rally

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold G. Campbell recently visited Los Angeles, California, to attend the Rotary International convention at which Mr. Campbell was the official delegate of the Rotary Club of Belleville.

The convention, which concluded last Thursday, was attended by 21,900 Rotarians from all over the world. One of the major attractions of the convention was a panel discussion on "Peace Through Understanding Through Trade", led by Luther H. Hodges, U.S. Secretary of Commerce.

In the traditional House of Friendship, a feature of Rotary conventions, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell enjoyed developing warm friendships with Rotarians from Malaya, the Philippines, Mexico and the United States.

This is the second Rotary convention which Mr. Campbell has attended. He and Mrs. Campbell are now residents in Belleville via Victoria, Vancouver, Banff and Edmonton.

Gerald Boyce Again Head Of Society

Recently in the Corby Library auditorium, the annual meeting and fifth birthday party of the Hastings County Historical Society was held.

President, Mr. Boyce, reviewed the activities of the past year. Members of the past year had presented a survey of Belleville's military history as it related to the Rebellion of 1837, the Fenian Invasions and the North West Rebellion of 1885. Since its opening in April, the museum has had many visitors, including students from a number of district schools. On June 2, a visit to Upper Canada Village arranged by the Society for interested persons had taken place. The Society in the past year, has produced a number of publications including "Belleville 1850" and "Vest Port 1860." These publications and others are available for purchase at the museum.

An honorary life membership was awarded to Mr. Wright-mayer by the Society in recognition of Mr. Wrightmayer's services to the Society as its first president and in the establishment of the museum.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The report of the nominating committee given by Miss Farley was adopted. Officers elected for the following is the slate of officers for 1962-63: past president, Mr. T. Wrightmayer; president, Mr. Gerald Boyce; vice-president, Mrs. John Hair; recording secretary, Mrs. G. A. Bennett; membership secretary, Mr. C. Bisbee; corresponding secretary, T. T. Dane Martin; council members: Mrs Roy Bush, Stirling; Mrs. John English, Melrose; Miss Hazel Farley, Trenton; Miss Mary Hall, Stirling; Mr. Tom Ransom, Belleville.

Committee chairmen: program, A. J. Sargent; museum, Mr. Tom Ransom; social, G. A. Bennett and Mrs. J. Sargent.

The speaker at the annual meeting was Professor William Paul of Tweed, whose topic was "The History and Evolution of Lighting Devices." In his address Dr. Paul outlined the history of this development from the time of the cavemen to the present. Dr. Paul was an entertaining and informative speaker. Many lights, rush lights, whale oil lamps, covered log wrappers, etc., names which may only have a misty literacy connection for most of the listeners, were explained and illustrated from Dr. Paul's collection of lighting devices. The Society members enjoyed the speech very much and afterwards were able to view the display of lighting devices which Dr. Paul had arranged.

During the social period which followed, the members and guests enjoyed not only coffee and cookies, but also the fifth-birthday cake of the Society.

Wall Street's Black Monday Troubled Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wall Street's Black Monday—May 28—found the United States administration sharing much of the countrywide concern and uncertainty that afflicted millions of investors.

Sources close to the discussion report the policy makers considered and discarded suggestions for a variety of emergency moves including a special television address by the president.

All one point, the sources said, Kennedy was set to make such a talk. He later pulled back from the idea lest it be viewed as an indication of alarm.

Other ideas were aired at a White House meeting May 29, the day after the market took its sharpest tumble since 1929. These included:

1. Reduction of stock market margin requirements to 50 per cent from 70 per cent. Chairman William McChesney Martin of the federal reserve board vigorously resisted this suggestion.

2. A quick announcement that the administration would seek a cut in corporate and individual income tax rates.

TAX CUTS PROMISED

These ideas were shelved initially but the latest plan was revived the next week, with Kennedy announcing at his Thursday press conference that across-the-board reductions will be sought next year.

Treasury Secretary Dillon was as adamant as Martin when the possibility of a quick promise of a tax cut was discussed. He wanted to stick to the original timetable of presenting Congress the outlines of a broad tax reform package late in the current session, for action next year.

Almost simultaneously, Commerce Secretary Hodges, who had been fully briefed on the White House meeting, told a press conference he favored an announcement as quickly as possible that the administration would seek a 1962 tax cut. Kennedy adopted Hodges' suggestion at his Thursday press conference.

Former Student Doing Well In Saskatoon

Former resident of Belleville where he attended public school William Slovin Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Slovin of Saskatoon, is doing well in his high school studies.

Now 16, he will be starting his final year at the Walter Murray Collegiate in Saskatoon in September and for the term just ending received the highest honors awarded on any pupil entering his final year.

Requirements are high academic standing and "all-round" proficiency and popularity. Bill has a busy schedule as he is president of the Students' Council.

Bill attended Queen Elizabeth and Queen Alexandra schools in Belleville. His father was former manager at CIBQ and is now manager of radio station CKOM in Saskatoon.

Coffee Party In Interests Of Lee Grills

Mrs. J. B. Corke was hostess at a coffee party in the garden of her home at 14 Hastings Drive on Friday evening in the interests of Lee Grills, who is seeking election as Progressive Conservative member for Hastings South. Assisting Mrs. Northern Canada 235 Corke were Mrs. Ray Gunsolus and Mrs. T. Collier.

The neighborhood party attracted many interested women who were able to meet their candidate and discuss many of the lively issues of the election. In a question-and-answer session Lee Grills explained what steps were being taken to clean up the bay; how the wheat surplus had been cut back considerably; how dissolution of the dollar would improve the tourist industry, which is the third largest in Canada, and why there should be no increase in price of bread or other commodities. The guests discussed both local and national questions with Mr. Grills.

The question of education was raised with Mr. Grills pointing out that Federal grants to universities were less than in any previous time, and that this riding has three trade schools which are not prepared to go to university can learn industrial skills; one is in Trenton, one at Moira Secondary School, and one at Quinte Secondary School.

Advance Poll Votes Counted, Worker Fired

KINGSTON (CP) — Stuart M. Jenkins, Kingston returning officer, said today he has begun a formal inquiry instituted by tabulating the results of an advance federal election poll Saturday.

Mr. Jenkins said Mrs. Evelyn O'Harrie was dismissed from the electoral staff following a complaint by, R. H. Hay, Liberal campaign manager, that she broke regulations by counting the advance ballots.

Advance polls were held Saturday and only for voters who will be away from home on general election day. The advance ballots are to be kept for counting after all votes are in June 18.

Mrs. O'Harrie counted the Kingston ballots despite instructions that they were to be left uncounted, Mr. Jenkins blamed the incident on "a woman's curiosity."

Electoral officials said the mistake was not a crime but a criminal offence.

Three Armed, Masked Bandits Get $45,000

QUEBEC (CP)—Three armed and masked bandits held up a Bank of Montreal branch today in suburban Roy and got away with $45,000.

Using a small piece of pipe, they smashed the front window of the bank in Place Laurier shopping centre shortly before the bank opened.

Before they drove off in an expensive white car, one of the bandits fired two shots in the air to disperse a crowd that had gathered.

Accused Admits Killing Officer In Street Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Ronald Turpin admitted Saturday he shot Constable Fred Nash in a street gun fight Feb. 12, but said he did it in self-defence.

Turpin testified at his capital murder trial he had—been driving along Danforth Avenue after grabbing the car keys when Const. Nash stopped him. Under the seat of his truck, Turpin said, besides $600 in loot, was a .32 automatic pistol. He said Const. Nash pulled him from the truck. The policeman shone a flashlight under the seat, took out the gun, then drew his own revolver.

Turpin said he was marched at gunpoint to Const. Nash's cruiser and pushed face downward across the fender. He pushed himself off the car to face the policeman, then spun around as if to strike him.

"I thought he was going to shoot," Nash's revolver went off in his face.

After that, he said, his recollection is hazy.

He remembered through the left arm and remembered seeing Const. Nash lying down.

Turpin said Nash wounded him three times before he fired back, but he didn't recall how the gun got into his hand.

300 Canadian Soldiers Cast Votes in Africa

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — More than 300 Canadian troops are casting their ballots this week in the Canadian sector of the Congo with the help of Canadian officers.

The sealed ballots from each of the 10 Canadian Nord-Atlantic Treaty Organization Congo units will be flown by special RCAF plane to Pisa, Italy, Friday. Another Canadian Comet jet aircraft will fly the ballots to Ottawa for counting June 19, when the results will be declared.

This is the first time Canadian voters have cast their ballots in the Congo.

Canadian signalmen are based in seven key UN centres in the Congo: Stanleyville, Albertville, Bukavu, Elisabethville, Kamina, Kindu and Leopoldville.

The commanding officer at each base has been appointed deputy returning officer for the election. At each point they will supervise the secret voting.

Canadian forces in The Congo now include 393 men of the 57th Canadian signal unit and 15 Canadian army officers on the staff at UN headquarters.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar was at a premium of nine per cent in terms of Canadian funds near-noon today. Friday the noon rate was $1.00. Pound sterling was $3.06⅝, unchanged.

Money Won in Competition Donated to Two Projects

TRENTON — Recently, the 150 employees at Hinde and Dauch Ltd. at Trenton competed in a safety co-ordinators' award, in competition with 11 other company plants. The Trenton mill has completed 444 days of continuous operation without a single lost time accident. Also entering into the picture is the fact that the Trenton plant has shown the greatest safety improvement record for a one-year period.

With the award went a $300 cash prize. Instead of spending the money on a plant picnic or other social activity, the workers voted unanimously to donate the prize money to the Trenton-Brighton and District Association for Retarded Children and the Victorian Order of Nurses.

Last Friday, at a brief presentation ceremony at the plant board room, Miss Margaret Jane Long, secretary to C. J. Boyce, plant manager, presented cheques for $150 to John Martin, retarded association president and Robert Barlow, YON head, locally, on behalf of the Hinde and Dauch employees. Present at the presentation were Mr. Boyce, Fred Gillan, office manager, Harry Trembley, union head at the plant, Tom Wilson, mechanical superintendent, William Seelog, a member of the safety awards committee and Miss Joan Moyer, YON nursing head.

In accepting the cheque for the retarded children's association, Mr. Martin commented on the "wonderful" response of area people to the association's need.

Mr. Barlow said that the YON cheque would be used for the order's charitable work. He said that the crest and motto—do—was that all who wished YON nursing care should have it, regardless of the ability to pay for the service, and that donations such as this helped the local unit to carry out this work.

WORKERS PRAISED

Mr. Barlow congratulated the employees on their fine safety record. Referring to the fact that Miss Moyer devotes several hours each month to volunteer work at Hinde and Dauch, Mr. Barlow said that he thought the decision to donate part of the award money to the YON reflected the high regard in which Miss Moyer is held at the plant. Miss Moyer's services are paid for by the local unit.

Mr. Boyce stressed the point that donations by the employees to the two organizations had been the work of the employees, and that the firm only said that knowing the workers, he was assured that each man felt that the work of the two organizations was very worthy of consideration.

Hitch-Hiker Killed in Car Near Brighton

TRENTON — On Saturday night around 11 a.m. an accident on Highway 2 three miles west of Brighton took the life of Roger Kinnear, 20, of Mondelands and sent 25-year-old Ronald Walter Shortreed of Portland suffering from concussion, Hope to Trenton Memorial Hospital suffering from concussion, abrasions, lacerations and shock.

Kinnear was a hitch-hiker in the Shortreed car. The two were alone in the car, which is reported to have gone out of control and to have struck a telephone pole. Shortreed has not been able to explain how the accident fully since he entered the hospital, although his condition is reported as satisfactory today.

Dr. W. O Elliott, Brighton coroner, has ordered an inquest into the cause of the accident.

Playgrounds Open July 3 For Summer

TRENTON — On July 3, Trenton's summer playground will throw open their gates to the town's school population. The playgrounds will be located at Dufferin, North Trenton and the Senior Public Schools; St. Peter's School, Hamm Park and Allison Park.

Last year, between 500 and 600 children attended the playgrounds, which are under the supervision of William Workman, recreation director, and his staff. In the recreation office (L.O.L. Hall on Ontario Street), is Miss Sandra Wrightman, assistant director, and each playground is in charge of one or more supervisors.

At the senior public school, Judy Wrightman and Nancy Bakay will be in charge; Hamm Park: Sheila Workman; North Trenton: Joan Hetherington; St. Peter's: Linda Sabetti; Dufferin: Allison Livingstone; Allison Park: Sue Leavy, Fred Wannamaker and Clinton Cox will assist at Dufferin and North Trenton and will also supervise the ball park in the mornings.

The children are not required to pay a fee, but they must put a registration form listing name, address, family doctor, etc. Each child attending must also agree to school for at least one year.

Playground hours are from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., with the children bringing their lunches.

Playground activity. Includes activity games and quiet interval. Any person willing to help will do handicraft work or enjoy a story hour. Special events are planned throughout the season.

Tommy Talks Tough, Girls Quit Canteen

LONDON (AP)—The British Army's canteen service told its soldier customers today their swearing was making it hard to keep girls on the payroll.

"The violence and persistence of the troops' swearing are having the unhappy effect of creating staff shortages in these establishments," said an article published by NAAFI, the organization that runs the canteens.

"Pipe down a bit, chaps, when the canteen girl is in earshot," said NAAFI.

"She's no prude; she's probably heard it all before. But she doesn't have to like it and if it gets too thick she may—and often does—hand in her notice."

Havelock Man Has Puffed Pipe For 95 Years

PETERBOROUGH (CP) John P. Thompson of Havelock, 20 miles east of here, started smoking a pipe 95 years ago when he was five. He still enjoys a smoke, he said at his 101st birthday party Sunday.

He likes watching television, especially boxing and wrestling. He has a good appetite and sleeps well.

He recalls that his father died at the age of 43 and three of his father's brothers lived to be 112, 109 and the third 104.

Mr. Thompson and his wife, married 58 years ago and now moving into a new home with three sons and a large number of grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great grandchildren.

Mr. Thompson says:

"I never worried much—everyone worries a little—but it is useless and does no good."

History Repeats Itself

If one refugee from Red China can be believed, what is occurring in that country is something much more important than a mere famine.

Frederick Noesal, correspondent for the Toronto Globe and Mail, received a letter from a refugee whom he had driven from the border region into Hong Kong. He interviewed the refugee.

Noesal was told that the Chinese peasants are refusing to work hard. They spend long hours in the fields, but accomplish little. Labor brings them no reward except increased hunger, resulting from labor-sharpened appetites. So they loaf. Production falls. They receive less for their labors. They work less.

Some may argue that this is not the attitude that a reasonable man would take. There are two answers. Firstly, the system under which they work does not provide, at least at this stage of China's development, for what we regard as reasonable—greater rewards for greater efforts. Secondly, and much more convincingly, there is the fact that what this refugee says is now happening in China has happened before —in Russia. There the peasants in the grain-rich Ukraine, disliking the heavy proportion of their harvest which the Soviet Government claimed to feed the cities' masses, reacted in a similar manner. They either worked less, or hid part of their crops; then they pleaded inability to meet the government-fixed quotas of grain. Stalin reacted ruthlessly—he seized the assigned amounts of grain and left the peasants to starve. It took Russian agriculture many years to recover from the effects of this policy.

In Russia, the resultant resentment failed to overturn the regime. But it is by no means certain that the Chinese communists would be as safe. For the present though, it does not seem as if true famine conditions exist, if we are to judge from the story told Noesal. This is in keeping with other reliable foreign reports, which described the refugees as hungry but not starved. Moreover, the conditions seem to have been the result of blunders at the local level, rather than being the result of an over-all policy. The refugee told Noesal that local leaders had overestimated the amount their land would produce and then, rather than admit their mistakes, had cut the rations of local peasants and fulfilled their quotas for the cities.

If the communists had been widely hated from the first, or if Chiang Kai-Shek's regime were fondly remembered, such blunders could occur. But the truth appears to be that the peasants started with a high regard for Mao and that they have no love for Chiang, nor of the system he represents. What they are looking for is a regime which will offer them incentives to work hard, yet which will protect them from the exploitation which they and their forefathers suffered for centuries.

Britons Seek New Alternative

Something fascinating is happening in British politics. At this distance, it is not quite clear just what this fascinating process portends and we are not at all sure that those nearer to the scene are much better able to judge.

Superficially, what is occurring is an upsurge in the fortunes of the Liberal party, earlier ground between the upper and working millstones of old school tie Toryism and the rise of a militant, politically-conscious working class.

But that is far too simple an explanation. We do not suppose that so many people have been converted in so short a time to the principles espoused by the Liberal party, as compared with the policies followed by the Conservative Government. A much more probable explanation is that the new Liberal voters, fed up with the government, are seeking to find some alternative without subjecting themselves to another dose of Labor rule.

Labor supporters may find this reaction both unkind and inexplicable, for has not Labor deliberately modified its policies to make the next dose as palatable as possible?

Perhaps, though, the voters have decided that the old Fabian dream about the inevitability of gradualness cannot safely be twisted into assurance that gradualness is inevitable. They may believe, with much evidence to back this view, that things have gone about as far as they can go along the road to socialism, without irrevocable changes.

Men have their intellectual ancestry, and the likeness of some one of them is forever unexpectedly flashing out in the features of a descendant, it may be after a gap of several generations. In the parliament of the present every man represents a constituency of the past. —James Russell Lowell.

AMA Resists Progress

Montreal Star

The American Medical Association spent an estimated $285,000 to put on a half-hour television program, carried by 169 stations in the United States, for the sole purpose of denouncing Dr. King-Anderson bill.

If the bill were passed by the doctors' spokesman said, it would be "a cruel hoax and a delusion", it would "circumvent and destroy" private, voluntary health insurance and the Red Cross; it would lower the quality and availability of hospital services; it would "interfere" between doctor and patient; it would "lay the groundwork of a different system of medicine for all Americans."

This, however, is as nothing by comparison with what the Federal Emergency Medical Service had said earlier about the bill. According to them, it "belongs in a police state" and "violates and outrages the Constitution of the United States more than any of the basic rights of every citizen."

* * *

From all this, it would be easy to deduce that the King-Anderson bill is a revolutionary measure designed to put the medical profession of the United States in fetters.

In point of fact the purpose of the bill, which has the backing of President Kennedy, is just this: to provide medical care for the aged at the lowest rate consistent at about a dollar a month for the average person to the social security tax which provides Americans with old-age pensions and other benefits. The Washington Post has said editorially, "the bill concerns the way in which such medical care shall be financed and administered. It has a solely nothing whatever to do with the question of physician or with the manner in which medical care is to be administered."

Why, then, does the American medical profession object to the King-Anderson bill? Apparently out of a pathological fear of anything that could be considered socialism affecting medicine.

* * *

The past record of the American Medical Association has been one of hostility to the National Council of Senior Citizens for Health Care Through Social Security, and it is an almost incredible one of entrenched reaction. Until its capitulation, a few years, the AMA has opposed:

Extension of Social Security benefits to the permanently and totally disabled at the age of 50 ("a serious threat to American medicine");

Elimination of the means test in the crippled children's program ("socialized medicine");

Federal grants toward maternal and child welfare ("wasteful and extravagant . . . tending to promote communism");

Private health insurance ("unrealistic").

Extension of Social Security benefits to the permanently and totally disabled at the age of 50 ("a serious threat to American medicine");

Elimination of the means test in the crippled children's program ("socialized medicine");

Federal grants toward maternal and child welfare ("wasteful and extravagant . . . tending to promote communism");

Private health insurance ("unrealistic").

This last is the supreme irony. The AMA's most vehement argument against the King-Anderson bill is that $125,000 a show was that it would undermine private health insurance, (for which few old people can in fact afford to pay). But, as the Canadian Medical Association Hospital Association has said, "it is a sad commentary that in the 1930s and early 1940s the AMA did not believe in voluntary sickness insurance, did almost everything to prevent its development."

From this side of the border it looks as if the AMA's continued reactionary role in American social progress — and at a time when medical science is physician or with the manner in which medical care is to be administered."

Why, then, does the American

Machines Aid In Teaching

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

One of the popular conversational cliches of this generation is the assertion that we are living in an age of machines.

Even so, it comes as a surprise whenever some new area is discovered in which mechanization finds its way. Our educators probably are well aware of the ally and threat they have in machines. We, however, products of the "taught to the tune of a hickory stick" era, are amazed at the advance of technology on the learning process and during the past few days, have witnessed considerable entertainment from conducting experiments with the question, "What's a Koncelopraph?"

The answer, in our own query, a Koncelopraph is one of the machines, a kind of mechanized teaching machines which is now on the market. There are two parts to the machine and controls the display of the material to be taught. The other section contains a tape on which the student records his answers.

The first provides the pupil with the necessary information and questions. When the handle is turned, the correct material is provided and may be compared with the comments of the user. Here is a flat way of combining the learner with knowledge and, despite some problems, a demonstrably effective one.

The Koncelopraph is only one of many such machines now being machines. Some are extremely complex, involving television screens and publication controls. As offered on the market, prices range all the way from $30 to $1,350.

Of course, for the average citizen in the impact of personality upon personality. No machine can devised, this is one area in which the most could be made quote.

But it is fascinating, nevertheless, that human genius has been able to assemble the various aspects of nurturing the very quality which created it. Recollection, however, is certain that the greatest mechanical boon in our own schooldays was a simple vice which held five pencil stubs in the top reduced by five times the magnitude of the chore of writing lines.

Much Depends On Our Point Of View

I am nonchalant; you are devil-may-care; he is wildly irresponsible.

My remark was witty; your remark was pointed; his remark was cruel.

I am flexible; you are pliable; he is a piece of putty.

When a person defends an unsalled-for act on his part by saying, "Well, at least I didn't hurt anybody but me," you can be sure that he hurt himself by it.

I drink to relax tensions; you drink to escape; he drinks to get drunk.

For most of us, what we call "ethics" is a set of spiritual dress-suit that we take out for formal occasions — banquets, conventions, and the like — and then hang back in the closet for our workaday lives.

When a man says, "Let's look at the facts," it is reasonable to assume that he has none of the evidence so that only those things he wants to see or believe are designated as "facts."

My daughter's engagement was broken off because "I got sent"; yours was jilted; his was betrayed.

I am interested in the arts; you are a dilettante; he is a cultural snob.

My industry lollops the load of its daily responsibilities; your industry administers prices; his industry is guilty of "price-fixing."

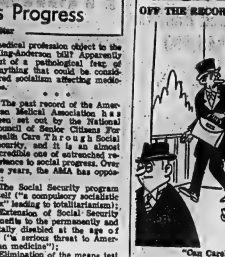
I take a sober view of affairs; you are a touch pessimistic; he is depressed.

My young child is "going through a normal stage"; your child is a "shit upset"; his child is "undergoing a crisis."

Whether we are "defying the legally constituted authorities," or "striking a blow for freedom," depends wholly upon our subjective relationship to the act.

The people who are called "frivolous" in society are really the most serious of all, for nobody else is grimmer and more concentrated in the pursuit of amusement than these frivolous people.

I firmly believe that "God helps those who help themselves" — until I am no longer able to help myself.



I am down-to-earth; you are somewhat pedestrian; he is utterly devoid of imagination.

Those who conduct their lives by the maxim "live and let live once," are often found, in fate's middle age, yearning hopelessly for a second chance.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Funny bank deposits in the public schools of the city for the months of March and April show a decrease of $301.31 as compared to figures of the same period in 1942. Total deposits for months are entered as $6,443.86 as at the end of April.

Whole-hearted appreciation of the bombed victims of Britain and the efforts of the members of the Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E., in providing blankets and warm used and new clothing for them, has been received in the form of several communications from the Old country. Outstanding in these messages is one from Buckingham Palace which speaks volumes of appreciation.

Chamber of Commerce directors at a recent meeting unanimously endorsed a resolution favoring the management of the Canadian National Railways to reconsider its intention of discontinuing Dominion Day excursions. It was stated that the supposition is that there is not a real necessity for the money, and that it is felt, could be postponed till after the war.

The opening of the city tourist camp has created a new centre of population in Belleville and while the shortage of housing accommodation being acute, trailer cabins are making their appearance on the site usually occupied by the casual tourist.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schryver of this city are celebrating today (Monday) as it is called, the diamond anniversary of their wedding and they have had a number of relatives at their home to observe the event, and congratulations and express good wishes. Many friends in the city and district will be pleased to offer good wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Schryver, prior to her marriage were Miss Mary Chase. They were married in the old Methodist church at Roslin by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Hicks.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hoskins (Dundas Street) have left for Vancouver, B.C., where they will visit their son.

Mr. Gardner Dulf of this city, has received the degree of Bachelor of Pharmacy from Toronto University.

Chautauqua week here will be from June 23rd to June 29th.

An ambulance will be presented to the city on the afternoon of June 23rd at a meeting on the lawn at the hospital by Miss Tait, the hospital superintendent. The ambulance which purchased the ambulance was raised through the efforts of the nurses by private subscription, concerts, a garden party and a grant of $500 from the city council. The ambulance is now on display at Riggs' garage.

Belleville and district Fire Chief's Association held its annual meeting in Belleville on Wednesday, August 9th, with big civic holiday.

Doug Harvey Shows Sense

Windsor Star

There is something refreshing about the decision of Doug Harvey, one of the hockey greats of all time, not to return to the New York Rangers as coach and player. He has rejected the job and the $25,000 attached to it (plus bonuses he might gain) because he wants to stay in Montreal with his family.

Mr. Harvey is a very intelligent man, on and off the ice. He is now with a firm of brokers. He is not willing to sell his services to the highest bidder if it means he misunderstands his normal and natural family life. But it takes courage to turn down material advantages in the form of $25,000.

We think Mr. Harvey is to turn down material advantages right. There are some things money cannot buy, such as love and family. And Harvey is intelligent and with a proper sense of values he will probably do all right financially, in or out of hockey.

Drugs containing griseofulvin are highly effective in treating ringworm, assuming that such is the cause of your nail trouble. Prime Minister Sir Robert Borden introduced the military Service Act in the Commons 45 years ago today—in 1917. It was launched off a bitter debate in which Sir Wilfrid Laurier, leader of the Opposition, opposed compulsory military service. The act became law Aug. 29 and led to conscription of 10,000 men for First World War service, although only 47,500 of these went overseas.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Referring to a scholar of some distinction, one of his colleagues said:

"He has a mind like one of those IBM computers. It can retains nothing but what has been fed into it."

The scholarly mind is being put to a spectacular test nowadays. So swift has been the rising tide of sheer detail, fact and particle in the past few or twenty years that the question is: how much can the human mind hold and still leave room for thinking? In most scientific areas, it takes half a dozen scientists to face up to a given question, it is like the famous tall oaks tree in the Paul Bunyan legend. It took five men a fortnight at the axe to a time in order to see the top of it.

I had lunch with three scholars the other noon. I was supposed to be discussing them but one had forgotten his wallet. One had shaved only one side of his face that morning. And the other didn't remember until we were leaving the restaurant that he was supposed to have had lunch with his wife.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

REGULATION BY LAW

Tyranny involves regimentation. Some people therefore get the idea that freedom, in the best sense of that term, is the privilege of doing whatever we want to do without restraint.

The truth is, however, that every person in the world must live under some form of regulation. Anything other than this would mean chaos. Individuals have to be regulated by law, countries by constitutions or some framework of government. Corporations, labor unions, every gathering together of human beings for any purpose whatsoever involves regulations of some kind. Too much regulation and we have tyranny; too little and we have disorder.

Civilization has come about as the result of two forces working together. One is the emergence of a system of regulation and the willingness of men to accept such regulation. The fair system of regulation exists and peoples and nations accept that system of regulation after due reflection, then we have civilization. As long as peoples have no system or resist the system that has been adopted under law, they are savages no matter how tall their buildings, how extensive their railways, how glorious their art galleries, how magnificent their music and their natural resources.

The ideal is — regulation without regimentation; submission without subservience.

500 Attend Picnic Staged By Lee Grills

Over 500 persons, the majority of them children, turned up Saturday afternoon for the picnic rally staged at Parkdale Community Centre by Lee E. Grills, Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings South.

Chairman Charles Keeble and his helpers had a full picnic program lined up for the occasion. Included were races of all kinds for all ages, peanut scrambles, treats for all and a men's and boys' baseball game.

The candidate entered into the spirit of the occasion and assisted as race starter and mingled both with the children and the adult picnickers.

Assisting Mr. Keeble with the picnic program were: Mrs. Lena Murray, Mrs. Rose Leslie, Mrs. George Miller and Mrs. W. Brown.

58 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's Atlantic Provinces nearly had a perfect safety record but elsewhere in the country fatality statistics were typical for a June weekend.

A Canadian Press survey of accidental deaths from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday showed a traffic death in New Brunswick as the only fatality in the four Atlantic provinces — Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia were all fatality-free.

But across the country a total of 58 fatalities were recorded, 36 of them in traffic mishaps. Ontario and Quebec accounted for more than half the toll with 17 and 15 respectively.

Ontario had 15 of the traffic deaths, while Quebec had eight, Alberta six, Saskatchewan five, British Columbia two and Manitoba one.

Quebec had four of nine drownings reported. Two of the others were in B.C., while Manitoba, Alberta and the Yukon each had one.

Fires claimed two lives in Manitoba and, one in Ontario, and six persons died in miscellaneous accidents, three of them in Quebec, two in B.C. and one in Ontario.

TWO KILLED BY TRAIN

Two of the unclassified deaths were from falls and another two persons were killed in a train accident in B.C.

The survey includes accidental deaths that result from the weekend activities but excludes natural deaths, industrial accidents and known suicides.

Ontario dead:

Eric Lubinski, 21, of Kirkland Lake when his car collided with a truck he was trying to pass near Kenogami, west of Kirkland Lake Saturday.

Roger King Kinnear, 27, of Brockville when a car in which he was a passenger crashed into a telephone pole near Brighton Saturday.

Mrs. Rosemary Sheehan, 45, of Ajax, in the car in which she was a passenger was forced off Highway 401 by another car and crashed through a roadside fence Sunday.

Craig Hobcroft, 19, after his car went out of control and struck a concrete abutment at a Newmarket shopping centre Saturday.

Gerald Kelly, 37, of Spanish, when his car spun out of control on Highway 17 near Spanish Saturday.

Grant Gilmoure Simpson, 26, of St. Catharines after a car in which he was a passenger missed a curve and rolled over Saturday.

Anne Simpson, 16, of Georgetown when a car she was riding crashed into a bridge abutment near Georgetown Saturday.

Onil Gastache, 18, his brother Alain, 16, both of Mattawa, and Barry Leveright Brown, 20, of Union, Ohio when a car in which they were passengers crashed into a road bridge Sunday on Highway 17 near North Bay.

Richard Haworth, 30, of Toronto, when a car in which he was a passenger rolled over on a curve on Highway 12 two miles north of Beaverton.

Sandra Rakuta, 8, of RR 5, Merlin, when she fell under the wheels of a water tank she was riding while her father was towing it by tractor at her grandfather's farm in Merses township near Leamington.

Shirley Gallant, 18, of Canning, in a head-on collision between a car and a light truck on Highway 30, three miles north of Campbellford Sunday.

Mrs. Nellie Hunter, 72, who died in hospital at Hamilton Saturday after her clothes caught fire while she was cooking.

International Co-operation In Finance Increasing

By FORBES RHODE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The exchange of $50,000,000 of each other's currencies by the United States and the United Kingdom is described in some quarters as a major breakthrough in the solution of national balance-of-payments difficulties.

Briefly, it apparently means that the United Kingdom will use the American currency as part of its foreign exchange reserves without converting it into gold; and the United States will, when necessary, use the sterling to pay some of its foreign commitments, instead of using gold.

This has the effect of easing the drain on American gold, one of the most unsettling factors in international finance and trade.

By itself the action probably wouldn't mean much, but it may introduce a new line of attack and is one more indicator of growing international co-operation.

IS POTENT FACTOR

Such steps won't cure unsound national situations, but they are poised in stopping artificial drains and panics from developing. They are the sort of thing that may not get big headlines but which may be highly fundamental than many that do.

In Canada last week some quite fundamental economic developments got caught up in political debate and until after June 18 people may find it hard to take an objective look at them, or strike an over-all balance in regard to their tug-of-war influences.

On the non-political financial front, one of the more interesting developments was announced by the chartered banks of a system of bankers' acceptance which amounts to one more step in the effective use of short-term money for financing purposes.

On the industrial front, International Minerals and Chemicals (Canada) Ltd., after a five-year effort, finally reached Saskatchewan's huge potash reserves from its $40,000,000 mine and mill at Esterhazy.

Pacific Petroleums Ltd. and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. announced plans for a $27,000,000 project to process and market natural gas liquids. The project includes a plant at Empress, Alta., and a six-inch 380-mile pipe line to Winnipeg.

Italian interests announced that a new pulp mill will be built on the Miramichi river at South Nelson, N.B., with the output reported to be around $15,000,000.

People Become Main Export Of Paraguay Ruled by Dean Of Latin America Dictators

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — People have become the main export of this landlocked nation ruled by the dean of Latin American dictators.

By unofficial estimate, from 500,000 to 730,000 citizens have gone abroad in the last decade or so. The latter figure would represent nearly half the population.

Most of the emigrants go to Argentina, Buenos Aires, 1,000 miles away, is a sort of mecca.

The reasons why they go range from political instability to limited job opportunities and the belief that things must be better elsewhere.

The emigrants have included the bulk of the political opposition to President Alfredo Stroessner.

Thousands of sullen, angry oppositionists remain, but their effectiveness has been muted by a state of siege. This puts the citizen directly under the jurisdiction of Stroessner with only theoretical recourse to appeal.

KEEPS TIGHT REIN

The state of siege has been in effect, under laws passed by 13 years. It is renewed every 90 days by an obliging congress. Stroessner, who has ruled since 1954, says the 1962 elections will be free and that the state of siege will continue.

Stroessner is maintained in power by the army and the usual forces of repression found in dictatorships. Plainclothesmen and informers are known to operate in force (around pub-rub-wells), a Guarani Indian word meaning "people with hairy feet." The bait presumably cushions their footsteps.

There are some signs of progress. Under Stroessner the country has built up its river fleet to a total of 30 ships of 1,000 tons. Constructing of low-cost homes for workers is under way. There don't seem to be badly off as their counterparts in other Latin American countries. Even in slum areas most people seem busily indifferent and some even happy.

Husband, Wife Finally United After 5 Months

TORONTO (CP) — Belinda Lee Lum's five-month struggle to be with her husband ended happily Sunday with the couple's reunion at Malton Airport.

The Lums' case began more than three years ago when Mr. Lum, now 29, began correspondence with his wife-to-be, then a friend of his sister in Hong Kong.

In September of last year Mr. Lum, with thoughts of marriage, went to Hong Kong, informing the immigration department of his plans before leaving Canada.

The Lums were married in Hong Kong Dec. 6. Mrs. Lum, 24 had passed immigration department examinations and only a landing permit for the bride's entry to Canada prevented their immediate departure.

In February the permit still hadn't arrived and Mr. Lum layed so pressure could be exerted on the Lums for information on illegal Chinese immigration to Canada. Mr. Wahn said that if his information was true, immigration officials were "in effect" using wives as hostages to force Canadian citizens and their families to subject themselves to investigation and possibly to self-incrimination in contravention of their basic rights as Canadian citizens."

The landing permit was granted shortly afterwards.

Canada Has Been Passed by Western Europe, "Not Good Enough for Canadians" Says Temple

HASTINGS SOUTH — Over 1,200 citizens in this riding gathered to meet Robert Temple, their Liberal candidate, during the past weekend. At a dance at the Club Commodore in Belleville on Friday evening almost 700 were in attendance to hear the popular young candidate speak briefly on the issues which are facing Canadians in the coming federal election.

These same issues were again discussed before an audience of over 350 people in Shannonville at the Orange Hall on the same evening.

Mr. Temple noted that under the Conservative government's mismanagement the Canadian people were faced with the problems of almost a half million unemployed, a festering national unemployment which was unable to even keep pace with Canada's natural population increase, a devalued dollar, a fall in prestige abroad and a $3,000,000,000 national debt.

"During my recent visit to the countries of western Europe, whose natural resources cannot even begin to compare with those which we have in our own country, I have seen full employment. I have even been where industries in Western Germany have had to go begging for employees — there were not enough people to fill all the available jobs. These countries have passed Canada by in the past five years and this is not good enough for Canadians," Mr. Temple said.

"This kind of situation, nor the continuance of this situation, cannot be allowed to exist" he exclaimed. Mr. Temple then explained the Liberal platform which takes a frank look at these problems and offers a positive program for Canada to regain her "rightful place in the family of nations."

By refusing to even admit to the very existance of the issues which are vital to Canada's welfare and future development, the Conservative Party and Mr. Diefenbaker are giving a pretty good indication that they are quite happy to allow things to continue as they are despite the perilous effect which lack of action on the government's part has played, he advised.

On Saturday evening about 200 residents of Hillcrest in Belleville gathered to pay their respects to Robert Temple as a man interested in and active for the needs of his fellow citizens.

A scroll was presented to Mr. Temple on behalf of the citizens of Hillcrest by Mr. Ron Schamerhorn, president of the Hillcrest Ratepayers' Association, for "outstanding work over and above the call of duty for municipal improvement by a councillor."

Mr. Temple also enjoyed a social hour or two with the Hillcrest people and, together with his wife Ortel, gave them a demonstration of the Vienna waltz. After this Canadian square dancing was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Temple also spoke on education and the very great role which it will play in Canada's future. It is very necessary for young people to obtain the best education they are capable of attaining, he urged. It is with this realization the Liberal Party has integrated a program which will include a student loan fund for students whose only reason for not carrying on with a better education is because of personal finances, he said.

There will also be 2,000 four year scholarships awarded each year to outstanding students. Four years after this program is started, which will be immediately after the election of a Liberal government, there will be 40,000 Canadian students receiving these scholarships each year, Mr. Temple noted.

Coupled with these factors will be the implementation of a system of free tuition for any student desirous of carrying on his education to either agricultural or technical schools, colleges or universities and an extension of the family allowances plan up to 18 years to assist students to continue their secondary school education, Mr. Temple advised.

"Certain factors in this program, such as the student loan plan and free tuition, were some of Mr. Temple's personal views on education and the rights of any Canadian to receive as high an education as he can which were made a part of the Liberals' national platform.

PC Candidate Asks Doctors For Funds

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Aitken, Progressive Conservative candidate in the suburban riding of York South, has confirmed Saturday she has asked doctors in her riding for campaign funds to help "specialized medical care."

Her finance committee chairman, R. Bruce Wallace, sent a letter to every doctor in the riding asking for money to assist her campaign.

Dated June 1, 1962, the letter says in part:

"There is good reason to believe that our main opponent will be the Socialist party candidate, NDP policies, including specialized medical care, are certainly not in the best public interest.

"This critical situation is brought to your attention . . . your influential financial assistance will be greatly appreciated."

Commenting on the letter, Charles Millard, the New Democratic Party candidate, said:

"The PCs are certainly correct when they say this is their main opposition—the Liberals count for nothing in this riding."

He said the Liberal party in Saskatchewan "is governing" with doctors there to wreck the medicare plan.

Road Paving Near Ivanhoe Now Under Way

Paving of the approximately five-mile stretch of Hastings county road from Ivanhoe village north, is now underway by Discher-Farrand Company of Toronto. The stretch of county road being paved is that which was re-graded last year as a developmental road project by the Ontario Department of Highways.

Paving was started a week ago and is progressing rapidly with the contractors working long hours to complete the job quickly.

HIDDEN CANDIDATE — Robert Temple, Liberal candidate for Hastings South, is almost hidden from view in the scene above which presented itself during the dance held in his honor last Friday evening at the Club Commodore. Nearly 700 people were present to hear Mr. Temple speak on the issues facing Canadians as well as to meet him personally.

Horticulture Executive Plans Meeting

The executive body of the Bellevile Horticultural Society held its meeting at the home of Mrs. W. G. Slack, 12 Sidney St., overlooking the Bay of Quinte, last Thursday evening.

The hostess was the secretary-treasurer of this society.

On motion and carried by constitution the 1962 paid-up members will receive a premium of 50c in value early this fall in the nature of bulbs and plants. The society membership is $1 per year.

The general meeting of June 28th at the Recreational Centre, Pinnacle Street, of this society hopes to have a distinguished gentleman from Brantford as guest speaker and the earlier discussed flower show later this fall.

Mrs. W. G. Slack, after the meeting, served coffee and cakes.

A pleasant evening was enjoyed with appreciation and thanks tendered.

A bus trip is planned to Oshawa on July 18th. Those interested please communicate.

DETENTION FACILITIES REQUIRED

A Municipality is required by law to provide separate for whom a form of temporary protective custody is advisable.

Inquiries are invited from residents of the City of Belleville or persons living in the close proximity of the city willing to undertake the responsibility of providing such detention facilities. A comfortably furnished room in a private home which may be made secure and with close by washroom facilities would be satisfactory.

It should be understood that although the room shall be available at all times, its use would be required very seldom. A substantially monthly retainer plus board will be paid to an acceptable party.

Interested persons should include full particulars about themselves in their initial letter, and forward it to P.O. Box 186, Belleville.

PTA Displays Art Institute Paintings

The president welcomed the teaching staff, school board members and parents.

Mrs. R. Nuttall has been appointed new secretary to replace Mrs. R. Hazell, who has found it necessary to resign. At present Year representative is P.T.O., Mrs. T. Cryderman will replace Mrs. Nuttall. Mr. William Johnston, vice-president Warkworth, has asked to be replaced. Membership fee for the 1962-63 term has been set at $1 per family, payable to the treasurer, F. S. Linton.

FINE ART DISPLAY

Attention was drawn to the fine exhibit on display in the auditorium from the Art institute of Ontario.

Chairman of the School Board, W. Rutherford, addressed the audience and made special mention of the newsletter which is being sent out regularly by the organization.

Mrs. Miles C. Hounsom and Mrs. J. Storey, retiring members of the staff, who had been dinner guests of the board earlier were called to the platform. Gifts were presented on behalf of the board by Mr. Rutherford and from the P.T.O. by Mrs. L. Odell.

The following program, with Mr. J. Clynoweth as-chairman was presented by pupils of Miss Mabel Stewart solo, Joyce Allen, accompanied by Mrs. L. Bennett piano solo, Maureen O'Sullivan; accordion, Mrs. Malcolmson. Marie Bettaglion; vocal duet, Larry Brickman; vocal solos by Iona Sharp, "Over Yonder" composed of Joyce Allen (clarinet); Larry Tredree, (drums) accompanied by Maureen Tredree, (drums) accompanied by Maureen O'Sullivan at the piano, played four selections.

On behalf of the audience, F. Si. Linton thanked all who had taken part in the entertainment, organizers and the committee to a close and refreshments were served by the social committee.

The Federated Women Teachers of Hastings and Prince Edward Region 4, held their final meeting, in the form of a tea, on June 8th, at Tabernacle United Church, in honor of the three teachers, Miss Faye Young, Mrs. Edna Emery and Miss Olive Elson, who are retiring this year.

The 1961-62 president, Enid Malcolm, presented each with corsages to complement their costumes, and Mrs. Dorothy Blakely read a poem of the occasional gift, a Federation spoon for each of them. She also extended congratulations for Malcolm, presented them with gifts from the Region, assisted in the classroom.

Fifty-three were present, among whom was Pearl Campbell, past local president and past Provincial president.

The business portion of the meeting took the form of reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by Naomi Hawkins, Irene Phillips and Mrs. Arnie Cathrey were delegated to attend the annual Federation meeting in Toronto August 15 and 16 at the King Edward Hotel, with Mrs. June Sine as alternate delegate. Mrs. Irene Phillips and Mrs. Eileen Darling were representatives at the recent conference held in Cornwall. Mrs. Phillips in her report dealt with the work of the "Good Will" committee and the benevolent fund, both chapters of Federation work. At this same conference it was announced that Belleville would be the site of the spring assembly in 1963.

NEW OFFICERS

The new officers for 1962-63 are as follows: president, Irene Phillips; past president, Enid Malcolm; 1st vice-president to be chosen at a later date; 2nd vice-president, Arnie Cathrey; secretary, Eileen Darling; treasurer, Shirley Lyons; goodwill, Grace McKeown; legislative and educational studies, Nan Shaw; status, Grace Anderson; professional development, Hilda Hodgen; newspaper articles, May Stewart; radio, Ella Williams; church and social clubs, Ruth Sprague; displays, Kay McGowan; banquet arranger, Phyllis Beatty, and Dorothy Blakely was reinstated on the Board of Directors.

The women teachers, Miss Olive Elson, on Provincial Board of Directors; Mrs. Edna Emery, on Provincial Salary Committee; Miss Faye Young, district president of Region Four.

Grace Anderson expressed appreciation to the past president, Enid Malcolm for work done throughout the past year.

Holloway United U.C.W. Sponsor Tea

A dainty lilac tea was held on Wednesday afternoon at Holloway St. United Church, under the sponsorship of the United Church Women. Lovely yellow peonies and purple lilacs and mauve stock adorned the tea room and pink peonies mingled with lilacs formed the centrepiece, flanked by pink candles.

Each guest table was centred by its own floral arrangement corresponding to the colour scheme.

Those who received the guests included Mrs. C. W. Coleman, wife of the pastor; Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Mrs. W. Oliphant and Mrs. J. Y. Townsend.

The tea room hostesses were Mrs. G. Cowling and Mrs. E. Hubbs.

Presiding at the silver services were Mrs. A. H. Denyes and Mrs. J. Cowles; Mrs. H. Outingstone and Mrs. R. Taylor.

Those who served included: Mesdames F. Rayfield, W. Shaw, A. Hitchon, A. MacMillan, L. Collins, J. Close, C. Wannamaker, P. Gryce, J. Dickson, E. Parks, J. W. Cavers and Mrs. G. MacFarlane. Those who replenished were Mrs. C. Jackman, Mrs. H. Dixon, Mrs. C. Cook and Mrs. J. Smith. Assisting were Mesdames L. Digby, I. Knight, D. Lucas, C. Cunningham, L. Taylor, D. Lee, E. Meynes, R. Doxsee, C. Veder and D. Richardson.

The home cooking table was convened by the members of Mrs. Pope and Mrs. McCorquodale's group and as usual presented a most delectable array of pies, cakes, cookies and what-have-you.

Mrs. Pope and convenors were Mrs. C. Calvert and Mrs. T. E. Pusie and the tea convener, Mrs. G. Hubbs to whom commendations are tendered for a pretty and most successful tea.

To Deal or Not to Deal Through Travel Agency?

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

(Q) "We have done a great deal of camping in this country and would like to consider trying it on Europe, but fear it might be pretty complicated what with customs arranging for equipment, etc. Also; are there adequate camping sites in Europe? We don't know anything about it."—Mrs. A.J., San Francisco.

(A) Camping has been at least as popular in Europe as in North America for some time now. Free areas and $1.00 a night equipped camp sites abound. For the first time, an American tour operator (International Travel Advisers, 413 E. Broadway, Alton, Ill.) is now promoting all-expense camping tours through Europe.

These range from about $1,200 for two for 30 days, including round trip jet transportation New York-London, use of a 1962 Ford Anglia (not including gas) and all necessary equipment (tent, beds, mattress, stoves, etc.) as well as documents, insurance and car maintenance. Also available from $1,500 for two is a car plus trailer with housekeeping facilities which sleeps four. Equipment and a camping kit are delivered at the airport on arrival in Europe.

(Q) "In the past we have always permitted a travel agency to make our reservations and trips to Europe and just paid what they were quoted for the over-all trip. This time we must be very careful of what we spend. A friend has advised us to let the airline make our plane and hotel reservations, and that we can make our sight-seeing arrangements once we are over there. However, how do we know how long to stay in each place? Since we have to have our hotels scheduled in advance, that is presents a problem." — Mrs. A.E.B., Columbus, Ohio.

(A) The lady has touched on one of the basic problems of to deal, or not to deal, through travel agencies.

It is true the airline (usually) will make hotel reservations and that you can make your own sightseeing arrangements once you get there. But the dilemma over how long to stay in each place is where the other travel agency's services come in.

For their services and efforts in setting up things, plus their reliability in making the hotel reservations dependable, travel arrangements are only a sideline with the agency, but they do avoid a lot of annoying hidden costs and headaches later, for the other hand, depending on how much personal service you demand, the agency may not charge you anything at all above the regular cost of your transportation and hotel rooms.

(Q) "Do you suggest driving our own car to New York or going by air, bus or train? Is cheaper or more convenient to get around New York in your own car or in public transportation?" — Mrs. C., Hancock, Minn.

(A) New York has one of the best public transportation systems and one of the worst parking setups in the country. Consider that a single booked hotel parking. Hotels charge $3.50 a night, and that's not for in-and-out service. If you do use your car around the city, you'd likely find nowhere to put it during the day anyway, certainly not for free.

Public transportation, on the other hand, includes the unbelievably inexpensive and fast (sometimes unbelievably crowded) subways; average bus service; and comparatively inexpensive and plentiful taxis. These are particularly appealing because most of what is worth doing and seeing in Manhattan is within a short hop of everything else.

(Q) "Would you help us on this shopping business? What about hotel discounts for big cities? And what is the procedure for a travel agency?" — Mrs. E.M.B., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

(A) A big city like the doorman type is confined to restaurants. In continental ("swank") restaurants you tip the captain — the guy in the tuxedo — separately from the waiter, and personally (unlike the waiter's) is tip left on the table).

Depending on who did the most work, we usually figure 5 to 7½ per cent for the captain, 7½ to 10 per cent for the waiter. If you order wine from a wine steward, he should get about 10 per cent of the price of the wine.

Question: My best girl friend and I live on the same street. We usually go to the movies on Saturday afternoon. Two boys who live in our neighborhood usually drop by to go with us but we always pay for our own tickets. Since this has become more or less of a "date," we think they should pay our way. Would it be possible to drop a hint about how we feel? — M.V. and C.C., Passaic, N.J.

Answer: Any girl who has to pay for her movie tickets should come from the boys. It would be unladylike for either of you to mention the subject. The boys simply have adopted a new routine and are not actually cheating you. If they steadfastly refused you each Saturday, that would be another matter. But the way things stand now, they're under no obligation to pay, and it would be bad taste to even hint that they should.

Question: We have a problem at the office. Would it be proper to buy a rocking chair for a fellow-employee as a gift for a Silver Wedding Anniversary? I say the gift should be something silver. What do you say?

— Mrs. V.C., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: A rocking chair is too personalized a gift from co-workers, especially for a Silver Wedding Anniversary. A very close relative or friend might properly give this sort of present, if the celebrant has expressed a keen hankering for one, but, as far as the office is concerned, I'd vote in favor of something silver.

Readers' Bonus Column

by Mary Moore

NOTE:

I am behind with my answers to readers so will use today's column space to answer some letters that I think will be of general interest.

QUESTION:

When I was single I made some orange pies. I don't remember where I got the recipe. I lost it and never came across one like it. I know I used eggs, orange rind, juice and lemon juice and cornstarch but I don't know how much of each . . . Anna S.

ANSWER:

Yes, it is an excellent pie.

ORANGE MERINGUE PIE:

9" baked pastry shell. Filling: 1 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup boiling water, 1 cup fresh orange juice, 4 egg yolks, 2 tablespoons firm butter, ½ teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Meringue: 3 egg whites, 1 tablespoon orange juice, 6 tablespoons sugar.

Filling: Blend sugar, cornstarch, flour and salt in top of double boiler. Slowly stir in boiling water, then ½ cup of the orange juice. Place over boiling water, cook and stir until clear and thickened. Cover and cook 10 minutes longer, stirring frequently. Beat yolks, then quickly stir in about 1-3 cup hot mixture, then pour back into double boiler and cook and stir 2 minutes longer. Remove from heat. Stir in butter, then rind and gradually stir in remaining ¾ cup orange juice in small portions, then lemon juice, stirring vigorously as you add the juices. Pour filling into cooled shell and cool 10 minutes. Meringue: Beat egg whites until barely stiff, add the tablespoon of orange juice and 6 tablespoons sugar gradually, beating until thick and glossy. Pile quickly but lightly over filling, touching crust all around. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes. Remove to cake rack to cool 2 or 3 hours before cutting.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice; Baked Farmers' Sausage; Piccalili; Scalloped Potatoes; Spinach; Rhubarb and Banana Betty; Custard Sauce; Coffee.

QUESTION:

I have misplaced your recipe for cookies that, contain pudding mix in place of sugar. They are delicious. Could I have it again please? . . . Mrs. K. H.

ANSWER:

I have run out of copies so have decided to repeat it here because it is so popular.

BUTTERSCOTCH OATMEAL COOKIES:

1 cup sifted cake and pastry flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup soft shortening, 1 package butterscotch pudding (not instant), 1 egg, beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup fine rolled oats, ½ cup chopped walnuts.

Sift dry ingredients together. In a mixing bowl, cream together shortening and pudding powder, then add beaten egg and vanilla. Beat well. Stir in rolled oats and chopped walnuts. Gradually add sifted dry ingredients to creamed mixture. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls onto lightly greased baking sheet about 2" apart. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 10 minutes or until cookies are golden brown. Yield: Approximately 4 dozen.

Wives Should Be Seen Not Heard in Politics

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Irma Douglas says the wives of political leaders should be seen and not heard.

"A wife has no business making the speeches. If her husband can't speak enough for the both of them shouldn't be in politics."

Being married to a man who may rate as one of the top political orators in the country, Mrs. T. C. Douglas finds it easy to go along with her own advice.

Mrs. Douglas joined her husband, New Democratic Party leader, on the hectic national campaign tour for the final two weeks before the June 18 election. She has confined her activity to platform appearances and handshaking.

"I'm just along for the ride," she told an interviewer during a stop at Peterborough, Ont. "I'm not a campaigner at all."

But party organizers along the route regard Mrs. Douglas in a different light. She has been meeting scores of people at each stop with a warm handshake and folksy talk about the problems of campaign wayfarers, travel arrangements and eating on the run.

Although her husband spent 17 years as the CCF premier of Saskatchewan, this is Irma Douglas's first experience at campaign travelling.

"I love it," she reports.

The campaign tour has actually been a rest for her after a month of dawn - to - daylight politicking in Regina where Mr. Douglas is bidding to upset a huge Conservative majority.

During that month she attended 60 coffee parties and met somewhere in the neighborhood of 8,000 people.

"If I never see another cup of coffee again I won't complain, I was almost afloat.

"Tommy wasn't able to get back to Regina very often and some member of the family had to keep the Douglas flag flying."

Mrs. Douglas's tiny figure—90 pounds neatly distributed on a five - foot frame — may have become better known in Regina than her ex - premier husband. Her boundless energy carried her to four and five coffee parties a day, meeting between 50 and 75 voters at each one.

FINDS LESS INTEREST

"And everybody out there talks politics, you can't get away from it."

By contrast, she says, few of the people she meets on the cross - country tours ask her about politics.

For her first swing across the country and back Mrs. Douglas took along one large suitcase and a traincase. Wives of onlookers along the route were astonished, particularly since she appeared to change outfits two and three times a day.

Her secret:

"I stuck to basics. Some sheath dresses and interchangeable suits. And I've been collecting travel tips along the way." The emphasis is on her favorite colors of navy blue and brown.

Mrs. Douglas met and married her husband 32 years ago when he was a Baptist minister on the Prairies. He entered politics two years later— "Just about the time I was old enough to vote" — and has moved up ever since.

LOVES MEETING PEOPLE

"It really wasn't much of a switch from being a minister's wife. The basic thing about the job is still people and I love meeting people."

Neither of the two attractive Douglas daughters has been active in the campaign. Shirley, Mrs. Tim Sicks, lives in London, England, and Joan is a graduate nurse working in a London, Ont., hospital.

One of Mrs. Douglas's side jobs is to keep Shirley informed of the campaign's progress. She clips every available newspaper along the route and mails them in weekly batches.

A diversion along the way is bird - watching. It is one of Mrs. Douglas's favorite hobbies back home "and it's an easy one to bring along on the campaign."

"No packing problems with it."

Rev. D. White Talks on New UC Curriculum

FRANKFORD — Frankford, Stockdale, Wooler, Bateawa and Glen United Church Sunday School teachers, 61 of them, met in Rose Lowery Hall, Frankford United Church, last Monday evening, to hear the new field secretary for Christian Education in the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church, the Rev. Duncan White M.A., B.A., B.D., speak on the new United Church curriculum and the use of the Bible in Sunday School teaching.

Dessert and coffee around a big table, arranged by Mrs. Raymond Rowe and Mrs. J. K. Beach of United Church Women, created a delightfully informal and happy atmosphere for the occasion. The table was charmingly set and decorated with spring flowers.

The Sunday School superintendents were introduced by the Rev. Charles R. Judd. Mr. Howard Richards, general superintendent of Frankford, Mr. Harold Wedgwards, Mrs. J. K. Beach, Mrs. Robert Tomecko and Mrs. G. Halsall, departmental superintendents, Frankford; Mr. P. Smith, Wooler, Mrs. Arnold Bateawa; Mrs. L. Thompson, Glen, and Mrs. J. Harrington, Stockdale.

HEAD TABLE GUESTS

Head table guests included the Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Beach of Frankford, the Pastor and Mrs. Donald Hiscott of Bateawa.

Mr. White outlined the new Sunday School curriculum of the United Church, which has been some years in preparation and which is being introduced over a three year period, backed by "The Word and the Way", a book written for the purpose by the Rev. D. M. Masters, M.A., B.D., Ph. D. of Queen's Theological College, and the "Study Guide" for its use and adaptation by Sunday School teachers and supported by the new Sunday School papers for all grades and the new magazine, "The Christian Home".

Mr. White's talk, illustrated with a turn-over chart and supplemented by group discussion, really inspired all the teachers present with new optimism and a vision of a wonderful future for rapidly expanding Church schools all over the country.

NICKEL IN WORLD MARKETS...JOBS FOR CANADIANS

How Canadian Nickel helped prevent an epidemic in British Honduras

Last fall, Hurricane Hattie ripped through the city of Belize in British Honduras. In its wake lay the danger of a major epidemic. And Canadian nickel helped prevent this grim possibility, just as it helps in the battle against disease all over the world. For nickel alloys were used in the processing of the drugs flown in to the stricken area. Why nickel alloys? Because they withstand corrosion; won't contaminate the product with metallic impurities; are easy to keep clean. Growth of nickel markets at home and abroad helps strengthen Canada's economy and helps provide more jobs for Canadians.

Lack of Money Big Handicap To Campaign - - Douglas

By BEN WARD

REGINA (CP)—T. C. Douglas sets out today on the second phase of his "shoestring" election bid to become the next prime minister of Canada.

The New Democratic Party leader will travel 5,000 miles, hitting six major cities in five days beginning tonight in Montreal and winding up here Friday night at what local organizers hope will be the biggest rally of his campaign.

He did a 6,300-mile swing around the country last week, ending Saturday night in Edmonton. Saturday night when he outlined the election issues he counted on $2,100. He was up at 5 a.m. Sunday to catch a flight here for a day of campaigning in the Regina constituency where he is making his personal election bid.

The 57-year-old former Saskatchewan premier, who resigned that office last year to take on the NDP leadership, told an Edmonton press conference that a lack of money is one of the major handicaps of his campaign.

He described as "ridiculous" the precarious figures that large amounts of American unions money would be poured into the NDP drive for votes. He was campaigning on a "shoestring budget" he said.

FLIES ECONOMY CLASS

Mr. Douglas said the major parties have been busy raising the country in $1,000-a-day chartered airliners with large staffs to attend them. He and Mrs. Douglas, along with two aides, have been travelling mainly on regular airline flights —"in the economy-price seats."

"But we're getting a good deal of work done," he added.

The leadership support in New Democrats across the country has been very encouraging."

The most surprising region was the Maritimes, where NDP candidates were finding more support than they had even hoped for.

Last week, Mr. Douglas opened his large-scale national campaign drive with visits to centres where the NDP feels it is most likely to gain seats. This week, he takes on the major urban centres.

At his Edmonton meeting, Mr. Douglas hit hard on three main themes — rising consumer prices, federal health care legislation, and the Democratic spread of nuclear weapons.

HITS NUCLEAR ISSUE

He said the New Democratic Party firmly believes that any expansion of the nuclear club of nations would be a tragedy for mankind.

"Right now, we can't get four nations to agree on nuclear disarmament," he declared. "How in the world could you ever hope to have 40 agree?"

He predicted there will be no clear verdict on Canadian soil within 12 months if either conservatives or the Liberals win the June 18 election. The campaign politics of those parties were full of "deliberate doubletalk" on the nuclear issue.

And if Canada got nuclear arms, Poland probably would follow, touching off a sharp expansion in the nuclear club.

Mr. Douglas said the latest series of price increases in consumer goods is another example of "flexing" the captive Canadian market.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's talk of "keeping the foreign corporations" into line was only a volcanic-spitting gesture.

PENALTY INADEQUATE

The NDP proposed to put new teeth into the Combines Act and crack down on price-rigging. He described the fines now levied against price fixers as "nothing more than licences to steal."

He said the party would start work on federal medicare as soon as it took office. It would offer to pay 50 per cent of the cost for any province which wants to set up a plan.

A small group of high school students in the audience heckled Mr. Douglas' medicare remarks, one shouting: "What will you do for doctors?"

This was a reference in the Saskatchewan doctors who have threatened to leave the province when it begins its medical care plan July 1.

Mr. Douglas, who blue-pointed the medicare plan while he was premier, said the doctors are bluffing. Income tax reports showed Saskatchewan doctors had the highest average salaries in Canada in 1961. At that rate they were $3,000 a year better off than Alberta doctors, and $4,000 above Manitoba.

The field is too green for them to leave," he said.

The NDP leader and his organizers were elated at the size of the Edmonton audience. It was only 400 under that which

Pearson Given Warm Reception In Que. Tour

By ARCH MacKENZIE

QUEBEC (CP)—French Canadas under Progressive Conservative rule has "ceased to play the important role which is its right and duty" and this constitutes a threat to Canadian unity, Liberal Leader Pearson told a meeting here Saturday night.

In practice, only a Liberal government has given "French Canadians the opportunity to fill the positions to which they are entitled in Canada," he said.

It was a warm reception on a warm night with about 1,000 on hand although the audience came and went, dwindling to about 700 at the end of the succession of speakers over more than two hours.

Sunday, Mr. Pearson rested, prepared a television program and talked to the Liberal Member Pierre Lesage of Quebec East. He scheduled the Liberal leader at Montreal Tuesday and Kingston Wednesday and Toronto Thursday, then he was leaving Montreal, the rest of the campaign he will be in Ontario, on present planning.

KISSES FOR LUNCH

Mr. Pearson has been kissing the country in $1,000-a-day chartered airliners with large staffs to attend them. He and Mrs. Douglas, along with two aides, have been travelling mainly on regular airline flights —"in the economy-price seats."

New Senators Will Be Named Before Election - - Diefenbaker

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker, entering the last week of the June 18 election campaign, planned to spend time at his East Block desk today before flying to Montreal for a major evening rally.

Mr. Diefenbaker was originally scheduled to begin the day with a Montreal visit but a series of appearances aimed at bolstering the election drive of Conservative candidates today. He changed his itinerary last week, however, and planned to arrive in the Quebec metropolis at 1 p.m. after a morning in Ottawa and lunch aboard his chartered Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-8B.

The prime minister's office was unable to say whether he planned an early morning call on Governor General Vanier in the campaign he would make during his appointment-free election day and, confident of re-election, that he would name senators on June 18.

Mr. Diefenbaker returned to Ottawa late Saturday morning from a two-day final barnstorming tour of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

PROMISES GRANTS

At Sydney, N.S., Saturday night, Mr. Diefenbaker said his Conservative government would "do everything possible to give economic growth through increased Atlantic provinces adjustment assistance grants to new secondary industries, and a national fisheries policy."

He conferred with representatives of the United Mine Workers of America (Ind.) in the hard-pressed industrial centre of the Nova Scotia steel and coal mining area, and said he would meet union, company and provincial government officials again after the election to work on the troubled coalings of the New Waterford colliery. Aug. 1, it employs about 1,000 workers.

The prime minister drew a large crowd which overflowed the 2,300-seat main auditorium of the Sydney Academy. Superintendent Vic Billard said 800 were in nearby classrooms, a small theatre, and the halls and he estimated another 1,000 stood outside.

The crowd was watched by three uniformed constables, who stood in the centre aisle of the auditorium. There was some lively heckling, but no serious incident. One man was arrested by police before the meeting for throwing eggs at the Conservative cavalcade.

READS FROM EDITORIAL

During his speech, Mr. Diefenbaker read long extracts from an editorial in the June issue of the Atlantic Advocate supporting his administration.

The magazine, published in Fredericton, N.B., said the Diefenbaker government "has given to the Atlantic provinces more by far than has any government of any other part at any time."

This was greeted by rounds of cheers, and a few boos.

Mr. Diefenbaker referred to the disrobing incident in Trail, B.C., in which four female members of the Radical Sons of Freedom sect of the Doukhobor religion, during one of his speeches. He said it was a case in which they "really got down to the naked fundamentals."

"Tell us about the coal mines," a heckler shouted.

Referring to the one man's interruption, Mr. Diefenbaker said: "That's about the usual proportion of objectors."

"What about this province?" the heckler demanded.

"I hope he had Mr. Smallwood's permission to speak," the Diefenbaker remarked.

DRAWS APPLAUSE

A policeman moved behind the heckler, but did not try to stop his interruptions. Then the prime minister drew a rounded warm applause when he told the man:

"My friend, if you're talking to yourself, you've got an audience that is the most intelligent you've ever had."

Mr. Diefenbaker urged Nova Scotia to return 12 Conservative MPs again for the province's 12 seats in the Commons, as it did in 1958. He was accompanied on the platform by Conservative Premier Stanfield, and Revenue Minister Nowlan.

Mr. Diefenbaker will fly back to Ottawa from Montreal early Tuesday to spend some time campaigning in Hull and Gatineau constituencies in Quebec, north of Ottawa, Tuesday.

He will spend Wednesday in Belleville, Ont., and Thursday in Toronto.

Gospel Forgotten In Government Says Thompson

CALGARY (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Sunday the world has a choice of either being ruled by tyrants or men "who are ruled by God."

He was speaking at the evening service at Bethel Tabernacle, an Evangelical church two blocks from the Prophetic Bible Institute where William Aberhart preached Social Credit 30 years ago.

"It ought to be part of a man's religion to see that his country is well governed," said Mr. Thompson. "Today we live in a world of turmoil where the Gospel has been forgotten. It has even been forgotten in government."

Mr. Thompson arrived here Saturday on the first flight from Vancouver and was scheduled to campaign today in his own constituency of Red Deer in central Alberta.

Mr. Thompson spent six years as a missionary in charge of a leprosy mission in Africa.

Campaign Tour

At Vancouver Saturday night Mr. Thompson told the 800-member BBB (Bob's Bright Boys') Club to bring recognition to young people of Canada.

But the scheme got off to a shaky start when Baker collected 750 at suburban Burnaby Central High School.

Only three of the seven walked up to the stage when their names were called.

Mr. Thompson congratulated the youthful campaigners, all in their early teens, and presented BBB certificates and Thompson tartan ties to each of them.

Mr. Thompson said the charter BBB members hadn't been "brainwashed" by constructive behavior.

Mr. Thompson said low profits, not greed, are forcing Canadian manufacturers to raise their prices.

"Mr. Diefenbaker can slip on the Kennedy mask and blame Ottawa for price increases but he will be putting business out of balance and will be destroying any hope we have of economic recovery," he said.

"Canada's fifty-pound economy, caused by reckless government spending, has established May's inflating inflation makes it impossible for anyone but a few companies to make a reasonable profit today."

Mr. Thompson said, his party is laying the foundations for an upsurge in Social Credit support in about a year.

He said voters in Quebec won't support the Liberals because they are a "party of sin."

"Taking a dirty sock off one foot and putting it on the other."

Polly Adler Dies of Cancer In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Polly Adler, 58, who told of a 25-year career as a call house madame in her book A House is Not a Home, died Saturday of cancer.

Born Pearl Adler in Yanow, Russia, she had been living quietly in Van Nuys, near Los Angeles suburb.

Miss Adler said she decided to write her autobiography after she was left broke and out of work during the depression and income tax suits.

The book published in 1953, said she ran a call house in midtown New York in the 1930's and after. She was often raided by police, she recalled, but was "taking" dollars in bribes and entertained police officials and politicians to avoid being put out of business.

After publication of her book, the U.S. Immigration service said the book might subject her to deportation as she had engaged in prostitution during the five years preceding her naturalization in 1939. No action was ever taken, though.

Friends collected to help her with her book, which sold more than 100,000 copies, but she left them penniless at her death.

Role of Private Citizen Most Significant in Community Life, Peterborough Mayor Tells Rotary

CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD — "The favorable corporate image of a community requires a planned, concerted effort on the part of all officials, employees, business enterprises and residents of any municipality," said Mayor Stanley McMullin of Peterborough, when he addressed the Campbellford Rotary Club on Monday.

He stressed the necessity of making a good impression on one's town. All citizens have a responsibility in the making of their town's "personality," as it might be termed, but it is necessary for someone to sit down and decide what the "personality" should be and like to the many people who will judge it.

OFFICIALS' RESPONSIBILITY

It is first the responsibility of the elected officials, their appointees and employees of a municipality contribute to a favorable image by the impressions made on the public. The municipal employee has by virtue of his position many newcomers or visitors seeking information or help from the treatment received by the police, the firemen, the clerk's office, or other employees of the city or town. Every letter written or telephone call received will leave a good or bad impression.

Business men and their staffs dealing with the buying public from another group, who can enhance or depress the town's reputation. Mayor the Bride, who is a service station man, said this is particularly true in his business.

The private citizen has a role to play and a significant one in the image of his municipality. If he is continually running down and belittling the efforts of his fellow citizens, it is certain he won't give the outsider or the newcomer a favorable picture of his town.

"Thus, we each contribute, consciously or not, to the picture of our municipality, formed by those who live or come to us. Whether or not it is favorable, depends on us."

The address was introduced by Paul O'Sullivan and thanked by Ross Taylor.

Mayor McBridge was accompanied on his visit by Alderman Harold Cerney.

Election Strategy Forced On Major Parties in Britain

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuter)—Current political trends have forced the leaders of Britain's two major political parties to ponder much earlier than usual the problem of the next general election.

It isn't likely to be held before 1964, when the present five-year term of Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative government ends.

But political strategic thinking now has to be done against a background of uneasiness caused by the spurt of British Labor, or in it at long last the real revival of the party which has been in decline since shortly after the First World War.

In the last nine months they have captured a government seat with a 22,000-vote turnover in one by-election and substantially increased their vote in a number of others.

A Liberal bid for revival in 1950 proved a fiasco, for with 478 candidates the party emerged from a general election with six members of the 630-seat House of Commons, the same number as before the contest.

But Conservatives fear that if Liberals field a great army of candidates in the general election, they will either "let the socialists in" or cause a stalemate.

The current House of Commons line-up is Conservatives and allies 366, Labor 254, Liberals 7, independent 1, vacant 2, total: 630.

Fleming Will Not Consider Any Change

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming said Sunday night the government is not considering—and will not consider—any change from the present Canadian dollar exchange rate of 92½ cents in U.S. funds.

"This is a matter established finally," Mr. Fleming said in a statement issued from his office.

Agriculture Minister Hamilton was asked a question on the matter press conference Friday that he supports a further devaluation of the Canadian dollar to 90 cents in terms of United States currency.

"What a way to run the country," Mr. Pearson said, Finance Minister Fleming had said he was satisfied with the present pegged rate of 92.5 cents and here Mr. Hamilton was saying he and some cabinet colleagues wanted an even lower rate.

ST. LAURENT APPEARS

At Quebec, the audience compared with the night turnout in the same Durocher Hall for Prime Minister Diefenbaker when he spoke. The plain form was loaded with Liberal dignitaries from former prime minister and Mrs. St. Laurent on down to assorted area candidates and workers.

Mr. St. Laurent, who has been doing some campaign work in his election, said it did not appear that progress had been made economically or in Canadian unity under the Conservatives.

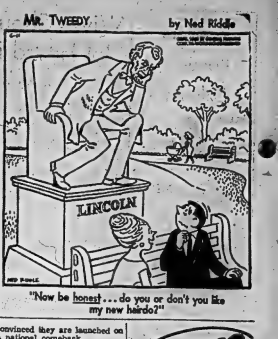
Mr. Pearson, speaking almost entirely in French as he did at Trois-Rivieres, said it is unthinkable for Liberals "that our leaders should ever say, as those of Mr. Diefenbaker's minister have said with impudence and arrogance, that Canada could be governed without the participation of Quebec."

He referred to the end of 30-minute talk, interspersed among others given by Mr. St. Laurent, Liberal front - bencher Lionel Chevrier and others, the hum of conversation from the back of the hall rose steadily. There were about 1,500 seats and the rest of the audience stood at the rear, sibling and flowing while Quebec Progressive Conservative speeches to a shifting group of bystanders in the working-class district.

One interruption in the frequently-cluttered addresses was the showing of a flag sponsored by the Canadian National Rally — one displayed frequently before elsewhere. It was halved diagonally into red and white sections and bore a big green maple leaf in the centre.

It was paraded by two men as Maurice Lamontagne, economic adviser to Mr. Pearson and candidate in Quebec East, pedaled a distinctive Canadian flag by a Liberal government.

The audience stood and sang O Canada.



Sunday, Mr. Pearson and his wife attended a select social gathering at the home of Mr. Lesage, tied in with the prime minister's 45th birthday. They talked privately for a half hour.

Mr. Lesage has taken no part in the campaign because he has said, this would be contrary to Quebec practice.

Liberal Leader Pearson drew in the same hall May 29, a bit higher than the turnout for Mr. Diefenbaker May 25 in the 4000-seat Edmonton Arena.

Bridge Across Bay Will Be Built Says Road Minister

PICTON — Thirteen hundred adults attended a strawberry social Saturday night on the lawns at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pearce in Napanee. Arranged by the Napanee section of the Ladies' Progressive Conservative Association, guest of honor was the P.C. candidate in Prince Edward-Lennox, A. Douglas Alkenbrack.

Guest speaker was Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Highways for Ontario, who substituting for Hon. W. Monteith, Federal Minister of Health, who was ill.

Referring to reports that the proposed bridge connecting Prince Edward and Hastings Counties, near Deseronto, would not be built, Hon. Mr. Goodfellow elicited cheers when he declared, "I can assure anyone who may be concerned about this matter, that a start is to be made on the bridge this summer. I am not only sympathetic because of my family connections with Sophiasburgh township in its earliest days, but because the bridge is needed. In my forty years of public life, I have never made a promise which I have failed to carry out, and I promised a bridge would be built. We Conservatives do things not make promises as the Liberals did 25 years ago regarding hospital insurance."

Other points made by the Minister included the statements: 'Prime Minister John Diefenbaker is a dedicated man and has given good government for Canadians'.

'The government's record of accomplishment has been so satisfactory that the Opposition did not vote against any of the legislation and now are not in a position to criticize'.

'Unemployment is chronic; a great deal is due to lack of training, and the vocational and technical school building program will help solve this'.

'Many may forget that the dollar was devaluated to ninety cents under a Liberal government.

Canadians should be proud of the Prime Minister who stepped into the breach and told industry that it should not take advantage of the pegged dollar to seek higher prices. Praise is due Weston Ltd., and Imperial Oil Co., for holding the line. Mr. Diefenbaker is to be congratulated on seeking to protect the consumer".

Mr. Goodfellow spoke of pension increases given by the Conservative government, of the national hospital insurance plan inaugurated and other issues of the campaign.

Introduced by Norris Whitney, M.P.P., the Minister was thanked by George Tustin, ex-M.P., who remarked "we know what we are supposed to do on June 18 and we are going to do it".

PLATFORM GUESTS

Leading support to candidate Douglas Alkenbrack, were platform guests, Mayor H. J. McFarland, Prince Edward Warden John Fox, Lennox Warden Joe Shelley, C. A. Milligan, ex-MP; Mrs. Walter Hind, Prince Edward ladies' president; Major C. D. Sills, ex-Warden D. O. Reynolds; Phil Dodds, B. C. Hepburn, association president; Ben Thompson, ex-MP (Northumberland), Fred McPherson, past president of the Riding Association.

Chairman for the program was Miss Kaye McFarland, president of the Lennox Ladies' Association. Introduced was the candidate's father, Claude Alkenbrack, who still operates the family farm.

Douglas Alkenbrack delivered a vigorous address in which he pledged himself to the service of the people of the riding, and support of the Conservative government and its policies. He reported growing enthusiasm as noted on his house-to-house calls. He won applause when he declared "it's the same old game trying to get back in office," and again when he asked "do you really believe the Liberals have the answer, that they would be able to carry out so many promises and yet lower taxes?"

Mr. Alkenbrack pledged himself to tireless efforts on behalf of agriculture, to attract industry and said that established, to co-operation with municipal councils, farm groups and others in presenting the needs to Ottawa and seeking action.

Speaking of the campaign in Northumberland, his home riding, Hon. Mr. Goodfellow stated: "Things look good in Northumberland. After June 18, we will be able to give Dr. Jewett (Liberal candidate) a one-way ticket to Ottawa to resume her teaching at Carleton College."

The minister paid tribute to the Conservative candidate, Harry Bradley, teacher at the Campbellford high school who had thought it was his first due to the young Canadians to complete the school term. "It is a handicap for a candidate not to have more time but we are proud that we have a young man with such a degree of honor and sense of responsibility."

Family of Six Lose's Home, Contents at Cherry Valley

PICTON (Special)—The parents and four children escaped in their night clothes early this morning when fire destroyed their frame home in the village of Cherry Valley, five miles south of the town.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Thompson had purchased their home from Blanche Hughes at the end of May. The home and all contents were destroyed.

At three a.m., Mr. Thompson was awakened by dense smoke. He aroused his wife and was able to gather up their four sleeping children and carry them to safety before flames enveloped the house.

Only the fact that Mr. Thompson is a light sleeper saved the family. The children were sleeping in downstairs rooms.

Camp Picton Fire Department answered the alarm but could do nothing to save the building.

The Thompson house was among a row of others but the other dwellings were not endangered as the slight breeze was blowing across the street toward the cemetery.

The incessant ringing of the telephone aroused village residents and about 100 volunteers turned out to assist in guarding against spreading of the flames. Mr. Thompson is an employee of Quinte Milk Products at Wellington. The Thompson children are Connie, 8, Ricky 7, Tony 4 and Heather 2.

230 persons who were guests of the Young Conservatives of Sophiasburg.

A similiar dance is being given by North Marysburgh Conservatives in honor of Mr. Alkenbrack in Waupoos town hall, Tuesday night.

First Tenders For New Bridge Will Be Called

PICTON — First tenders in connection with the high level bridge which will connect Prince Edward County with Hastings County near Deseronto will be called this summer, declared Norris Whitney, M.P.P., Prince Edward-Lennox. The Government has announced that the bridge will be built and in my ten years as a member I have never known any of the Departments fail to keep their promises.

Mr. Whitney was denying reports in part the bridge will not be built. Plans are being finalized and a great deal of engineering must be done before tenders are called', he pointed out. He paid tribute to the assistance given by Douglas Alkenbrack, Conservative candidate in the June 18 election, who, he said, as Mayor of Napanee in 1957 had strongly advocated the connecting link with highways 2 and 401. "With two Conservative members we can form an effective team to work for the interests of the Riding', he stated.

"I believe the bridge will benefit the whole area', stated Mr. Alkenbrack', and it should be an incentive for industry to locate in this district'.

'A bridge will be a great thing for farmers of this township of Sophiasburgh and a boost for the tourist trade', stated Reeve Lorne Young, who is president of the township Conservative Association.

Speeches were brief, giving way to dancing by more than

LEE GRILLS OBTAINS ADDITIONAL GRANT FOR BELLEVILLE SEWAGE DISPOSAL PROJECT . . .

Through the efforts of Lee Grills, Belleville voters are being served an additional $60,000 in the cost of the city's new two million dollar sewage project. The Diefenbaker government, in what Mr. Grills termed a "bold step never before attempted" offered assistance to municipalities undertaking sewage projects, but Mr. Grills as Conservative Member for Hastings South was able to secure an additional $240,000 loan of which $60,000 will be a free grant to the city. In picture, Mr. Grills (right) mounts bulldozer as vantage point to view construction at sewage plant site with Alderman Jack Ellis, chairman of council's sewage project committee. Mr. Grills points out that raw sewage has been going into the Bay of Quinte from Belleville and Trenton and the erection of sewage disposal plants at both places through the assistance of the government, will result in clean water in the bay. This would mean a major tourist attraction as well as being most beneficial from a health standpoint.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Colleges professors, editorial writers, authors and others of the literati have their proper, concise way of transferring the King's English to the foolscap.

Sportswriters, sports editors, sports feature writers and others who occasionally put down their ideas in the printed word, operate in a world of their own.

They exercise the latitudes permitted them. Some of the words and phrases appear foreign perhaps to the eyes and ears of the layman. But they are merely part and parcel of the colorful slang argot of the sports world.

Several times this department has been asked the meaning of some of the "strange words" heard and read in the exciting world of athletics.

Here are a few which may save some brow-wrinkling when you see them on the sports pages or hear them over the air-waves:

"Active Rope"—Not the hangman's noose but the length of rope between two mountain climbers.

"Alle"—Not that something that upset your stomach. An opponent in a judo match.

"Annie Oakley"—Not your favorite female western star. A free admission to a sports event.

"Bed Posts"—Not where teen-agers park their gum. The 7-10 split in ten-pin bowling.

"Blowing and Going"—Not a political speaker. An auto-race driver who is travelling fast.

"Bilge"—Not political talk, depending on which party you favor. That part of the canoe below the waterline.

"Closed Mohawk"—Not an Indian in the pokey. You'll hear this if you are watching or reading about figure skating.

"Chasse"—Not what you like about your favorite movie star. This, too, is a figure-skating expression.

"Frog Hair"—Not the fuzz on your favorite fish-ing bait. The long thin blades of grass surrounding traps on some golf courses.

"Goosneck"—Not the thing you're thinking it is. It's the metal device that secures a boom to a mast in your boat. Friend's spelling.

"High and Dry"—Not that five a.m. New Year's Day feeling. It is a ship aground on a shoal.

"Hobey"—Not what wives think the old man's out late excuse is. It's a rodeo expression when two calves are roped together.

"Luff"—Not what youngsters fall in, in the spring. It's a nautical term meaning to sail nearer to the wind.

"Muddler"—No, it's not her, nor your fodder either. It's a horse that runs well on a rainsoaked track.

"Pig"—Not the home of the ham. It's a horse which quits during a race.

"Rake"—Not what you hope cannot be found when the lawn needs clipping. It's the angle of the bow or stern of a boat in relation to the water.

"Rocker"—Not what the spouse says you're off when you come up with an alibi. It is a roller-skating term.

"Two-Hand Snatch"—Not what wifey uses when she spoils the weekly pay cheque. It's a term used in weightlifting.

"Bight"—Not what the office character tries to put on you. It's a nautical term meaning any part of a rope between the ends.

"Lurz"—Not the members of the opposing team. In horse-racing it means horses that pull on one side of the hill.

"Claw"—Not what TV private eyes are always seeking. It is the after corner of a fore and aft sail.

Twins Share Lead, Birds Stop Yanks Take Pair From Chisox

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

There is some question regarding Rich Rollins' rookie status but no one questions the right of the sensational Minnesota third baseman to be rated among the American League's most valuable players in his first full season in the majors.

The 24-year-old bonus prize was red hot again Sunday as the Twins conquered Chicago White Sox twice, 8-4 and 11-7 to climb into a virtual first-place tie with New York Yankees. Rollins rapped five hits, drove in three runs and scored three times.

The Yankees, beaten twice by Baltimore Orioles, 5-1 and 7-3, still hold an edge of 10 percentage points over the Twins.

Los Angeles Angels swept past Detroit Tigers into fourth place by beating Kansas City Athletics twice, 14-6 and 5-4, while the Tigers were losing two to Washington Senators 2-1 and 5-4. Cleveland Indians downed Boston 9-3 after the Red Sox had won the opener 4-3 in 11 innings.

The Yankees walloped Baltimore 7-3 Saturday while the Twins tamed Chicago 5-3, Cleveland collaborated to beat 14-10, Washington topped Detroit 4-3 in 10 innings and Los Angeles drubbed the Athletics 8-1.

BOOSTS BATTING LEAD

Rollins raised his league leading batting average to .336. He reached base six straight times before relief pitcher Ed Fisher struck him out in the sixth inning of the nightcap. He also cracked two singles, walked and his hit streak ended in the opener and then singled and drove in two runs with a triple before Fisher got him.

The stocky infielder joined the Twins organization in the mid-season of 1961 and made only 17 plate appearances last year.

Normally, this would qualify him as a rookie this year because he came to bat fewer than 90 times. However, he was with the club more than 45 days, the limit for determining rookie status the following season.

Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison, Lenny Green, Don Mincher and Zorro Versalles were the other Minnesota homer hitters as pitchers Jim Katt and Camilo Pascual registered their fifth and eighth victories, respectively.

Home runs also sparked the Orioles to their double victory.

Yankee Stadium, Whitey Herzog and Russ Snyder connected in the first game in support of Milt Pappas' sixth victory. Brooks Robinson and Jackie Brandt were the fourbagger men in the second game to smooth the way for Skinny Brown's third triumph.

NATS' FIRST SWEEP

Homers by Joe Hicks in the first game and Chuck Hinton and Dale Long, together with tight pitching by Don Rudolph aided Dave Stenhouse, who was responsible for Washington's first double-header sweep of the season. The two victories stretched the Senators' winning streak to four games.

Second-baseman Billy Moran drove in six runs, three with his sixth homer, to spark the Angels to their first-game triumph. Leon Wagner's first-inning single snapped a 5-5 tie in the second game.

After rookie catcher Bob Tillman's 11th-inning homer had won the first game for the Red Sox, Cleveland gained a split on the slugging of Larry Elsdall and Al Luplow. Kindall slammed a three-run homer, two singles and scored twice in the nightcap, Luplow, who also contributed two scintillating catches in the outfield, drove in three runs with a triple and sacrifice fly, doubled, singled and scored once.

Nicklaus Was Second

Littler Wins Golf Epic

By JIM BECKER

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Not since Ben Hogan did it in 1951 has a U.S. Open champion repeated, but Gene Littler, the sweet-singer from San Diego, Calif., made it clear today that he is a real threat for his second straight this week at Oakmont, Pa.

"I'm pretty confident about my game," said Littler who collected the $25,000 first prize—top payoff of the year—in the $100,000 golf classic Sunday. "I'm playing as well as I am capable of playing. I won't be the favorite though. I never am."

Those are strong words for Littler, an even-tempered quiet man who finally made prediction of a kind and stand up when he took the Open last year at Oakland Hills.

He banged out a five-under-par 67 Sunday to come from a stroke back of Jack Nicklaus and finish with 275, a four-day total of 13 under par on the 7,055 - yards Upper Montclair Country Club course.

FADES TO SECOND

Nicklaus had a final 70 for 277 and Wes Ellis and Dow Finsterwald split third with 280.

Littler's victory shot him into second spot among the pro money winners with $53,304.16, behind Arnold Palmer who has $60,337. Palmer had a poor tournament, never contending, and wound up with a 71, for 290 and $460. He spent more than that on new golf club grips, during the tournament, trying to straighten out his game.

Littler broke Nicklaus' heart early in the final round, with a string of evenly spaced birdies, on holes 1, 3, 5, 7, and 8. He turned in 33 and coasted home.

Nicklaus, who pocketed his biggest check as a pro, $10,000, for second place, made a final run at the lead on the 600-yard last hole when he banged two wood shots to within 17 feet of the pin while Littler hit a trap with his drive, pitched out and trapped his third. But Nicklaus missed his eagle putt and Littler blasted within eight feet and got down for a par.

Sam Snead, the half - way leader rallied from 78 in the third round to a two-under 70 to finish in a 10th-place tie at 284.

Three Canadian golfers picked up money in the tournament. Stan Leonard of Vancouver shot a 69 after three straight 72s for a 285 total and $1,580 in prize money.

Toronto's George Knudson had a 72 for 287 and $1,175. Further back was Al Johnston of Montreal, who shot a 73 for 288 and $805.

Unbeaten 'United' Goes Home

TORONTO (CP) — Sheffield United soccer club headed home Sunday night with an unbeaten record in a 10-game exhibition tour of Canada and the United States.

They capped a coast-to-coast tour here Saturday night by shutting out Eintracht of Frankfurt, West Germany, 4-0 for a tally of nine wins and a draw.

A crowd of 10,503 saw Edder right Keith Kettleborough score three goals and centre forward Derek Pace add a single while stalwart Sheffield defence and netminder Dave Thomson combined to turn back Frankfurt thrusts.

Engine Failure Halts Duel

Gregory Wins Mosport Classic

By FRED CHAFE

ORONO, Ont. (CP)—Masten Gregory, a quiet and bespectacled 30-year-old from Kansas City, drove his Lotus 19 to victory in the 200-mile international sports car race at Mosport Park Saturday.

Gregory took the checkered flag, the Player's Cup and $3,300 in prize money when engine failure ended his blistering duel with Dan Gurney of Riverside, Calif., in a similar car.

Gregory, now racing professionally for the British UDT-Laystall team, covered the 80 laps of the winding, hill-and-dale 2½-mile track in two hours, 10 minutes and 36 seconds, an average speed of 88.16 miles an hour.

He had a margin of a minute and 43 seconds over Roger Penske of Philadelphia in a Cooper Monaco, the only car he failed to lap.

He had a margin of a minute and 43 seconds over Roger Penske of Philadelphia in a Cooper Monaco, the only car he failed to lap.

BEGINS RUNAWAY

The Californian, who had been blasting the first half of the race, forged into the lead on the 15th lap and proceeded to run away from the field to build up a 30-second lead at the half-way mark of the 200. In the process he lapped at a minute, 34.3 seconds, only one-tenth of a second off the lap record set last year by Stirling Moss of Britain.

Starting from the front row, Gregory said later, he became violently ill on the track when oil fumes penetrated the cockpit and was forced to slow his pace.

Penske, who had set the second heat and held a consistent second place lead until the 14th lap when Gurney began to fall back. Gurney's over-all margin of victory was 1 minute 43 seconds the car into the pits on the 21st lap and he never did win an overall racing engine.

Two laps later Jim Hall of Midland, Tex., who appeared to have third place locked up in his Corvette-powered Chaparral, suffered a similar fate.

That left the No. 3 spot to Bob Holbert of Warrington, Pa., in a Porsche RS61. He was two laps behind Penske. Fourth was Bradley of Toronto at the wheel of a Lotus 19 and fifth came Jokkin Jackson in the Lotus-in another Porsche RS61.

Only 15 of the 20 starters finished the grind. Among them was Olivier Gendebien of Belgium, 9th in a Porsche RS61 which was flown in overnight by Mr. Dalis Speaks from Montreal which he had been scheduled to drive failed to get his car started.

Two highly-rated contenders were among those succumbing to mechanical woes. James Ireland of Scotland retired his Ferrari Dino after lengthy pit stops for a misfiring engine and Canadian Rodger Ward of Indianapolis had to quit in the second heat after finishing 10th in the first 100 miles.

A paid crowd of 28,654 attended, many camping overnight in the spacious park 60 miles east of Toronto.

In preliminary events, Norm Nanerow of Montreal won the production sports car race in a Corvette; Peter Revson of New York captured the Formula Junior contest in a Cooper and Hayes won the touring car race in a Chevy II.

Quinte Harness Race Meet

Lady Driver Steals Show

By GEO. H. CARVER

Sports Editor

A woman driver showed clean pair of wiley wheels to her male opposition at the second successful harness meet of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club here Saturday night.

Miss Reta Herrington, breeder, raiser, trainer and driver of Brighton, won three heats and shared a fourth before a fair-grounds crowd of over 600 race enthusiasts.

Miss Herrington piloted her own "Billy Sunday H." to win the first heat of the "D Classified" race, and split the victory with Woodcock Hanover of Springbrook in a dead heat.

In a fine display of driving Miss Herrington brought "Bradcliff," an Oakville - owned horse, from the rack in the "D Classified" race, winning both heats to round out a perfect night.

A complaint said to be "interference" was lodged by the driver of the horse finishing third in the "D" race second heat. Judges dismissed the complaint after investigation and announced "Dominion K. Song," a Gaspanoque-owned chestnut filly, had led the dead heat decision.

To go all out to win the "A Classified" race in straight heats.

"Atomic Selka," driven by Heath of Campbellford, gave the winner plenty of trouble, leading the field in the second heat most of the way. "Dominion K" made its bid at the turn to win by a neck while "Selka" in turn aimed "Dr. Baker Jr." by the same distance to grab the place spot.

It was one of the best cards seen here in some time. Cluster finishes marked most of the heats with the crowd on its feet as the packed fields swept into the stretch.

A trifle spectacular perhaps was the Herrington - driven "Bradcliff," which trailed the field at the start of both heats.

Miss Herrington took the reins to the outside coaching the first turn and "Bradcliff's" backers started to figure when the horse, in terrific bursts of speed, sped past the field to take the lead. At that he was given a stiff battle by "Gregg C." in the first and "Sunday Mas Grattan" in the second heat.

The new pari-mutuel betting system is proving highly popular with city and district race-goers.

The system is "operated underneath the grandstand under the supervision of federal and provincial government inspectors.

And don't think for a moment it is monopolized by the mere males alone. My guess is that nearly forty percent of the "take-a-chancers" are women racing enthusiasts.

There were no spectacular prices paid Saturday night. They maintained a fairly good level, the highest being $4.80 to win in the first heat and $8.60 to place in the second. It was not a night for the long-shot bettors.

The "handle" was reported at $2,800, an increase of $600 over last Saturday's figure.

The Quinte Driving and Riding Club is providing a dual attraction next Saturday. In the afternoon the annual Horse Show takes place with the third of eight seasonal racing meets following in the evening. Post time 8:00.

Skidding Giants Drop Six In Row

Steven Ling Had Himself A Field Day

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

As certain as death and taxes is a San Francisco Giants swoon in June.

In each of their first four seasons in San Francisco, the Giants stormed into June and 15 close to first place in the National League pennant race only to fall flat on their faces in the month of honeymoons and traditional bliss.

This year, their fifth on the west coast, has been no exception. They absorbed two more defeats at the hands of St. Louis Cardinals Sunday—5-4 and 15-2—extending their losing streak to six straight games.

The double defeat, coupled with Los Angeles Dodgers' double triumph over Houston, 9-3 and 9-7, dropped the Giants 2½ games behind the league-leading Dodgers. Only a week ago the Giants led the Dodgers by two games.

Pittsburgh Pirates took two games from Milwaukee Braves 12-3 and 4-2 and Philadelphia split with Philadelphia, winning the second game, 9-5 after the Phillies had won the opener, 7-3. Chicago Cubs, after losing the first game 5-4 came from behind with three runs in the ninth on Eddie Banks' ninth homer and one in the 10th to win the second game 3-4 from New York Mets.

BOTH LEADERS LOSE

Saturday's activity saw the Cardinals beat the Giants 5-4 while Houston thrashed the Dodgers 12-2. Milwaukee and Chicago 11-3 and Cincinnati downed the Phillies 5-1. The Braves took two from the Pirates 4-3 and 5-3.

The runaway crowd of 33,676, largest at Candlestick Stadium in 76 years, saw the Cardinals' stretch their winning streak which began after eight straight losses, to seven Sunday. Home runs by Curt Flood and Stan Musial highlighted the double triumph. Flood homered with one out in the ninth to account for the tying and winning runs in the opener. Musial's game with two-er in a six-run fourth inning of the nightcap.

Don Drysdale pitched a six-hitter for his 10th victory and first-baseman Ron Fairly drove in four runs with a triple, double and two singles in the Dodgers' first-game triumph over Houston. Catcher Norm Sherry batted in four runs in the nightcap, three with a home run.

TWO FOR MAZEROSKI

Bill Mazeroski and Dick Schofield drove in nine runs between them in Pittsburgh's first-game victory over Milwaukee. Mazeroski batting in five with two home runs to pin the defeat on Roc Piche of Verdun, Que. Don Hoak's four-bagger proved the difference in the nightcap.

Andre Rodgers' conquering double off relief pitcher Ken McKenzie of Gore Bay, Ont., in the 10th after pinch hitter Banks' game - tying three-run homer in the ninth, gave the Cubs a split with the Mets. New York scored the tie-breaking run in the seventh on a wild pitch by Dick Ellsworth in the seventh.

Sixth-inning home runs by Frank Robinson, Gordie Coleman and Leo Cardenas featured Cincinnati's second-game triumph over the Phillies after outfielder Wes Covington had sparked the Phils to a victory in the opener with two homers and four RBI.

Wright Wins Over Moyer

NEW YORK (AP) — Welter weight Teddy Wright of Detroit completed his mastery over the fighting Moyer family of Portland, Ore., Saturday night by winning an unanimous 10-round decision over middleweight contender Denny Moyer.

Wright, a 2-to-1 underdog, weighed 153½ to Moyer's 158.

It was the third victory in as days for Wright, who outpointed Phil Moyer two weeks ago.

Referee Art Mercante and judges Tony Castellano each had Wright ahead 5-4-1 in rounds. Saturday, Judge Joe Agnello had Moyer in front 6-4.

There were no knockdowns in the action packed affair but Moyer bled freely from the nose from the fourth round on.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Muddy Mower, owned by Smith and Murray Waples of Victoria Harbour, Ont., and E. Russell of Port Credit, Ont., paced to the featured Invitation Handicap pace and Tom's Flame, to a purse of $800 at the Western Fair Raceway Saturday night.

Driven by Murray Waples, the four-year-old horse came up in the closing strides to beat Karen Scia by a head with Karen Scia was driven by Levi (Ziggy) McFadden. Memphis Song, the only trotter in the three-horse field, was third.

Muddy Mower paced the mile in 2:06 45 and returned $5.70 as favorite in the betting with the crowd of 4,813.

TOPS OWN RECORD

LEIPZIG, East Germany (Reuters)—Tamara Press, the Russian Olympic champion, became the first woman to beat the 15-metre-mark for the shot put Sunday. She broke her own world record with a throw of 15.29 metres (50 feet, ¼ inch) at an international meet here.

Longden Seeks Plate Win

TORONTO (CP) — Johnny Longden, one of the oldest and greatest active jockeys in the world, will have mounts in the two - division Queen's Plate Trials at Woodbine today. Then comes the big decision for the 66-year-old veteran.

Will he be aboard Sun Dan in the $75,000 Queen's Plate Saturday or will he settle for Welcome Effort?

It's a big decision for Longden because the Plate, the classic for the mare who has won 5,000 races, the most of any jockey in the history of racing.

FLAMING PAGE RENTS

A notable Plate eligible will be in the barn today. She is Flaming Page, from E. P. Taylor's Windfields farm, who galloped home a 4½-length winner over Conn Smythe's Caledon Boller in the $30,345 Canadian Oaks for three-year-old fillies Saturday.

Flaming Page, 10th in the early running in the 14-filly field, made her move leaving the backstretch and gradually pulled away to cover the 1¼ mile route in 1:52 even and pay a straight $3.80. Caledon Belle took the place slot by a nose over El-so-l shot Battling Way.

The victory boosted Flaming Page's first in eight starts this season, although she had campaigned against fleet fillies in the United States. Her portion of the Oaks purse of $26,640 for the season, as juvenile she earned $14,575 in seven appearances.

Jim Fitzsimmons of Calgary was aboard Flaming Page.

How's this mileage for one set of tires?

Mr. Eldon Burgess of Fenelon Falls, Ont. reports 70,000 miles from one set of Goodyears. You may get more—or less. Mileage isn't something absolute. It depends on tire quality, your car's horsepower, the speeds you drive and the roads on which you drive. However, here's one thing you can count on. Regardless of the varying driving conditions, you'll get more worry-free mileage from Goodyear tires. Proof? Here's significant proof—independent research shows that more Canadian motorists prefer Goodyear tires than any other kind. See your Goodyear Dealer. Get the tires that offer better value.

'The Movie Star' on NBC Unpleasant, Ghoulish Tale

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Allen, the famous motion picture star, died a hero while rescuing his beloved wife from their burning home. So they took Billy back to Charity, Kan., where he grew up and where his parents still lived, for the funeral.

And it was in Charity, before the service, that we picked up Billy's story in The Movie Star Sunday night on NBC. It was an unpleasant, ghoulish tale.

Before 80 minutes had passed, we found that Billy's parents never understood him — never really knew much about him, in fact. His marriage had long been a failure. Worse, Billy was a thorough-going heel. His heroism was a cover-up invented by his manager. The star was too drunk to escape his flaming home. His wife already had decided to leave him.

As the crowning touch, his sister-in-law, staggering drunk at memorial services, arose to scream that her child was Billy's—not that of the brother who had died a hero in Korea.

FUNERAL EFFICIENCY

William Bast, who wrote this measless play, apparently was attempting to recreate the tasteless atmosphere of carnival surrounding the funeral of a celebrity. They were all there, the souvenir - hunting kids, the cranks and the maniacs.

That part was an interesting idea. But the basic device was hardly novel: Revealing the real, unattractive person behind the facade of glamor in bits and pieces as the story progresses.

Dane Clark worked hard as the manager who wanted to halt the grisly exhibition. Kathleen Widdoes was properly upset as Billy's widow. And Nancy Marchand was incredibly vicious as a lady columnist—just why she was dragging around in a mink coat when it was obviously midsummer in Kansas, was the evening's one note of mystery.

Recommended tonight:

Julie and Carol at Carnegie Hall, CBS, 10-11 EDT — Julie Andrews and Carol Burnett in their two-woman show, in which they poke gentle fun at everything from Russian choral groups to westerns.

Wins By Nose In Stretch

'Jaipur' Snatches Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — It still take the Triple Crown to decide the three-year-old championship in United States horse racing this year.

Decidedly won the Kentucky Derby in record time, Greek Money took the Preakness in a thrilling finish. And Saturday, Jaipur stuck his nose across the wire to capture to $153,300 Belmont Stakes with a dramatic stretch run.

Decidedly a badly beaten eighth in the Preakness, wound up fourth, nearly eight lengths behind Jaipur. Jockey Bill Hartack said decidedly "didn't act like a horse at any part of the race."

Greek Money, who skipped the Kentucky Derby, was within striking distance of the pace setting Admiral's Voyage for 1¼ miles of the 1½ mile test. But he faded to seventh, beaten only by the lightly regarded Folk Dancer.

There was jubilation around Jaipur's barn. The son of Nasrullah-Rare Perfume fulfilled the hopes of owner George D. Widener.

Jaipur had been kept out of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness with one thing in mind—win the Belmont. Widener had tried 10 times without success to win the race.

Admiral's Voyage, who led most of the way, was second by 1¾ lengths over Crimson Satan.

Jaipur returned $7.70, $4.40 and $3.40. Admiral's Voyage paid $7.40 and $5.20 and Crimson Satan $5.70.

Jaipur, winner of the $130,700 Jersey Derby May 30 at Garden State Park on a disqualification of Crimson Satan, collected $100,500 for the biggest prize in Belmont's history.

The winning time on a fast track was 2:28 4-5, compared with Gallant Man's Belmont and U.S. record of 2:26 35 five years ago.

Dean Martin Quits Movie With Marilyn

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dean Martin Saturday quit the movie "Something's Got to Give because Marilyn Monroe was fired.

"I have the greatest respect for Miss Lee Remick and her talent and all the other actresses who were considered for the role but I signed to do the picture with Marilyn Monroe and I will do it with no one else," Martin said.

The studio fired Miss Monroe Friday, charging breach of contract for her repeated absences from the film. She was replaced by Miss Remick.

When Miss Monroe originally signed for the movie, she had personally asked that Dean Martin be her co-star, Martin's abrupt action probably was in gratitude for Miss Monroe's choice.

SANTIAGO, Chile—The World Soccer Cup championship has shaped up into a straight fight between South America and Eastern Europe.

Brazil, the defending champion, will meet host country Chile in one semi-final Wednesday in Santiago and Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia clash in the other match the same day at Vina del Mar on the Pacific coast.

All the West European teams — West Germany, Italy, England—are out, as is Russia.

After Sunday's play Brazil looked to be almost a certainty to retain the title it won in Stockholm four years ago.

CHILE CELEBRATES

Chile never before has got as far as the semi-finals of the World Cup. Sunday night celebrations went on all over the country, because of its 2-1 upset victory over Russia at the northern desert town of Arica. Brazil defeated England 3-1 at Vina del Mar, the Czechs topped a highly-rated Hungarian team 3-0 at Rancagua and the Yugoslavs beat West Germany 10 in Santiago.

England and Brazil were tied 11 at half time but the South American team put the game on ice with two quick goals at the start of the second half.

Chile scored its first goal at 11 minutes of the first half. Russia tied the game in the 26th minute but Chile went ahead again a minute later.

Yugoslavia scored its only goal against West Germany five minutes from the end of the hardfought defensive contest.

The Czechs scored their win ning goal in the 11th minute and then held the powerful Hungarian attack throughout the rest of the game.

ROUND UP REDS

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Argentine government said Friday nearly 100 persons were rounded up in a series of anti-Communist raids in and around Buenos Aires Thursday. Informants said all but about 25 of those picked up were released. Authorities said the raids netted large amounts of propaganda material including newspapers, magazines and books from Fidel Castro's Cuba.

Astrological Forecast

For June 12

BY SIDNEY OMARR

'Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Day to exercise diplomacy, good will. Not time to make financial decisions. Talking this over with associates could save many dollars. Pushing, demanding tactics backfire. Take it easy!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): One who urges you to rush should be told politely to mind his own business. Pay when caution should be exercised . . . both in business and personal dealings. Watch temper!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Surface appearances should be taken with proverbial grain of salt. There are indications that you could do a little "digging" and come up with some interesting answers.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Emphasis on details. The more so-called minor matters you get out of the way, the better your chance for success. Tonight read, check facts. Be patient.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Bright ideas are wasted if you merely "talk them out." Some action, travel are required, along with putting thoughts in writing. Don't expect "gin" on silver platter.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Speak your mind but combine your words with a smile, with charm. You gain much more by easygoing, gracious attitude. Choose this course rather than one of force.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Romance is highlighted. Your cycle is up. Your judgment, intuition spot to be correct. Have faith in first impressions. Invest in your own talents, abilities.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Active opposition could become evident. You combat this by facing facts, speaking up and making your position clear. No time for "hiding." Sincerity wins many allies.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Day for improvement. This easily done by re-examining work methods, and by taking close look at personal relationships. Many of "others' cones through self-respect.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You may find what you most desire quite close to home! Like Aries, confide desires, problems to one you respect. The answer could prove simple and bring great happiness.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Favorable lunar aspect . . . today means your outlook could brighten. This if you take long-range view. Much to be gained by accepting responsibility instead of seeking short cuts.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): By stressing service today you will find that others express desire to help or serve you. This is application of Golden Rule. It works especially well for you today. Think it over!

* * *

If today is your birthday . . . your sense of humor is one of your greatest assets. You attract many persons to you . . . and sometimes persons who seek to "use" you. Highlight this year could come in August, when professional achievement indicated. Could be month featuring contacts which lead to happier personal life.

* * *

General Tendencies: Friction created by impulsive statements, actions. Day-wish is apt to feature the bizarre, the unusual. Top headline could concern one who makes eccentric kinds of statements. This person, however, should be regarded as "crazy man like a fox."

Arctic Politicians Diaper Eskimo Babies, Explain What Election Is About

By JIM WHELLY

CONTWOYTO LAKE, N.W.T. (CP)—There's more to election campaigning than kissing babies and baby-shaking in the federal electoral constituency of Northwest Territories.

On a snow-covered hill of rock near frozen Contwoyto Lake, 250 miles northeast of Yellowknife, Liberal party candidate Mrs. Isabel J. Hardie, 40, paused outside an Eskimo tent to put a diaper on a naked infant named David Alisiferd. The emaciated four-month-old is the youngest of a family group of nine Eskimos who had moved into native tents from their melting igloo a few days earlier.

Interest and amusement showed on the little circle of Eskimo faces as Mrs. Hardie, herself a mother of four, took a piece of cloth hanging over a tent rope and used it for a diaper. Many Eskimo mothers don't use diapers.

The results of a good caribou hunt, laced with strips of meat blackened from drying, lay exposed to the sun on wind-bared rocks.

PLEASED WITH POSTER

Mrs. Hardie gave her picture, on a campaign poster, to one of the Eskimo women. With an expression of real gratitude the woman took the poster, asked in broken English and by sign if she might really keep it to pin on the wall inside her tent, then found in her tiny white man's vocabulary a "Thank you, Tibbie," using the nickname by which Mrs. Hardie is known throughout the north.

The other Eskimos were given cigarettes, gum or candy before Mrs. Hardie climbed into a tracked musteg tractor for the two-mile trip back to her chartered Cessna aircraft on a lake-bed runway.

Tractor and runway were provided by a 70-man Canadian Nickel Company mineral exploration crew beginning its second summer in the area for diamond drilling and aero-magnetic surveys by helicopter. One of their comfortable plywood shacks will house the N.W.T. electoral division polling station number 37 June 18 for 34 eligible voters, including some of the Contwoyto Lake Eskimos.

DON'T UNDERSTAND

Said one of the survey crew: "We've been trying to explain to these Eskimos what election is about, but they still think it has something to do with sticking claims."

Explaining the election and voting procedures to Eskimos, who number somewhat less than a third of about 13,700 eligible voters in the Territories, took up a large part of the speeches made in the eastern and central Arctic by Progressive Conservative candidate Eugene Rheaume, 29, of Fort Smith, N.W.T.

He employed Hugh Anugai, 18, of Baker Lake, 175 miles inland from Chesterfield Inlet on the northwest coast of Hudson Bay, as an interpreter for this non-political approach at Baker Lake, Chesterfield Inlet and Coral Harbour, on the south coast of Southampton Island. But inevitably, late in each speech, came the explanation of why any Eskimo's best bet was to make his X for Rheaume.

In an interview later at Yellowknife, Mr. Rheaume criticized Mrs. Hardie's use of a single Eskimo interpreter at all her stops in the central and eastern Arctic.

SEVERAL DIALECTS

"I'm using local interpreters wherever possible," he said. "Mrs. Hardie has been travelling, not bulk interpreting as I am. Hardie has done, I've found it's the only way through 1½ years of experience with Eskimos and Indians in the Mackenzie District. And respect for native culture and language dictates that I use as many interpreters at any meeting as there are languages represented by those who attend."

Both Mr. Rheaume and Mrs. Hardie credited themselves with getting an enthusiastic turnout wherever they visited the newly enfranchised Eskimos, but Abraham Ongek, an Eskimo who began life as a hunter and fisherman among the nomads and now works for the northern affairs department at Frobisher Bay, offered another explanation.

"They've called us happy, smiling people when we were fighting for survival and working ourselves to death. We're not happy, but when you see your first visitor in six months it's very hard to ignore him or look sad."

Arliffe (Pat) Carey, 53, first Social Credit party candidate in the short political history of the Territories, was buzzing about among Mackenzie River settlements like a hungry mosquito, ably piloting his own aircraft over a familiar campaign trail.

QUIT COUNCIL

He resigned his Mackenzie South seat on the Northwest Territories Council to enter the campaign and said in a recent Yellowknife speech that he was tired of "beating my head against a brick wall to stop the dictatorship of our northland."

The Pacific Western Airlines charter aircraft pilot, based at Fort Smith, N.W.T., is a veteran of 30 years of bush flying and heads his list of campaign promises with a pledge to work for better living conditions and better housing for the Indians and Eskimos of the constituency.

Mr. Rheaume says the government has begun to provide better housing for the natives and needs only time to complete the job.

Mr. Carey's better - housing platform is shared by Mrs. Hardie, who refers often to housing conditions at Eskimo Point, on the northwest coast of Hudson Bay.

"You can put your finger through the cardboard walls of those houses," she says, "and look at Eskimos lying on wet blankets inside."

Her husband, Mervyn Hardie, who died of cancer during the last session of Parliament, had held the Mackenzie constituency for the Liberal party since it was separated from the Yukon constituency in 1953.

Bachelor In Distress

DEAR DORIS:—My problem is that I believe that a girl should remain a virgin—if I might be allowed to use such an expression—until after marriage. In other words, with me a girl doesn't have to fight for her honor.

However, it seems that if a fellow doesn't try anything, the girl assumes he doesn't like her and won't see her again. But if a guy does try something, she becomes offended. This not knowing what to do has developed to the point where I have become even afraid—and that is the right word—afraid to mix socially. When I go out I go alone, and when I come home I have to say "hello walls."

DORIS CLARE

Whatever your advice, I doubt whether I'll even have the courage to follow it, but who knows? If there is a solution, maybe I'll get drunk one night and try whatever you say. —AFRAID.

* * *

DEAR AFRAID—Oh, come now, you don't need Dutch courage to be yourself. You are not even showing the courage of your convictions.

You can act poised, suave, complete master of the situation—such is the debonnaire bachelor. Believe me there are girls aplenty to appreciate the hands-off treatment.

They'll gravitate to you, once they know you mean it. And being a gentleman does not mean being a prude

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—At a mixed card party W gave J advice on more than one occasion on how to play his cards. She (W) wasn't his partner but did this while she was waiting for play to begin at her table, with one minded that.

At the end of the game W ended up with the low score for ladies. Naturally this led to a little ribbing by many of the crowd, including J's wife. It was plain to see W didn't take this in the spirit it was given. No one really cared who won or lost.

Now in your opinion, who is at fault, L or W? Does L owe W an apology being she is J's wife? —ONLOOKER.

* * *

DEAR ONLOOKER—It's always risky to jobbitz. I gather J took the advice. With bated breath I waited to see if he won the prize.

It's the feeling behind the ribbing that counts. Was J's wife privately annoyed at his taking advice from another woman? Did W feel this? Or did she really feel inadequate and foolish?

Whether or not there is need for apology depends on how strong the words were, and whether someone is really hurt. If friendship is being risked, the kind person will clear the air.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO MARRIED SISTER:—You have a point there. I would be glad to publish your letter if you would identify yourself. Your name and address will, of course, be kept confidential.

* * *

TO LOVING DAUGHTER—Forty years married calls for rubies or garnets, or so the book says. Slight variations are permitted, which is a good thing, what with all the new miracle fabrics and gadgets. Not to mention the price!

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. H.A. — I can't understand why my son and daughter-in-law don't want me to live with them.

Arnold A.—We have three growing children and Mother doesn't approve of our methods with them.

* * *

Mrs. H.A. — I've been a widow 20 years now. I'm well-educated, refined and in good health. I'm really puzzled as to why my son and daughter-in-law, who live nearby in a big house, never invited me to move in with them. I maintain my own small apartment but, living with Arnold, I'd be able to help him with expenses. I could contribute liberally toward the maintenance of the home, and I could also assist with the upbringing of the three children.

We've never had the matter out. I was really waiting for Arnold and his wife to suggest it but they never have. Arnold knows I had my mother move in with us when he was little. I'd at least like to be invited!

* * *

Arnold A. — I'm surprised to hear my mother talk that way. In all the 17 years of my marriage, she never seemed comfortable in our home. In recent years we'd invite her to call and her acceptances were few and far between. We decided that the children got on her nerves. She didn't approve of our methods with them. Also, we do not go in for the strict religious practices she insists upon. So with our different viewpoints, I can't understand her asking to join forces.

I really love my mother. But I don't think living with us would be good for her or us. Our growing youngsters would be under new restrictions. Our friends wouldn't have much to offer her. She's better off among her accustomed haunts and doing things her own way.

* * *

The Council: Here's a set-up which defies the old saw that everything is done for either love or money. Mrs. A. offers both and Arnold considers both, but the answer is neither will serve to open Arnold's home to his mother at this time.

In advising Mrs. A. to accept this verdict, perhaps we can convince her it begins only at First of all, it's subject to change. Grandchildren grow up, grandmothers grow feeble. Circumstances alter decisions of the moment, second, most are better ways of solving her present problem of unrest. Though she doesn't admit it, her interest in moving isn't prompted by a desire to chip in financially so much as it is spurred by a need for reassurance of her worth as a mother. She is beset with self-doubts. It's natural to turn to her son to dismiss them. But she can root them herself, more quickly and originally than he.

None of the circumstances which usually dictate "doubles up" prevail here. There's no financial pinch, no health issue, no emotional upheaval which forces kin to cling. So, Mrs. A., if you are as hep and healthy as you claim, why put a clamp on yourself? Why think of being second banana in someone else's home?

If loneliness seizes you too often, cultivate a few congenial companions — others in the same boat — and be lonely together! Together you work out a program of travel, study and service. The Veterans Hospitals, for example, would roll out the red, white and blue carpet if you'd offer a few hours. Brighten the aged would bless you if you'd call at meal times and help an unsteady hand hold a cup.

Meanwhile Arnold should be working on a more eloquent two-way translation of Children-to-Grandma so the little differences don't conceal the major themes of love and pride among the A's. A. Grandma likes Mrs. A. can be a treat! But Arnold and his wife must set the scene first.

Round Of Regal Meetings For Queen Mother

11,000 Children Give Greeting in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The Queen Mother today faces a crowded round of regal engagements, all representing a far cry from the spontaneous ahrills of 11,000 children who welcomed her into Ottawa Monday.

Today's engagements are also a departure from the glittering magnificence of Monday night's state dinner in Rideau Hall and the formal reception that followed for 265 guests. That was the social highlight of the year.

There will be fewer people and less glitter for the Queen Mother today, the second day of her four-day visit to the Ottawa area. There will be nothing like the deafening din that delighted her when she drove into the town Landsdowne Park to be greeted by city school children.

Then she drives to Confederation Square to meet veterans at the National War Memorial.

Tonight, she and Prince Philip attend the annual meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada, and on Thursday the evening she will be the guest of Prime Minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker at a private dinner.

CONFERENCE DELIGHT HER

Although the day gives her little free time, it doesn't have the exhausting quality's annual at Landsowne Park. She seemed thoroughly happy with the welcome.

"I am so very happy that my first engagement in Ottawa should be with you, the school children of the capital city," she said.

Then she went on to inform them that she had "congratulated" they be given the rest of the day off from school.

The din of welcome didn't let up for the 25 minutes she was in the park, during which she received two hand - lettered bouquets from the children — one from Brian Lafferty of 12, and one from Louise Boisvert, 12.

Then, surrounded by a cordial party to chat with handicapped children before leaving Rideau Hall.

ATTENDS STATE DINNER

Government House sparkled Monday night with candlelight and the jewels of guests of Governor-General Georges P. Vanier who tendered a state dinner and reception for the Queen Mother.

The dinner, for more than 100 guests paraded portraits of the Queen Mother's family. They were on the white satin evening dress encrusted with rubies and diamonds, a diamond tiara and diamond necklace.

The more than 100 guests passed portraits of the Queen Mother's family. They were ushered the anteroom where they were presented to the Queen Mother.

Mme. Vanier wore a high-necked, long-sleeved mauve chiffon over print. The draped skirt was caught at the waist with violets. She chose long diamond earrings and a diamond ring.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker was represented by Mrs. Diefenbaker's daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Meister Fleming, and Mrs. Pearson, wife of Opposition Leader Lester B. Pearson, attended alone.

Two Companies Sign Contracts With Teamsters

TORONTO (CP)—Two Ontario trucking firms have signed agreements with striking locals of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IndL) on the basis of a conciliation report rejected by the main teamster negotiating team.

The two signings were announced Monday by the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, agents for 65 trucking firms affected by an Ontario-wide trucking strike.

Hutton Transport of London signed a pact with Teamster local 141 and Wilkie Transport of Kitchener signed with Hamilton local 879.

In each case the settlement calls for wage increases totalling 24½ cents an hour as recommended by Judge J. C. Anderson,chairman of the conciliation board.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the bureau said employees of Soble Transport in Toronto have approved Teamster local 938 to sign on similar terms.

SEEK PACKAGE DEAL

However, James Scott, national executive officer of the radio freight for the teamsters, said here that a 30-cent-an-hour wage and fringe package negotiated earlier with four companies rejecting the union's industry-wide objective.

"That's the pattern and that's what we're going to get," he said. "We think it's reasonable enough."

The strike by 7,200 Ontario drivers is in its third week and most of the firms affected remain firm on their 24½-cent offer.

Labor minister Warrender of Ontario today announced that government conciliation officers will meet with the union and the Motor Transport Board Thursday to attempt a settlement.

Appeal Ruling Gambler Must Answer Queries

TORONTO (CP) — The counsel for gambler Vincent Hanna today informed the royal commission on crime that he intends to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against a ruling that his client must answer questions of the commission even if the answers should be self-incriminating.

Walton Cross informed the commission just before sitting resumed today that he would file a notice of appeal, signifying his intention to seek, on Oct. 2, leave to appeal from the Supreme Court of Canada.

The Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Monday that Feeley must answer questions and may be called on to produce his income tax records.

Mr. Rose's notice did not result in immediate adjournment as had been speculated upon.

RECALL HERMAN

The commission recalled Louis Herman, former lawyer for Feeley and his partner Joseph McDermott, for cross-examination by Andrew Brewin, counsel for the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Ian Outerbridge, state dinner in Rideau Hall and the formal reception that followed for 265 guests. That was the social highlight of the year.

Mr. Herman's examination had been deferred last week.

He opened his cross-examination on procedures used in obtaining provincial charters for clubs in which McDermott and Feeley had interests.

RUSSIANS SEND FOURTH VESSEL TO TEST AREA

Instrument Ships Study U.S. Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has sent a fourth ship with scientific instruments within the vicinity of U.S. nuclear testing zone in the Pacific.

This addition to the Russian armada was disclosed today as the United States prepared for a second try at firing a nuclear device at a high altitude over Johnston Island.

Informed sources indicated the shot—biggest of the U.S. test series—is likely late this week. The Polaris Aviation-agency said Monday the shot more than 500 miles over the Johnston Island test area is expected to blot out all high frequency radio communications in the Pacific. Part of the disruption will last 32 hours or longer.

The first high altitude test shot ended disastrously June 4 when a Thor missile carrying the warhead aloft was destroyed after the rocket tracking system developed trouble.

The presence of three Russian ships within striking range within 10 to 15 miles of the Pacific test area was announced by the defence department 10 days ago. It said they were "obviously on a surveillance mission, intelligence collection mission."

SHIPS REINFORCED

Asked whether the Pentagon said the three ships still are there—and that they have been reinforced by a fourth vessel.

The new Russian ship was identified as the Ivan D. Boyev, a sister ship of the Shokalsky, the largest of the three research vessels which took up stations during May.

The means the Voyevkov displaces about 3,600 tons and is equipped with extensive scientific instrumentation.

Because the Russians are in international waters, there is nothing the United States can do to shoo them away.

Among other things the Voyevkov is understood to be fitted out for tracking the meteorological rockets to study the effects of nuclear explosions on the upper atmosphere.

2 Leaders Find New Ways To Disagree on Key Issues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With Election Day a week off, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal leader Pearson found new ways to disagree Monday night on two key issues: unemployment and dollar devaluation.

The Progressive Conservative leader said in Montreal the nation's official report on unemployment—due a day or two after the election—will show the lowest jobless rate in 10 years.

Mr. Pearson asked a Montreal audience how anyone could believe the Conservative claim of vanishing unemployment when this was "so completely contradicted by their own statistics" of budgeting for another big deficit.

Mr. Diefenbaker said in a national CBC telecast that he believed Liberal policies were led by his—warning last week of "Liberal gloom" against companies taking advantage of the dollar devaluation — to 92½ U.S. cents, a fundamental an excuse to boost prices.

Mr. Pearson replied the dollar had been split over devaluation, with Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton "for it" and wanted a 93-cent exchange rate.

"How can anyone have respect for a government that runs the affairs of the country that way?"

Meanwhile, T. C. Douglas, leader of the Montreal rally a few miles from the prime minister's meeting, promised a new deal for Canada's unemployed if he is returned as a New Democratic Party government.

The NDP leader criticized Canada's past governments for not introducing a full-scale health insurance plan, and reiterated his promise that an NDP government would kick unemployment within a year of taking office.

Laos Coalition Pact Given Blessing of East and West

Eight Contracts Given Firms to Build Stations

TORONTO (CP) — The highways department awarded eight contracts Monday for much-disputed 75-mile section of Highway 401.

The work, next to Imperial Oil Limited, Texaco Canada Limited and Canadian Petrofina Limited refineries and to British American Oil Company and Shell Oil Company of Canada.

The question of service stations on the Toronto end of the highway has caused controversy ever since the highway opened. It was originally planned not to have any stations with direct access, but the decision was changed because of motorists' complaints.

Highest of the successful bids was by Canadian Petrofina for the 10-mile section from Highway 33 to Psudloch Township. The bid of $1,400,000 for grading the highway. On the south side of the highway location British American got the contract.

country for the fourth time as its premier.

The deputy-premiers are Souvanna's half - brother Soupanouvong and right-wing "strongman" Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, who also was a deputy-premier in Boun's right - wing government.

Nine of the 13 other coalition cabinet posts went to neutralists while the other four went to Communists each held two.

Monday night the two leaders were given to "right-hand men."

DIEFENBAKER HITS TRAIL CLOSE TO HOME

Will Welcome Queen Mother

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker hits the election trail close to home Monday.

After a hectic time in Montreal Monday, the prime minister puts on two more rallies—one as an electioneering party leader trying to rouse votes and the other as prime minister playing host to the visiting Queen Mother.

He'll be starting hats during the day—starting out with a campaign visit to nearby Aylmer, Que., for a city hall reception, then returning to the capital for a non-political wreath with the Queen Mother at the War Memorial.

After that, a private lunch at 24 Sussex Street, his Ottawa residence, before the election trail again, recording a TV film in Ottawa and slipping into Quebec for a big hall reception at nearby Hull.

The two parties in the neighboring Quebec communities are the only campaigning on the prime minister's schedule. He ends tonight with a formal dinner for the Queen Mother, with Mr. Diefenbaker as host.

WAS MONTREAL

Mr. Diefenbaker flew back to Ottawa early today after a whirlwind Montreal visit.

He was roared around the metropolis in a 100-car cavalcade.

For Mr. Diefenbaker, the highlight of the visit was a cheering, tumultuous reception for almost 5,000 children at a free picnic at Jeanne-Mance Dekorimier baseball park.

The prime minister shot about drowned out his brief thank-you speech.

"Wonderful, wonderful," said Mr. Diefenbaker, "I've never seen anything like it."

A few hours later, he appeared before more than 2,000 persons at a giant rally in the big Craig Street armories and generated that same enthusiasm bureau of statistics' report on unemployment will show the lowest figure in many years.

JUST AFTER ELECTION

The government report for the mid-May is expected to be released June 19 or June 20—just after next Monday's general election.

Speaking in both English and French, Mr. Diefenbaker also said Quebec province will show "great" increases over each of government at the polls.

He said he intends to ensure French Canada of the preservation of the things it holds dear.

CHANGE NAME

LONDON (AP) — The Reynolds Metals Company has changed its name to Sunday Citizen and its format to tabloid. It gave these reasons: "We have adopted this fashion for 'personal name' because times now is against us. Because the present title is not our name what we are—a national Sunday newspaper. The paper said it will continue its policy of competitive, but fair and frigid union movements.

DIEFENBAKER BACKTRACKING ON MEDICAL CARE PLAN FOR AGED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy got into an arguing with the American Medical Association Monday night, but out word months ago that he would make an all-out fight for medical care for the aged, is backtracking. If any real fight is made it wasn't obvious.

Minority Leader Abraham Ribicoff opened the Democratic day to compromise at a private meeting with the House Republican leaders ways and means committee.

Ribicoff reported to have said President Kennedy is standing by the one only one point — that, whatever is done, medical care program turns out to be, it must be tied into the social security system.

Last March White House Secretary Pierre Salinger said the administration was co-ordinating a bipartisan congressional efforts. This co - ordinating was supposed to be done with outside organizations backing Kennedy's program.

Kennedy himself, aside from press conference statements, has made one big public appeal for support in a telecast from New York's Madison Square Garden May 20.

Steel Union Wins Subdury Certification

Mine-Mill Contests Meagre 15-Vote Edge

SUDBURY (CP) — Official count of a certification vote by more than 16,000 Sudbury area workers gave the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) a majority early today but temporarily left the future of control of the district's big union local in doubt.

The steel union got 7,182 votes —15 more than needed to take over from the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) the bargaining agent for International Nickel Company—but Mine-Mill immediately challenged 32 of these votes.

Validity of the ballots—carrying the Steelworkers' largest union lead—will have to be decided by the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

The vote count announced when 28 polls were conducted the tabulation emerged with more than 16 hours closated in a banquet hall packed with the Steelworkers and 8,961 for Mine-Mill.

Mine-Mill said it will challenge 32 of the steelworkers' ballots on the grounds of alleged irregularities at the polls.

Mine-Mill spokesmen also contended four other ballots were spoiled and should have been counted.

Mine-Mill says that in addition the total ballots cast was five more than the number of persons checked off as having voted and that this alone should invalidate the entire election.

CAN APPEAL

A. M. Brunsdill, OLRB registrar, said Mine-Mill would have seven days in which to make objections, which would be heard by the board at Toronto within the next two weeks.

About 200 more votes gained Monday night outside the banquet hall where the counting took place and a special Mine-Mill rally was held.

Ballots were taken into custody for disturbing the peace by Sudbury police.

The Mine-Mill rally adjourned before the vote result was announced. Its mood was described as mood was voiced by Ken Smith, national president.

"We have no doubt of permitting a narrow victory by Steel in the labor board count to determine the future of our union," he said.

"Look at the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union's record. We have been a local union. We will hold membership meetings, collect dues, elect officers and continue to build and promote the general welfare of the workers in our jurisdiction."

In a statement by the union's policy committee, it also said the "assets, resources,

Forsey, Hudon Quit Governors Over Licence

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Broadcast Governors said Monday it regrets the decision of Dr. Eugene Forsey of Ottawa and Dean Guy Hudon of Quebec City to resign from the board.

The two announced Friday that they had quit the 15-member body because of the failure of the board, by issue a television station licence in Quebec City. They strongly supported a CBC bid for the licence.

The BBG announced Monday it has turned down a private broadcaster's bid for a new French-language TV station in Quebec City and has deferred decision on the CBC's application for a similar station there.

Dr. Forsey is research director for the Canadian Labor Congress and Prof. Hudon is dean of law at Laval University.

Decisions on the hotly-contested competing applications for a Quebec City outlet had been pending since January.

The BBG recommended refusal of the private-station application by a group headed by Jacques LaRoche, Quebec City radio broadcaster and former private secretary to the late premier Paul Sauve.

The board said the proposed private station "would not possess the network facilities to reflect the image of the capital city and its province to the rest of the country."

Ruling Party Loses Ground In Italian Vote

ROME (AP) — Italy's ruling Christian Democratic party lost ground today in returns from municipal elections that indicated the first major vote test of Premier Amintore Fanfani's "turn to the left."

Fanfani formed the cabinet, his way as an endorsement of his government's national government formed three months ago.

Final results from the 34 largest cities and towns representing 2,467,099 of the total 3,000,000 voters give the four allied parties 49.3 per cent of the vote.

Control of the Rome city council hinges on the June 24 weekend balloting in 137 cities and towns, elected Fanfani's alliance by one seat.

Crossing Guard Waves School Bus Into Train's Path, 45 Die, 81 Hurt

CP From Reuters-AP

BUENOS AIRES—Argentina was in mourning today and all schools were closed after a railroad crossing disaster here Monday in which 43 children died.

The children, most of them from kindergarten, were killed when a diesel commuter train smashed into their school bus at a fog-shrouded crossing in the marshy shantytown of Buenos Aires.

A woman teacher and the bus driver were killed and 81 children injured, 26 of them seriously.

The bus was dragged along the track for 150 yards, spilled out the children on either side and ended up a mass of twisted metal.

Some of the mangled young-sters died when plasma and blood transfusion supplies ran low at four hospitals to which the injured were taken.

President Maria Guido and Buenos Aires Mayor Herman Giraldi visited the hospitals and tried to comfort near-crazed parents rushing along corridors searching for their children.

An infuriated mob gathered at the scene of the crash and tried to lynch the grade crossing watchman. He locked himself in his cabin until police rescued him.

Police arrested the attendant and held the train's engineer for questioning on manslaughter. The attendant told police he had lifted the crossing barriers for a truck and, believing the truck was still clear, motioned the bus across.

The train roared out of the fog and hit the bus squarely, scattering the remains and bodies 30 feet up the track. None aboard the train was hurt.

YOUTH GUILTY ON THEFT CHARGE

A former inmate of the Ontario Training School for Boys at Brockville, and now on parole, Stanley J. Bailey, 17, was charged with stealing five dimes from a coin box on North Front Street. Bailey pleaded guilty and was remanded to Friday for sentence.

Inspector D. McLauchlan told the court that while a police constable was checking the rear of premises, he observed a person standing near a dispensing machine at the back of the building.

He went inside and found the door of the machine had been pried open. Another officer sitting in the police car saw a vehicle drive off and the two officers gave chase. As a result, Bailey was apprehended.

TO BE SENTENCED ON FRIDAY

Thomas Smith, 26, of Belleville appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning charged with being in possession of a quantity of cocaine, the property of the Black Diamond Cheese Company.

Smith pleaded guilty to the charge and elected trial by magistrate. He told the court he would accept the evidence given in court last week against Herbert Genereaux of 9 Pepper Ave.

He was remanded by the magistrate to Friday, June 15, for sentence.

LINGHAM LAKE DAM GRANT MADE

Clarke T. Rollins, MPP, for Hastings East, has announced the approval of a grant of $2,000 to the Moira River Conservation Authority for capital improvements to the Lingham Lake dam.

The Lingham Lake dam was built in 1924 by the Department of Public Works in the township of Huntingdon, and was operated by the Department of Lands and Forests until 1956 when it was acquired by the Moira River Conservation Authority.

In 1962 the Conservation Authority will place a protective metal railing on the dam deck. The work is part of a program of renovation which has been carried out over the past few years on this dam.

Fire Rating Tweed Forest District

Rain-dampened forest bottoms are keeping the fire hazard in the Tweed Forest District at low, Lands and Forests officials reported today.

A fire in Sebastopol township is still being patrolled and is under control.

Weather over the timberlands yesterday and last night was overcast and cool with a 5-8 miles-an-hour wind blowing over the area.

Ladies' Night Of Rotary Club Much Enjoyed

The annual Ladies' Night of the Rotary Club of Belleville was held at the Hotel Quinte yesterday evening with 113 in attendance. The evening's program included an excellent roast beef dinner followed by professional entertainment.

The latter was provided by live music and comedy team of Doug Bannon and Bill Long, together with mimic Doug Robertson and specialty dancer Judy Lynn.

In a switch from their usual course the Rotarians celebrated the birthdays of the Rotary Anns. Mrs. Stan Barber, Mrs. J. B. Creeggan, Mrs. William Gault and Mrs. Jack Yanover were the recipients of the traditional birthday cakes and song.

Rotarian Max McLean presented President Virgil Jamieson with the past - president's pin and spoke on the excellent service which Mr. James had done for Rotary since he first joined in 1946. His last year as head of the term of office as president for 1961-62.

President-elect Harry Burns then introduced his 1962-63 executive.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by Rotarian J. B. Creeggan and Mrs. Jack McArthur responding on behalf of the ladies.

Parking Banned At Ball Games In Parkdale

The erection of "no parking" signs on the east side of Sidney Street in front of the Parkdale Community Centre grounds was approved yesterday by city council.

The approval was granted following a request from Parkdale residents, who claimed that parking on Sidney Street when ball games were being played created a hazard.

This view was endorsed by several councillors who said the street was too narrow for parking on both sides if two lanes of traffic were to be continued.

The understanding is that the no parking provision is to be effective only when ball games are being played.

Councillors with which council passed the "no parking" relief prompted comment from traffic and fire committee members, who observed that they had recently endeavored to have "no parking" put into effect on various well travelled streets.

"Every possible argument under the sun was brought in to defeat the requests," observed committee chairman Jack Ireland.

Council also approved the installation of a four-way stop and and flasher signal at the corner of Victoria Ave. and Humewood Drive.

A resident of the area, Mrs. Grace McAuley, wrote to Mayor A. M. Hicks asking that something be done to reduce the hazard.

City Park Lots Will Be Sold Through Agents

City owned park lots on Elizabeth Crescent and on Bradgate Road will be offered for sale through local real estate agents on an open listing it has been decided by council. In the case of $3,250 and $2,800 will be placed on the lots.

Also lot 22 on Smith Crescent will be offered to the Library Board on a 30-day option at a price of $3,200.

The open listing was suggested by Alderman Jack Whalen who objected to the original wording of a motion which called for the lots to be offered through the Belleville Real Estate Board on co-operative listings.

Ald. Whalen said the open listing would mean that he as chairman of the real estate board, would have nothing to do with the sale.

At the same time Alderman Whalen said there should be some policy at city hall whereby members of council would be informed of changes in the municipal staff regarding members of council doing business with the city.

He said it had recently come to his attention that a councillor who is a member of a limited company would now do business with his municipality.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said he had already taken this matter up with the city solicitor and the information would be made available to councillors.

Accused Found Not Guilty on Theft Charge

Donald Tucker, formerly of Windsor, Ontario, was found not guilty by the jury at the Trenton Assizes on four charges here, on Monday, when he appeared on a charge of theft.

Tucker was charged with stealing a van type truck, the property of Ivan Ellis Division Wholesale Ltd. of 12 Carrying Place Road, Trenton.

The jury left the court room at 4.00 in the afternoon, and returned with four hours later with their verdict of not guilty.

Legal aid for the accused was L. Marsakas.

Evidence was that Sergeant Steenburg of the Trenton police department, in the course of his duties, received a call on November 8, 1960, to a house in Trenton. When the sergeant arrived at the hotel, the person who had called was not there.

Sergeant Steenburg said he went back to the police station and as he was proceeding down the main street at Trenton, he observed a blue and white panel parked in front of Wesse Motors drive onto the car lot.

The sergeant said he pulled into the lot, parked behind this vehicle, and said he recognized the driver when he stepped from the van.

While talking to Tucker, the officer noticed a second vehicle on the lot, and he asked Tucker who it was. Tucker replied it was his wife who had come to pick him up.

Sergeant Steenburg asked Tucker what he was doing with Mr. Thompson's truck, and he said he worked for him and was told to take it to Wesse Motors for repairs and there to be repaired, when he was finished with it.

He said he believed the man's story and while talking to Mr. Tucker, Thompson appeared by his wife, drove off. "I got back to the office," he said, "and followed her to Murphy St., where she parked the car. Then I saw that it was Mrs. Wood, whom I had talked to earlier at the hotel.

He said Mrs. Wood then walked to the Thompson home and joined up with Mr. Tucker.

When they got back to the car, Sergt. Steenburg said he asked Mr. Tucker if he really had sold it to Thompson.

He said the accused replied, "what Thompson?" Mr. Tucker was then placed under arrest by the officer.

The officer told the court that after he had taken Tucker to the station he went back and to Wesse Motors to check the truck. Upon investigation, he found that the ignition wires had been crossed.

Mrs. Wood told the court, while in the witness box, that she had been driving the car and came upon this truck parked on the street, in a way she was unable to get past it.

She said a couple of cars went by but they had to go up over the curb. She said her husband jumped out of the car and said he was going to move it.

"I followed him into the lot," she said, "and another car came in behind me. "I didn't know what it was. I drove to Murphy Street because there was no other place to go. She said there were "no parking" signs along the other streets, so she kept going until she found a convenient place to park.

The case was heard before Judge W. S. Lane.

enbaker's, 35-mile auto ride through six city constituencies he presented copies of the Bill of Rights to a Jewish children's school and to representatives of ethnic groups and ended up at a chicken dinner where there was free, pop and ice cream for more than 5,000.

Mr. Pearson told party workers at Fredericton the Liberals will win from 140 to 170 of the 265 Commons seats—enough for a clear majority.

Mr. Diefenbaker predicted the Conservatives will again get Quebec's support. The party won 50 of the province's 75 ridings in 1958.

There were renewed references to last week's incident at St. John's, Nfld., where the Rotary Club booked a special bet on the dollar by Finance Minister Fleming on threat of reprisals by Liberal Premier J. W. Smallwood.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that Mr. Pearson's silence on the matter "typifies the tradition of past Liberal leaders.

PEARSON HITS BACK

Mr. Pearson spoke up at Moncton, N.B., and said Mr. Fleming is the same minister who introduced the government bill to "sell Canada down the river James E. Coyne without a hearing."

The Liberal leader concentrated on his favorite campaign topics of unemployment, budget deficits and dollar devaluation. He said the party has straight-forward measures that "very recently has been anything like what the present government has done to Canada."

Mr. Pearson rejected the idea of a "prosperity spree" because they were panic-stricken at the "disaster" left by the budget. If they believed their own words, they'd say budgeted for a $754,000,000 deficit?

Mr. Diefenbaker accused the Liberals of conducting planned political violence in the campaign. It's "desperate bid" to regain power.

He also accused them of a "hit and run" approach to the campaign.

WILL SAY ANYTHING

They will say anything, even though their statements may bring ruin internationally to the Canadian economy or to our reputation."

Mr. Douglas told his Montreal audience the NDP recognizes the fact of a "French-Canadian nation" and "two nations." He promised to establish French as a working language in the federal civil service, carry out a royal commission study on Canada's federalism and bi-culturalism, and provide a more generous federal-provincial tax sharing program for the provinces.

Speaking partly in French, Mr. Douglas reiterated his party's policy that "we will not allow nuclear weapons on Canadian soil."

Mr. Minister Starr, speaking at St. Thomas, Ont., took issue with Mr. Pearson's statements that a recession is caused by government officials for a period of months studying unemployment insurance had predicted a rise in unemployment levels to 1970 unless remedial measures were taken.

Mr. Starr said investigation has showed that no department made such a report. He added that a government committee did make projections for no more than 1966 and they haven't been right yet."

Shrine Club Members at Dedication

Belleville Shrine Club president Ed Way of Tweed, with Potentate Jack Lake and members of the Camel Corps, were present until from Belleville attending the re-dedication of the Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children in Montreal over the past weekend.

Shriners from Ontario travelled to Montreal by special train for the re-dedication of the Montreal unit, one of 11 such hospitals in Canada.

While they were in Montreal on Sunday, Potentate Lake, Jack Ailin and Noble Richard Sergeant represented the Ramses Temple and Belleville Shrine at the ceremony in which the Queen Mother presented new colors to the Black Watch Regiment of which she is the colonel-in-chief.

Council to Ask Study of Rental Housing Needs

The city of Belleville will request the Federal and Provincial governments to investigate the need for a rental housing project for the lower income group in the city.

Yesterday, Alderman Ross Bailey said a government agency had met with the finance committee at which the various aspects of the scheme were discussed.

He said the government committee was prepared to make the survey but when its report was received city council would have to decide whether or not it wanted to go ahead.

It was pointed out to council that this was an entirely different scheme from that which is proposed by the city-owned trailer park but to provide housing for senior citizens.

Easter Monday Holiday Refused Works Dept.

City council has denied the request of the Public Works Guild that its members have Easter Monday as a paid holiday.

Earlier this year council acceded to the request of city hall employees for the Easter Monday holiday, but last night turned down the similar request of the public works department employees.

Alderman William Jarvis recommending no action be taken on the request and suggested the matter be the subject of contract negotiations.

Alderman Les Dupe felt that what was good for the city hall staff should be good for public works employees. He observed that these workers seemed always to be at the end of the stick.

Alderman Cooke noted Easter Monday was not a paid holiday for city firemen.

City Putting Plug in By-Law

The city is going to put a plug in its present by-law prohibiting the discharge of roof and surface water into sanitary sewers.

The amendment to the by-law states that a permanent plug must be installed at the end of any new sanitary sewer house connection upon the completion of its installation to eliminate infiltration of surface water until permanent plumbing is connected.

At present the city public works department is stepping up its program to have existing connections taken out of the sanitary sewer.

Elimination of all roof and surface water from the sanitary sewers is necessary to allow efficient operation of the city's new sewage disposal plant.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Golds continued to gain strength while the rest of the stock market dropped lower today, as they struck their highest index point in more than 12 years.

The gold index climbed 3.36 to 101.27 — highest since April, 1950 — in the first hour of trading. Pacing the advance were Giant Yellowknife and Dome, each up 1962 highs before easing slightly to show fractional gains. McIntyre - Porcupine rose ¾.

Elsewhere on the market, industrials continued their decline with banks leading the way down. Nova Scotia and Toronto-Dominion both dropped to their lowest prices of 1962, off 1¼ and ¾ respectively. Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce all fell in a ¼ to ¾ range.

Other losers included Inter-provincial Pipe Line and Moore Corp., each off one point, Algoma Steel, down ¾ and Imperial Oil, off ½.

On the exchange index, industrials felt 3.19 to 355.75, base metals .44 at 189.03 and western oils .47 at 100.34. The 11 a.m. volume was 852,000 shares compared with 478,000 at the same time Monday.

International Nickel was weakest among base metals, dropping 1% to 66. Falconbridge slipped ¾ and Noranda ¾. Speculative issues were quiet.

Gold issues gained strength Monday.

Giant Yellowknife and Dome both struck 1962 highs, ahead ¾ and ½ respectively. They paced the section's index to its highest level.

Banks and oils led the industrial decline. Bank of Nova Scotia dropped 1¾ to 67¼—its lowest this year—while Royal fell ¾ to 69¾, also a 1962 low.

Dominion Foundries and Steel declined 1¾ to 31¾, its lowest this year, while Algoma Steel, Atlas Steel Company of Canada all slipped ¼ to ¾.

On index, industrials fell 3.02 to 326.94, base metals .44 to 189.47 and western oils 1.51 to 100.71. Golds gained 3.36 to 97.91. Volume was 1,383,000 shares compared with Friday's 1,842,000.

Among base metals, International Nickel fell 1¾ to 67½, Consolidated Mining and Smelting ½, Falconbridge ¼ and Labrador ¾. Speculatives saw Northgate dip 15 cents to $7.95

Board Refused Application to Amend By-Law

The Ontario Municipal Board has dismissed the application to amend the existing by-law to allow the erection of a detention home on Highland Ave.

The hearing on the application was held June 5th, the Board deciding that the requested amendment would be tantalous on the protection afforded resident in the area.

The Board also felt the requested amendment was not necessary as there are areas in the city where the proposed use is now permissible.

The request for the amendment was to allow the Children's Aid Society to build a detention room for juveniles at its Highland Ave. premises.

Heavy Agenda In City Court

Mrs. L. T. Moore of Harold, was placed on suspended sentence for one year this morning in the city court when charged in city court here charged with theft under $50.

Represented by Mr. O'Flynn, Sr., she pleaded guilty to the charge.

Inspector McLauchlan said that the woman with her husband entered the bedroom room with a bundle of clothing under her arm. The owners of the clothing were sitting in the beverage room at the time and phoned the Ontario Provincial Police.

The clothing had been taken from their car parked in the hotel parking lot.

GIVEN THREE MONTHS

Lloyd Cameron who appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills last week charged with the theft of an automobile from the Elliott Motors used car lot was sentenced this morning to three months in jail.

The case was heard last week, at which time the accused pleaded guilty to the charge.

CHARGE DISMISSED

A charge of careless driving was dismissed against Allan E. Smith this morning.

L. Marsden was appearing for the accused.

Mr. S. Graham said, in view of the fact that a witness did not appear, he was offering no evidence.

Over 300 Vote In 2 Days at Advanced Polls

Over 300 Belleville voters are going to be out of the city or at least will be otherwise unable to vote on June 18th.

A total of 214 city residents voted at the two advance polls in the city on Saturday and on Monday, it was noted today by William VanTassel, returning officer for South Hastings.

The number voting at the advance poll is up considerably from 1958, but requirements for eligibility to vote in advance have been eased.

At Trenton 54 persons voted at the advance poll, while returns from Deseronto, Frankford and Tweed had not been received at noon today.

Contracting Firm Leaves Extra Excavation Payment To Discretion of Board

TRENTON — Last night, the principals of the contracting firm of Van Katwyk and Kinlin of Peterborough, the firm engaged in building a 4-roomed addition on to Queen Elizabeth public public school, East Trenton, met with members of the Trenton school board to attempt to justify their action in increasing the depth of the excavation for the addition, without first consulting the board. As the increased excavation (eight inches overall), means extra digging, extra forms, extra concrete and extra cost ($582.25), the board members felt, for the most part, that the architect should have been consulted on the matter.

Mr. Kinlin contends that an engineering consultant agreed that the excavation should be lower, because of the quality of the land where it was being made.

C. J. Brown and G. Hedley members of the architectural firm of Rountlewalle and Associates, who were also present at the meeting admitted that while they had not been consulted on the matter, they had seen the excavation after it was dug, and in accord with the contractor that it was necessary to go down the extra eight inches.

Board member T. S. Ketcheson suggested at last night's meeting that the architects seemed to be in agreement with the contractor, they be responsible for the $582.25.

However, this suggestion did not meet with the approval of the architects.

Mr. Kinlin left the meeting, saying that he would leave it in the hands of the board to be heard whether to pay for the extra work and materials or not, and the matter will be considered further by the board members.

SCHOOL FEES

Board secretary, Eva Baker, told the members that the average assessment per pupil living out-of-town and sending their children to town schools had been established as $6,584.86 for high school purposes and $6,836.63 for public school purposes. This means that out-of-town residents must own property within the town, assessed at the above levels, before they can send their children without paying a fee of $17 a month for public school students and $20 a month for high school students.

Finance chairman George Greer suggested that advertisements be placed in the local paper in June and August requesting out-of-town residents with the assessment figures and the fact that all those owning town property with lower assessments would be expected to pay the established fee, which will be charged on a 10-month basis. The advertisements will make it quite clear that if the payment is not forthcoming on the first of each month, the principals will be requested to ask the children of non-paying parents to leave the school.

Board members agreed that the advertisements should be run as suggested. It was felt that in this way there would be no cause for confusion or complaint on the part of non-residents.

The board agreed to supply $325 for the purchase of 75 pigs for this year's honor society undertaken at the high school. In the past, the school's Student Council has bought the pigs. High school principal W. J. Houston told the board that the Student Council was having a hard time to make ends meet. Since the Council buys the pigs for the graduating class and also donates a $100 scholarship annually, board members felt that they should show their interest in scholastic standing by passing the honor society pins.

NIGHT CLASSES

Education chairman Mrs. Gabrielle Griffiths suggested that more publicity be given to the night school classes which are conducted at the high school. She said that the classes with established courses should be advertised earlier in the year so that more people would take advantage of them.

Mrs. Griffiths also suggested that when the high school becomes a composite school, by virtue of the new vocational addition presently being built, the board co-operate with the employment office in arranging classes in adult instruction. Mrs. Griffiths termed this system of adult education "up-grading," and said that it had been proved to be a success in Cornwall.

Mrs. Griffiths said that she would like to see the Trenton board take the initiative in sponsoring French instruction in elementary schools. She said that present indications were that French in public schools will become province-wide in time to come. She said that the Trenton board could establish a pilot class, as suitable teachers would be secured if the move became popular throughout Ontario.

In his report to the board, V. P. Carswell, supervising principal of public schools, said that 271 pupils had registered for kindergarten classes next year. Mr. Carswell said that he had received several calls from out-of-town residents seeking to enroll children in kindergarens, but that he had told them that no action could be taken until Sept. 15 when he could be sure all Trenton children had been accommodated. Public school registration last month stood at 2,059.

Miss Ida Black, a public school teacher with special training in auditory education, had written to the board asking that she be given standing as a consultant in auditory education." Mr. Carswell suggested that this be done and that the board arrange for some remuneration for this teacher. He said that Miss Black had devised a speller which will be used in the town's opportunity classes.

Rev. Ronald Reid, chairman of management, invited the board members to a panel discussion on Trenton Tempo on June 21. The subject, "should we have religious instruction in public schools?" will be discussed by ministers from Trenton and Belleville.

Louis Knack suggested that the press try to give next year's annual track and field competition better coverage. Mr. Knack complained that the event had been virtually ignored by the press in general.

T. S. Ketcheson, commenting on a suggestion made at last month's board meeting that a section of the Ontario Labor Code be read to the board would be given the last say in any argument with its employees, when and if it were introduced, be invoked, said that he was opposed, and would always be opposed to this suggestion, as he felt it would be unfair not to have disputes between the board and its employees to go to arbitration.

Mr. Reid said that he thought such a move would have the end result of protecting good workers, and intimated that he would propose the required motion at a future date. Mr. Ketcheson assured him that he would "fight" the motion.

N. Sprague Will Attend

TRENTON— Nostrand Sprague, secretary of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce will attend the 10th annual meeting of the Canadian Institute for Chambers of Commerce management at the University of Western Ontario, London, Ont., from June 17 to June 22.

WILL BE GREETED

On June 18, the Princess Royal, (Princess Mary) will fly into RCAF Station Trenton, where she will be greeted by Mayor MacLean Haig and Mrs. Haig of Belleville and Mayor James Macdonald and Mrs. MacDonald of Trenton.

Time of Princess Mary's arrival has been set at 9.20 p.m. Further details of her brief visit have not been announced.

Contracts Let For Two 401 Service Centres

TRENTON — R. B. Fraser, construction engineer with the Department of Highways at Port Hope today announced contracts for the erection of service centres on Highway 401, at points 400 yards west of the Wooler Road, north of Trenton, had been awarded to the Shell Oil and British American Oil Companies. Shell will construct the north side centre and B.A. the south side.

Mr. Fraser said that they approximately opposite each other.

Mr. Fraser said that the department was now working on grading leading into the sites.

Work on Post To Study Fallout Is Completed

TRENTON — Captain J. A. McFee, public relations officer with army area headquarters at Kingston, said yesterday that work on a fallout recording post in the provincial police building at Brighton, had been completed and that police officers would be trained to record fallout as part of a province - wide planning against any possible nuclear attack.

Captain McFee said that there were 72 such recording posts set up in provincial police headquarters throughout Ontario.

Captain McFee said also that testing of any recently installed air raid warning sirens would not take place until after July 15. Before that date, army engineers hope to have "bugs" in the mechanism eliminated.

Ottawa Dogs Sweep Classes In Field Trials

Ottawa dogs, some of them international field trial champions, swept the senior class of the final agricultural field trial held by the Quinte District Beagle Club near Foxboro on Sunday last.

Over 22 dogs and 60 people were present with entries coming from Ottawa, West Meath, Cobourg, Bolton, Toronto, Port Hope and Trenton as well as from Belleville and district.

Winners in the 13-inch class were: Robert Wilcox (Cobourg), Howard Bullock (Bolton), Chuck Durham (West Meath), Robert Wilcox (Cobourg) with the reserve going to Bill Peebles (Foxboro).

In the 15-inch class winners were: Jerry Heffernan (Ottawa), Chuck Durham (West Meath), Doug Holmes (Ottawa), Bryce Nutall (Belleville), and Chuck Durham (West Meath) getting the reserve.

Judges included W. Filsdall (Belleville), B. McConnell (Ottawa), J. Caruthers (Corbyville), J. Renwick (Trenton), T. Lesnick (Belleville).

Take Your Choice

Ernie Taylor, of the Ontario Safety League, told Kiwanians that small boats are the major source of Canadian water accidents. He said the really dangerous ones are the overpowered ones, boats of 16 feet and less, with motors running to 10 horsepower and more.

Such boats are often dangerous, but there is another important reason for avoiding them. Safe boating is more fun.

Boating is a sport, and people take to sport in different ways. With cars, there are those who prefer a quiet drive in the large and comfortable vehicle, and there are those who prefer a fast, and noisy, run in a sports car. On two wheels, tastes run from a bicycle to a powerful motorcycle.

In boats, tastes run from sailing dinghys, through cruisers to outboard hydroplanes. And one will note substitute for the other.

People in a hurry, who are looking for speed for the sake of speed, would be far better off in a light racing boat, of the type known as a "flea." While these are usually far shorter than 16 feet, and they may carry far more than 10 horsepower, they are seldom involved in accidents because the owner with the sense to go to a "flea" when he wants speed usually has more sense than to take chances. Also, he usually wears a life jacket. A "flea," because of its design, can make better speed, and burn less gas than other hulls, with a smaller motor. And also because of its design, the "flea" gives more sensation of speed and of precise handling than any compromise.

People looking for a quiet and comfortable ride, whether for cruising or day-long fishing jaunts, need a big boat. Small boats going fast are not comfortable, and the discomfort at high rates of space prevents real enjoyment of fishing. There is also the point that it takes a big boat to carry the gas required for a cruise with a powerful motor.

In power boats, either outboard or inboard, there is no single small boat capable of both real speed and comfortable cruising. The compromise affected by so many seagoing landlubbers is dangerous, according to the Ontario Safety League.

But perhaps just as important, like so many dual purpose compromises, it cannot do either job properly.

SARAH Saves Lives and Money

Canadian taxpayers lost more than $250,000 when Dr. Henry Hudson, of Timmins, and Bill Barilko, of the Toronto Maple Leafs, crashed in Dr. Hudson's light plane, near Cochrane, 11 years ago.

Such crashes still occur, and the cost of search and rescue mounts. But now there is a device, SARAH (search and rescue and homing), which will lead a search plane 25 miles from a crash directly to the scene. Present models of SARAH must be turned out manually, but an automatic version could be designed. The device is rugged enough to survive almost any crash.

The RCAF adopted SARAH in 1955, and RCAF search planes are equipped to home on the SARAH beacon. It is so effective that a crashed plane can be located at night, or in a fog.

SARAH costs about $200: it probably repays this amount several times over every time it is used. But whether it does or not, it saves lives on many occasions by bringing rescue in hours, instead of days.

The Department of Transport has many regulations covering aircraft, and some are considered restrictive.

But these would be no justification for objections to a ruling that all bush aircraft must carry SARAH.

Let's Forget This Nonsense

Is it not time our politicians gave up an effort to make taxes fair?

This is an admirable objective, but it can be attained at too high a price. The price would be too high if it involved the "balkanization" of Canada, with red tape garlanded around every road and lane which leads from one province into another.

Ontario has been trying to collect sales tax on goods purchased in Quebec by Ontario residents. Now Revenue Minister Paul Earl of Quebec says that, if this practice does not cease, Quebec will try to collect Quebec sales tax on goods bought by Quebec residents in Ontario.

If these tax-levying proposals, initiated in the name of fairness, are to be fair at all, we shall have to have two little armies of tax collectors parading the Ontario-Quebec border.

That is nonsense.

Motorcades for Candidates Prove Safest Way to Move

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — As they have roared through cities and towns behind their police motorcycle escorts, both Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Lester Pearson have fretted about possible unfavorable public reaction.

When the motorcycle outriders stop traffic entering from the cross streets as the political motorcades scoot by at 50 and 70 miles an hour, do some of the stymied motorists mutter "who do those guys think they are?"

And what do people think when "Elect — Dief — Make" go scorching by on freeway and windy country road alike at 80 and 90?

Both motorcades, when the premier has been on, have topped the 100 mile an hour mark.

This has bothered both the leaders and just about anybody else, too, who has ridden in them — among the many screaming, hurry motorcades.

There is, though, that the matter is out of their hands.

Neither leader is consulted, and if they are, they likely wouldn't interfere.

NO OTHER WAY

For, stated as it might seem, this, say the police, local, provincial and federal, is the safest way of doing it. In motorcades, escorted, at high speed, side streets are usually blocked off.

The leaders and their entourages invariably run an hour or so behind their appointed schedules, and to keep to it, a tight discipline is imposed on the cars, as quickly as possible, against a minimum of traffic.

There is no other safe way in the '57 campaign . . . no escort . . . no organization . . . and what they encountered when they came within a miracle of injuring or killing former Prime Minister Louis St Laurent.

It was up around Barrie, late in the afternoon, with the Progressive Conservative entourage waiting for an airport to board a charter aircraft for a quick flip to London for a big evening rally.

"Uncle Louie" would never tolerate a police escort. Thought it "offensive". Said it irritated other citizens. Claimed it was unnecessary.

So the St. Laurent motorcade was a fast-travelling, every-car-for-itself affair, and inevitably it ran into trouble.

TAKE NO CHANCES

Out of a side road wheeled an old car, driven by a farmer who was later penalized for careless driving.

There was no place for the St. Laurent car to go — and at 60 MPH, too — but into the ditch.

Miraculously, the PM crawled out, still waving his hat; the only unshaken man on the scene.

It was after that that the RCMP and the Ontario Provincial Police, with the co-operation of Diefenbaker officials, stepped in to request — and with emphasis — that such need, for safety's sake, of organization and traffic control.

The motorcade, supervised, controled and escorted by motorcycle and other police cars results.

Understandably, there have been no accidents, nor even "near-misses."

The RCMP took a leaf from the traffic book of state police who clear the track for President Kennedy.

When he travels weekends from Washington over the Potomac into Virginia to relax at the country estate that his wife uses for fox hunting in the rolling foothills of the Blue Ridge, the highways are cleared for miles around.

There are traffic police at the intersection of every highway and country lane blocking off emerging traffic, and the presidential outriders can be heard approaching, a long time from over the horizon almost.

Candidly, police don't push it that far by any means, but in motorcading the political leaders around the country, they are at pains to play it safe — safer and fast — than both for the politicians and the public.

Coming -- Trial By Computer

Vancouver Sun

People are becoming conditioned — or resigned — to the increasing role that machines play in their lives. This many will be neither surprised or shocked to hear the vice-president of the National Research Council, Dr. C. J. Mullard, predict that the law may one day dispense with judges and juries and stage trials by electronic computers.

Well, why not?

Feed in the evidence, add the relevant sections of the Criminal Code or whatever law is involved, push the button — and presto! A verdict is rendered.

Dr. Ballard says the idea is being tried in some European countries. No doubt the results are encouraging. On impaired driving charges the machine ought to be a whiz. Just breathe in here and out snaps a mechanical arm there to lift the driving license from your pocket.

The rules are so fallible.

Even judges nod. Else why do we have appeal courts?

By the way, are we to have Appeal Computers too?

A small thought disturbs us.

Since the computer is without emotion or passion, will it avoid the sloppy sentimentality of jurors who remember they, too, are human and that there, but for the grace of God.....

Strictly Personal

Minds Must Be Trained To Service

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

No matter what brain-washing devices are developed in the future, the most powerful force of suggestion in the world will remain auto-suggestion. The weak go on believing anything, while the strong and healthy ego will remain impervious to any sort of brain-washing.

Not long ago, a team of medical researchers at the University of Illinois tested volunteers with an identical method. The volunteers were divided into two groups — those who say they get a cold easily, and those who don't.

It was true that more of the "always-have-a-cold" group developed symptoms of colds than the other group. But then, when the researchers used a non-infectious material, about one-quarter of the "always-have-a-cold" group got symptoms, while only one-tenth of the non-cold people showed symptoms.

What this strongly indicates is that auto-suggestion is the cause of many colds, if not in many cases. If you believe you are likely to come down with something in a draft or walking through a puddle, you will get all the symptoms of a cold when the cold virus is not present in your body.

Preston Lecky once reported the case of a man and his wife who were both bitten by the same pet dog. The man became convinced that he would soon go mad, develop hydrophobia, but the woman was sure she wasn't.

"In three days," Lecky said, "the man was sick in bed, his throat swollen, his mouth full of foul, and he complained of difficulty in swallowing. His wife was up and about. At the end of five days, the man reported all the symptoms of hydrophobia, and a physician saw him as now actually on the verge of dying from a disease he did not have.

"Finally, on the eighth day, the doctor persuaded him that nobody with hydrophobia had ever lived more than six days. He jumped out of bed as well as was as well as before the dog had bitten him."

A person cannot be hypnotized against his will; the subject must want the hypnotist at least half-way, must want to be put in a trance. Many of the "suggestive power" of the hypnotist is based on auto-suggestion in the patient. Likewise, soldiers who are easily brain-washed are unconsciously receptive toward the procedure before they are begun.

The ultimate weapon against brain-washing by an enemy is not cynicism ("Communism's counsel, or patriotic education, but the building up of strong and healthy ego in our children. At their terminal point, mental health and national health converge — a strong weak, dependent and insecure personality is always ripe for totalitarian plucking.

Farmers having low wet land or marsh-would be well advised to keep a close watch for Water Hemlock, the chief poisonous plant of Ontario, the Ontario Department of Agriculture advises. Officials state that the heavy rainfall this Spring will likely mean more Water Hemlock than usual, and several cases of fatal cattle poisoning have already been reported.

The current strawberry season opened in earnest on the local produce market Saturday morning with several vendors offering considerable quantity for sale; price asked was 20 cents per box. Gooseberries have ordered for the first time, this season and sold at 25 cents per box against 40 cents per pound. The chicken offering was fairly large with top grade fowl bringing 30 cents per pound.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the Canadian Society for the Study of Diseases of Children, being held for the first time in Belleville, opened at the Hotel Quinte. Distinguished physicians, specializing in diseases of children are attending.

Exodus Just Drop in Sea

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

As suddenly and inexplicably as it began, the surging flood of Red Chinese refugees into Hong Kong has slackened.

The world is left wondering: What caused this wave of hungry humanity to smash through the barriers of the British colony, and what is the temporary breakdown of Red Chinese restraint (if not formerly held the dam in check? Or was Peiping trying to avoid the embarrassing and overwhelm Hong Kong's civil authorities?

True, the 60,000 or so who got through in the first 23 days of May are a mere drop in the ocean of the colony.

But they did not represent any real mass exodus of population from Red China. It's known that there is still a little frightening to reflect that this vast country, which the United Nations estimated in 1958 to have 640,000,000 people, is growing at the rate of about 14,000,000 a year, or about 38,000 people a day.

In other words, during the first 23 days of May Red China lost 60,000 people, a figure equated nearly 900,000 at home.

Or to put it another way, Red China gained a net loss of 1,178,000 refugees into Hong Kong, which means that the same population at home on May 31 as on May 1.

Even allowing for that, feeding the mouths of the world's biggest nation is such a terrible problem.

GREATEST OF HUMAN PLUSES

Who was the most influential human being that ever lived?

We exclude Christ from this consideration, for although He was a human being, he was also, according to the beliefs of those of us who call ourselves Christians, the incarnation of God Himself. He was therefore something no one else has ever been or ever can be.

But of what we might call straight human beings, who was the most influential that ever lived? Why Moses, of course.

Moses was the founder of something no one else has ever been or ever can be.

Not of what we might call straight human beings, who was the most influential that ever lived? Why Moses, of course. He is the founder of one religion (Judaism), and an honored figure in two other religions (Christianity and Mohammedanism). Moses was, under God, the author of the Ten Commandments. Law of every variety goes back to him, from traffic regulations to international law. Whenever a contract is drawn up today, Moses sits at the table. When the United Nations meets, the presence of Moses hovers over the assembly. Kings, prime ministers, presidents, legislative bodies of all the world's leaders combined is hardly worthy to be mentioned parsed with the influence of this man, long since dead, who has left an unforgettable indelible mark.

They found him in an ark of bulrushes in the river. They lifted him out. He had the best education the world could give anyone at that time. Then he took the world in his hands and moulded it. No one save Christ Himself, has ever influenced the human race as he did.

Some Do's and Don'ts For the Hospital Visitors

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: As a trained nurse and member of the Nursing Committee of the hospital where I work, we recently discussed the problem of visitors. We have too many of them; they stay too long; frequently they visit patients they have not seen for some time only because of the hospitalization. Anything you might write about this problem would, I am sure, be appreciated by hospital staffs. — P.H.K.

Yes, and by patients, too! Doctors and nurses can see the results of too much visiting.

A patient sick enough to be in the hospital is generally sick enough to need rest, and to want to lie still and relax.

Why do some people forget this? Why do determinedly cheery visitors have to believe the folks who arrive at the first possible moment and stay until after visiting hours are over (some of them attending the Grand Lodge in Owen Sound — • • •

Dear Dr. Molner: What is urinate, the stream is narrow and does not have much force. I have no pain. What do you suggest about it? — Frank S.

See a urologist, and he'll look first to see whether an enlarged prostate is causing this. It often does.

Party Offers

Voters should remember all those political "gifts" in the campaign before election windup — "help" for us here, more "aid" for us there extra "benefits" for a certain group — all these splendid propositions to pay for. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the cool of the evening, a rural pigeon planed gracefully down and landed on a telephone wire that crosses my neighbor's garden. The impact of its arrival on the wire set up a series of vibrations and there it then remained as ridiculous a three-minute performance as I have ever witnessed in years of looking at the clear old world of creation.

With each throb of the wire, the pigeon lost its balance. It would bow far forward and then, rotating its arms wildly, would cause the bird to tilt far back; it would then rock stretched forward and tail desperately depressed it would then rock sideways. Any bird of ordinary intelligence would have left the wire and dropped gracefully to the ground, or taken wing. But pigeons are among the most prosaic people on the bird kingdom. And for a solid two or three minutes, this one teetered, wobbled, bowed, spread its tail and wings while it kept its balance.

My neighbor, who was consulted as I was, came down the garden.

"I know people like that," he groaned.

City Backs Plea Hospitals Keep All Rate Differential

Belleville city council has gone along with members of Hastings county council, who want provincial legislation changed to allow hospitals to retain all of the differential between ward rates and private rooms, to assist in hospital construction capital costs.

Hastings county council passed the resolution at its spring session more than a month ago, while city council last night concurred in the motion.

Mayor E. A. Haig noted that certain members of county council felt some hospitals had that hospitals should be allowed to retain the room differential to help pay capital costs.

At the present time only 50 percent of such differential is retained by hospitals, with the other 50 percent going to the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

He said that the amount which would be realized in Belleville General Hospital under the proposal would go a long way toward paying debenture costs on a new hospital addition.

"It is an entirely new approach to hospital financing and could be a relief to those municipalities which find it difficult to provide for hospital capital costs when only 50 percent is being met by the senior governments."

Council concurred unanimously in the county resolution.

property and the achievements of local 504 belong to the men who built this local union and who desire to continue as members of local 504."

"We shall see that these resources are protected and preserved."

Smith warned his listeners that there is "training and thought of seizing the union halls by strength, and asked them to provoke any disturbances.

He indicated Mine-Mill would proceed by any means to regain the buildings from the steel-supporting local 598 executive.

"We are going back into the mills," he said. "We don't want to damage them."

WILL REMAIN ACTIVE

Harvey Murphy, Canadian director of United Steelworkers of America, said the union would remain active in Sudbury whatever the outcome of the vote.

"Should steel get a majority, all that would mean is the bargaining rights," he told the meeting, "but inco would laugh at us because they don't represent the men."

"In a straight fight, there would have been no doubt of the Steelworkers. There is no union in Kirkland Lake. There is no union in Port Colborne, on either side of Mine-Mill."

Locals in Kitchener, Oshawa, Ont. and Thomson, Man., employees in certification ballots have voted overwhelmingly for United Steel.

"The vote is going to see a split, brother against brother," Murphy said. "Should it go for Steel, we'll see that there is a union here. They came in the front door. They aren't creeping in of treachery, and they cannot stay."

"If Steel should win, and Inco expects to make a bargain, we'll see that they make deals. Without us, no mining is done. You don't dig nickel with phoney propaganda."

Trade, Commerce Minister Discusses Issues at Rally

PICTON — The Liberals were blamed for inspiring the recent disturbances at meetings attended by Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, by Hon. George Hees, Minister of Trade and Commerce, in an address before 300 people in Prince Edward County agricultural centre here Monday afternoon. Due to the busy harvest season, farmers were in the minority at the meeting, the women taking over and receiving plaudits by the speakers.

Taking part in the program were B. C. Hepburn, president of Prince Edward - Lennox Progressive Conservative Association; the candidate, Douglas Alkenbrack, Mayor H. J. Ackerland, County Warden John Fox, Phil Dodds who introduced Mr. Alkenbrack, campaign manager D. O. Reynolds, Norris Whitney, MPP, George Tustin as MP who introduced Mr. Hees, C. A. Milligan, ex-MP, who thanked the speaker, Les Grills, the PC candidate s for Hastings in the 1963 election campaign and introduced were Miss Kaye McFarland and Mrs. Walter Mills, presidents of the ladies' sections, Allan Anderson and Donald Walker, vice-presidents of the riding, association, Major Charles Sills, Earl Morrison, association secretary, Tom Walker, honorary secretary, who introduced Leo Gillis.

A cavalcade of cars escorted Hon. Mr. Hees in an open convertible from the airport through the town to the centre.

Mr. Hees warned that the Liberals' free trade policy would have disastrous results for Canada, especially for farm products. Of Newfoundland Joey Smallwood who prevented a non-political speech by Finance Minister Donald Fleming, at a Rotary Club, he spoke the old term "just like a dictator from a banana republic."

Mr. Hees charged that the Liberals were thrown out of office in 1957 because of arrogance, and added "it's the same old arrogant gang seeking to get back in power."

Of Liberal Leader Pearson he declared: "He has no more regard for the truth than a tomcat has for a marriage licence."

charging that mistruths were being repeated.

ELECTS CHEERS

Cheers were elicited when Mr. Hees stated that the Canadian Guards will be coming to Picton Camp this fall; a bigger camp than ever before.

Of the government record, he stated 500,000 new jobs had been made and 200,000 more people are working than in 1957. "The economy is booming," he declared, stating many figures. The pegged dollar will aid the agricultural industry, he said, and declared that Canadians should buy Canadians and use Canadian products.

"The Liberal party is more concerned with the plight of farmers in Georgia and the South than it is with Canadian farmers. Let us sell Canadian apples let us forget buying imported goods and products and by unknown people. Let us help build up Canada," he challenged.

"Doug Alkenbrack is the kind of man we need at Ottawa. His intelligence and public service ideally fit him for the office and, I know he will serve you well," he said. Mr. Hees

Conservatives wind up their campaign with a dance at Shannonpoos hall Tuesday night and a big free dance in the County arena in Picton Saturday night.

Labor Pool Is Organized

PICTON — The National Employment office in Picton is organizing a labor pool. Names of those interested in seasonal farm work are being registered. This will make it easier for factory operators to secure help when it is required.

Picton Home and School Association held its annual kindergarten tea at Queen Elizabeth school on Friday. This was a get-acquainted tea for mothers of children who will begin school next September.

On Friday, June 15, the classes who had the most parents attend the monthly meetings of the association will be rewarded. James Bird's M-5-6 class and Miss Margaret Haight's Q-4-A class were the winners of the shield.

Winding up the school term will be a wiener roast for the senior pupils at Lake-on-the-Mountain, while junior students will have a party at the home of Mrs. Rasburn Dever.

A graduation party for successful grade 8 students is planned for June 28.

Rising Prices Due to 'Drastic' Wrong Action — Pearson

By ARCH MacKENZIE

MONCTON (CP) — Rising prices are the result of the "drastic wrong action and inaction" by the Progressive Conservative government since 1957, says Liberal Leader Pearson.

In a little tax for Prime Minister Diefenbaker to blame some Canadians for price increases, Mr. Pearson told a crowd of more than 1,000 here Monday night.

There had been "straight talk" and "plain foolishness and indecision" by the government.

Mr. Pearson suggested that the country's foreign exchange reserves may have been hit by $1,000,000 worth of gold sent out of Canada as a result of Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton's statement in the House of Commons that the dollar devalued to 90 cents instead of the pres ent 92½-cent exchange rate.

"How many companies are following financial advice and switching to other currencies instead of relying on the assurances of ministers of the crown wait to devalue those dollars further?" he asked.

Mr. Pearson makes his last campaign stop in Quebec today, with daytime meetings at St. Lin and Ville St. Michel capped by a public rally in Montreal.

LAST N.B. VISIT

Accompanied by Premier Louis Robichaud, the Liberal leader made his last campaign foray into New Brunswick Monday.

He spoke at Fredericton—predicting a Liberal victory there Monday—and at Moncton, the 265 Commons seats—and at Saint John before winding up in Nova Scotia.

Mr. Pearson made his first political speech after the Profumo incident in which Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood intimated that Finance Minister Fleming from address-ing a meeting in St. John's.

He said Mr. Fleming, now being billed as a victim of freespeech, had done the same thing in Mr. Pearson's constituency of Algoma East.

However, under the "old federalism" he did not believe that French - Canadians had been permitted to make their full contribution to the country.

"I do not believe that their rights have been properly protected Canada still carries with it too many of the vestiges of its colonial past—a past which is purely British ways of doing things."

NEED CEMENTING

The partnership between the French- and English-speaking citizens of Canada had to be cemented and new ways found of enlarging their respective cultures.

The New Democratic Party, he said, has occupied "the sociological fact of a French-Canadian nation within Confederation" and proposed a program of "co-operative federalism."

Spelling out in some detail he ennisaged in such a program. Mr. Douglas stressed equality of language in the civil service, closer relationship between the federal and provincial governments, and a tax setup that would take into account special provincial considerations.

"Thus, province of Quebec has particular significance for French-Canadians. Since it is the most important single vehicle for their national development.

HAS HIS SYMPATHY

"The desire to forge a new society in Quebec is strong, and it has my sympathy and what would be a shame if the enthusiasm and idealism which is here was thwarted by lack of leadership."

An NDP government would propose a more generous division of shared tax fields, and redesign equalization payments to provinces on the basis of fiscal need. Federal-provincial ventures would be worked out more fairly, the provinces would also be allowed to act on its own.

"Indeed, should a province such as Quebec decide that it prefers not to participate in a federal-provincial program affecting education, language, or similar rights under the British North America Act, there is no reason for it to pay a financial penalty. The NDP believes that it must have a right to claim equivalent funds with no strings attached."

NDP Leader Promises Que. 'A New Deal'

By RUSSELL ELMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas promised Quebec here Monday night and received a standing ovation when he said the province "has the most enthusiastic welcome" of his election campaign.

The 57-year-old former Saskatchewan premier, professing to have "as good a French accent as Prime Minister Diefenbaker," was making his second and final bid on the hustings to address Montreal before next Monday's polling.

His efforts in the unaccustomed French tongue — combined with pledges of a new deal for French-speaking Canada and no nuclear arms for Canada—brought him a rousing welcome from an audience estimated at more than 2,000 and 2,500 in Montreal's Atwater Market.

The audience was composed of a few hecklers but out-numbered by the NDP leader of his stride, greeted Mr. Douglas and his wife, with music, song and dance. Then he got down to presented Irma Douglas with a bouquet, got a big kiss from Tommy.

ATTEND RECEPTION

Today, the Douglas campaigning, in two crowd-crossing country jaunt in two provincial ridings by regularly-scheduled commercial airliner, are to attend a reception at Montreal Island's Dorval airport tomorrow for their last appearance in Ontario. This evening Mr. Douglas will be back in Montreal for a Hamilton followed by a helicopter flight to Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens rally at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre.

The NDP leader, who flew Monday from Ottawa, premier of Regina, described his reception in Montreal as "marvellous."

It proves that whatever language we speak—English-Canadians, French - Canadians or New Canadians—we have a great bond binding together all those who produce the wealth of Canada.

However, under the "old federalism" he did not believe that French - Canadians had been permitted to make their full contribution to the country.

"I do not believe that their rights have been properly protected Canada still carries with it too many of the vestiges of its colonial past—a past which is purely British ways of doing things."

Drastic Action Warning Brings Halt to Trend

— Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Monday night his warning of "drastic action" against expanded lending commercial advantages of dollar devaluation brought a halt to the trend in rising prices.

In a free-time election telecast on the CBC's national network he recalled his statement last week that "some greedy persons" were using the pegging of the dollar at 92.5 cents to raise prices, and his warning that fast and drastic action would be taken if this continued.

"What was the result? The practice did not continue. Almost at once, the largest oil company said there was no reason for price increases. The same was said by the heads of the chain stores, the grocers and by the largest manufacturing firms in Canada.

"Over the weekend, business leader after business leader has echoed these sentiments. They are all getting on the 'no-price-increase' bandwagon, and even those who had been talking increases are finding their voices—the action they contemplated."

ACCUSES LIBERALS

Mr. Diefenbaker accused the Liberal party of conducting "unbelievable" campaign on a "desperate bid" to regain power.

He denounced what he called "elements of intimidation," denied that he had made threats, said representations that have been made "are not true," which the Liberals are trying to make the election campaign.

"Is it possible with his own eyes "evidence of planned violence—political violence."

"I wouldn't have thought it possible in a Canadian election campaign," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "But it's part of a pic-ture of desperation, of desperate bid for power by those who you dismissed from office for the same irresponsible and the same disrespect for our basic freedoms and institutions five years ago.

"They haven't changed. Their deter-mination now carries no limits—that I would never have thought possible. And all over the world they besmirch the good name of Canada."

THEY DON'T CARE

Mr. Diefenbaker charged that the Liberals don't care "and if they don't rule they don't care what ruin they bring to Canada."

"They will say anything, even though Belle-ville's economy may bring ruin internationally to the whole economy or to our reputation."

Liberal Leader Pearson had said: "Canada should learn" when he stated the Canadian government received $27,000,000 of assistance from foreign banks or foreign nations to bolster exchange reserves.

Mr. Pearson had further charged that Canada lost $600,000,000 on the exchange rate in maintaining it.

"Where?" said the prime minister, "was and still is, and the reserves are not true and weren't true.

"And when he (Mr. Pearson) was good will I—what did he say? He simply said this: Well I suppose that my word but he found it difficult to understand."

NO 'PANIC'

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberals have tried to "panic shoppers." That was the only effects of devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

The government's action will bring "thousands and thousands" more jobs through increased sales of Canadian-made goods abroad and at home, the prime minister maintained.

Farmers and fishermen will get better export prices and "millions of new tourist dollars" will flow into every province.

STUDY PROPOSED CANAL

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state AFL-CIO has joined efforts to win federal funds for construction of an "all-American canal" linking Lakes Erie and Ontario, Harold C. Hasover, state AFL-CIO president, said Sunday. Hasover had appointed an 18-member committee to work with federal and state agencies in support of the canal, which would cost $700,000,000. Hanover is chairman of the committee.

Social Credit Economic Policy Is Reviewed

RED DEER, Alta (CP)—Robert N. Thompson says the fi nancial crisis of Canada is not "weakness and inefficient creation, too near breakdown to command anyone's respect."

The Social Credit party leader made the assertion here Monday night before a crowd of 1,300—the largest rally of his western election campaign—as he reviewed Social Credit economic policy in his home constituency.

On the platform with him was Alberta Premier E. C. Manning.

Canadians have lost many of their freedoms because they are required to pay extensive welfare assistance, said Mr. Thompson.

"We end up with theoretical freedom from want but very little freedom to do anything. They say governments borrow money, puts it together with taxes and coins, then redistributes it to people who need it."

The materialistic view of life and governmental land crept into political systems and as a result material welfare was considered the "one and only good."

ADVOCATES REFORM

Social Credit was the only party offering financial reform, advocating a system under which country governments would create its money supply against the amount of debt it would be able to repay.

"We must adopt a debt-free money system balanced against the assets and services we are able to produce," said Mr. Thompson. "Then we must see that this debt-free money supply is distributed in such a way as to guarantee a basic income to all."

He said this idea has been tried and proved in British Columbia and Alberta.

"The Social Credit stand for people and their right to be governed not by the moneymanagers behind the scenes but by the democratic government they elect."

Belleville City Council Reject Motion To Pay 12 Hockey Players

Belleville city council yesterday voted against paying $7,000 in back salaries claimed by 12 members of the city-sponsored Belleville Mcfarlands Hockey Team which in 1909-10 won the world's championship at Preglue.

The players were under contract to play for the city-operated team which in three years of operation showed a deficit of over $18,000 and sparked a judicial enquiry into the city's financial position.

Judge E. Wilkmott in his report said there was no legal basis for payment of the hockey players' claim, but the amount was included in the special levy assessed against taxpayers to pay off the city's flouting indebtedness.

A motion yesterday calling for payment of the claim was presented by the finance committee but after a lengthy discussion was defeated on a tie 6-6 vote.

ZARVAH OPPOSED

Alderman William Jarvah was the most outspoken of council in opposition to the motion.

He noted there were members on council who pointed to the moral responsibility of the city paying the hockey players claim, but questioned "where also had a responsibility of paying the responsibility to city taxpayers.

Payment of the claims would be a "flagrant misuse of public funds", he said.

The claims for the salaries listed by the 12 players ranged from $125 to $1,405.

The original action of the finance committee called for payment of the claims, subject to verification of the legal liability and obtaining of release from the players for the amounts indicated.

There was a question raised as to the legal liability of paying, with Alderman Jack Ireland stating if there was legal liability the city would stand up in court.

There was a question raised as to the legal liability of paying, with Alderman Jack Ireland stating if there was legal liability the city would stand up in court.

Mayor A. M. Haig, however, brought in an amendment calling for the claims, to be paid "subject to legal opinion and approval." The amendment was seconded by Deputy Mayor Ben Corke.

Alderman Jarvah pointed out that the city council who conducted a judicial enquiry into the city's financial affairs in 1950, said there was no legal basis for payment of the hockey players' claims.

SALARIES FIRST CLAIM

Deputy Mayor Corke said that the claims of certain merchants against the hockey team had been paid and suggested that these were usually first considered in bankrupt proceedings.

He called for the claims to be paid in accordance with the order of the municipal board.

Mayor Haig agreed there was no legal liability for the city to pay the claim, but said there was other liability.

He noticed that the names of some of the players did not appear among the claimants, and said this meant that they must have been paid in full.

The mayor claimed that it would seem to be grossly unfair for some players to be paid and others not.

But the claims created the benefit of having a world's championship team and now it declines to pay the salaries, he said.

Defending the players was never confirmed by by-laws," replied Aldern Jarvah.

"And neither was there a by-law covering hockey team claims, from the merchants," returned Ald. Whalen.

Alderman Ross Bailey, as chairman of the finance committee, said some members of his committee felt that the affidavits given by many of the players in connection with their claims were not stood up in court.

He said he was opposed to payment.

On the recorded vote Mayor Haig and Aldermen Ben Corke, Jack Ireland, William Bowen, Stuart Robertson and Whalen voted to pay the claims, while Aldermen Ross Bailey, Les Bracken, Eugene Harrison, William Jarvah and Joseph Haycroft were opposed.

Woman's Place in Home Declares Psychiatrist

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP) — A good-looking psychiatrist named Marie N. Robinson thinks it's high time women were told the truth:

They're different from men. They should be educated differently. Their place is in the home.

"To acknowledge the differences in sex roles doesn't mean to put women back in the kitchen," Dr. Robinson argues.

"But a woman's historical and biological role is in the home. Her job is keeping the tone of that home happy and loving, interpreting members of the family to each other. This is what we women are uniquely designed for.

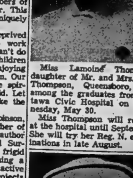
"A woman who feels deprived if she can't go out to work every day, who says 'I can't do anything.' I have four children to take care of isn't enjoying the rightful role of women. Our contribution is to set the spiritual tone of the household. Let the men go out and make the money."

Slim, brunette Dr. Robinson, wife of a writer and mother of all-year-old son, is the author of "The Power of Sexual Surrender, a study of the frigid woman. Besides maintaining a private practice, she is active in community health projects and consequently is not one to point a finger at those living wholly in the home.

"It pleases me to work during the day," she explains. "We women doctors would rather work than go anyeh long. I'm not minimizing the quality of work. But the kind of anxiety we women bring to it—

Because a women's major anxiety is love, Dr. Robinson says, she is most concerned about her home than her job.

"I bring more anxiety to family problems at the end of dinner I'm going to cook that to my middle work."



Dr. Robinson hopefully that the trend is slowly spiralling back toward recognition of the difference between the sexes, but on a higher level of understanding. The so-called emancipation of women was necessary, but . . .

"Women have had their day in the market place and are finding they don't like it. They'd rather be in the home. Then women can work or not, as we want. It's lovely to work, but can't."

Three Past Presidents Receive High Honors at CWL Convention

A highlight of the 40th annual convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, Archdiocese of Kingston, which has just conferred on three past presidents of the CWL at St. Michael's Parish, at the formal opening banquet at Pinnacle Room, Hotel Quinte, Sunday evening last.

The Rt. Reverend J. P. Sullivan, D.P., pastor of St. Michael's parish presented the life membership to Mrs. B. E. Burley, Mrs. Elmer Logan and Mrs. James E. Boyd.

Mrs. Burley was president of the CWL 1958 until 1957, and Diocesan president from '57 until 1959 and still serves on the Diocesan Council Advisory Board.

Mrs. Logan was president at St. Michael's from 1903 until 1955 and again from 1960 until 1956. Mrs. James E. Boyd was president from 1961 until 1963 and has held various offices on the Diocesan Council. All three members have been active in the CWL since 1930. Mrs. Mel Walters, provincial CWL president pinned the Life Membership emblem on the recipients.

Mrs. R. E. Barrett was the convener of the banquet at which every available seat was taken. Head table guests included: Rt. Rev. A. J. Welsh, Chancellor of the Archdiocese; Rev. E. M. Lesser, Vicar General; Rt. Rev. H. J. Farrell, DP.; Rt. Rev. J. G. Hanley, DP.; Rev. W. B. Kerr, guest speaker; Rev G. T. Martin; Rev. Dr. R. C. Pierce, Diocesan Director; Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, host to the convention; Mrs. B. A. McNeil, Diocesan president; Mrs. Mel Walters, Provincial president; Mrs. R. B. Slavin, past president; Mrs. W. Lesage; Mrs. Thos. Kelly; Mrs. Hector Dowswell; Mrs. Arnold Meagen; Mrs. K. Matter; Mrs. W. G. Pearce; Mrs. B. E. Burley, president and chairman of the convention.

Following the convention banquet which St. Michael's Children's choir directed by Sr. Mary Joan, sang, on Monday morning, a continental breakfast was served to the delegates in St. Michael's auditorium, with Mrs. Frank Domenico as convener.

The morning business session was held in Nicholson Catholic College after which a buffet luncheon was served in the auditorium with Mrs. J. B. Fraser as convener.

After the final business session, a tea party, convened by Mrs. George O'Brien, was held.

During this afternoon, Mrs. John Darlington, intrigued the audience with three humorous and thoroughly enjoyable readings.

Mrs. Joseph Gallagher, president of St. Michael's CWL as a gesture to the Diocesan Council on the 40th anniversary), presented a beautifully decorated anniversary cake to the Diocesan president who cut it and passed it to the honored guests.

COLOR PARTY

A color party of Girl Guides, was in attendance at solemn Benediction previous to the convention under the direction of the Guide Captain, Mrs. George Wilson. The Flag was presented to Monsignor Sullivan and placed in he Sanctuary during the service and carried out again by the color party. This was a most impressive ceremony.

Miss Dorothy Grant was organist and Mr. Edward Brown soloist at Benediction.

The convention was one of the largest held by the Diocesan Council in its 40 years of organization.

W.G. Closes For Season

SHANNONVILLE — The Women's Guild of Holy Trinity, Shannonville held the last meeting of the season at the home of Miss Grace Cox on June 7.

After the regular devotional, Mrs. Ross welcomed all members. An invitation from St. Judes Guild, Kingford, was received to attend a strawberry tea on June 27. All members hope to attend.

Muriel Fitzgerald handed in her birthday money and coin cards were handed out to be filled during the summer.

It was decided to send a cheque to the Centennial Fund. Also to have a family picnic at Stoco Lake, Tweed, on July 22. It is hoped to have a real good attendance.

The president closed the meeting with prayer.

After lunch, served by Miss Cox and Mary McKenzie, a social time was enjoyed.

Some plan to attend services in the Community Centre in Kingston on Sunday evening at the Centennial service.

Mrs. Josie Williams thanked the hostess for entertaining the Guild ladies.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.A.

WELLINGTON — St. Andrew's W.A. held the regular monthly meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Pritchard, with 12 members present.

Mrs. G. Upton read the Scripture lesson and reports were given by the treasurer, Mrs. Broadbridge, the treasurer Miss Hayes, G.A.; Mrs. S. Tripp, Mrs. Rogers for J.A.

A letter of resignation was received from Mrs. S. Tripp, who is resigning from the leadership of the Girls' Auxiliary after being their leader for 12 years.

Mrs. Ogilvy reported that she had the sale almost ready for the Bazaar Friends. Mrs. Rogers will deliver it to Belleville.

The food sale scheduled for June 30th, was discussed.

The next meeting will be a pot-luck supper on the park, July 3rd.

Mrs. Pritchard served ice cream, cake, cookies and tea.

Whitsuntide Holiday Brings Crop of World's Shortest Skirts

LONDON (AP) — Unfamiliar British sunshine brought forth this Whitsuntide holiday a crop of the world's shortest skirts.

"Historically," a commented clothes expert Mrs. Madge Garland, "never before have women worn such short skirts."

For the last three days young girls by the hundreds have turned out with hemlines two to eight inches above their knees.

You can see them in the parks . . . on the streets . . . on the seaside promenades . . . on the buses . . . on the subways . . . in restaurants . . . at parties . . . and even in church.

Whitsuntide is one of Britain's biggest holidays. Whitsun is the seventh Sunday and the 50th day after Easter. The holiday began Saturday and ended at midnight Monday.

It gave the girls an opportunity to stage an unofficial style show that paled the Easter parade.

The Whitsuntide skirts have become so abbreviated that a name has been coined for their wearers: Ya-ya girls. Etymologists say ya-ya comes from yeah-yeah and in its current usage is a double-barreled term of approval and appreciation.

"It's sensational," said Norman Curtz, who runs a chain of dress shops catering to ya-ya girls. "We can't make the dresses short enough."

He explained that the girls wear layers of frothy petticoats beneath their dresses and this hikes the hemline a few more inches.

"Extreme youth is the fashion ideal today," said Mary Quant, who runs a fashion house in the Chelsea beatnik belt. "And youth means short short skirts. By 1970, skirts could be halfway between the knees and the hips."

To remove a glue or smudge stain, try a little white vinegar, protected and followed by a sponging of plain water. Cream glue is best removed with a cold-water soak.

Prince Edward District W.I. Annual Meet at Demorestville

At the recent 54th annual meeting of the Women's Institute of Prince Edward District, held at Demorestville, Mrs. George Davey and Mrs. Harold Cross welcomed the guests. Registration was in charge of Mrs. A. Noonan and Mrs. W. Snider, from 9-9.30 a.m.

Mrs. Earl Hicks, district president, presided and greeted the members and visitors, among whom were the following: Mrs. Sherman Foster, FWIO board member; Mrs. J. Reid, area president, and Mrs. Lorne Smith, Jr., who were introduced and presented with corsages by Mrs. H. Covert.

Mrs. Clarence Calnan presided at the piano.

Mrs. Hicks read the minutes of the 1961 annual which were adopted, and Mrs. Hicks announced the motto each year: "50 Years of Achievement; Now What?"

The president of each branch reported. Some of the ideas presented included: the W.I. has met needs in the past, and now views the future with the same zest; the great spread of W.I. influence and world-wide expansion has been evidenced; home economics are needed the world over; country women must keep abreast with changing habits and customs of the world, and determine the W.I. course.

CODE OF ETHICS

A code of ethics was presented for practical daily living. Educating girls is a great concern; make most of the available means; live accordingly, creating better standards of home life. "As the homes, so the nation." Encourage research projects; have common interest in world affairs; make the home town a better place for the youth of tomorrow. To seek higher goals, solve problems of human relationship which is the duty of every member.

Mrs. C. Barber reported on the scholarship fund which they hope to have completed by 1963 and Mrs. S. Foster ratified the district directors for each branch.

Mrs. E. Hicks addressed the ladies and thanked them for their co-operation and support during her term of office and solicited the same for her successor.

VARIOUS REPORTS

Reports were given of various meetings and the 46th anniversary celebration at Toronto.

The reports of standing committees were fully given as follows: agriculture and Canadian industries, by Mrs. H. Noxon; citizenship and education, Mrs. A. Moore, and Mr. Ivan Bell, agricultural representative, expressed appreciation in attending the annual, and brought greetings from his department.

A notice was given of a "Water Safety" course to be held again in 1963, also a new safety program on electricity for 1962. He hoped the W.I. branches will become conscious of safety programs.

Historical research and current events were given by Mrs. W. E. Vick, whose report noted the former days of shipping at ports along Lake Ontario. Today, the harbors are all gone.

The death of Senator Carine Wilson was noted.

Home economics and health were given by Mrs. S. Tripp, who reported that homemaking is not a "hobby," but an essence of existence.

Public relations, given by Mrs. H. Montgomery, stated the W.I. was not fulfilling its obligations of reporting interesting features for radio broadcasting, such as work accomplished at night schools. The Junior W.I. had participated in a class of making leather wallets, reported by Mrs. A. Cairns.

BRANCHES EXAMINED

During the dinner hour, keen interest was shown by members in viewing the work of different projects and exhibits by the various branches. Two Institutes had an exhibit of hats made in the millinery course; another course taken was copper tooling and different articles were featured. Poem rubber was tastefully made into floral ornaments and cushions; pillow slips were shown; different styles of hostess; baby sweaters and one upholstered chair which was finished in the upholstering night school class.

There were five branch presidents who attended the Guelph conference for presidents, who gave excellent reports of the meeting and the wealth of information they received from the different speakers. There was special mention of music by Mr. and Mrs. Kidd, and an address by Padre Young.

Mrs. Smith reported on "Girls' Work." There were 73 members who had enrolled for the course, and the total number in the province enrolled was 9,000. Notice was given of a new project, "What's new in Home Furnishings." The memorial Book was presented and names recorded. Mrs. Hicks reported on the reports which reached the high mark of being 100 percent accomplished.

Mrs. J. Reid brought greetings from the Trent Valley area and announced the date for the area convention held on December 4-5.

Mrs. Sherman Foster FWIO member announced that the fund for "Pennies for Friendship" would conclude in August of 1962. In 1961 the W.I. decreased by 61 members.

Vote of thanks.

There was a $400 refund on the 65th W.I. anniversary dinner, which was applied on the scholarship and to which the 318 attending had contributed in honor of the 65th anniversary. Branches were advised to order more copies of "Federated News". The Doctor of Divinity degree has been conferred upon Padre Young at the A.A.-C. for his efficient services. Two resolutions were presented, and one received.

Mrs. Kenneth Wood reported for Federation of Agriculture, and a recommendation made asking each branch to appoint a representation to attend the monthly meeting. Also a motion to make an increase in the area fee from $3 to that of $3.

Miss Miriam Henry addressed the session. Miss Ward was the provincial public speaker award winner.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mrs. Smith conducted the election of officers for 1962-63 which are as follows: past president, Mrs. Earl Hicks, Picton; president, Mrs. Earl Onderdonk, Consecon; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Calnan, Picton; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Fenelon Convers, Demorestville; 3rd vice president, Mrs. S. Tripp, Wellington; federation representative until January 1963, Mrs. Sherman Foster; alternate, Mrs. C. Barber; district delegate to area convention, Mrs. E. Onderdonk; alternate, Mrs. Clarence Calnan; auditors, Mrs. W. Metcalf, Mrs. Fenelon Convers; reporter, Mrs. A. Wannamaker.

STANDING COMMITTEE

Convenors of standing committees: agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. H. Noxon; home economics and health, Mrs. S. Tripp; historical research, current events, Mrs. W. S. Vick; resolutions, Mrs. W. Barber; citizenship and education, Mrs. Arthur Moore; Junior Institutes, Mrs. Ross Foster; representation to Provincial Auxiliary, Mrs. A. Moore; special historical committee, Mrs. S. Foster, Mrs. W. Vick, Mrs. George Davey, Mrs. Caw; Mrs. B. Brooks; Mrs. A. Henry, and Mrs. F. Harris; public relations, Mrs. Harmon Montgomery.

Dinner was served in the tastefully decorated hall by the Demorestville ladies. Linen cloths and napkins of the spring flowers accented the tables, making a lovely setting for the bountiful array of delicious foods.

Mrs. George Roblin reported for the courtesy committee, thanking all for their part in Mrs. Hicks' successful and interesting session.

Greetings invited the W.I. for the 1963 annual.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Marsha N. — She spoils her daughter and let's her bulldoze her into impossible situations.

Norine T. — Marsha has always envied my daughter and never misses a chance to criticize her.

* * *

Marsha N. — I hate to see my sister fall for all the soft soap and baloney her daughter hands her. The trouble with is Norine's news that she can't attend my fiftieth birthday party because her young darling wants her to baby-sit 18 Virginia.

Norine is ten years older than I, but she jumps and runs when this girl goes into her act. I know Norine isn't in top health and should take it easy. I know, too, there are trips her husband and she are waiting to take and personal things like reading and serving she wants to do. But no matter what the plans she lets Patty break it up for any flimsy reason.

This time she should say no and show a little loyalty to me by coming to my party.

* * *

Norine T. — I may be a softie when it comes to Patty, but I'm so proud of the way she manages all by herself on that small farm that I'm glad to come and give her a little break, whenever she has plans for a little diversion for her husband and herself. After all, I'd hurry to her side if there were trouble, but because she keeps everything smooth, should I turn her down for a happy reason? She wants to fix up for the concerts in Tangle-wood, Mass. Why not?

What bothers Marsha is that she had very little mothering herself and used to take care of her when we were children. Our mother was sickly and died young. When I had my own daughter, naturally I had to stop coddling Marsha. So she can't help resenting Patty.

* * *

The Council: Everybody here has a solid case — even the absent Patty. Aunt Marsha considers her overmothered and spoiled. Mother Norine interprets this criticism as a manifestation of Marsha's envy, and of the latter's claim that Norine mother her along with Patty. And this young Solomwise feels nothing can be more natural than to summon one's own mother when a mother-substitute is called for.

Of course everybody is "doing what comes naturally" and when it's a three-way intersection, somebody must pull in her reins. We can indicate where each may improve her ability to straddle several relationships. Then, Norine, as a mother Patty comes first to you. (We assume you honour decency and agrees to your frequent visits to Virginia.) But you have a half-dozen other roles in life which ought not be neglected, squeezed out, bedded. Being a mother is a big one, but so is being a wife, sister, daughter, friend, relative and citizen. And what about being you, getting at those personal things Marsha mentions? Lest your life become so one-sided that there other facets shrivel, I'm asking you but a satellite around Patty while she needs you, you'd do well to learn to say no to her occasionally.

Each request can be weighed with no automatic yes guaranteed. Tanglewood is nice for Patty, but so is Marsha's party for you. We approve your sympathy for your sister-in-law who is certainly a troubled couple. But we suggest you get her to devise other means of securing her breaks, if necessary, with your assistance. Permitting you to participate in other people's lives and your husband's) way.

To Marsha we must counsel restraint. Her envy of Patty shows through. Norine may siphon off some of her rival love to share with her little sister, but she can't fill the void left by their deceased mother. As for Patty, knowing the emotional demands her mother is subjected to, she might start scanning the local ads under Professional Baby-sitting Services.

U.C.W. Meetings

HOLLOWAY ST. UNITED

The general meeting of the Holloway St. United Church Women was held recently. Mrs. C. Holmes, the president, presided, and opened with the poem, "Eternally Spring," and prayer.

Units 3 and 4, Mrs. G. Carlisle, and Mrs. J. Cavers, had charge of the meeting.

The devotional period followed the theme "Service to Others" and those taking part were: D. Carlisle, M. Richardson, M. Dorsser and B. Jose. The offering was received by Mrs. M. White and Mrs. C. Vader.

Mrs. Foster was presented with a life membership certificate and pin, by her unit leader, Mrs. O. Bertrand.

SOCIAL BASIC SERVICE

Mrs. C. W. Coleman, who is chairman of the citizenship committee, brought an enlightening address at the Cancer Society and its work throughout the community. She reminded that good Christian citizens also work outside the walls of their church and that social service relating the gospel to the needs of the people is not just an option! And, referring to the CNIB, and others, pointed out that much more needs to be done in all societies. Social service must bring a basic Christian service to all in need.

After quoting some of the main activities of the Cancer Society, both at home and across the Dominion, and also outlining some of their work in their ministry to the needy, and in research, she called on Mrs. Williams to show the film, with story, "Journey Across Canada."

CANADA'S BEAUTY

This film showed the great beauty of the Dominion from Newfoundland to British Columbia—a beauty which those stricken with blindness or cancer have to forego. The narration with the film brought many interesting stories of Canada and Canadians, and the unity was interwoven with many Cancer Society facts and figures of much interest to all.

Miss Betty Jose thanked Mrs. Coleman for her informative talk.

Miss Roslyn Robertson rendered a beautiful solo, "I'm Sure I Shall Not Pass Again This Way," accompanied at the piano by Miss Audrey Eagle.

After the reports were given and a short business period, the meeting was brought to a close with the singing of "Blest Be The Tie That Binds." Mrs. Townsend pronounced the benediction.

Lunch was served and a social half-hour spent.

C.A. MEET

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel C.A.'s met on June 3 with president, Keith Helm in charge of the meeting.

The Rev. Dr. Spring opened the meeting with prayer. Song leader for the evening Mr. David Strome. Miss Carolyn Reichert led in prayer, Miss Linda Adams read the Scripture reading, St. Luke 6:10-18.

The C.A. slogan is "Send Your Bible Through in '62". The Rev. F. Spring conducted the C.A. slogan in unison.

Ushers, Richard Patrick and Gavin Watson received the offering.

Mr. Alex Nuygsonsen of E.P.B.C. brought the evening message from 2nd Timothy 3:1-5, speaking on "Testimony and trials 'll us to walk with God" and God's love manifested through Christians will do a work for His Glory". President Keith Helm closed the service with prayer.

Found Place Far From War In Regina

REGINA (CP) — A pleasant, blonde woman with sparkling grey eyes who "wanted a place far from war" feels she and her family have found it in Canada and Regina.

Here, far from "where war was always the life," Mrs. David Avitan and her husband impart to a new generation some of the learning they brought with them from their native Israel.

With their three children—the seventh generation of the family to be born in what now is the state of Israel—Mr. and Mrs. Avitan came to Regina last August.

Their travels brought them via France, Spain, Portugal, Brazil and Montreal, Mrs. Avitan and her husband teach at the school in Beth Jacob synagogue.

Their jobs here were arranged by the Canadian Association for Hebrew Education and Culture, which sends teachers throughout the country.

Classes are held, after regular public school hours and include instruction in the Hebrew language, laws, customs, history and religious studies. There are classes from kindergarden age up to Grade 7.

Drs. Avitan speaks Hebrew, English, Portuguese and Arabic.

The family was not long in getting to know Canadian ways. In winter months they enjoyed skiing, tobogganing and skating. It was the first time they had seen snow since 1950.

The family is well pleased with its decision to settle in Regina.

"We were told Canadians were friendly, particularly the Westerners." Mrs. Avitan finds Regina full of "wonderful people" and added "we all love it here."

STATELY NESTS

LONDON (CP)—Two families of sparrows have built nests in the ornamental crest above the wrought iron gates of Buckingham Palace. Their presence is proving almost as much an attraction to the sightseers as the Palace itself.

Captain of Flagship Has Five Girls in Every Port

VANCOUVER (CP) — If a seaman sailor can have a girl in every port, it's only proper that the captain have several.

Capt. Morgan Giles of HMS Belfast, flagship off the Royal Navy's Far Eastern Fleet, has five—his wife Pamela and four daughters.

The captain's family, which also includes two boys, flies from port to port throughout the world to be with him whenever the cruiser ties up.

"In the last 16 years we've been all over the civilized world," said Mrs. Giles during a stopover here.

The children's birth certificates tell the story: Penelope, 14, born in Cape Town; Phillip, 13, born in Trieste; Melita, 11, in Malta; Camilla, 8, in London; Rodney, 6, in Singapore, and Alexandra, 3, in Surrey, England.

Mrs. Giles, who doubles as co-owner of a sheep ranch in Australia, flew to Vancouver from Sydney with all the children except Phillip to spend time with her husband. Phillip remained at school in Australia.

"The only problem for the globe-trotting Giles is the children's education. But their mother feels they still come out ahead in the long run.

"We hope they will learn things other than just what is taught in the schools. We've just came from the world's Fair at Seattle and it was very educational for all of us.

"However, when the children get older we like to leave them study in one place."

Before coming here the Giles family had visited Cambodia, Bangkok, Japan and Hong Kong over an 18-month period. They also spent several days in San Francisco and Victoria.

On leaving Vancouver, they stopped in Calgary, New York and Washington before returning to their home in Surrey at the end of May where Mrs. Giles hoped to get a French governess for the summer.

"The children can then catch up on their schooling and learn French at the same time."

Wants To Lose Weight, Secretly

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I am 14 and weigh 129 pounds, but I am only five feet tall. My sister is always saying that I am fat. I go to dances but am always nervous about my weight.

Please tell me how to lose these excess pounds and how much I should weigh. I would like to do my exercises under cover so I won't be teased. If put in paper just sign it . . . FATTY.

DEAR FATTY—You should weigh around 106 pounds, more if your frame is large.

Get under cover quick. Bend, stretch, walk, run, keep moving. Above all practise pushing away from the table after one small helping.

Never eat pie, cake, candy, fat. Take your doctor under cover with you and have him ok your diet. And for some good exercises, write to the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, asking for the RCAF XBX Plan for Physical Fitness. Enclose 35c.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—What happened tonight has happened many times before.

I am in love with a man whom I have been seeing one year and a half. We plan to marry as soon as my divorce is final. He is not starting his divorce until he sells his business. He also won't tell his wife or move from his home until then. He tells me that his wife and he are not sleeping in the same bedroom, that there never was any real love between them.

But what really is bothering me is that while we are having a conversation, he addresses me as his wife. He'll call me her name, and that hurts terribly. He apologizes by telling me that it's hard after 20 years living with her and calling her by name, that he forgets and slips. I have been married for 10 years and have never addressed him by my husband's name.

I love him very much and I'm sure he loves me; he has bought me some beautiful gifts and has paid for my divorce. Please give me some advice on this.—FORLORN.

DEAR FORLORN—The name of his wife is on his lips by force of long habit. Habits can change.

But is that sufficient reason? Is he avoiding the issue? He may love you and want you, but also dread breaking the news to his wife. And how can he be sure he can get a divorce?

Right now you are keeping company with a married man. Not an enviable position to be in.

Cookie Bakeoff

PLAIN GINGER SNAPS

by Mary Moore

These cookies are the type of cookie that require families require no fillers. They are cheap and flavorful and plentiful. And if you roll them really thin — less than ¼" and cut them with little dainty cutters, you can include them on a plateful of assorted cookies for a tea party. Indeed my cookie-baking cousin sprinkles them with finely chopped candied sugar, just before baking, and her guests consider them a high class special. I do too.

Or you may roll them out to ¾" thickness and cut them into gingerbread boys or bunnies. Homely Note: This is dark dough so little 4½-year-old boys can work with it and shape it and roll it without it looking dirty and their indulgent mothers (or grandmas) will let them eat their own products. (Davey even ate raw dough!)

PLAIN GINGER SNAPS

1 cup shortening, 1 cup white sugar, 1 tsp. baking soda, 1½ cups molasses, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 5 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons ginger, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon salt.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Chicken or Calves' Liver and Back Bacon; Creamed White Onions; Glazed Parsleyed Carrots; Shredded Leaf Lettuce and Canned Mandarin Oranges with Garlic French Dressing; Ice Cream with Crushed Pineapple Topping; Butterscotch Oatmeal Cookies (see Monday); Tea.

Cream the shortening and add the sugar. I did this in the electric beater. Add the baking soda to the molasses and add to the shortening-sugar mixture. Add the vinegar and mix. Sift together flour, spices and salt and add to first mixture. Chill dough. Roll out, ¼ at a time, on lightly floured board to desired thickness - ¼" makes standard cookies, but the thinner these are the more professional they look.

Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 8 minutes; longer if thicker, shorter time if thinner. Do not overbake.

I was in no condition to entertain Dave so let him entertain himself with a small bottle of "slivers" and a bowlful of pale green icing. Believe it or not he is a budding artist and the results on the gingerbread boy shapes charmed me and his doting aunts. They had green hair (the cookie, not the aunts) and shoes and belts, and silver buttons and buckles and shoe fasteners. The only catch was he admired his work so much he wanted it mailed to Mummy and Daddy in Ottawa!

Next Tuesday see my recipe for Roddy's New Favorite Cookies.

Many Reports Given at Rural W.I.

STIRLING — On June 7th, Mrs. Percy Craighead was hostess for the River Valley Rural Institute meeting, with 22 members, three visitors and a special pre-school children in attendance.

Mrs. Kenneth Myers opened the meeting, after which Mrs. George Hesman gave a full financial report. The correspondence included a thank-you note for funeral flowers. The bills to be paid included insurance premium, the $5.00 per sec. for expenses to the district annual and for the delegates' meals. Plans were made for a strawberry social at the school next Friday. The July meeting is children's day at the school.

Mrs. Roy Tucker gave the Pansies for Friendship report and they were collected. The total given in at the district annual last week was $15.05, with the River Valley branch. Books were given by the Friendship Link secretary, Mrs. Percy Macilduff, and papers were distributed. The conveners or their assistants, reported as follows: citizenship, Mrs. Ernest Carr; historical research, Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis; current events, Mrs. Charles Wilson; health, Mrs. Roy Tucker; agriculture, Mrs. Jack Bush. Mrs. Chas. Wilson and Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis gave excellent reports of the recent 31st annual meeting of West Hastings district, which was held last Friday in Sidney Baptist Church with the Chatterton branch as hostess.

Mrs. Roy Tucker presided over the program and gave the motto, "Three things a woman makes out of nothing — a salad—a hat—and a quarrel." She closed with an appropriate prayer.

Eighteen ladies gave recipes for salad dressing, rhubarb salads, puddings, tarts, desserts and others. The judges chose the recipe submitted by Mrs. Malcolm McMullen, and Mrs. Ross Holland presented the prize. Mrs. Ernest Carr read a thought-provoking selection on "How Long Do You Expect to Live?" Mrs. Roy Tucker outlined the topic on health, at which time she gave a summary of the tragedy of the new sleeping pill which has been available to Canadian mothers.

A humorous little play, entitled "Tea For Three", was given by Mrs. Ross Bush and her three "male" guests in costume, Mrs. Vernon Harry, Mrs. Gerald Brooks and Mrs. Roy Tucker. This is available from the Loan Library, at F.W.I.O, 20 Spadina Ave., Toronto.

The meeting closed and the ladies and host lunch committee served relish trays and assorted muffins.

Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis voiced appreciative thanks for the hospitality, program and refreshments.

Club Activities

NEIGHBORS' AID

2nd THURLOW — The May meeting of the Neighbors' Aid was held at the hall with about 25 members and visitors present to enjoy the pot-luck dinner.

A quilt was partly completed during the afternoon.

Mrs. Bruce Pertt called the meeting to order and conducted a short business period. Mrs. J. Belnap and Mrs. Gerald Sidden arranged the following program: readings "Gossip," Mrs. M. Dent; "Grandma Explores," Mrs. D. Dent; "School Days," Mrs. J. Belnap, and "The Song of The Lazy Farmer," Mrs. Stratton.

Contest, "Farmer's Romance," with Mrs. O. Stratton and Mrs. E. Grills. Soap contest, with Mrs. M. Dent, and Mrs. B. Pertt having the most correct answers.

Several suggestions regarding afternoon teas and social were discussed.

Mrs. Arnold Mitchell and Mrs. H. Grills will convene the next euchre in June.

Fascinated by Military Parades When Girl of 10

By EDNA BLAKELY

MARVILLE, France (CP) — As's school girl near Dresden Man., Emilie Cherkowski found she was fascinated by military parades.

Today, after 10 years in the RCAF, she's an enthusiastic booster of service life.

"I've recommended the RCAF to both men and women. You learn about people, you learn to get along with them, and you get to travel. Even if you stay in Canada, you get from coast to coast eventually."

Emilie, 34, joined the air force as an airwoman second class and has moved up through the ranks to flight lieutenant. Here at the RCAF's No. 1 fighter wing, she's an assistant in the personnel administration branch.

In her work, she deals with both men and women. Their careers, transfers and welfare come under her department. She is responsible for the discipline, dress, quarters and general welfare of the 40 airwomen who serve at the wing's typists, medical assistants and supply technicians. Most of them are between 20 and 30 years of age.

She also is the housing officer, responsible for the allocation of married quarters. More than 400 families live in married quarters on the base and another 400 live in local housing.

TRAVELS WIDELY

Emilie brought a car to France with her and has used it to travel to just about every European country except the United Kingdom. She plans to visit there before returning to Canada in September.

She has found that shopping on the base means quite a saving since goods are duty-free, but that clothing in European stores is priced about the same as in Canada.

Emilie was born at Castle Point, Man., between Brandon and Winnipeg, where her father, Karl Cherkowski, was a railway section foreman.

After high school she spent two years on the admitting desk at the hospital in Yorkton, Sask., and then moved to the Saskatchewan Government Telephones at Canora, Sask.

"It was there I got the bug to join the service," she recalls. She joined at Regina, took her initial training at St. Johns, Que., and went to Edgar, near Barrie, Ont., as a fighter control operator.

At Edgar in 1953 she received her acting corporal stripes. "That was the biggest day of my life." A year later she became a pilot officer. She was in personnel administration work at Lachine, Que., before coming here in 1959.

MAIL CALL

Question: My parents are divorced, and I've lived with my father since I'm soon to be married, and my father is running the invitations. My mother, who is remarried, will not attend. The problem we have is the receiving line. Should my father, as host, take over the position ordinarily occupied by the bride's mother at the head of the line? My grandmother could substitute, if that would be preferable. — Miss C.A.S., New Haven, Conn.

Answer: Your father may receive alone, or he may ask your grandmother to receive with him. Either is correct. As host, though, he greets guests first. If your grandmother stands with him, he then introduces each to her before they pass down the line.

Question: My husband and I are legally separated. Only family and close friends know about it. Other friends and acquaintances still send letters, cards and invitations to both of us, as usual. I feel I should send out some sort of announcement about our new status. Would this be correct, and, if so, how should it be worded? — Mrs. R.L., Staten Island, N.Y.

Answer: When friend, ask you a direct question about the whereabouts of your husband, it then would be correct to give a straight answer, minus any details, of course. Meantime, it would be more dignified to answer mail "as usual," and decline invitations meant for both of you. Any general announcement of the separation would be in bad taste.

Question: In June, my parents will be celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary. In honor of the occasion, they plan to give a tea at their home from 4 to 7 p.m. Relatives, friends and neighbors will be invited. My parents plan to send written invitations, instead of calling everyone, and would like to note that the party is in celebration of their Golden Anniversary.

They are afraid, however, that some of the guests will assume they should bring presents, and this they most emphatically do not want. Should they omit any reference to the anniversary on the invitation, or is there some other way out of the difficulty? — Mrs. A.B.S., North Haven, Conn.

Answer: The simplest way out, of course, is to issue an invitation to tea, without giving any indication that the party is to celebrate observing their fiftieth anniversary. It's permissible to include the line "Please omit gifts" on the invitation.

DETENTION FACILITIES REQUIRED

A Municipality is required by law to provide separate detention facilities, for a child charged with an offence or for whom a form of temporary protective custody is advisable.

Inquiries are invited from residents of the City of Belleville or persons living in the close proximity of the city willing to undertake the responsibility of providing such detention facilities. A comfortably furnished room in a private home which may be made secure and with close by washroom facilities would be satisfactory.

It should be understood that although the room shall be available at all times, its use would be required very seldom. A substantial monthly retainer plus board will be paid to an acceptable party.

Interested persons should include full particulars about themselves in their initial letter, and forward it to P.O. Box 196, Belleville.

Cross-Canada Survey

Some Parts of Prairies, Hit by Drought Last Year, Still Badly in Need of Rain

By ARCHIE TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With most of their spring planting done, farmers across Canada are generally adopting an attitude of cautious optimism with regard to crop prospects this year.

In most of Saskatchewan, where heavy rains fell at the end of May, wheat farmers were downright happy.

He said "prospects look really good now and they'll still need some seasonal rain to make up for lack of subsoil moisture reserves."

A Cross - Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed general improvement in moisture conditions in the three Prairie provinces, the prospects of drought in eastern Newfoundland, a backward spring for planting in Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Quebec, average conditions in Nova Scotia, the possibility of a bumper year in Ontario and hopes for good fruit crops in British Columbia.

TWO MORE RAIN

Some parts of the Prairies, hit by severe drought last year, are still badly in need of rain. In contrast, eastern Manitoba has had plenty of rain — too much, in fact.

Robert Douglas, secretary - manager of the Manitoba Federation of Agriculture, says the excessive rain has delayed seeding.

"However, previous surveys indicate that the latest date of seeding has not always affected the size of the crop. One of the Red River Valley's best crop years was in 1950, following the flood which delayed seeding until late June."

Seeding in the western part of Manitoba has almost been completed and prospects are fairly good.

In the wheatlands of Alberta seeding is progressing rapidly despite a cold spring.

Alberta's deputy minister of agriculture, N. N. Putnam, says prospects are fair to good except in the southwest where rain is needed.

Because of the backward spring, farmers in northern areas are not planting as much wheat as they intended and will have put some of their land under coarse grain, instead.

RAIN IS KEY

Ontario's agriculture minister, William Stewart, is optimistic about the 1962 harvest.

"Right now it looks very good. With the right kind of moisture we could have a really bumper crop."

Ontario's banana belt — the fertile southwest corner — had the driest March on record and only sporadic rains in April and May. But more corn and feed grain acreage has been planted than ever before and if good rains fall farmers expect a better crop than the record 1961 harvest.

Eastern Newfoundland faces possibility of drought for the third straight year. One of the areas worst affected is the Avalon Peninsula which grows more than half the Island's dairy farm produce. Seeding is normal in western Newfoundland.

J. Lincoln Dewar, secretary of the P.E.I. Federation of Agriculture, said May was cold and dry and this will impair the hay crop. Seeding of grain, potatoes and other root crops was about average.

W. J. MacLeod, director of services for the Nova Scotia agriculture department, said in the province's crop of potatoes, hay, mixed grain, oats, barley and spring wheat, doesn't fluctuate much from year to year. Most of the crop had been planted except in low - lying areas or in places with heavy soil.

COLD SPRING

James Thomson, a farmer at Penobsquis in southeastern New Brunswick and editor of the Maritime Farmer, says the season has been cold and back- ward. He anticipated an increase in grain seeding to compensate for the results of the smaller Prairie crop. About 54,000 acres of potatoes were planted last year and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has predicted a 10 - per - cent reduction because of low prices.

"If the northeast wind stops blowing soon, the situation will return to normal fast," said Andre Auger, director of the field husbandry branch of the Quebec agriculture department. Spring weather has been cold for the most part but several weeks of warm weather would mean a good harvest.

In British Columbia, some scattered areas have reported frost damage to fruit trees but the general outlook for apples, pears and cherries is for a heavy crop. Prospects are good and the crop should match with last year. Apricots are average. General cereal crops look very higher this year, especially in parts of the Peace River district and Okanagan Valley.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — The condition of Miss Gail Beatty, daugh ter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Beatty, who underwent an emergency appendectomy in Belleville General Hospital on Saturday last, is favorable and it is expected she will be able to come home this weekend.

Mrs. George Dyson is again confined to Belleville General Hospital since Saturday last.

Mrs. Harry Hicks is confined to her home at present, having injured her ankle in a fall at Trenton last Saturday evening last.

Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Cheney of Ottawa spent last week at the Porter home in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Porter of Toronto are spending some time at present at the Porter home.

The United Church Women packed a box on Thursday afternoon in the vestry, which is to be forwarded to the Rev. Donald and Mrs. Richardson, formerly of Thomasburg, but now of Norway House, Northern Manitoba. Another bale was also packed for overseas missions and another to be forwarded to Toronto for distribution wherever needed.

Armed Platform In Space Is Defence Need

NEW YORK (AP)—The defence department is embarking upon a man-in-space program to prevent military control of space by the Soviet Union, the New York Times says today.

The United States space program, until now largely a civilian undertaking, is about to acquire a military tinge a Washington dispatch to The Times says.

After years of reluctance and opposition, the defence department has finally accepted the need for a military space program aimed at control of space as well as its exploration.

As a result, the department has decided the air force should develop the technology for a manned satellite capable of inspecting and destroying a hostile vehicle in space.

As explained by defence officials, the air force will not be given a go-ahead immediately to develop a large-scale, operational system of manned satellites. Rather, it will develop the technology, components and subsystems required in an eventual system.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor
Income Tax Dept.

Another amendment which became law on July 13, 1961 will give quite a measure of relief to certain taxpayers who have been forced to take legal action to obtain payment from their employers of salary or wages due them. This is effective for the 1961 taxation year.

In the past any taxpayer who was compelled to take legal action to recover pay due him was not allowed to deduct the fees paid to the legal services necessary. In many cases, these costs exceeded the amount recovered. In other cases where the amount due in wages was small the taxpayer on account of legal costs refrained from entering a legal action for recovery as in the end he would have a loss, even if the wages were recovered.

The taxpayer should show on his return the full amount of wages due him, and this must correspond with the T4 slip received at any later date deductions" he should show the amount of his legal costs and provide the documentary receipts to substantiate the claim. It would appear that there is nothing in this new legislation which would place a limit on the amount of the legal fees. This would allow the taxpayer to deduct the entire amount of his costs even if they exceeded the amount recovered in wages, but in all cases the necessary receipts to support the claim must be attached to the re- turn.

This should have an overriding effect on the unscrupulous employer, as he now knows the employee will not hesitate to sue for back pay, when the legal costs are deductible.

• • •

QUESTION NO. 1 I had to sue an employer in 1960 to recover wages due me. I did not pay my lawyer until 1961. Can I deduct this cost on my 1961 return?

ANSWER A careful study of this new legislation by the writer shows nothing to prevent you from making the claim.

• • •

Question No. 2: My employers' pension plan is with the Department of Labor (Government Annuities Branch). When I start to draw the pension, it is taxable in full or am I allowed to deduct the yearly payments I put into it?

Answer: It is taxable in full, as you deducted the yearly payments from your income in the year they were made.

Quebec Socred Leader Says Candidate Transferred by RCAF Since Tories Afraid

By ALEXANDER PARRELL

MONTREAL (CP) — Real Caouette, Quebec Social Credit leader, said Monday night the party's candidate in Terrebonne riding, an air force officer, has been transferred to a base outside the province "because the Conservatives are afraid he'll win."

He told a crowd of 700 at a federal election rally in Montreal's north east that the candidate, Dr. Lucien Bachand, "will continue to stand for Parliament and his wife, with our help, is going to carry on his campaign."

Mr. Bachand, a flight-lieutenant who graduated in medicine from Laval University in Quebec City this spring, was ordered by the RCAF last Friday to report to its North Bay, Ont., station.

Premier Caouette said he arrived there Monday.

Fernand Ouellette, treasurer of the Quebec Social Credit organization, told the meeting Mr. Bachand would be fired by the RCAF last February for his refusal because he wanted to undertake post-graduate studies in radiology—at Laval.

WARNER STATE SECRETARY

He said Dr. Bachand wrote to State Secretary Dorion in April last asking for an interview on his behalf and that Mr. Dorion, in his letter of acknowledgment, said he was taking the matter to the attention of Pierre Sevigny, associate minister of national defence.

"Finally Dr. Bachand received a letter June 8, signed by one Gordon Guillet as executive secretary to Mr. Dorion, telling him that, in accordance with the administrative policy of the defence department, we have been unable to obtain your release."

Mr. Ouellette said a copy was attached of a letter to Mr. Dorion dated May 8, post-dated to which the associate defence minister said: "Your request for your release had been received in the office and it had been decided they could not accept your request on compassionate grounds."

Mrs. Bachand, reached by telephone in St. Jerome, said her husband signed a contract with the RCAF in November 1960 whereby he was paid a salary and university tuition fees on condition that he serve three years after graduating.

She said because of his release early this year because he wanted to do post-graduate work and later told the RCAF he might want to take an active part in politics, he was questioning which party he would support.

IF PAYS BACK

She said the contract includes a clause stipulating that he can be released if he pays back the money given him as salary and subsidy for university studies "or such portion thereof as the minister may direct."

Mr. Caouette said the party would carry many ridings because we have a program of security with liberty for every citizen.

"Ours is a party that will serve the citizen as a human person and not as a cog in a machine."

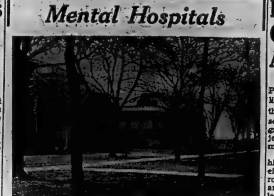
He said successive Liberal and Conservative governments have failed to bring about a regime of equal social and economic opportunities for every Canadian citizen.

"We have been living under a system where the big people are getting bigger in smaller numbers and the little people are getting smaller in bigger number."

Desegregation Of Catholic Schools Ordered

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Roman Catholic church has ordered schools in the Atlanta archdiocese to be desegregated this fall in a move supported by leading Catholic laymen as well as the mayor of Atlanta.

The decision applies to Catholic schools in the 71 north Georgia counties of the archdiocese where about 7,500 pupils are enrolled. The total includes 735 Negroes, all in Atlanta.



Archbishop Paul J. Hallinan said it was up to local bishops elsewhere in the archdiocesan province to decide what action to take in their areas. That included other sections of Georgia as well as North and South Carolina and Florida, all under the archbishop's titular control.

The desegregation decision was announced in a pastoral letter read during Sunday services in all the churches of the North Georgia archdiocese.

Mental Hospitals

Ontario's Hospitals for the mentally ill "a safe, quiet refuge" away from the cares of the world.

By MATTHEW B. DYMOND
M.D., Health Minister for Ontario

Have you ever wondered about Hospitals where the mentally ill are treated or about the people who work in these Hospitals caring for the patients? I'm sure you have and no doubt many folk think often of them now-a-days when society is more and more looking upon the mentally ill as sick people, as they really are.

All of us at some time or other have had "queer" ideas about the "Mental Hospitals" most likely because we didn't know much or anything about them or probably these ideas were born out of weird tales often concocted by others who "fancied" what might go on in the Hospitals. These Hospitals used to be called Asylums-the dictionary says Asylum is a "secure place of refuge". So although to me this word "asylum" is disliked and was often used, it has warm and comforting connotation. Now still relatively recently, almost all Medical Science could provide for the mentality ill was security-refuge-a safe "haven away from cares".

Just as great strides have been made in all branches of medicine, so in the field of psychiatry-the care of the mentally disordered, we have moved and are moving forward and the mental hospital of even 25 years ago no longer exists in this province of Ontario.

The hospitals for the mentally disordered have been the responsibility of the Department of Health ever since the Department came into being. There are now in the province 12 hospitals for mentally ill and two new ones will be opened this year. There are also 3 hospital-schools and three hospitals for mentally retarded. All of these provide accommodation for severe 26,000 patients. In addition to these the Department operates two highly specialized research units-one at London for research into mental retardation and one at Thistletown for research into the problem of emotionally disturbed children. Out of these latter are coming new knowledge as to causes-new ideas and methods of treatment, care and management of these patients. All this is helpful push forward the quantity and quality of our knowledge and giving us hope that even greater success will yet attend our efforts to treat these patients still better and more successfully.

Next week I'll try to tell you more about our hospitals.

Nehru Thinks China Will Not Attack India

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Prime Minister Nehru told Parliament Monday he doesn't think there is any prospect of large-scale Chinese Communist aggression against India and rejected a suggestion that cold relations be severed.

He had been asked whether his recent statement to a foreign correspondent that "the roof of the world is collapsing around us" meant he expected large-scale Chinese aggression.

"I do not think that there is any such prospect as far as I can see," Nehru said.

Kennedy Asks All Join Hands To Aid Economy

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — President Kennedy urged Monday that critics, business and political, discard "wornout" dogma and join hands with government to give it new strength and confidence into the United States economy.

Kennedy vowed his clash with the steel industry did not mean his administration is hostile toward business.

But in a speech prepared for Yale University's commencement, he said the government is obliged to exercise "watchful concern for our economic health" while business and labor must live up to their public responsibilities.

Kennedy said economic problems bearing down on a free economy cannot be solved without separating myth from reality — and he said it's mythical to contend that government is big and getting worse or to argue that deficits in the federal budget always create inflation.

Mrs. Jack Sargent, curator of the Hastings County Museum, keeps up to date by posting an election poster. Unfortunately, the election this poster is for was held in 1875. Mrs. Sargent is more interested in this poster than the modern ones though: the returning officer, George Taylor, was her great-great grandfather. The hammer she's about to use to post the poster is a hundred year old wooden mallet, used once to drive the wooden pegs to hold a large tent. The poster was printed on the "Ontario" steam press.

Aides of Party Leaders Do Work up in Clouds

OTTAWA (CP) — The back-room boys are riding up front in this election campaign.

On the chartered planes of both Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson there is a private cabin just forward of the main passenger section.

While the broad outlines of the campaigning are charted in the Ottawa headquarters of the two major parties, the success or failure of the next hour's campaigning may hang on the work done in that little cabin 10,000 feet or more in the air.

The party leaders travel in the rear sections of their aircraft. They go into action publicly when the planes touch down, shaking hands, posing for pictures, giving interviews, and making speeches.

The men in the front cabin then fade into the background. On the Empress of Edmonton hired by the Conservative party, the forward cabin is jammed with baggage and files and littered with papers, in a cloud of cigar smoke. John Fisher, Mr. Diefenbaker's special assistant, pecks away at a typewriter or dictates to a stenographer.

Following nearby, Toronto automobile dealer George Hogan, party manager, leafs through a sheaf of itineraries, road maps, and telegrams and letters requesting public appearances by Mr. Diefenbaker.

On the Lisbon's sister plane, the Empress of Honolulu, hired by the Liberal party, the at-his-mosphere in the forward cabin is may seem less hectic. Opposition leaders do not have to add the day-to-day business of government to the business of political campaigning.

But two men in the forward cabin of the Honolulu do essentially the same work as Mr. Fisher and Mr. Hogan. They are Richard O'Hagan, Mr. Pearson's special assistant, and James Regan, on loan to the national Liberal leader from Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick.

Their tasks are to iron out last-minute travel and accommodation bugs, see that speech material is ready for the leader's next stop, doublecheck names of prominent party men and situations to be watched in the next locality on the tour, and prepare messages of political support, thanks, congratulations, or condolences for candidates, workers, and supporters along the line.

Each of the party leaders is also travelling with an entourage of speech writers and advisers, as well as press arrangements experts and baggage handlers.

But speech-writing for both party leaders has its frustrations.

Mr. Diefenbaker goes onto the platform with a sheaf of notes and prepared passages of his speeches, but delivers them off-the-cuff, barely glancing at the prepared material. Mr. Pearson delivers large parts of his speeches without notes, and frequently writes large sections of his important addresses himself.

Little Sisters Perish in 'Frig' In Etobicoke

TORONTO (CP)—An unused refrigerator stuffed out the lives of two blonde, blue-eyed sisters Monday in suburban Etobicoke, where two boys died in a similar mishap a month ago.

Russell Brown, 11, found his sisters Wendy, 4, and Donna, 2, huddled in an old refrigerator in the basement of the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Brown.

The discovery followed almost an hour of frantic searching by the girls' mother, Evelyn 28, and eight-year-old brother James.

Neighbors said the parents, both of whom work, had left the girls in the care of a babysitter, Mrs. Marie Ward, 42, for the day.

Mrs. Brown arrived home about 3:15 p.m. to drive the sitter home before starting supper. Intending to take the girls for the drive, she began looking for them.

When the mother saw her daughters' bodies she began screaming from the basement.

A neighbor, Ingrid Lee, heard her screams and went to the basement, removing the girls and applying mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration until firemen arrived.

PRONOUNCES DEAD

The girls were pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. J. D. Sinclair.

The refrigerator was empty except for a small fixed freezer compartment. Until 18 months ago it had been used occasionally as a spare refrigerator.

About a month ago Gregory Ziemiak, 3, and Kim Seyler, 5, died in an unused refrigerator on the rear porch of the Ziemiak home, about three miles from the Browns.

The Brown's have one other child, Karen, two months.

Replacement of the retaining wall on Hastings county property along Campbell St. began yesterday. Riverside Construction is doing the work, with Jack Buah supervising. Mr. Buah estimates the work will take about 6 weeks. In the photo, Arnold Ray, of Harry Cook Excavating, uses a tractor shovel to pull down part of the old wall.

Liberal Leader Will Campaign In Que., Ontario

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson's last week on the hustings, began Monday with a one-day visit to New Brunswick and will end Saturday with activities in Carleton constituency—an Ottawa area riding that has elected Conservative candidates since Confederation.

In between the Liberal leader will campaign in Quebec and Ontario.

Mr. Pearson's itinerary was released Monday by party headquarters.

On Wednesday Mr. Pearson will visit Montreal constituencies, attend a civic reception in his honor at the Montreal city hall and hold a press conference before flying to Kingston for an evening rally.

On Thursday Mr. Pearson visits the Ontario communities of Bath, Glenora Ferry, Picton, Consecon and Trenton before flying to Toronto for a "citizens for Pearson" reception at the Park Plaza Hotel and an evening rally at the O'Keefe Centre.

On Friday Mr. Pearson goes to Brantford for an evening rally and that night to Ottawa.

On Saturday he visits Ottawa area ridings, including a full afternoon in the Carleton constituency.

He will spend Sunday in Ottawa and will be at his home in the capital for election day Monday.

Liberal Claims On Wheat Sales Are Disputed

EDMONTON (CP) — Liberal claims that in their last four years of office they sold more wheat than the Conservatives sold between 1957 and 1961 are nonsense, Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton said Monday.

Mr. Hamilton told a press conference that the Liberals, "stupid clots, who just don't know any better," have been quoting purchases from farmers rather than sales by the government.

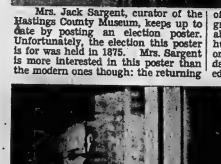
He said the Liberals claimed sales averaging 387,000,000 bushels a year between 1952 and 1956 compared with 378,-000,000 bushels a year during the last five years under a Conservative government.

Actually these figures represent the amount of wheat purchased in those periods by the government from Canadian farmers, Mr. Hamilton said.

The Liberals were not able to sell 733,000,000 bushels of the wheat they bought from farmers between 1952 and 1956.

Mr. Hamilton said sales this year were expected to be 375,-000,000 bushels, an increase of 22,000,000 bushels over 1961. He said he could not name the new markets that would result in the increased sales for business reasons.

Air Conditioning Of Courthouse To Cost More



It is going to cost a bit more than was expected to complete the installation of air conditioning equipment at the Hastings County court house.

Earlier in the year, county council decided to install air conditioning throughout the new addition to the courthouse at an estimated cost of about $30,000. The city of Belleville and the town of Trenton approved payment of their share of the cost.

Now it appears that installation of a high pressure type equipment will require hiring of a third class engineer or compressor operator.

To get away from this expense it has now been decided to install a low pressure type equipment which would eliminate the need for an engineer. However, the cost of the equipment is greater, the lowest tender for the equipment being $37,588.

Howard Pulver, a grade 10 BCIVS student, was the first week-day customer of the year in the museum. He accepts his program from Mrs. Sargent.

Hastings County Museum Opens Doors for Summer

Hastings County Museum is open daily this week, and through the summer, and business is expected to increase quickly. Monday, the first day, saw few museum goers, but tours by different groups are planned through the week. Mrs. Jack Sargent, one of the curators, has put an old "period-bygone" bicycle out front to attract people, "but"—she complains, "they look, but don't come in."

Exhibits in the museum, mostly loaned or donated, include relics of our pioneer past and one gallery of Victorian English furnishings. A storeroom in the back contains material for several more exhibits, when room is found to display them.

The museum is not large, by big city standards, but it belongs to Hastings County, not to Belleville. Mrs. Sargent expects it to grow with increased patronage.

Roads Minister Will Not Seek Another Term

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Highways Minister William A. Goodfellow said here Monday night he will not seek a seventh election to the provincial legislature.

He was speaking at a public meeting in support of Hartley Bradley, Conservative candidate in the June 18 federal election for Northumberland riding, the area Mr. Goodfellow represents in the provincial government.

Mr. Goodfellow, 60, urged support of the Diefenbaker government and the formation of an organization of younger men in the riding centred on Mr. Bradley.

Charlotte Did Some Pretty Fancy Footwork

OTTAWA (CP) — For a person who was limping with a sprained ankle a couple of weeks ago, mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa did some pretty fancy footwork Monday during the early minutes of the Queen Mother's visit.

The mayor was at the airport to greet the royal visitor, and she stayed to see the royal party depart. Plans called for her to be in downtown Lansdowne Park to greet the Queen Mother 20 minutes later.

Not only that, she had to be wearing all her official robes, her black tricorn hat, her golden chain of office, four medals, innumerable red ribbons, white gloves and lace sleeves. Shoes, of course, must be black.

At the airport she was wearing a green coat and dress and green shoes.

Mayor Whitton made it.

But it was clearly a close call. She had to don her official outfit over her dress in the confines of the back seat of a car that rocketed into town.

Spectators saw her getting help from an aide as she struggled into the maze of robes with all the dangling bits.

The door was opened for her at Lansdowne Park. As the mayor started out she noticed her change wasn't complete. She wore a green shoe and black one.

She fixed this fast. Few people noticed.

Paper Strike In Second Week

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — A strike of plant employees of the Sherbrooke Daily Record entered its second week today.

The newspaper's 20 composing room, stereo and press room workers walked out June 4 seeking higher wages and a shorter work week.

The employees sought a 12-cent hourly increase in the first year of a three-year contract with provision for additional increases in the second and third years. They also wanted the work week reduced to 42 from 44 hours.

The newspaper said it had offered an increase of 10 cents hourly over the next three years and reduction of the work week in the second year.

Wage scale at the time of the strike was $1.35 an hour hourly under Quebec's wage parity system fixing rates for particular economic areas.

Quebec Royal Commission Holding Special Inquiry Into Education in the Province

MONTREAL (CP)—An eight-member Quebec royal commission, up to its collective neck in briefs, is grinding its way through the most extensive public inquiry into education ever undertaken in Quebec.

The commission hopes to finish its public hearings by mid-July but commission sources say the government may be asked to extend the deadline for its report, now set at Dec. 31.

The government has indicated its willingness to mark time, undertaking no new legislative in the field of education until the commission has finished its work.

Premier Lesage and Youth Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie have both said on several occasions that the commission has "carte blanche" to investigate and pass judgment on everything related to education in the province and that it must be allowed time to do a thorough job. Its recommendations would form the basis of educational policy in Quebec for the rest of the century.

BEGAN IN NOVEMBER

The royal commission, headed by Msgr. Alphonse-Marie Parent, vice-rector of Laval University, began its public hearings in Montreal last November.

Now that the commission has heard more than 100 briefs and held more than 20 hearings, it has been shown that the ranks of those who want to maintain the religious basis of education in Quebec are numerous.

Most of the advocates of reform — and there have been plenty — want changes to be made within the existing framework, particularly at the top.

Quebec's public schools are organized on a so-called "confessional" basis into two sectors, Roman Catholic and Protestant. Each sector is administered by an autonomous committee of the Council of Public Instruction, the province's highest authority in public education.

Several briefs have urged that the Quebec government have a minister of education. Most ask that when it comes to such things as government grants, school taxes and compulsory school attendance, Gerin-Lajoie is in effect a minister of education, but without the title and without any direct responsibility to the legislature for education.

The net result, some of the briefs said, has been confusion as to who is doing what—the government's youth department or the department of education which comes not under the government but under the council of public institution.

The commission has heard a suggestion for two groups which do not fall naturally with in the confessional structure as it is—the Jews and "the "laics," a group of French-speaking laymen campaigning for "neutral" schools independent of any religious authority, and the Jews. The Canadian Jewish Congress said the Jewish community is willing, however, to continue the present arrangement whereby its children attend Protestant public schools, provided that Jewish parents as such have their own representatives on provincial and local educational bodies.

The "laics" say new structures are necessary because of the new and growing diversity" of belief in Quebec. They said there are "even practising Catholics" who are opposed to the present system and want to lead their children to neutral schools.

TEACHING CRITICIZED

A number of briefs have been severely critical of the quality of texts and teaching in the Catholic schools. Perhaps the most biting criticism came from L'Association des Femmes Universitaires, an association of university-educated women in Quebec City, which said the text-books now in use reveal many examples of an impoverished vocabulary, clumsy expression and "a narrow and antiquated patriotism."

Too many texts were also characterized by "an infantile religiosity."

This abuse of religious themes is, in our opinion, the best way of making of our children loathe true religion for-ever.

On the financial aspect of education the main complaint emerging from the briefs — apart from general agreement that not enough money has been provided for education as a whole—is that the smaller centres cannot provide schooling of sufficient range and diversity to meet modern needs if they must continue to depend on local resources;

MOON ROCKET?—Front Street pedestrians in the vicinity of city hall wondered yesterday when they saw two of the above units being unloaded from a Public Utilities Commission truck. Actually they are new 1,000-watt mercury vapor lamps being installed on a trial basis. Two of another type will be installed on trial near the upper bridge with a view of eventual replacement of all Front Street lights. Public Utilities line foreman Charles Hiles is seen at left with one of the light units, while at right the new lamp is being installed atop a 30-foot light standard. But the lights won't be lit for a day or two—they were shipped without the bulbs.

Plate Experts In Tizzy

Long Shot Wins Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Reckless Rick, a 40-to-1 shot and second-favorite Peter's Chop was the two - division Queen's Plate Trial in the mud at suburban Woodbine Monday.

The victory for Reckless Rick threw the Plate experts into a flip when he barrelled through the mud for an easy decision over a 12-horse field, including the highly favored King Gorm and Sun Dan.

Reckless Rick won by five lengths over Argue Around, another long shot, and paid a handsome $140.10. King Gorm was third, six lengths behind the winner, and Sun Dan was eighth, almost 13 lengths off the pace.

In the second division Peter's Chop finished 2½ lengths ahead of even-money favorite Chooper-ton—Welcome Effort, the only Western Canada-bred horse still eligible for Saturday's 102rd running of the $75,000 Plate, took the show money another 6½ lengths back.

Reckless Rick, who broke his maiden just 11 days ago in a seven furlong sprint, covered the 1 1-16-mile distance in 1.48 3-5. Peter's Chop made it in 1.46 4-5.

Johnny Longden, the winningest jockey in the world with 5,600 first-place finishes over a 36-year career, was aboard Sun-Dan and Welcome Effort. He will have most of the week to decide which mount he wants for the Plate, one of the few important stake races in the world that has eluded him.

Peter's Chop paid $6.80, $3.20 and $2.60. Chooperton returned $2.90, $2.50 and Welcome Effort $3.10.

Reckless Rick paid $37 for place and $11.50 for show. Argue Around returned $28 and $8.20 and King Gorm $2.70.

To Discuss Baltimore Franchise

CLEVELAND (AP) — The board of governors of the American Hockey League may start discussions today on the application by Baltimore interests for an AHL franchise.

The decision is reported to hinge on whether or not the new Baltimore arena will be completed in time for the 1962-63 season.

At a meeting in May, the league refused to allow either Springfield or Rochester to shift its franchise to Baltimore. If Baltimore is admitted to the eight-team league, it must build a new squad.

At Monday's opening of the three-day session, James C. Balmer of Pittsburgh was voted the first award of the James C. Hendy Memorial Plaque.

Balmer, 71, is retiring after serving as league president for one year. He was general manager of Pittsburgh Hornets for 25 years.

The plaque is to be given annually in memory of Hendy, former general manager of Cleveland Barons who died early in 1961. It goes to the individual considered to have done the most for the league during the previous year.

Hauls In 810-Pound Blue Marlin

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP)—A fisherman pulled an 810-pound blue marlin out of the Atlantic waters Monday. It apparently was a record marlin catch.

The fish was caught by Gary Stukes of Montclair, N.J., on 130-pound test line.

Stukes, who was fishing aboard the Albatross II, a charter fishing vessel piloted by Bill Gentry of Hatteras, pulled in the marlin in 20 minutes.

The marlin was measured and weighed by Dr. William Hassler, marina biologist from North Carolina State College, Raleigh, who operates the school's marine biological laboratory here. It measured 14 feet from tip to tip and 68 inches around.

The listed world-record blue marlin was a 780-pounder caught by Eric Widdowson off San Juan, Puerto Rico, in 1959.

Amateur Golfers Are Named

TORONTO (CP) — The amateur half of Canada's entry for the sixth annual pro - amateur match, scheduled for here July 2, was named Monday.

The four are Gary Cowan of Kitchener and Nick Weslock of Toronto, top ranked in the country, and Phil Brownlee of Scarborough and Gord MacKenzie of Vancouver.

The professionals, named last month, are Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Canadian PGA champion and Al Balding, Gord Brydson and George Knudson, all of Toronto.

The U.S. pros are Dow Finsterwald, Julius Boros, Gay Brewer and Ernie Vossler. The U.S. amateurs have not been named yet.

The pro-am is played in four matches, with a professional partnering an amateur from the same country in each foursome. One point is awarded the winner of the first nine holes, one to the winner of the second nine and one to the winner of 18. Total points scored by each pro-amateur pair are added to make the country's score.

The professional will split a $3,000 prize money — $750 to each of the winning pros and $500 to each loser.

LIONS SIGN BACK

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fullback Rob Beamer has signed a three-year contract with British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, the club announced Monday. Beamer, 210 — pound backfielder who played previously with Oregon state, came to the Lions in 1959. He scored nine touchdowns last year and was fourth in total rushing yardage in the WFC with 878 yards on 169 carries.

Julie and Carol Done Wrong By Writers and Producer

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Julie Andrews and Carol Burnett are two of the brightest, most endearing and talented entertainers in all of show business. As a team, they were beautifully together.

But somebody done them wrong with the material, direction and photography they were given in Monday night's CBS special, Julie and Carol at Carnegie Hall.

The concept was great: Present the girls to an audience in Carnegie Hall and then proceed to have them satirize the usual type of entertainment seen at the venerable auditorium.

This idea was fine, and the middle was perfect. But after gay, funny starts, the comedy plummeted to banana-peel level and the funny words just weren't there.

In efforts to show the white-tie audience out front, the cameras photographed the stars from most unflattering rear angles. Often the orchestra was so loud one could not hear the words they were singing. And Carol—a brilliant comedienne who needs firm direction and a delicate rein, was allowed to overdo the clowning and mugging in bits that needed a more delicate touch.

The show, largely because of the writing and production, was a sharp disappointment.

Pat Boone Fans Will Have To Face Fact Boy Changed

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Pat Boone fans will simply have to face the fact that their boy has changed.

Not in real life. He's still the same clean-living, clean-thinking lad of yore.

But his movies—that's something else again.

Remember the sensation caused when Pat got his first kiss in a movie? He went kissless until his fourth one. Well, you should see him now.

Pat was just back from making Main Attraction in Austria and England for 4½ months. The role presents him in a light that his fans have never seen before.

"I'll admit I'm worried about their reaction," he said. "But I had to do it. I must do what I think is right for me, regardless of the consequences."

"I've already been hearing from them. They've read that I smoke in the picture, that I have a love affair with an older woman played by Mai Zetterling, and another one with Nancy Kwan.

"They're even complaining about State Fair, which I didn't think was objectionable at all. Of course, I got drunk in it and played a love scene with my shirt off with Ana-Margret. But the character I played was still a square."

Pat said that he had turned down a number of good offers —"with better stars and directors than I have ever worked with"— because he found the subjects morally offensive.

Main Attraction proved him a downbeat role as a drifter who bums around European circuses and falls for a woman (a Woman, it had the saving grace of regeneration at the end) through the love of a good girl.

"I thought that made it worth it," said Pat.

TOMORROW AT THE BELLE — Glenn Ford and the Danish Beauty between Ingrid Thulin stage an explosive love affair in the movie "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse", an unusual love story bursting with excitement and intrigue, opening Wednesday at the Belle Theatre.

LAST DAY AT THE BELLE—Nancy Kwan stars in Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Flower Drum Song", playing tonight for the last time at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre and Commodore. The film co-stars James Shigeta, Myroal Uesaki, and Jeanie Hall, best remembered for her classic portrayal of Moody Mary in "South Pacific".

Golfer Gets Pants-Pocket Hole-in-One

KITCHENER (CP) — A tee shot in the side-pocket?

An unidentified golfer at Kitchener's Don Valley Golf and Country Club last week-end likely doesn't know he made the shot.

Peter Palmer felt something brush against his hip and a pocket of his trousers as he played a shot on the 10th fairway. He didn't discover the golf ball with the billiards instinct until he reached into his pocket at the green.

The unidentified golfer who sliced the errant shot off the 13th tee had disappeared by that time.

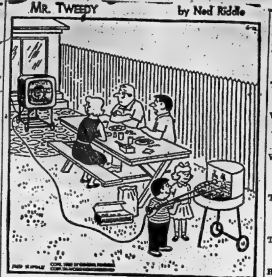
Rain Halts Softball

What's the weather man got against the RCAF Flyers of the Belleville and District softball league?



Rain forced a postponement of last night's game at the Fairgrounds between the Flyers and Rollins Consruction Juniors.

It was the third game of the season that has been washed out and the Flyers have been involved in all three. The other two are against Joyce Real Estate, one in Belleville and one in Trenton.

The Bobcats are scheduled to tangle with Joyces in an eight o'clock fixture at the Fairgrounds tonight. Joyces visit the Flyers in Trenton Wednesday night and Rollins tackle the Bobcats at the Fairgrounds Thursday.

Broadcast Governors

Urge TV Get-Together

OTTAWA (CP) — The Board of Broadcast Governors indicated Monday it has urged the CBC and the privately-owned CTV television network to get together on a plan for Canada-wide TV coverage of next fall's Grey Cup football classic.

The BBG statement gave few details, but it was apparent that the board still holds to the view it expressed last fall that the public interest in seeing major sports events, particularly those involving teams representing the regions of Canada, should be protected.

It said Monday that it discussed the 1962 Grey Cup coverage with representatives of the CBC and CTV networks during the board meetings two weeks ago and "passed to the networks its views on certain aspects of the problem of televising the 1962 Grey Cup game."

CTV has purchased TV rights to the game, to be played in Toronto Dec. 1. John Bassett, chairman of CFTO-TV Toronto, which is a member of the CTV network, said last week the network of the game will be offered without charge to the CBC, including CBC stations in competition with CTV member stations.

Canadian Soccer Told

No Tampering With Rules

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian soccer officials take note:

Federation of International Football Associations — FIFA — wants no tampering with rules governing international soccer.

The warning came after FIFA learned that officials of the Eastern Canada Professional League were attempting to introduce hockey rules into soccer. Some of the changes were to include penalizing players for rough play as is done in hockey.

FIFA says that any teams playing under the new rules could be suspended.

Harold Ballard, ECPSL president and chairman of the management committee of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, said Monday night: "We were greatly concerned with rough play creeping into our games so we thought we could institute some kind of legislation that would beat the situation.

"But we found, after a meeting with referees and a thorough attempt to reach a sensible solution to the problem, that hockey-type penalties were not feasible. Enforcing them posed too great a problem."

Braves Get $100,000 Bonus Baby

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Daniel Schneider, 19, of Tucson, Ariz., one of the most sought - after young pitchers in the United States, was signed to a farm club contract Monday by Milwaukee Braves for a bonus reported to be in the $100,000 bracket.

Snap Cards Win String

Phillies National Giant Killers

By MIKE KATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia Phillies, who aren't going any place in the National League, are making a career of humiliating their betters.

When they knocked off St. Louis Cardinals 8-5 Monday night, snapping a seven-game winning streak for the Red Birds, it was the fourth time in three weeks they had committed similar mayhem against a pennant contender.

The seventh-place Phils did it the first time May 17, edging Cincinnati 4-3 to end a string of six victories for the Redlegs. Two weeks later they stopped a San Francisco drive at seven by downing the Giants 5-2. Then they walloped Los Angeles Dodgers 7-0 June 2, emphatically ending a 13-game Dodger skein.

The victory over the Cardinals dropped St. Louis into fifth, who moved up with a 6-5 triumph over Chicago Cubs. In the only other game played, New York Mets defeated Houston Colts 3-1. San Francisco and Cincinnati were rained out.

Home runs by Don Demeter and John Callison powered the Phils to their triumph over the Cards and paced a 12-hit attack that enabled Chris Short to beat former teammate Curt Simmons (6-3) for the first time in nine tries. Demeter hit his eighth homer with a man on in the fifth inning to put the Phils ahead to stay 4-3. Callison it a three-run pinch homer in the seventh.

The winner was reliever Jack Hamilton (4-4), who checked the Cards from the third to the eighth when he needed help from Short.

Dick Stuart hit two home runs for the Pirates—a first-inning inside-the-park job with none on and a three-run shot in the sixth. The 1st inning drive was a line drive down the third base line that rolled into the Cubs' bullpen and eluded under a tarpaulin. By the time outfielder Billy Williams could retrieve it, Stuart was across the plate.

The victory went to Joe Gibbon, winning his first since a trip to the minors cured his ailing arm. Don Cardwell (3-7) lost it.

The Mets beat the Colts for the first time in the rivalry between the two new NL clubs. Al Jackson (3-7) limited the Colts to seven hits while the Mets used six against Dick Farrell (4-6) to put it away.

Two runs came across for New York in the fifth on a walk to Charley Neal, Sammy Taylor's triple and a single by Jim Hickman. They added another in the sixth on a walk to Frank Thomas, an infield out and Neal's single. Doubles by Norm Larker and Merritt Ranew in the fifth accounted for the Houston run.

Ex-Chief Stars for Atlanta

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

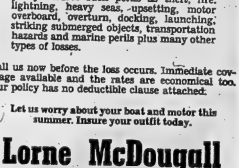
Syracuse Chiefs must be wishing that first - baseman Fred Hopke had never got away. Or at least that he had got out of the International League, if he had to go.

Hopke moved to Atlanta Crackers, and Monday night he slammed to home runs and a double to drive in four runs in a 10-4 Cracker victory over his old team mates. Prior to the game, Hopke had hit only one home run all year, and that was for Atlanta, too. Hopke's nine hits for Syracuse before the transfer were all singles.

The win ran the Atlanta winning streak to four straight, best of the campaign. It moved the Crackers into fourth place over Rochester's Red Wings, who were beaten by the league - leading Jacksonville Suns 5-2 on the sharp six-hit pitching of Ed Donnelly.

Richmond at Toronto and Columbus at Buffalo were rained out.

TOTH BEATS CHIEFS



Paul Toth went all the way for Atlanta, scattering six hits to pick up his second victory against 5-2 one defeats. Carl Mathias, the Syracuse starter, failed to last out the third inning, and drew his seventh loss in 10 decisions.

Hopke's double came in the first inning to drive in a run after Bob Burda had drilled a two-run double for the Crackers. He homered in the third with one on and the fifth with the bases empty.

Jacksonville opened a five game bulge over the idle Buffalo Bisons with Donnelly getting his fourth victory of the year against one loss. Herb Moford, Wing starter, went six and got the loss, his third in four decisions.

Vic Davalillo, leading the league with a .362 mark, and Chico Alvarez of the Suns, and Oxie Virgil and Sam Bowens of the Red Wings all homered with the bases empty.

Birds Nip Yankees In Brawl-Game

Twins Take Over Top

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

When it was over, the Yankees were in a tie for second place with Cleveland Indians, who moved up by belting Boston Red Sox 10-0 in the other game played. The Yankees permitted the lofty Minnesota Twins to move into the top spot by a half-game.

When Powell was hit the Orioles already had built a 3-0 lead on a two-run first inning in which Jim Gentile and Jackie Brandt drove in the runs, and a second inning homer by Landrith. Yogi Berra homered for the Yankees in the last of the fourth before Gentile hit a two-run homer in the fifth to put it out of reach. It was Gentile's 16th, putting him into the league lead.

The victory for Roberts (1-4), cut by the Yankees earlier in the year, was the first in more than a year—since he last won for Philadelphia's National League Phillies, June 8, 1961—and his first ever as an American Leaguer. He allowed seven hits and three runs in 7 1-3 innings before Steve Barber and Hoyt Wilhelm finished up, Daley was the loser.

Willie Kirkland, casually munching on a toothpick, tagged Ralph Terry for the Indians in the fourth inning and put them ahead to stay. He later added a two-run homer in the seventh. Bubba Phillips also connected with a homer in support of Jim Perry (5-3), who limited the Red Sox to seven hits. Earl Wilson (3-2) lost it.

Before Kirkland connected for his homer, Vic Wertz was charged with a balk that forced in a run. The Red Sox claimed Cleveland's Tito Francona, running at first base, hollered "hold it, Earl," causing the pitcher to stumble on the mound.

Baseball's rules state such deceptive talk is illegal. But umpires John Flaherty and Joe Runge said they had not heard Bean balls? Who, me?

That was the general tone of the comment Monday night after the incidents during the fourth inning of Baltimore's 5-3 American League victory over New York Yankees that precipitated a free-for-all in which Yankee manager Ralph Houk tried to swing at Orioles' field boss Billy Hitchcock.

Here's what happened:

Leading off the fourth, Orioles' rookie outfielder John (Boog) Powell was hit in the head by a Bud Daley fast ball. He slumped to the ground, but remained conscious. Powell was carried off the field on a stretcher and taken to a hospital where his injury was diagnosed as contusions of the head.

There wasn't much reaction until the first pitch from Baltimore starter Robin Roberts in the last half of the inning sailed over Roger Maris' head. The Yankee slugger started toward the mound, but in hand.

Maris was restrained by Orioles' catcher Hobie Landrith as players from both teams raced onto the field. Houk and Hitchcock started a heated argument that ended with umpire Charley Berry holding Houk as the Yankee skipper attempted to go after Hitchcock.

ACCUSE YANKEES

"The Yanks have been throwing at my men all during the series," said Hitchcock.

"I know my man," said Houk, "He didn't throw at Powell. Did Hitchcock order Roberts to throw at Maris in retaliation for Powell being hit?

"How could I," asked Hitchcock. "It was in the clubhouse with my man who was hit in the head. I didn't even speak to Roberts."

Said Roberts:

"I'll talk about anything else. But don't ask me about that."

Daley had nothing to say. He left before the game was over. It.

Palmer Suffers Hand Injury

Littler Looms As "Open" Choice

By DON WEISS

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — There's talk of back-to-back championships in the United States open golf tournament for Gene Littler.

Support is mushrooming for golf's quiet man in the wake of Littler's brilliant play this year and more woe for tournament favorite Arnold Palmer, who severely grabbed a finger on his right hand in a freak accident.

"Littler's my pick," said two-time former Open champion Cary Middlecoff as he and the other early arrivals relaxed after a practice round Monday at the 6,996-yard Oakmont Country Club course where the 62nd U.S. Open begins Thursday.

"You don't have to be a big hitter to score on this course," said Middlecoff, "You have to be able to drive straight and putt well on these slick greens."

Littler's playing beautifully, has been all year. Unless he has a big letdown after winning his big one in New Jersey Sunday (the $100,000 golf classic at Clinton, where Littler nailed the $25,000 first prize) he can do it."

DID IT LAST YEAR

A year ago, the soft-spoken Californian tamed another fabled course, Oakland Hills Country Club at Birmingham, Mich.—for his first Open title. It, too, was a course that demanded great accuracy off the tee and a true putting touch.

Gary Player, the South African and veteran Jackie Burke are others who like Littler's chances to become the first defending champion to repeat since Ben Hogan in 1950-51.

The attitude on Palmer seemed to be to wait and see how much of a problem the slashed finger will pose and whether, as Palmer himself says, he's shaken the slump that dropped him well down in the Memphis and New Jersey tournaments the last two weeks.

During that time he was dogged by a cold that he figures he's shaken.

A doctor took six stitches in Palmer's third finger on his right hand to close the wound he suffered while he was putting luggage in the trunk of his car late Sunday night at the nearby Latrobe, Pa., airport. The stab went all the way to the bone alongside the knuckle.

"It didn't hurt much," the Masters champion said after a practice round Monday in which he rebided the ball with as much gusto as usual. Palmer seemed considerably relieved that he could hit so well despite the heavy bandage on his finger. He "guessed" he shot about par.

Littler Second on Loot List

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Gene Littler, who will defend his U.S. Open title this week, has moved into a strong second position among professional golfing's top money winners.

The $25,000 Littler won last weekend in the $100,000 tournament at Clifton, N.J., gave him total winnings for the year of $53,706. Professional Golfers Association headquarters announced.

Arnold Palmer is still in first place with a total of $80,251. Bill Casper Jr. has won $42,138 and is third among the top 10. Jack Nicklaus, who won the $10,000 second prize at Clifton vaulted from eighth place to fourth with total winnings of $28,186. Rounding out the top 10 are: Gary Player $22,698; Phil Rodgers $22,330, Bobby Nichols $20,975, Dow Finsterwald $20,296, Doug Sanders $19,421 and Bruce Crampton $17,273.

Suspended Driver To Appeal

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles J. Fitzpatrick, Jr., a harness racing driver, asked state supreme court Monday to stay a 60-day suspension pending an appeal to the appelate division. Fitzpatrick was suspended for 60 days by the state harness racing commission after some fans at Yonkers Raceway rioted when his horse, Miss Scarlet Mokes, won a race. Odds on the horse dropped sharply at post time and caused a riot.

The driver was suspended for failing to report Miss Chief Mokes was owned partly by G. Harvey Tingle, who also owned a horse in partnership with William Myer. Myer finished second in the race with Chief Tingo.

Fitzpatrick contended the commission's suspension was "unreasonable" and that there was no rule which permitted it or requires to notify officials of a "common interest" between owners and drivers in a race.

"The action of the commission in fixing the suspension is unreasonable and is based upon pressure and prejudice as a result of the crowd, which was precipitated by the commission's own failings," Fitzpatrick claimed, through his attorney, E. Stanley Shaw.

HORSE INJURED

Ancillary Rights Bid $1,700,000

NEW YORK (AP) — The TelePrompter Corporation Monday bid $1,700,000, the highest in history, for the ancillary rights of the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston world heavyweight championship bout Sept. 25 in Chicago.

Promoter Tom Eolan said two other companies had made bids that did not match TelePrompter's.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BASEBALL

The Kenmore seniors return to the baseball wars here tomorrow night with the Port Hope Ontarios furnishing what is expected to be tough opposition.

Coach Sid Forster's young crew came up with an outstanding effort against the Peterborough Fannings here a week ago with Forster putting his finger on the right button when he assigned Stan "Lefty" Reid to the mound chore.

Reid came up with a brilliant two-hitter, holding the Petes to no hits and no runs after he allowed pair of clouts in the first frame. The Kenmore backed him up well, with some neat fielding, including two double plays, and timely clutch clouting.

It was a big improvement over their first outing against the Peterborough club and a continuance of their good effort against Kingston.

The Port Hopes cannot be considered a "pushover" team for they took the measure of Peterborough 7-3 in their opening tilt. The other night the Petes dropped another to Kingston with Charlie Foster throwing a two-hitter at them and contributing a couple of clouts to the winning cause.

However the Kenmore are taking nothing for granted and have been going through their paces in readiness for tomorrow's tilt.

The opening game here last Wednesday attracted a good crowd and it would seem that interest in baseball here has not gone down the drain. The Kenmore management, I believe, hit the nail on the head when it decided to play all its home games under the lights. There was a good crowd out to see the inaugural clash and the Kennies received by coming up with an outstanding performance.

With "Lefty" Reid now an established southpaw and Larry Soden tops in the starboard-side flinging department, the Kenmore have the nucleus of a good hurling corps. They should be ready for the best.

Coach Forster is gradually bringing the club to work properly under his system of coaching. They were, perhaps, a bit off-balance in that opening game in Peterborough, but there was a noticeable improvement last Wednesday night.

At this writing there is no information as to whom Forster will start tomorrow night. He has Reid and Soden ready, with Billy Latchford, another good right-hander standing by. The club was hitting well against the Petes, their clouts coming in the clutches and blasting off some fine base-running. Game tomorrow, 8.15 p.m.

AT THE RACES

The man looked over the people waiting at the parimutuels to collect their winnings at the harness meet Saturday night.

"Look at this gathering," he said, "almost half of the winners are the ladies. Some of 'em may not know how to pick their mates, but a lot of them do not miss when it comes to selecting winning horses."

He was right. I do not know how many of the fair sex contributed to the mutuels, but they had a goodly percentage at the winner's counter after each heat.

The only "long-shots" that paid off—or will pay off—were three youngsters who took potshots with stones at the row of 650-watt lamps over the grandstand. They knocked off three before they were caught by race officials.

British Amateur

Golf Stars Shine Early

HOYLAKE, England (CP) — British amateur golf champion Michael Bonallack opened the defence of his title Monday by eliminating another Englishman, Colin S. Howarth, 5 and 4 as three-quarters of the field completed the first round of the championship.

Bonallack and Ireland's Joe Carr, a three-time winner of this event, clearly established themselves as the class of the 250-man field. Carr breezed past Kim Sale of England 5 and 4.

Another winner was Bob Sweeny of the U.S., returning at the age of 50 to try again for the title he won 25 years ago. Twenty-nine other Americans are entered in the championship.

Martin Christmas, a British Walker Cup player, was defeated 3 and 2 by Robert Yates of England in the day's primary upset.

Nearly 50 first-round matches still are to be played today. Because of the size of the field the first round had to be spread over 1½ days.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Duncan Campbell, owner-driver from Atlas Crest, and his eight-year-old gelding Argyel Ray, seemed happy on a sloppy track at Western Fair Raceway Monday night.

They wheeled into the lead shortly after the start of a fast pace and stayed ahead to pace the mile in 2:13. The crowd of 1,84 made Campbell out a night jet Argyel Ray away as an 8-1 shot, and the gelding paid $19.40 for a $2 mutuel.

Sloe Gin, a four-year-old mare owned by Mrs. Doreen Marchuk of Otterville and driven by Mike Marchuk, wasn't affected by the mud either during her C-2 pace, the seventh race. The long shot had no trouble beating Agate and G.M. See. She returned $28.40.

Pitching—Jim Perry, Indians, limited Boston Red Sox to seven hits in 10-0 victory that moved Cleveland into tie for second place in American League.

Batting—Dick Stuart, Pirates, hit two homers—one an inside-the-park job that drove in five runs in Pittsburgh's 6-1 triumph over Chicago Cubs.

World Soccer

Favor Brazil Over Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Brazil, the defending champion, today tried to patch up its injury-ridden team in time for Wednesday's semi-final against Chile in the World Soccer Cup championship.

There was a chance that Pele, injured against Czechoslovakia June 2, would be fit once again. Pele, one of the world's greatest inside forwards, missed matches against Spain and England.

Right winger Garrincha and inside forwards Didi and Amarildo suffered knocks during the quarter-final game against England. Garrincha and Amarildo are expected to be fit, but Didi is a doubtful starter.

Brazil is favored to defeat Chile—but home crowd cheering could help inspire the Chileans to an upset. A crowd of 77,000 is expected.

Chile has two injury problems—inside forward Fouilloux and full back Navarro.

The Yugoslavs and Czechs boast teams with few stars—but teams that play well together.

Damage Action Against Bank Is Dismissed

OTTAWA (CP) — A damage action by two Ontario subcontractors against the Bank of Ont., branch of the Royal Bank of Canada was dismissed Monday by a Supreme Court of Canada.

The courts decision upheld earlier rulings by the Ontario Supreme and Appeal courts.

The subcontractors are John M. M. Troup Limited and Hall Interior Painting and Decorating Limited of Port Credit, Ont. They were employed by Town and Country Construction Limited of Brampton in 1956 on the construction of a home for the aged at Penetang, Ont.

John M. M. Troup Limited said that after the home was completed, Town and Country owed it $4,634. National Painting and Decorating said it was owed $5,000.

The companies said that Town and Country deposited the sum of $77,000 in the Brampton branch of the Royal Bank of Canada after the work was completed. That sum was in accordance owing by the county and Lambton for construction of the home.

The claim of the two subcontractors for a share of the $77,000 under the Mechanics' Lien Act was dismissed by the Ontario courts and their decision was upheld Monday by the Supreme Court of Canada. The bank testified that the $77,000 helped cover an overdraft of Town and County.

OAS Demands Guarantees To Europeans

ALGIERS (Reuters) — More bombings of buildings hit Algeria today as citizens awaited the reaction of Moslem nationalist leaders to proposals made by the European terrorist Secret Army Organization.

Two Europeans were injured by a bomb explosion in a cigar store in the port city of Algiers, and in the eastern city of Bone two explosions wrecked a villa and a cafe owned by Moslems.

Armed men escaped with 183,000 new francs ($36,000) in three holdups in Algiers.

The Secret Army Ultimatum came in a pirate radio broadcast Monday saying that if its demands were not met, Algeria would be reduced to "chaos and ruins."

The demands called for strict guarantees "in black and white" for the safety of Europeans after Algeria goes to the polls July 1 to vote that is virtually certain to bring independence from France.

Meanwhile, Algerian sources in Tunis said it was unlikely that the premier of the Algerian provisional government, Ben-Youssef Ben Khedda, would make a speech broadcast of assurances to Europeans.

The sources said he would travel to Calro Wednesday to attend a meeting of heads of state of the Casablanca group of African nations.

Now, Where Do Reporters Get Background Nuggets?

OTTAWA (CP)—Ever wonder where a reporter collects all those nuggets of background on places or things that are touched during a news story?

For instance, during a tour of the Queen Mother's visit on the St. Lawrence Seaway today, someone got up to write that 4,500,000 cubic yards of rock was excavated for the Iroquois lock.

Well, there is nothing to it. Government, military and corporation publicity departments do a remarkable job of, dishing up the facts you want, to know anything about the country to be somewhere in the publicity machine.

Might take a day or two to find it though.

The St. Lawrence Seaway is staffed by the current visit, so naturally information is available on that. "In the early part of the 16th century the French explorer, Jacques Cartier, sailing up the broad St. Lawrence from the Atlantic was turned back by the rushing waters.

That's real background. The publicity in a real is also studded with statistics.

The RCAF provides equal information on Uplands airport. "... Its civil history dates back to July 19, 1939, when a Curtis JN4 rumbled across the grass runway at the Ottawa Hunt and Golf Club."

The Queen Mother's cruise will be aboard the frigate Inch Arran. And the navy knows all about the ship, including how she got her name.

It seems the town of Dalhousie, N.B., adopted the frigate during the war, and some day she would be called Dalhousie. However, the Royal Canadian Navy thought of that name first. So Dalhousie was out.

But there was a point of landing for each Challenger Bay, not far from Dalhousie, that is called Inch Arran. The ship got her name just in time, because the name of the land was later changed to Ikon Aml Point.

Tragic Laotian Crisis Has Many Comic Elements

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Comedy has never been far from the omnipresent tragedy of the strange Laotian drama that now — hopefully — is trending toward the end of its third act.

Take, for instance, Prince Souvanna Phouma, the urbane, pipe-smoking premier of a coalition cabinet agreed on Monday.

While the show's chief backers, the United States and Russia, looked on impatiently from the wings, the neutralist prince had to spend hours trying to get better agree on formation of a cabinet by Page 15. He had to leave then for Paris to attend his daughter's wedding.

Or take Prince Boun Oum, plump and genial premier of the right-wing faction who has always taken second billing to the more militant defence minister, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

With the talks at a crisis point and diplomatic source reported that there was a fallen fast asleep in his chair, leaving the air to ring to the phoumi.

Boun Oum didn't get a post in the new cabinet. Phoumi did not one of the most ironic the play. Phoumi was named one of two deputy premiers with no other post went to Prince Souphanouvong, a pro-Communist. Phoumi was also named defence minister.

The first act of the drama being, 9, 1960, when an obscure paratroop captain named Kong Le led a rebellion that overthrew the pro-Western government of Prince Tiao Somasith.

The rebels installed Souvanna as premier but Phoumi, defence minister in the overthrown government, reorganized its forces with U.S. backing and overran the capital of Vientiane Dec. 17.

Boun Oum was installed as premier with the blessing of King Savang Vathana. Souvanna fled to neutral Cambodia, while Kong Le and his' supporters took to the hills, eventually joining forces with the pro-Communist Pathet Lao guerrillas.

The second act opened with a cease-fire agreement reached May 3, 1962, a 14 - country conference convened in Geneva to work out a peace agreement and in June, President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev agreed that Laos should be "neutral and independent."

The third act, a year of drawn - out negotiations on the formation of [illegible]

World's Oldest Regiment Bows to YMCA Beer Drinkers

LONDON (AP) — The world's oldest military regiment has been defeated in a beer-drinking contest by the Young Men's Christian Association.

The YMCA team included a girl.

In the semi-finals of what was advertised as the world championship to the Swerns men in scotted a two pence of beer in the bottom of Martin's glass.

The Honorable Artillery Company bases its claim to being the world's oldest regiment on its charter granted by Henry VIII in 1537.

The wording of the charter implies no warfare in the fighting outfit long before. Artillery in those days meant archers.

The YMCA team downed their pints in 12 seconds, four seconds faster than the-to-beers.

In the finals, the YMCA team was defeated by a rugby football team called the Newts on a technicality.

Soon after both teams had finished twice in a dead heat, one of the Newts pointed to a wet spot on the shirt front of a YMCA drinker named Tiger Martin.

The referee exonerated the Tiger of deliberate spillage, but awarded the championship to the Newts when he spotted a few drops of beer in the bottom of Martin's glass.

The Honorable Artillery Company bases its claim to being the world's oldest regiment on its charter granted by Henry VIII in 1537.

The wording of the charter implies no warfare in the fighting outfit long before. Artillery in those days meant archers.

Control Threat To Unions, Management

HAMILTON (CP)—Construction unions and management are in for much more government control than they were ever subjected to if they ignore the Goldenberg royal commission's recommendations for improving relations, Dr. John Crispo told Saturday.

Even more drastic action that the commission was prepared to advocate if it eventually be needed to eliminate exploitation, Crispo said, would be "a product of the economic structure of the (construction) industry," a consultant professor at the University of Toronto's School of Business told the Association of Canadian Schools of Commerce and Business Administration.

The association is holding its annual conference here as part of the Conference of Learned Societies at McMaster University.

Dr. Crispo was an advisor to Chief Justice Goldenberg, the Montreal lawyer and labor relations expert who was appointed a one-man royal commission in June 1961 to investigate labor-management strife in Ontario's construction industry.

Dr. Crispo said that unless a strong program of conferences between labor and management could be launched, as urged in the report, the commission's potential value could easily be lost.

The association also heard a report claiming the Canadian construction industry spends one quarter of his time on the job and actually spends only one-third in doing the work of his trade.

David Archer of the University of British Columbia laid part of the blame on workers. But he said management also has the main sufficient control of the activities of the work force and failed in the application of principles of work, scheduling of materials, and methods or organizing the job site.

The research department, was marked by increasing U.S. exasperation with Laotian ruling allies and the cut-off of $3,000,000 monthly in the Boun Oum regime—a move that apparently helped to bring Racing On 'Up-and-Up' Or Else...

MONTREAL (CP) — Lucien Bombardier, director of operations at Blue Bonnets Racetrack, said in a statement Monday that racing will be conducted "on the up-and-up or not at all."

His statement followed Sunday's announcement that three trainers suspected of using stimulants on horses have been suspended. The Mount Royal Racing Club board will consider their case Wednesday.

During the first 10 cards of the meet officials have ordered suspensions for four jockeys for careless riding and two other trainers have been fined for other infractions.

"Anyone who's track had a bad reputation as a place where owners, trainers and jockeys could get away with anything," said Bombardier's statement.

"This is simply didn't expect us to enforce the rules. However, things are finding out that we mean business and won't stand for any nonsense."

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—Ed Healy is a Jerome away man who can't stay away from the water. He is swimming instructor and coach at the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association and is busy these days grooming his swimmers for big tests.

"We want to build an international team," said Healy, watching his hopefuls work out in the pool. "The MAAA wants competitors.

"Our aim now is to put as many of our youngsters at we can on Canada's British Empire Games team. We'll have four of our men swimmers and four of the girls at the trials in Vancouver in July.

"After that we will work toward the Pan-American Games in Brazil next year and then the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo.

"I know we will have tough competition at Vancouver but we keep on progressing we'll get somewhere."

Healy, who is 42 and a native of Montreal, tries to instil into his charges a spirit of devotion to training.

GOT TO DRIVE

"You've got to drive to be a champion," he says. "You've got to have—the—go - go - go, that keeps you going until you hurt yourself. But, you know, the kids find out it—doesn't hurt as much as they think.

Healy makes it a point to keep up with all angles of coaching and training. He has long studied the work of other coaches in both the United States' and Canada and talks with them at every opportunity. He has found them most cooperative. He also reads all articles he can find dealing with coaching of swimmers.

"We are basically capped here in some ways," he said, "for one thing, our geographical location restricts us to meeting major competition. The closest points for this are such cities as Boston and Toronto. But in Boston as many as we can, and we keep working hard at it.

Healy has been at the MAAA six years. In 1958 he was assistant coach, under Alec Stenmac of Toronto, with Canada's swimming team at the Pan-American Games in Chicago.

He used to swim for the Montreal Y.M.C.A. Grace Club of Montreal and held club championships in the free-style. He also played water polo.

YOUTHFUL CREW

"When I was in the navy I was thinking of making it my career, I had never planned to become a swimming coach, but someone told me a job was open at the city pools in Montreal and I thought I would give it a try.

"Later I went to the Canadian Legion as instructor at the Legion pool, and then came to the MAAA."

For his girls' team at Vancouver, Healy will have Madeleine Sevigny, 18, recent free-style winner at the Ontario-Quebec meet; Donna Conklin, 16, backstroke; Allison Glendenning, 16, breaststroke, and Jane Lumsden, just 15, in the butterfly.

Healy is also enthusiastic about a future prospect he has in Alex Crostwaite, 22. Bill Peers, 16, and Brian Gill, 14.

GIANTS SUMMON PITCHER

CINCINNATI (AP) — The slumping San Francisco Giants recalled pitcher Dick Lemay from Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League Monday and sent Gaylord Perry down to replace him. Lemay, a lefthander, was with the Giants until about mid-May when he was sent to Tacoma. Perry, a righthander, had a 2-1 mark for the Giants.

"The Paul Martin of Tomorrow" Says Industrialist of Temple

Liberal candidate Robert Temple is more than "just another candidate." Termed the "Paul Martin of tomorrow" by a prominent member of this community, Canadian industrialist Joan Hayes, Mr. Temple has the drive, energy, keenness and intelligence which has placed him in the forefront of a small group of young Canadian- which will be playing a most important part in the next team at Ottawa if a Liberal government is elected on June 18th.

Mr. Temple's views on the needs of Canadians for the future are well set out. Here are not just "sound" by Liberal Leader Lester B. "Mike" Pearson, they are listened to and have been implemented in the Liberal Party's national platform for this election.

Mr. Temple, a firm believer in the rights and responsibilities of the individual, strongly believes that every Canadian is entitled to as full an education as he can earn if he is to realize the full freedom and rights entitled to in any school of learning, whether it be agricultural, academic, technical or professional, plus a student loan fund which needs changes could borrow from at low interest rates were the answers which Mr. Temple felt would help Canadians to realize their full potential.

These proposals, first mentioned by Mr. Temple over a year ago, have now been implemented as part of the Liberal Party's program for helping Canadians to help Canada advance towards a secure future.

Mr. Temple's ideas on preserving the integrity of the farmer as an individual and the family farm as an institution have been incorporated in the Liberal party's platform. Following his inquiries into the problems of farmers in the following statements as Liberal candidate, Mr. Temple made a strong representation regarding the plight of the farmer regarding vertical integration.

As a result of his action in this regard the Liberal Party has adopted a program of extending the Industrial Development Bank to allow for long-term, low-cost loans to farmers to build co-operative processing plants. This will allow the farmer a greater degree of control over his product and enable him to realize a greater net revenue whilst at the same time being able to offer a competitive price on his goods without government legislation against others already in the field.

In this fashion the farmer loses none of his individuality by reason of government control but his participation in beneficial government subsidies. Rather than politics as a game, farming his own land and raising his own family is strengthened as befits a free country.

This, then is the type of man which Robert Temple is. A leader who is unafraid to take the initiative and offer suggestions when the occasion warrants it.

It is this sort of leadership and initiative which earned him the praise of Mrs. George Willard, of the Farmers' Union, who credited him with being the one candidate who actually offered a solution to one of the Ontario farmers' major problems, rather than just pay lip-service to it.

It is this sort of leadership and initiative which should win Mr. Temple the confidence and votes of the majority of Hastings South's electors on June 18th. Canada needs this kind of representation in Parliament.

TWO PAUL MARTINS? — Robert Temple, Hastings South's Liberal candidate, is seen above as he conferred with the Hon. Paul Martin a few days ago on some of the Liberal Party's policies. Mr. Temple's views and ideas on both education and farm policy have been accepted and made a part of the Liberal Party's national program for setting Canada on the road of progress. Mr. Temple has been called "the Paul Martin of tomorrow."

ANNOUNCES STRENGTH

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An Cuban underground leader said Sunday his organization now has 7,000 saboteurs and guerrillas in Cuba and that more would go there here if supplies were available. "If we had a boat — explosives, incendiary bombs and radio equipment, we could start fighting men on Cuban soil regularly," said Manuel Barreiro, chief in exile of the Martian Democratic Movement.

NOTICE TO DESERONTO PARENTS

June 7, 1962

TO: Deseronto Parents

There have been numerous erroneous statements made of late regarding the classification of our local high school. Most of these statements have been made for sensational financial-burden to the Deseronto tax payers, or of a relative nature.

When we, as members of the Deseronto Board of Education were elected, we swore to administer the office to the best of our ability. This we have taken seriously and, after approximately two years of our term we feel that we have been doing the best thing for both pupils and the majority of the tax payers was to forward a written mandation to the Town Council that we join the Napanee District College Board.

We believe our first responsibility lies with the pupils' education in our two schools, and secondly, with the cost. The welfare of our children is of prime concern to us as our children, as future residents of our town and as future citizens of our nation. This is our ultimate duty to provide the best possible education with the money available. This we have attempted to do and have been doing for several monetary gain. In the event, it is not commonly known, members of the Deseronto Board of Education do not receive any remuneration for their services.

Over the last few years we have become very alarmed at the high percentage of 'drop outs' in our high school. By this we mean the number of pupils who have been dropped-out during from high school compared to the number graduating from public school. This is in conjunction with the fact that 70 percent of our unemployed men and women, at the present time, are unable to apply for anything but unskilled jobs due to their lack of education. In this day of automation and technological advancement only 30 per cent of the jobs available are for unskilled workers.

We believe the best solution to this problem is to encourage our children to complete their high school education. These pupils have the same intelligence quotas of children in larger schools in the cities and we are trying to obtain the same type of education for them as would be available to them if they lived in a city.

Our Deseronto High School has an enrollment of 80 pupils and four full time teachers. These teachers are doing a good job with the heavy load of subjects they have to teach. In our school we offer the straight academic course, but, there is a high percentage of 'drop outs' because some are unable to cope with this course while others just lose interest.

It is true that if a pupil wishes to take commercial or a course leading to a graduation certificate, other than straight academic, we pay their tuition in Belleville and it will still cost the parents $10.00 per month per pupil to send them to Belleville. The bus for Belleville leaves Deseronto at 7.30 a.m. and does not return in the evening until about 3.30.

In 1958 there were 13 pupils graduated from Grade 8, whereas four years later only 4 pupils were passed on to Grade 12. This means that of the 1958 Grade 8 graduating class 77 per cent of them have fallen along the way. This 77 per cent of our pupils are going to find it difficult competing for jobs against pupils from other schools who have completed their high school education.

The approximate cost of educating our high school pupils in 1961, for their respective Belleville or Napanee compared with the cost to Deseronto tax payers is as follows:

Deseronte	$26,000.00
Belleville	$29,000.00 (including transportation)
Napanee	$17,000.00 (including transportation)

The facts of the situation can be summed up as follows:

1—Our pupils would have a much wider choice of subjects and courses in a fully modern school.

2—They would only have 6 miles to travel by bus, with no bus fare to the parents each month.

3—The cost of this education would be less with a considerable saving to Deseronto tax payers.

Astrological Forecast

For June 13

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Greatest satisfaction received today from efforts to communicate. Means any move toward self-expression, greater understanding of those around you . . . is encouraged. Attend to details.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Trying to please everybody could be a mistake. Better concentrate on one person at a time! Otherwise, you may find that little or no appreciation is forthcoming. Stress humorous side of situations.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Regard any hurdles to be overcome today as healthy challenges. Don't be discouraged. May be your job to express optimism to friend. Tonight romance and new friends highlighted.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): One can flatter you today should be thanked, but you had better take practical view. There may be somewhat of an ulterior motive behind the array of compliments. But don't expect others to do things for you. What you require is appreciation.

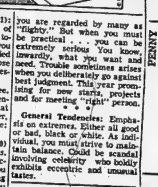
Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Check with authority today before signing agreements, contracts. Emphasis on money that goes out, so take time to see that you get the most from it. Invest, don't speculate.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You are expected to fulfill obligations today. Those who have backed you want results. Means this is time to accept responsibility and do what must be done. Give your all . . . and efforts will pay off.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Hiding "light" in the name of modesty is not wise course today. Over is such that you should "show off," in dignified way. Share talents, ideas. Those in authority will welcome suggestions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You may find yourself engaged in secret project. Do what you can, with discretion. Later, facts revealed. Best advice: play it straight!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Stick to original convictions. Some may tell you to be practical. But the truth is that you are being practical by being yourself. Let no one "tout" you off course.



Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Insist on moving ahead, no matter how slow progress may appear. To turn back would amount to giving up with victory in sight. Survey situation with confidence.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Like Gemini, your attitude wins or loses the day. Positive thinking makes for success in a matter which has long been a problem. Put shoulder to wheel and move ahead. . . .

If today is your birthday . . . you are regarded by many as "Mighty." But when you must be practical . . . you can be extremely serious. You know, inwardly, what you want and need. Trouble sometimes arises when you deliberately go against best judgment. This year promising for new starts, projects and for meeting "right" person.

General Tendencies: Emphasis on extremes. Either all good or bad, black or white. As individual, you must strive to maintain balance. Child be scandal involving celebrity who boldly exhibits eccentric and unusual tastes.

Farmers to Pack Political Punch Despite Fact They Are Declining Unit

By ARCHE MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Red China grain deal, Maritimes potatoes, crop insurance, conservation and national marketing boards—these are agricultural issues injected into the June 18 election campaign.

Concern for the farm vote runs deep among all four political parties. A declining unit numerically, farmers will pack a political punch.

Perhaps 121 of Canada's 263 federal constituencies are decisively influenced by the rural vote. Not all rural voters are farmers, of course, but generally they are sensitive to the issues that influence farmers.

The Prairies—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—constitute the largest homogenous block of seats in Canada. Geographically and by occupation, the voters there have much in common agriculturally.

As of 1958, when the Progressive Conservatives captured 47 of 48 Prairie seats, there has also been a federal political unity, although each province has a powerful government of a different hue.

STRESS ON WHEAT

For this reason, and because federal policy directly affects wheat, the main crop, party farm platforms have tended to emphasize Prairie interests.

Top item in the Conservative farm plank is the Red China agreement signed last year for sale over 5½ years of 196,700,000 bushels of wheat and about 46,000,000 bushels of barley, plus some flour that the Chinese have so far found too expensive to accept.

Coupled with continuing heavy exports to normal customers and last year's drought-halved crop, it presents a situation which Prime Minister Diefenbaker can tell Prairie grain growers to produce all they can. This is a marked contrast with years of chronic surplus when world demand was curbed by good crops elsewhere.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson says a Liberal government would have sold to Red China, too. He contends the Canadian Wheat Board, Crown sales agency for Prairie growers, did all the work once Red China asked for the grain and that the government is claiming credit where it isn't due.

SOCIAL CREDIT OPPOSED

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, has not made much comment on the deal. Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, has called it the most irresponsible act of any government since Confederation, one that bolstered an economy.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton—the latter limited to one speech a day by the effects of a weekend illness—have not depended solely on the big grain deal and the government's existing farm program in their appeal to farm voters.

They have added new planks, including the prospect that acreage payments to Prairie grain growers will be made a permanent annual feature. These totalled $42,000,000 in each of the three years they were distributed, in 1958, 1960 and 1962, at the rate of $1 an acre up to a maximum of $200 a farm.

Other Conservative promises: Improved crop insurance, progress on rural rehabilitation and development, increased aid for movement of Prairie feed grain to other areas, processing

WOULD RELIVE PAST—Some residents of Gloucester, Mass., would like to revive the famous North Atlantic fishermen's races which saw the fastest schooners of the United States and Canada compete against each other. North Atlantic Fishermen's Races Between Canada and U.S. May Be Revived

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

GLOUCESTER, Mass., (CP) — You can provoke challenges, bursts of song and poetry in this old fishing port just by hinting that Nova Scotia's Bluenose was perhaps the fastest schooner Gloucester ever saw.

Gloucester, which has been scouring men down to the sea in ships for more than 300 years, is eager to maintain its traditional rivalries and friendships with sea - faring Nova Scotia.

This is particularly live issue at present with talk of a revival of North Atlantic fishermen's races between Canada and the United States and also talk of a new ferry service to link Gloucester with a Nova Scotia port yet to be decided.

Seen in all this is the New England Yankee's well-known shrewdness for the dollar. But few could listen to Everett R. Jodrey, who was chairman of the Gloucester committee in the last international races, and believe his motives are merely monetary.

"Let us live again the glorious past," implored the 73-year-old dynamo, standing in his living room whose walls are covered with paintings of sailing ships, including the Bluenose, Pride of Lunenburg.

RECALLS SAGAS

Jodrey did not conceal his emotion as he spoke of sagas of courage and romance—and feats—in the fisheries which are estimated to have taken the lives of 8,000 Gloucestermen through the centuries, many of them natives of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

Jodrey broke into song and recited snatches of verse as he recounted tales of derring - do in wind and storm. But he said the young people of the U.S. have lost touch with his oldest of their country's industries—"kids today don't know what a fish looks like."

A new schooner in competition with Canada's best would revive interest, especially now that television — lacking in earlier races—could brag onto home screens the "unbearable drama" of the contests.

"What do you see on TV now but a man with a knife in his back," was the scornful comment of Jodrey, president of the Fish Pier Association. "What kind of stuff is that for kids to feed on? Let people see the sea again."

Bluenose under peppery Capt. Angus Walters was never beaten in official competition and sailed to four championships, the last in 1938. But a 1923 series against the Gloucester schooner Columbia ended in "no contest" because of a technicality. Both Bluenose and Columbia were later lost in wrecks.

'HIGH' TOWN

Gloucester is one of the biggest and proudest U.S. fishing ports, said Jodrey, even if it is sometimes compared with another Massachusetts town in this way: "Manchester-by-the-Sea and Gloucester - by - the-Smell."

"I would wrap Gloucester in an aura of romance," he vowed.

Jodrey's idea is that an authentic sailing schooner under construction here in the age of diesels would become a mecca for tourists and his name later could become a sort of trademark of excellence for all Gloucester products.

Orlando Merchant, another promoter of the race project, used language similar to Jodrey's when he proposed in a separate interview: "let us relive a page of history."

Grandson of the man who inspired the construction of the Gloucesterman Esperanto, which beat the Lunenburger Delawana in 1920 in the first international race, Merchant recalled that the official meets were an outgrowth of work - a-day dashes from the fishing banks.

RACE FOR PRIZES

When schooners were filled with fish, skippers often put out all possible canvas and raced to market to get the best prices for their catches—a practice that led to some memorable impromptu duels.

Merchant said that "in a tragedy of history" some years ago fire destroyed the plans of the Columbia, regarded as the fastest vessel the U.S. ever sent against the Bluenose.

But a New York architect, Edward Sawyer Rosley, has reproduced the plans in detail and is willing to make them available provided the project is not commercialized, said Merchant, a sales representative.

"Most of the mariners here believe the Columbia was a real good match for the Bluenose," he added.

"We think both countries should try to produce the ships exactly as they were. We think Columbia could be built for $250,000.

"We hope the Canadians will let us know if they're willing to build another Bluenose."

THE GLOUCESTER FISHERMAN — This memorial at Gloucester, Mass., is dedicated to the 8,000 fishermen, many of them natives of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, who sailed from this part but failed to return. Gloucester has been a major fishing port for more than 300 years. (CP Photo).

Break Trade Barriers JFK Tells ECM

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy said today the United States and Europe must throw off "the false protection of trade barriers" to develop a lasting and prospering free world partnership.

In a foreword written for special issue of The Forum, a quarterly magazine published by General Electric Company, Kennedy said "broad economic horizons" must be developed at home, regardless of the adjustments needed when tariffs are reduced or eliminated.

"The formation of the Common Market in Europe, the first diversified mass market outside of our own, makes possible an entirely new dimension in free world co-operation.

"Growing together, the two great markets astride the Atlantic, containing as they will 90 per cent of the free world's industrial strength and 300,000,000 customers, can generate the resources and skills to guarantee the economic progress of free peoples everywhere.

"We must seize this opportunity, whatever the adjustments needed, however complicated the negotiations may be, we must develop broader economic horizons here at home and use all our influence to encourage our allies to do the same.

"For only as we dilute preferential arrangements among free nations and throw off the false protection of trade barriers can we truly form the enduring and open partnership we have sought."

How other major car manufacturers help us sell more Ramblers

Soon after Rambler introduced its first sensibly-sized car our competitors saw the trend we had started and went into compact car production. Despite the increased competition, they actually gave us a boost by making you more compact conscious.

Remarkable proof of this has been our success. In 1961, for instance, our sales increased by 50% over the previous year. And almost 100 new dealers joined us during the same period. This year sales are up 60% over last year.

With years of experience behind us, we are able to produce a vastly superior compact. For example: we pioneered Single-Unit construction; developed Deep-Dip rustproofing, specially for Canadian conditions and introduced the Ceramic-Armoured muffler, guaranteed for as long as you own the car. This year we added such new features as self-adjusting Double-Safety brakes; and a battery and coolant, both with a two year guarantee.

Rambler stands alone as the one automotive manufacturer really interested in providing what we call "maximum usefulness to the user". This, we feel, is the main reason for our success.

To prove this to yourself, take a look at the so-called compacts first. Then visit your Rambler dealer. You'll have no doubt that Rambler is Canada's best all 'round car value.

Despite Threats Man Delivered $500 Payoff

Money Left in Truck For Former OPP Men

TORONTO (CP) — The royal commission on crime today heard a transcription of conversations Monday in which bookmaker Sammy Balsom of St. Catharines, Ont., warned a witness that "if you say say anything, all you're going to do is get me a trial."

The talks were between Balsom and Thomas (Mickey) McGroarty, who testified Tuesday that he delivered a $500 payoff from Balsom to two provincial policemen in 1960.

In one Monday conversation, wired for sound by investigators for the commission, Balsom cussed with Balsom the possibility of his testifying about the alleged payoff to Constables Kennedy Lamorie and Carmen Lawrence at St. Catharines.

"That Lamorie and Lawrence deal got me down," McGroarty said as recorded by investigators and read to the commission today.

"That whole God damned affair has me down."

"You didn't see them," Balsom said.

McGroarty: "No, but if they say it, you know . . ."

"Did you see them," Balsom asked.

"Oh, yeah, I saw them in the restaurant but that was two years ago, you know," McGroarty replied.

(McGroarty testified that in response to telephone directions from a man purporting to be Lamorie, he placed $300 in the tab of an unoccupied truck. He testified he saw the two officers in a nearby restaurant.)

The transcript had Balsom saying:

"Well, that doesn't matter and they didn't say nothing. Has a little beezzer when you're up there."

ISSUED PAYOFF

The transcript, edited by the counsel assigned, indicated that Sgt. John Anderson of the provincial police anti - gambling squad had told McGroarty he had been informed that "Mickey issued the payoff" to Balsom was then quoted as saying:

"Jesus, Mick, what the hell's the matter with you. If you say anything all you're going to do is get me a trial."

"Yeah, I know that's it," McGroarty replied.

"I'm going to deny it," Balsom said.

The transcript here records McGroarty as saying:

Balsom said "I'm going to say this guy's crazy, for crying out loud."

He then advised McGroarty to "use your head, Mick."

McGroarty replied:

"Well, I got to . . ."

Balsom: "But listen, they said nothing."

In earlier appearances before the commission, Lamorie and Lamorie — who resigned from the department when they came under criticism of dealings with gamblers in 1960—denied any payoffs were made to them and specifically providing information for or receiving money from Balsom.

SUGGEST PROCEDURE

The transcribed record also showed that Monday Balsom suggested a line of testimony for McGroarty concerning how long the 40-year-old accountant worked in Balsom's bookmaking establishment in St. Catharines.

Balsom testified Tuesday that McGroarty worked only two or three months but McGroarty said later it was two years.

During a Monday conversation, Balsom advised McGroarty to say that he had worked for the books "a little."

"That's perjury, though, isn't it," McGroarty asked.

"Bribery is worse," Balsom replied.

"Mick, don't be smart now," Balsom was recorded as saying at another point.

"They're going to say, 'did Mickey work for you?' I'm going to say, 'well, yeah, in a sense, yeah, in a way maybe, I wrote my sheet for me and I gave him a percentage.' And that's all you gotta say."

"Too many people saw us," McGroarty answered.

To say, I didn't work for you, Balsom: "Yeah, you didn't work for me, you worked for yourself and you wrote my sheet, too."

McGroarty: "Yeah."

Balsom: "Don't forget you wrote my sheet."

McGroarty: "I wrote the sheet, that's all."

Balsom: "You wrote the sheet for me and you worked for yourself."

McGroarty: "I'm nervous."

Balsom: "Well, what do you think I'm . . ."

McGroarty: "Well, look at me, you look cool as a cucumber."

MIGHT GET BOOKED

Another Monday night conversation, Balsom suggested that McGroarty might get "booked right" for perjury. McGroarty suggested that he "gave somebody a bit of something."

"You know what's going to happen, you're going to get booked right for perjury," Balsom said.

When McGroarty asked what he might be booked for, Balsom replied "some kind of charge, thumpedup charge."

Balsom also advised McGroarty, a diabetic, to say that if the question of their conversation arose he "had been in hospital for a few days."

Tuesday, McGroarty said he was terrified despite threats to his wife and children.

The wiry, 40-year-old McGroarty testified he had served as a walking broadcasting system for the crime investigators who provided him with radio equipment.

CONTRADICTS TESTIMONY

Much of the evidence, presented to the tribunal as it was being recorded, contradicted earlier testimony by Balsom, 56, of St. Catharines.

McGroarty said Balsom personally told him to deny everything and, if things got rough, to say he said an anonymous caller addressed him and said:

"Someone in St. Catharines is going to talk too much and, if I were you, I'd look out for your wife and children."

The commissioner, Mr. Justice W. J. Wilson, was told reporters that police are guarding Balsom's home. Arrangements have been made to insure the safety of the bookkeeper's family.

McGroarty testified he picked taking horse bets for Balsom for between $50 and $60 a week during 1958-60. Balsom was on the stand Monday briefly before McGroarty but the hearing broke away for the conflicting testimony. Evidence recorded by equipment on the witness's person

OVER 100,000 CAST BALLOTS IN ADVANCE POLLS

Constitutes New Record in Elections

OTTAWA (CP)—Possibly 100,000 Canadians—a record—went to advance polls Saturday and Monday to cast their ballots in the June 18 federal election.

But results of voting in the 1,859 advance polling stations won't be known until more than two hours after regular polls close on election night at 7 p.m. local Standard Time in the 220 constituencies across the country.

The Canadian Elections Act provides that counting of advance poll ballots start at 9 p.m., local Standard Time, on election night, two hours after the close of that day's polls.

Although deputy returning officers in at least nine polls in eight constituencies have already made their counts and sent their polling information and their tabulations in any form forbidden by the act.

The estimate of possibly 100,000 voters came from Nelson Castonguay, chief electoral officer, who expects that figure will be reached if the trend indicated in most electoral 20 sectioned constituencies applies also to others.

ENLARGES TURNOUT

An amendment to the Canada Elections Act since the 1958 general election is responsible for the record advance turnout. It opened advance polls to any eligible voter who expects to be away from home on election day and picked the ninth and seventh days before the election — June 9 and 11 this year—for advance polling days.

Previously, advance polls were open only to commercial travellers, transportation employees, fishermen and members of the RCMP and reserve forces. Voting was on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday before the Monday election day.

Between 1957 and 1958, Canada totalled only 256 in 1958 and many constituencies had none at all.

Record turnout under the old law was in 1957 with 11,780. The 1958 figure was 11,226. The low

Opposition Charges P.M. With Unfair Vote Wooing

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two opposition party leaders have charged Prime Minister Diefenbaker with unfair wooing of the so - called "ethnic-vote."

Liberal Leader Pearson and T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party chief, have seized Tuesday on the prime minister's statement Monday that he would personally preside over United Nations resolution calling for freedom of Soviet satellite countries.

Mr. Pearson called it "a cruel and deceiving thing." Mr. Douglas said it was a "cruel hoax."

Both saw it was offering a false hope to New Canadians from Eastern Europe that their homelands might be liberated in that way.

Conservative Prime Minister Diefenbaker switched back and forth Tuesday between two roles—campaigner and host to the Queen Mother at Ottawa.

Between political speeches in two brief scuffles across the Ottawa River to neighboring Hull and Aylmer, Que., and Tuesday night entertained the Queen Mother at a small dinner party.

Social Credit Leader Robert N. Thompson, speaking at Clearwater, Man., said the government's economic policy needs one group to benefit another.

The result was "a gigantic game of musical chairs, where there was "always the question whose turn it will be to tighten the belt next month."

Among other hustings speakers Tuesday was Wesley Mis-

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The cliffs for prisoners considered escape-proof have claimed three more bank robbers who vanished from the island prison in San Francisco Bay after wriggling through cell wall vents tediously enlarged with stolen spoons.

Ballasty made dummies in their bunks prevented guards from discovering their absence for several hours.

The three men were discovered missing at 7:15 a.m. Tuesday.

AFRICAN, ASIAN LANDS PREPARE RHODESIA MOVE

UN Assembly Votes To Debate Situation

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—African and Asian delegations worked today on a resolution for the UN General Assembly asking Britain to call a conference soon to draft a new constitution for Southern Rhodesia.

The 51 - nation Afro - Asian group scheduled a meeting in an effort to finish the draft before the start of assembly debate Thursday on the situation in the white-ruled British African territory.

The assembly voted 62 to 30 Tuesday, with 15 abstentions, to debate Britain's plans for a new constitution for Southern Rhodesia.

Spokesmen of the Afro-Asian group charged the proposed constitution would perpetuate the rule of the white minority.

Canada and the United States backed Britain in opposing the debate.

Later the Afro-Asian group spent almost two hours in private session discussing a proposal on Southern Rhodesia prepared on the basis of a text originally drawn up by the assembly's special committee of 17 on independence for Colonial Territories.

The committee report found that the proposed constitution would leave the territory's Negro majority unrepresented either in the legislature or in the government established by the white community.

JFK, K. Agree Laos Shows Way To Ease Tensions

Troika Clause Likely To Create Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy told Soviet Premier Khrushchev today that the formation of a coalition government in Laos is "very encouraging."

Kennedy replied to a message from Khrushchev in which the Russian leader said the agreement on a coalition government could serve as a guide to the solution of other problems between East and West.

The formation of this government of national unity under Prince Souvanna Phouma marks a milestone in the sustained efforts which have been put forward toward this end, especially since our meeting in Vienna," Kennedy told Khrushchev.

"It is equally important that we should now move forward with our associates in the Geneva conference, to complete these arrangements and the work closely together in their execution. We should likewise also to do our best to persuade the authorities in Laos to work together to this same end."

"I'd is very important that no unilateral action be taken or allowed to disrupt the progress which has been made."

Kennedy agreed with Khrushchev that continued progress in the settlement of the Laotian problem can be helpful in leading toward the solution of other international difficulties.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Soviet Premier Khrushchev has sent notes to Britain and the United States saying that the agreement to form a neutralist coalition government in Laos could well serve as a model for solving other problems between the West and the Soviet bloc.

Thailand, almost certain to tangle with Foreign Minister Quinim Pholsena and Interior Minister Phoui Sananikone, both close associates of Souvanna Phouma himself took the decision unanimously.

Kennedy's reply was expected to be made public by the White House today.

Khrushchev's message to Kennedy began: "Dear Mr. President, good news has come from Laos."

Saying the formation of a coalition government of the three rival princes of Laos "could be the decisive event in the cause of strengthening peace in Southeast Asia," Khrushchev said it would "open the results in Laos "strengthen the confidence that success in solving other international issues, with which now divide states and create a new atmosphere will be achieved on the same road as well."

SHOULD BE NEUTRAL

That the little Southeast Asian country should be independent and neutral is the aim on which Kennedy and Khrushchev have agreed since they met at the summit in Vienna a year ago.

But only now have the rival negotiate, pro-Westerns and pro-Communists, agreed on what is called on a government deemed likely to receive their lead from the cold war.

$90,000-a-Year Executive Shot By Spinster's Protective Brother

NEW YORK (AP) — Taylor, terrific? Jr., S. Gay, $90,000-a-year oil company executive, died Tuesday of gunshot wounds fired by the strict and protective brother of his pretty secretary whom he had been dating.

"This was no love affair," mourned the secretary, Mary Mullooly, 45, who has walked with a limp since childhood. "The most I ever did was kiss him on occasion."

"Our relationship was only a platonic friendship," she said when word came that Gay, 52, had died 20 hours after he was shot.

Gay's wife, Berta, 45, from whom he had been legally separated for five years, died a year before he died.

"They tell me that there's not very much hope but I'm praying for him. As for his relationship with Miss Mullooly, there is no relationship.

"Taylor Gay isn't that kind of man. He's always been a very chivalrous man. So he took a girl out to dinner—he that no brother brother must have had some hocky idea something else was going on, but I know that's not the case.

Miss Mullooly's brother James—41 years old, six foot four and 260 pounds—was charged by police as saying: "The man came to my office. I took it upon myself, I'm a retired cop, I didn't like the idea of a married man going around with my sister."

Miss Mullooly was found in the office of a lawyer she has retained to defend her brother. "I will stand by him," she declared. "My brother misunderstood, and he is very much upset."

Gay was a vice-president of the Phillips Petroleum Company and head of its New York operations.

Mullooly was held without bail on charges of felonious assault and violation of the state that forbids carrying a revolver without a license. He now faces rearraignment on a homicide charge.

Rate Payers Hold Social In Honor of Liberal Candidate

On Saturday evening the rate payers association in the community of Stirling held a social evening in the school auditorium. A very large crowd turned out to hear Mr. Robert Temple as a friend, also a liberal candidate for Hastings South.

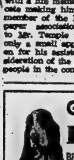
As Mr. and Mrs. Temple entered the room, the band played "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and all joined in the singing.

The evening was spent in dancing with music provided by Mr. Carl Gilbert and his Prince Edward Ramblers of which was much enjoyed by all.

During the course of the evening Mr. Ronald Schamerhorn president of the rate-payers Association, introduced the special guest for the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Temple. At this time, he asked them to please come and sit at the head table. Mr. Schamerhorn expressed on behalf of all present and himself that it was a great honor and privilege to have Mr. Temple for the evening and he wished him luck and success in the forthcoming election.

Little Carol Schamerhorn daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schamerhorn presented Mrs. Temple with a bouquet of long stem red roses. Ronald then presented Mr. Temple with a life membership certificate making him an honorary member of the Hillcrest rate-payers' association, expressing his appreciation for the help he has given to the association, especially on his assistance and consideration of the welfare to the people in the community.

Mr. Temple thanked Mr. Schamerhorn for the presentation and also all who helped to make the evening a memorable one, he went on to say if his party were elected they would do everything in their power to help further education for young folk, who will be Canadians of tomorrow and to help make this great country a place of which to be proud.



At the conclusion of his short speech, he said it was indeed an honor and a privilege to be made a life honorary member of the association, and he would only be too happy to assist them if it was possible to do so.

Mrs. Temple expressed her thanks for the lovely bouquet and said she was enjoying herself very much.

The tea table was a great attraction with its white linen cloth, the centre piece, was a silver horseshoe with "Good Luck Bob" printed in black letters. On each side of the horseshoe was a bouquet of baby roses in green glass vases. The evening came to a close with refreshments served buffet style.

FINE FOR IMPEDING

TORONTO (CP) — Zigmund Blonski, charged with impeding payday for Michigan's eight striking newspapers, said the situation developed after the state legislature recessed until June 25 without acting on a $12,200,000 deficiency appropriation bill that contained $13,000 in salary increases and adjustments for the justices.

Fire Rating Tweed Forest District

A stubborn smouldering fire in Sebastopol township although not considered dangerous is being constantly patrolled by Local and Forest fire rangers.

The fire hazard in the forest areas was said to be medium today.

Despite the recent rains and low temperatures, officials are keeping a sharp watch over the timberlands. No fires have been reported since the rains came this week.

Temperatures in the district saw Tweed with 50 degrees and Bancroft with 43 degrees and Deere with 41 degrees.

Princess Royal Flying Polar Route for Visit

LONDON (Reuters) — The Princess Royal, Queen Elizabeth's aunt, left here by air for Canada today, the first member of the British Royal Family to fly the polar route.

The princess, 63, took off for her two-week visit in an RCAF plane for Victoria where she will spend four days as guest of the province's lieutenant-governor, Mal. Gen. George Pearkes, and Mrs. Pearkes.

The princess will take part in several official functions in Victoria before leaving for Vancouver. Sunday she will also visit Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto and Quebec City.

In Kingston, she will inspect the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, and in Toronto, where she will spend four days; she will present new colors to the Royal Canadian Regiment. While in Toronto, she will be made an honorary member of the Law Society of Upper Canada.

English Alcan Workers Vote For Color Bar

BANBURY, England (AP)—Workers at the Aluminum Company of Canada plant here Tuesday voted in favor of barring non-white labor, particularly Pakistanis. The vote was 501 to 205.

Union Leader Tom Haskell commented: "I am astounded and disgusted at the result. The people who voted against colored labor must be afraid for their jobs."

Haskell said he would forward the decision to headquarters of the National Union of General and Municipal Workers. "Official union policy opposes color discrimination.

About 900 workers abstained in the vote and there were 128 spoiled ballots.

The vote was taken after men threatened to strike over employment of Pakistani labor. Germans, Swedes and other European workers have been employed since the plant opened without trouble, Haskell said.

The management of Alcan, a subsidiary of Aluminum Limited, commented: "We have heard with regret the result of the ballot and are studying the situation further."

said the Soviet premier, may become a "turning point in the life of the Laotian people."

It will put fresh into the decision of the 14-nation Laotian conference at Geneva that Laos should be neutralized, with no cold war arena, he said.

The agreements reached at Geneva served as an excellent basis for development of Laos as a neutral and independent state.

They show, he said, that where there is a will there is a way, as far as international problems go.

Russia has always followed this course, he said, because it is the only one that serves the interests of peace and coexistence.

NEHRU WELCOMES IT

IN New Delhi, Prime Minister Nehru said he welcomed the coalition government as "a very good thing not only for Laos but for countries round about."

Nehru told reporters "the only principle that can apply as between Laos and its neighbors is the principle of neutrality."

Court Finds Company 100% Negligent

Damages in the amount of $941.31 and costs were awarded against the H. J. McFarland Construction Company Limited, Tuesday by Judge W. S. Lane at the General Sessions of the Peace and Jail Deliveries here, in an action against Leo Fleming, as the result of an accident, involving Mr. Fleming's farm tractor, and a truck owned by the H. J. McFarland Construction Company.

Evidence was that on September 30, 1961, David Fleming, 11-year-old son of Leo Fleming, was operating a tractor, driving about 20 head of cattle, east on the Marshland Gravel Road, at the bottom of a steep incline.

A truck owned by the plaintiff was proceeding west on the same road and in order to avoid colliding with the tractor and cattle, the driver was forced to take quick evasive action and struck a pile of rocks causing $943.31 damage to the truck.

The plaintiff, H. J. McFarland Construction Company was found 100 per cent negligent by the jury.

The jury agreed that the driver of the truck was driving at an excessive rate of speed and disregarded warning signs posted at the side of the road.

Book Review

Native Wild Plants, of eastern Canada and the adjacent northeastern United States, by F. H. Montgomery. Ryerson Press. $4.95.

The author, in his introduction comments there are several books on trees, on flowers, and others for advanced botanists, and intends this to fill the gap.

The style is mildly pedantic and chatty, and the format, typical, although too many of the illustrations fail to identify the habitat of the plants.

Basis of the book is a "key", giving two stages of identification. By starting with one botanical, (to botanists), feature, and matching it up with one or two less obvious ones in the "key" section of the book, all plants covered can be identified in two or three steps.

There are four pages of small coloured pictures, apparently printed more for their value in selling the book than for the use of the reader. The book is of value to those who have use for it.

CBC Tinged With Liberal Brush, Charge

KINGSTON (CP) — Public Works Minister Walker said Tuesday that CBC news analysis is "tinged with a Liberal brush."

Mr. Walker told a Progressive Conservative rally here that CBC commentators have been "distorting the facts on the pegging of dollar", and have failed to tell Canadians the truth about the Liberals' "from recession to prosperity" and "fiscal financing."

He said listeners hear "nothing but so much propaganda from the CBC" on the Liberals.

"CBC analysis of news, their commentators, are grossly unfair."

"And after 22 years of Liberal rule, I propose it is natural that the government-owned CBC should, through its commentators, be not only tinged with a Liberal brush but be right down the Liberal side."

Food Rioters In Canton Said Shot At

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Local sources with knowledge of events in Communist China say that a food riot in Canton in which police had opened fire on food rioters in Canton.

Earlier this month, reports reached the colony that police had killed three people and injured scores of others in Canton in which demonstrated at Canton railroad station when the authorities had forbidden the public sale of rain tickets to Shumchun, on the China-British border.

A 1st unconfirmed reports said 18 persons were killed. Other information coming out of China in the last week has revealed that a non-violent demonstration in which force was not used to disperse the crowd.

The exact cause of the demonstrations is not yet clear, it is pointed, but evidence available to date indicates a row over travel permits and either food.

During the refugee "invasion" last month, the authorities in China's Kwangtung province ordered that visas freely and people were allowed to buy train tickets to the border.

Travel restrictions apparently followed the action of Communist China's Kwangtung province frontier May 23 and turning would-be refugees back to their home villages.

18th Nuclear Device Fired

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 18th nuclear device of the current U.S. Pacific series was detonated Tuesday following an aerial drop near Christmas Island.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the nuclear detonation said it was in the intermediate range, meaning it had an explosive force of between 20,000 and 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

A high altitude shot of more than 1,000,000 tons from a rocket launched from Johnston Island. The first high altitude detonation fired June 7 when a Thor missile carrying the warhead was destroyed after its guidance system went awry.

CARRIES MONEY

McGroary said Balsom carried to his home with an envelope full of money and said Lawyer Lamorie would give the phone instructions about the transaction.

McGroarty said he received a call telling him to leave the money in a truck and a truck parked in front of a store.

He said he lowered the truck he saw two policemen in an adjoining restaurant, said McGroarty. Afterwards, he returned to the scene and found the truck was gone, later, he said, he saw the two officers in a bowling alley where Balsom used to head quarter.

After Lamorie resigned, McGroarty testified, he kept after Balsom for money of all the time.

After he and the bookie were convicted by the commissioner, McGroarty said, Balsom had told him:

"Seven of us are going to deny everything, and that will be the end of the thing."

Const. George Scott of the anti-gambling squad has been a key commission witness, concerning an alleged $380 bookie bribery scandal in which 7 police members, uncovered while he worked for several months as a double agent on the OPP.

McGroarty said Balsom identified the seven who were going to deny everything as:

Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley, reputed Ontario bookies; Ernest Lamorie, convicted in March of conspiring to obstruct police information illegally; Robert J. Wright, former anti-gambling squad constable who has been charged with perjury but has denied bribery; Lawyer Gerald Lamorie, Balsom and the witness.

He apparently decided to talk to Inspector Harold Graham as soon had been admonishing him to "tell the truth" early April to "deny everything."

His evidence included testimony that Balsom claimed he had a "fix" with police, that Lawrence or Lamorie was to telephone on pending raids, that he had a list of establishments he (McGroarty) was to pass the tips to, and that he had accompanied Balsom in making the round of collections from tipoff clients.

INCLUDES BOOKIES

He did not provide information on the size of alleged payoffs but he said the tipoff list included bookies Roy Patrechuk of Port Arthur and Frank McIlwain of St. Catharines and a man named Jumbo whom he later identified as Joe Fortuna, a Hamilton club operator.

Balsom himself had been in warm water with the commission even before he was removed from his stand in the midst of his testimony to make way for McGroarty — with an evident view of having all their stories put on the record for comparison purposes.

Mr. Justice Roach warned him in June 1 of several times against perjury and frequently jabbed him into sharpening up vague answers while Commission counsel Roland F. Wilson and Lawrence Lamorie for a contempt of court citation, because he became more co - operative.

Before testifying at all, Balsom told reporters in St. Catharines lawyer Frank Keenan to avoid giving evidence until the commission had ruled on whether a commission witness can be forced to give self-incriminating evidence. The issue which arose before the commission at a time in the case of Feeley and how is headed for Canada's top tribunal.

For Feeley, lawyer Walton C. Rose served notice on the commission Tuesday that he will attempt to get a ruling in the Supreme Court a ruling Monday of the Ontario Court of Appeal that Feeley can be forced to give evidence that might be incriminating and to produce his income tax records.

Mr. Rose's application for leave to appeal will be heard at Ottawa June 22.

The evidence of Balsom and McGroarty disagreed on a variety of points—notably on the police informers' payoffs their own wireless - transmitted conversations taken on a golf course, driving in a car, in McGroarty's home and even outside church—finally decided Balsom's claim that he had spoken to Mc. Groarty only once about their pending appearance before the commission.

It was the first time such evidence had been produced before a Toronto tribunal, and de-

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market continued its decline during extremely light morning trading on the stock market; today.

Industrials fell almost five points on index, while base metals and western oils dipped moderately. Golds showed the only advance, rising fractionally.

Banks were again featuring. A 1962 low of 384 and Montreal, Nova Scotia, Royal and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce all down in a ½ to ¾ range.

Moore Corp. dropped two to 43¾—its lowest this year—while International Paper and Aluminium each fell to 162 lows, down one point and ¼ respectively. Other losers included Distillers Seagrams, off a point, Walker - Goodham - Worts ½, Canada Dry ½, and Dominion Foundries and Steel, off ½.

Other losers of a point or more included Price Brothers, Moore Corporation, Aluminium, Alberta Gas, and Investors Syndicate. A. Intercprovincial Pipe Line fell 2⅛ to 73¼.

Base metals, industrials fell 8.30 to 550.71; base metals 1.74 to 187.73 and western oils .76 to 90.36. Volume was 2,201,000 shares compared with Monday's 1,881,000.

Among base metals, International Nickel fell 3⅛ to 65. Falconbridge dropped one point. Noranda ⅛ each. Golds lost some of their lustre, with Dome and Placer each dipping ½.

Western oils saw Hudsons Bay fall ⅞ and Sapphire and ¾ each.

Golds held the spotlight Tuesday.

The gold index moved sharply ahead from the opening to closing extremely light morning trading on the stock market; today.

The index closed at 101.06, ahead 3.15.

Pacing the upswing was McIntyre-Porcupine, ahead 1¼ at 44⅝. Dome and Placer both rose a point, while Giant Yellowknife gained ¾.

Brokers attributed the strength to expectations that the United States may raise the price for gold. Added to that, they said, was the general decline in the rest of the market as investors may be switching to golds for their relative security.

Banks were the weakest industrial group. Bank of Nova Scotia dropped 1¼ to a 1962 low of 66, while Toronto-Dominion fell a point.

Other losers of a point or more included Price Brothers, Moore Corporation, Aluminium, Alberta Gas, and Investors Syndicate. A. Intercprovincial Pipe Line fell 2⅛ to 73¼.

Base metals, industrials fell 8.30 to 550.71; base metals 1.74 to 187.73 and western oils .76 to 90.36. Volume was 2,201,000 shares compared with Monday's 1,881,000.

were made to an early Hamilton.

'SHAM MOVE'

Mr. Douglas said the prime minister's statement that there is a "sham move," hedged with all sorts of qualifying words that the resolution against Soviet aggression would be introduced only if supported by other countries, An economic world conference to raise living standards would be better, counter to communism than "phoney peaceful coexistence."

Then Mr. Douglas hopped by helicopter to Toronto where in the course of his speech to a crowd estimated at 8,000 was carried live on the CBC's television network.

Social democracy is the only effective weapon to counter communism, Mr. Douglas said. His party stood for an independent foreign policy and dominated by any foreign power, no matter how friendly that power may be or how close its ties.

Mr. Pearson's attack on the prime minister's "free the setup" statement was made at a Montreal luncheon with representatives of ethnic groups who applauded when he said he doesn't like the term "ethnic groups" and that he likes the perpetuating divisions of that kind.

CHARGES BETRAYAL

At night the Liberal leader addressed a roaring crowd of 5,000 at the Maple Leaf Gardens Big Show Maxi, attacking the government as having misled voters with unfulfilled promises and having "betrayed by the inconsistency of its administration the good faith of the Canadian people."

The Conservatives "can't win," he declared.

But there was a danger that Monday's election might produce a weak government lacking a majority, he said.

The one possibility of effective government would be a Liberal one, he said.

Earlier, in Ville St. Michel, Mr. Pearson said the effect of reducing the Canadian dollar's exchange value was to raise consumer costs "and not ease the threats of Prime Minister Diefenbaker are able to stop this increase."

Mr. Thompson, speaking in a free-time broadcast on the CBC network, said a Social Credit government would extend family allowances to the 20th birthday.

PENSIONERS PAYMENTS

It also would provide payments to elder citizens to help them share in the benefits of Canada's prosperity, Mr. Thompson added that this doesn't mean the party is joining in the auction block competition among the old - line parties in raising old age pensions.

The Liberals' hockey star candidate, Red Kelly of Toronto Maple Leafs, spoke on a free-time CBC radio broadcast to describe as "pure bolonie" the insistence of Finance Minister Fleming that the dollar's exchange rate had been devalued only after careful planning. Mr. Kelly is a candidate in York West.

Another NHL player, Eric Nesterenko of Chicago Black Hawks, was on hand to meet Mr. Douglas when the NP leader arrived in Toronto.

Quebec Liberal Premier Jean Lesage, who hasn't actively campaigned for Mr. Pearson on grounds this isn't the custom in Quebec, said in the provincial legislature that Mr. Pearson is "a great Canadian who will be the next prime minister of Canada."

Premier John Robarts of Ontario spoke at an election meeting near Brockton, reiterating that he is supporting the Diefenbaker government in the campaign. He said he'll be with the prime minister in campaign wind-up rallies at Toronto Thursday night and at Hamilton Friday night.

Plan Campaign To Publicize Town's Assets

TRENTON — Six minds had but a single thought...how to create an "image" of Trenton and the ways and means of getting the message across to the public.

Yesterday, clerk-comptroller O. W. Lerry, Elmer Bonter, Trenton's public relations representative, Squadron Leader Russ Saunders, public relations officer at RCAF Station Trenton Helen Upper, Trentonian reporter Ricky Marchese, CKWS-TV, and Eula Scotter, Trenton Intelligencer, met in the Gilbert Hotel at Trenton to consider a publicity campaign for the town.

Starting at rock bottom, what is needed most is a slogan. Is Trenton forever to be known as the "Gateway To the Trent Waterway" or the "Air Force City," or the "Fish catchier Port-al" One which would at once describe the town as a historic haven and a natural place in which to live or visit. Once a catch-phrase is discovered...how should the publicity mill go about making tourists, not to mention potential industrialists, aware of the Trenton image?

Sal. Bowdery suggested that the town should make use of its known assets. Trenton is the "gateway to the Trent waterway." The best pictured fishing in the world is to be found between Lock No. 1 and the mouth of the river, he said. Once the boating and motoring public become aware of Trenton's sporting facilities, merchants and service bodies will begin to realize that it's to their advantage to boost the town. In other words, we must "sell" the town to outsiders, in order to sell it to the citizens.

Mr. Larry said that he would have a list of business publications or trade magazines compiled, and that Trenton will could take it from there, and gain excellent publicity for the town. Merchants' organization heads have only to suggest that they would like to see an article about their places of business in such magazines, and the local writers could oblige.

It was agreed that one thing that was needed was a sign at the government dock, advertising the location of various public and commercial buildings, for the benefit of yachtsmen and their families. A map of Trenton could be incorporated in this sign.

Another point of agreement was that some way should be found to increase the closeness of the Glen Miller track to the town.

All in all, those at the meeting felt that quite a bit of ground had been covered in the informal discussion. Later meetings will be held.

Also surviving are two sons, Gerald of Belleville and Albert of Detroit, Mich.; 19 grandchildren and 9 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Couture was predeceased by her husband, Oliver Couture, in 1929.

Treasury Board Approves Purchasing Front St. Site For New Federal Building

TRENTON—Yesterday, Lee Grills, Hastings South M.P. in the last Parliament, announced that the federal treasury board had, in effect, given the "go-ahead" for the purchase of three pieces of land on Front Street in Trenton where a new federal building will be erected.

Mr. Grills said that he had received a telegram from J. E. Mahony, executive assistant to the Minister of Public Works in Ottawa, informing him that the board's authority had been given for the acquisition of land owned by Wilcox Transport, S. G. Graham and Quinte Plumbing, Heating and Electrical Company, on Front Street, adjacent to the Grills' store across from the municipal parking lot.

Mr. Grills said that he expected the purchase would be made speedily and that the work on the building itself might be expected to begin shortly after the first of January next year. He said that present plans called for the setting up of a sub-postal station on the east side of the river.

The site of the proposed new federal building has been a series of contention locally for several years. One site after another was suggested by government officials, but in each case met with audible dissention in the town. Last spring, Mr. Grills, federal representative and municipal heads toured the town, some of the numerous sites, at least ten, and the government men settled on the Front Street site as being the most desirable from a number of viewpoints. At this time, it was a question of accepting the government officials' advice or delaying the building of a federal building ad infinitum. Town council took the course least opposition and approved the government's choice. East side businessmen continued to protest, but the die was cast, as far as the town fathers were concerned, and the government ruling on the site stayed unaltered.

Mr. Grills made the announcement about the federal building site at a well-attended tea, held in his honor at Canterbury Hall yesterday, and sponsored by the Trenton Progressive Conservative Association. Association officers served the guests and association members greeted them at the door. Special guests, receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Grills, were Mr. Elmer Sandercock, MLA and Mrs. Sandercock of Belleville.

Gardens Seek Service Clubs' Co-operation

TRENTON — Trenton service clubs will be contacted by Carl Weese, chairman of publicity and rentals with the Community Gardens Commission, with a view to obtaining the sponsorship of special events and vacant lots for the Trenton area. Also the service clubs are admittedly better at selling tickets than the commission members, the commission feels that the clubs could gain a lot and the commission a little with such an arrangement.

Buildings chairman Ralph Weaver has been authorized to buy a floor polisher. Something has to be done about the upstairs auditorium floor. It must either be repaired and refurbished or replaced. Next fall, the arena washrooms will be repaired and reconstructed under the winter works program.

Commissioners decided to replace a wire fence at the west side of the building with lilac shrubs, rather than metal piping. It was felt that children attending the gardens might appreciate a lot of their time swinging on the pipe fence, if sweeping willows will be planted on the boundary.

The Trenton traffic committee will be consulted about placing a sign at the corner of Bay St. and Dundas St. E., advertising the exact location of the gardens.

The commission is breaking even on operations.

May Act Without Consent

The Government of the United Kingdom, through Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath, has renewed its pledge that the Commonwealth countries will be consulted before Britain makes any binding decision about joining the Common Market.

Recent announcements of "agreements" between representatives of Britain, on the one hand, and of the "Inner Six", on the other, had resulted in some concern amongst Commonwealth authorities, particularly those of New Zealand and Australia. The very vigor with which these Commonwealth figures uttered suggestions that these accords represented firm agreements revealed a fear that what they denied was so might be so. Nor will Heath's pledge entirely remove this concern, though it may go quite a little chance. For, in effect, it appears that some Commonwealth groups are expecting that the promised consultation will provide them with the opportunity to revise or reject agreements reached over several months in intensive, complex negotiations with the present members of the Common Market. A pledge to consult does not necessarily mean that this opportunity will be given. In fact, if we consider the situation realistically, we shall be forced to conclude that any such procedure would be fraught with so many difficulties as to make it highly unlikely it will be followed.

Britain has promised it will not join the Common Market at the expense of the Commonwealth. It will "consult" the other countries of the Commonwealth—that is, will hear and consider their views on the proposed terms for Britain joining the Commonwealth. But surely, in the final analysis, the decision as to whether these terms place too heavy a burden on other Commonwealth lands will have to be Britain's, and Britain's alone.

For Britain to pledge that she would not join the Common Market without the consent of every Commonwealth country, or even without the consent of the majority of these countries, would require her to place an inordinate faith in these countries' sense of fair play, or at least in their ability to take the long-range view. For there can be no doubt that Britain cannot join the Common Market without harming the economy of some of these Commonwealth lands. Perhaps, in the end, the benefits which flow from a more prosperous Britain will more than offset the temporary damage to trade between her and some other countries of the Commonwealth. But to expect all, or even a majority of, these Commonwealth countries to cheerfully consent to inflict this present damage, for the hope of future possibilities or from altruistic concern for the welfare of Britain herself, would be unrealistic.

The best safeguard the Commonwealth countries have is not in interpreting a pledge to consult as providing the right to have views expressed at this consultation will necessarily be given heed, but rather in the further promise that Britain will not join the Common Market until the United Kingdom Parliament approves the final agreement, with this approval coming after Commonwealth lands have had the opportunity to voice their opinions. Pride of empire still plays such a major role in the thinking of many members of the British House of Commons that any agreement which obviously sacrificed vital Commonwealth interests would receive a very stormy reception.

Uncomfortable Deduction

"Back home (New Zealand) everyone plays cricket or rugby or something, but there sports seem to stop when they leave school." Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Everest, made that comment on the North American scene when he visited Montreal.

It would be comforting if one could retort that here, when we reach man's estate, we put away childish things. Sir Hillary, though, may have seen our TV programs. Besides, is sport really childish?

Anyway, there is no more sport-conscious populace than that on the North American continent. The difficulty is that we do not play games—we watch them.

It would be comforting to be able to say that this is because we like perfection and, realizing we shall never attain it ourselves, we prefer to watch it in others.

The difficulty is that it is much too easy to deduce from this just where our claim to perfection lies. In our backside!

Once in Rome I put up at a particular hotel simply because I'd seen its advertisement which said "English visitors can have a very delightful time in our most suggestive gardens." — Irish poet W. R. Rodgers.

The Uses of Idleness

Montreal Gazette

Dr. Wilder G. Penfield, in his address at the convocation of Macdonald College, took as his theme the uses of idleness. For idleness is becoming of greater and greater importance in two ways: it is growing for most people beyond what it used to be; and in an age of greater and greater specialization, it opens up opportunities for escaping from narrow boundaries of living into larger views.

Dr. Penfield put it very well when he said: "The specialist who confines his thought to his specialty, to idleness, has no real time off. He starves his mind and fatigues his brain."

Dr. Clarence J. Webster, the New Brunswick specialist, had something of the same wisdom. Some people used to ask him why he played golf. He said at one time, though an eminent physician, in his historical researches and reflections he never was quick and direct: "I want to keep from being a professional hack."

It may seem hard to think of some who have risen to prominence in their professions as being only hacks. But Dr. Penfield would agree that a man who knows only one thing, no matter how profoundly, remains an ignorant man. What is more, he is likely to be also an unhappy one. And there is no answer was quick and direct: "I want to keep from being a professional hack."

Dr. Penfield cited Sir William Osler as being one of the greatest physicians who have come to prominence in their professions as being only hacks. But Dr. Penfield would agree that a man who knows only one thing, no matter how profoundly, remains an ignorant man. What is more, he is likely to be also an unhappy one. And there is no answer some doubt that he can hope to attain his greatest growth even within his specialty. Much of his work is always done by those who are able to place themselves and what they are doing against a spacious background.

* * *

Sir Winston Churchill has been one of the greatest examples in our time of a man made largely because of his uses he has made of his idleness.

Though to the thick of the political struggle he was never pulled down or submerged by it. He remained the man who knew how to read history and how to write it; who had exemplary knowledge of birds of palate and brushes; and who in his best public appeals has been full of echoes of the vast richness of life and the treasury of the past.

Some of his greatest predecessors had the same stamp of bigness; they made their idleness wonderfully productive. Benjamin Disraeli was a figure in literature as well as in Parliament. As for William Ewart Gladstone, the range of his interest was almost infinite, embracing everything, from the poetry of Homer to the problems of philosophy, and the spiritual richness of ecclesiastical doctrine. In the present day a Harvey Cushing or a Wilder Penfield can be both a man of the world and one for literary work. And he did better work on those two desks than many a smaller man could have done on one.

* * *

Dr. Penfield cited Sir William Osler as being one of the greatest physicians who have become in never fell into the narrowness of specialization. He was interested in many things and his idleness was rich in development.

Dr. Penfield described specialization as one of the great necessities of our time, but also as one of its great dangers. Unless it is relieved by the good use of leisure, it may lead to the "premature closing of the windows of the mind." The sight becomes blurred and the too close attention to what happens near the eyes.

When Dr. Penfield says recalls the story of the old scholar who did much of his work in a library, who was also an entertaining old manuscripts. He would notice after a while that his eyesight had become dimmed and weary. At such times he would look from his task reluctantly to a far-off stained glass window, and he would keep looking until the colors cleared and he could see all its wonderful colors.

It is a good thing, as Dr. Penfield said, to clear the sight in the intervals of idleness by looking upon the more distant colors.

Strictly Personal

The Pitfalls Encountered In Dialects

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was engrossed in an excellent new mystery by a skilful British writer the other night, when a character was introduced into the story and I came up with a jolt. The spell had been broken; I simply could not believe in the character.

The author's ear, which was fine for English characters, had betrayed her abysmally. In trying to reproduce American speech, she had become completely fanciful — as well as hopelessly out of date with her slang terms.

Perhaps the hardest task in writing fiction is to get the voice of a foreigner. Unless we grew up in the country ourselves, we do not have that absolute pitch for dialogue which is the mark of the born story-teller. Even the skilful a literary artist as Ernest Hemingway can come a cropper when he tried to render Spanish as spoken by the common people in "For Whom the Bell Tolls." Experts in the Spanish language have unanimously cited his characters spoke ludicrous blend of styles never heard in Spain.

If British writers can't do American speech, American writers are equally inept at Britticisms. We, too, use slang that quickly dates and think that "ripping" and "smashing" and "bloody" make a character British.

Even in their own language, some writers have a superb ear for one particular metier, and not for another. John O'Hara's dialogue is perfect for certain type of raffish and lowclass character, but lacks body of substance sound stilted and manufactured.

Ring Lardner had a marvelous ear for the speech of small-town people, of baseball players and entertainment figures — but, really, he did not try to capture other, and larger, worlds in his fiction. Likewise, Raymond Chandler has a sure touch with unsavory underworld characters; but when he wrote a "serious" story, his dialogue was amateurish.

Apart from its psychological appeal, a great deal of the popularity among young people of J. Salinger's "Catcher in the Rye" springs from his ability to reproduce the language of the adolescent who is "telling" the story. On the other hand, a great critical sach as Eugene O'Neill had a tin ear; he simply could not hear how his characters sounded, and all his plays suffer from this grievous defect.

The reason, of course, that playwriting is perhaps more difficult than novel writing — as Henry James sadly found out — is that in plays everything must be done by speech; there are no asides by the author, no explanations, no description, no philosophic flights, no character analyses. Only playwright may have mind and heart, but without ear true ear he can offer us only stillborn creations.

Everybody Selling Gas

Stratford Beacon-Herald

The jokes about drug-stores are out of date. Once upon a time it was faintly humorous to note that a drug-store was a place where you could get cigarettes, a milk-shake, garden furniture and perhaps, note in a while, a prescription filled. Now everybody seems to be branching out into everybody else's business.

Now it's gasoline that is spreading all over the retail field. Department stores, some of which have been branching into the grocery business, are branching a little farther, and installing gasoline pumps. Grocery stores, which are getting farther and farther into the department store business, with socks, shirts and underwear across the aisle from the bananas, by the simple device of installing gasoline pumps, have now become the logical place to be in the gasoline business.

A chain of automotive parts stores is now installing pumps at four of its Toronto outlets and is reported to be planning to put in pumps at 20 more units in Ontario. Two of the well-known "five-and-ten" chains are now selling gasoline in the United States. They are reported to be considering the sale of gasoline in Canada; each of the chains has a store in downtown Stratford.

The gasoline business has, until now, been left largely to the service stations; there are several service stations in Stratford area which do not have gasoline pumps, and take their vehicles to other stations for gasoline.

Now the service stations are beginning to get competition from retailers right outside the automotive field. According to Kenneth Langdon, executive secretary of the Ontario Retail Gasoline and Automotive Service Association, the proportion of gasoline sold by service stations in the Metropolitan Toronto area has declined in the past two years from 95 per cent to 75, while various other kinds of retailers, including the gasoline business, have increased their share of the business from five per cent to 25.

The inevitable has already happened. Two of the big oil companies are planning to stock their own chains of service stations with sporting goods and automotive items, in a greater variety than ever before.

Reducing Diets Difficult To Prescribe Accurately

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How does one determine the exact number of calories in certain amounts of food? One lady says that only a slice of bread is 40 calories; another claims it is 75. This discrepancy applies to other foods as well.

So what cotton-pickin' book does one believe? According to those figures we could all write our own calorie lists.

One more thing: Pharmaceutical house mention the high strength of their vitamin pills, but they never mention the calories contained and druggists don't seem to know. Enjoy, enjoy, enjoy your column. — E.L.

Thanks, thanks, thanks. And my cottin-pickin' answer is that some people slice things thinner than others, and this practice belittles bread. So a small percentage of differences is reasonable enough.

In the same principle, magnified, is what makes reducing diets difficult to prescribe accurately. The difference of diets for gaining weight. For packing purposes, however, the phrase "average portion" is fresh enough.

Some people, complaining of being too thin, consider that a pound of potatoes is a serving, and others who enjoy eating don't see anything wrong with a double-handful as an average amount.

The most accurate way, therefore, is to weigh everything, and also calculate the amount of moisture. But who's going to do this?

If you, for example, are concerned with reducing, you might probably have a pretty good idea of a "pattern" for you to follow, rather than try to do the arithmetic yourself.

For mild reducing, which is the way a lot of people go when their weight under control, limit yourself to one or two slices of bread. Whether they are 30, 35 or 40 calories doesn't make much difference.

The calories in a vitamin pill are negligible. Vitamins are chemicals of which we're in no traces. A few calories will be represented in the gelatin capsule, but mighty few.

Dear Dr. Molner: If a person is advised to take thyroid extract "for life," can the condition to do so in all security, or should he have more tests? — E.D.

Need for thyroid extract may indeed continue for life. The patient should be checked periodically, perhaps three- or four-times a year, but this doesn't mean at least each time the doctor can readily determine when the dosage is wrong. The age of thyroid extract may be subject to change.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had a rupture for 30 years, but now I think it is causing a new one to page in the bowel. I am 81 so I don't like to go to a surgeon with an operation. — A.R.D.

Some years ago I would have agreed with you completely. Now I agree only in part. A rupture should be repaired because the trouble you mention, and it needs to be corrected. But it no longer can agree that 81 is "too old" for an operation, because age, one might assume that you are in good health otherwise is an agonful on people a good deal older ling experience.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There was a panel recently on which the problem of establishing democratic forms of government on African and Asian nations was discussed. The panel was a gallery of the panel repeatedly employed the phrase "as we give democracy" in their argument as to what could be done for the Congo and Nigeria.

Democracy is never "given." It is taken. There is probably not in all history a single instance in which a successful democratic form of government was imposed on a people from above. In the classic examples of the democratic principle of government such as British, it took centuries of determined struggle on the part of the "mob" to take away power and privilege from the few, and the struggle, in the best democracies, is never over. It is going on now. Nothing is "given" to the "mob."

Democracy, of course, is for those who desire it. But they have got to want it in their hearts and minds, not in their hands, as a gift.

Doctor Deals A Low Blow

Hamilton Spectator

Imagine the shocked expression on our face this morning when we were confronted by a report on an article by a doctor who said that people who spend most of their time in bed are the healthiest. We're used to end up with low back and muscular pains, and that these people are the first to develop exercise a great deal.

We have had occasional attacks of low back pain, but we always managed to get away with saying that mowing the lawn and shoveling snow were responsible.

Now we have no excuse. Worse still, the doctor's article has been preserved for posterity and we will be reminded of it when our posterior is found resting on an easy chair.

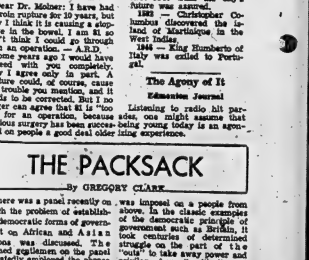
New Zealand Easy-Going

Brockville Recorder and Times

When the United States celebrated its recent Memorial Day holiday, the New York stock exchange found itself in the unusual position of having to adjust subsequently to prices on the Toronto Exchange.

We are wondering though what happens in countries like Australia and New Zealand when a storm of trading breaks on this continent. Suppose the dare stump here had occurred over the Easter period, because it seems in New Zealand at least, the easy-going, unhurried Kiwis are not too concerned with stocks and shares when they are on holiday.



And we mean holiday. In the April 21 issue of the Auckland Star, which has come to our notice, Editor Leonard Adrian Sturman complains that "once again the New Zealand stock exchange will be closed for a 10-day Easter holiday, following a three-day holiday over Christmas. This is very nice for those connected with the stock exchange, but I have my doubts how about the investing public."

"In this matter of extended holidays," the Auckland writer goes on, "the Stock Exchange Association continues to ignore the public interest," and he notes that in recent years interest in the sharemarket has grown tremendously in New Zealand, as in other countries.

Perhaps it's the climate down there . . . in a climate that is closely approximates to summer almost the whole year round, bringing oneself to worry seriously about the stock market when the beach is so inviting. is probably just too much!

Centre, Health Building Sports New Stucco Job

The Belleville Recreation Centre and the city health department building on the Pinnacle Street municipal parking lot is sporting a new coat of stucco this week following completion of exterior work last week.

The coat of stucco was put on at a cost of $485. This was the lowest of several tenders received. The cost was included in the 1962 city budget.

The white coat of stucco adds considerably to the exterior of the formerly drab concrete wall-ed structure.

Start to Build New Bridge In Stirling

Traffic on Highway 14 through the village of Stirling is being re-routed for the next six weeks or so as contractors go to work building a new bridge over the Rawdon Creek.

Included in the contract is paving on No. 14 highway from a point of Elaine Foon wear to the north end of the village, and on No. 33 highway from the main corner to Emmett Street. Storm sewers, curbs and sidewalks are also included in the contract awarded to Lightfoot Construction of Belleville.

The Lightfoot tender for the work was accepted by the Ontario Department of Highways at $291,118.90.

The Belleville contractors began yesterday dismantling the present highway bridge at the main corner of the village.

While the bridge on the highway is out traffic is being diverted over the Hastings county bridge in the village, and along Henry Street where a new bridge was built a couple of years ago.

OVER 100,000

year in records dating back to 1926 was 1946 with 10,088.

Mr. Castonguay's reports indicate that the heavy advance voting was in urban-area polls. There was little voting activity in strictly rural areas.

A Canadian Press check showed that in Ottawa West, 670 voted in advance compared with 60 in 1958, in Russell in the Ottawa area there were 464 against 26 in a 1959 byelection.

VOTING IS HEAVY

The 18 Toronto and York seats reported 9,926 advance votes, over 974,000 eligibles compared with 488 in 1958. York-Scarborough, which has 133,000 eligible, led with 1,878. Algoma West reported 236 compared with 57, Waterloo North 447 against 52.

In the ridings of Brantford, Brant-Haldimand and Norfolk, returning officers reported today that a total of 981 persons voted. Returning officers in all three ridings agree the advance vote is "much greater" than in the past elections.

In previous elections, advance polls were counted as soon as regular polls closed. But when the act was amended two years ago, it called for advance poll counting to start at 9 p.m. local Standard Time, to make it possible for party scrutineers to get to returning officers to do double duty—at advance and regular polls.

Some deputies counted the ballots anyway, Saturday night or Monday night, and were dismissed for not following instructions.

TWEED — The Liberal party has endangered democracy in its efforts to defeat the Diefenbaker Government, George Doucett, former Ontario Minister of Highways, charged here last night.

Mr. Doucett was speaking at a rally at the Tweed Pavilion in the interests of Lee E. Grills, seeking re-election as Progressive Conservative member for Hastings South.

The campaign, he said, has taken an unexpected turn with the occurrence of "unfortunate episodes." demonstrations against Prime Minister Diefenbaker which, he suggested, were organized and paid for by the Liberal party and were a planned campaign against him. He also referred to the manner in which Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland had provided Finance Minister Flemming from addressing the Rotary Club of St. John's, by threatening to withdraw provincial sponsorship of a Rotary convention banquet if Mr. Fleming spoke on the devalued dollar. This he termed a "shattering incident" and he voiced the opinion that the Liberals could not afford to have the devaluation of the dollar explained to the electorate before the voting on June 18.

To vote for Lee Grills is a vote to free speech," he asserted.

GRILLS SPEAKS

Mr. Grills himself was greeted by the audience, led by County Warden Harold Wright, singing "For He's A-Jolly Good Fellow".

"After a reception like that," said Mr. Grills, "I can hardly fail at not how I am going to reply." He said that he had become the "most visited member in Ottawa, with more than 600 Hastings South residents, including more than 300 school children, calling on him in Ottawa during the past year.

He spoke of his affection for farm people, and his work on agricultural programs.

Paul Martin, Liberal candidate for Essex East, he said, had told him it was a pity the election was called for June 18.

"That's the date Waterloo was lost," Mr. Martin had said.

"And that's how far back the thinking is," said Mr. Grills. He added that Mr. Martin is an excellent lawyer, "if you want a lawyer, of course. If I want medical advice, I go to a doctor, and if I want farm advice, I go to a farmer."

Mr. Grills denied that his remarks included "any other lawyers around."

Mr. Doucett, Conservative candidate for Lanark, met with some heckling. A young man outside the pavilion contented himself with some rude remarks, but a man inside showed more promise.

"As an individual, I challenge you to, . . ." he began.

"As an individual, you wait 'till I'm through," interrupted the speaker.

"Nope there are no Doukhobors here," said Mr. Grills, in an aside.

Mr. Doucett based his speech on taxation, and an explanation of the deficit. He said federal grants to provinces alone were heavy enough to account for the deficits. From $333 million in 1957 they had been raised to $851 million in 1961-62, and would be $891 million in 1962-63. He said the conditional grants were up from $111 million in 1957 to $339 million this year. He listed increased pensions to disabled and blind people, orphans and veterans as further causes of the deficit. He said $1,137,000 of the deficit went to Hastings South last year.

Entertainment was provided by Mrs. Knox and her daughter, of Norwood, who sang a duet, and by Brenda Brancombe of Belleville, dance teacher, and the "Twirling Ballettes," a baton group trained by Miss Branscombe.

Refreshments were served and the rally concluded with a dance.

McFarland Gets Contract on Highway 62

BANCROFT — Mr. Clarke T. Rollins, M.L.A. for Hastings East, announced this morning that the Minister of Highways has advised him that the H. J. McFarland Construction Co. Ltd. of Picton, filed the lowest tender for grading, drainage and granular base on Highway 62 from eight miles north of Bannockburn, northerly for 3 miles north of Stirenburg-St. Ola road, a distance of 6.42 miles. Work will commence in the near future.

Unique Musical Will Be Given

On Saturday, June 16th at the Salvation Army Citadel on Pinnacle Street, Bandmaster Jack Green is presenting an interesting and unique musical evening, featuring selections played by family groups. The concert gets underway at 7.30 p.m.

Included in the family groups to be heard are such well-known musical combinations as the Lessell family, the Hatfield, the Fudge family, and many others.

Also assisting on the program will be pupils of bandmaster Jack Green who for many years has instructed and produced some of the finest instrumentalists in the Belleville district.

The Tymbrel Groups will perform and a varied and entertaining evening is assured. Admission is free but there will be a collection for those who wish to assist young musicians to attend the music camp at Robbins Lake this summer.

Judy Marsh, of Tweed, made a slight mistake when she pinned an "I like Lee" ribbon on Lee Grills himself, at the C.C. rally in Tweed last night. Whether he liked Lee or not, Mr. Grills did not wear the ribbon.

Welfare Costs of $171,772 For First Four Months Higher Than Anticipated

Social welfare costs in the city for the first four months of the year totalled $171,772 and have been higher than was anticipated when the year's budget was struck, members of city council were told this week.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds in his annual report of the year noted that the contribute to the end of April appeared to indicate that estimated social welfare costs of $446,396 would be exceeded.

"It is hoped that employment conditions will improve during the summer months and thereby reduce welfare costs," the city manager said in his report.

"However, this may not happen and it is important that the welfare administrator give very close attention to applications for welfare assistance with the view of curtailing or eliminating these costs wherever possible.

Of the total social welfare costs of $171,772 for the first four months, an amount of $130,404 was spent in straight relief, it was stated.

Total city expenditures for the first four months were given at $1,320,724, which were said in line with the budget estimate of $4,320,146.

However, it was noted there had been no recorded expenditures in some items, and the city manager stressed the importance these all departments give serious attention to their departmental budgets to ensure no over-all deficit occurred.

The city tax department was reported to be in good shape, however, with 50 per cent of the year's tax roll having been collected by the end of May.

City Tax Collector C. J. Bender said today that many local businesses had paid their business tax along with their first instalment of property taxes, despite the fact business tax is not due until June 30th.

"When all business tax is in the collections will be considerably higher than the same date last year", he said.

Bowling Notes

Three triple rinks from the women's section of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club were journeyed to Campbellford on Tuesday and came home with two prizes, one for the Stirling game high and one for the two-game high. Mrs. Chris Howard, Mrs. Lillian Mascaro with Mrs. Edna Jackman as skip won the three-game high while a rink of Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon, Mrs. Lavern Bonter with Mrs. Millie Smith as skip won the two-game high score. The Stirling rink of Mrs. Mary Green and Miss Rosa Spry as skip. There were 14 rinks on hand, the greens were exceptionally keen and the hospitality excellent. This is the first win for the club this year. Two rinks of men's doubles went to Trenton a week ago and three men's doubles links went to Kingston on Saturday but none came home with any loot.

The women have had two bowling days since the greens opened. Mrs. Brezi VanTassel, Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon with Mrs. Betty Vince as skip won the first day, while a rink of Mrs. Jessie Hunter, Mrs. Emma Fitzgibbon with Mrs. Betty Vince as skip won the second day. The tea hostesses for the first day were Mrs. Anne Warkin and Mrs. Cicia Gilbert while on the second day Mrs. Hazel Boyle and Mrs. Lillian Mascaro were the hostesses.

Everything is in readiness for the Hyde mixed double's tournament which is held this Saturday at the local greens. This every club in the district will be represented and fighting for the beautiful prizes that will be offered. There will be two draws with the first at twelve o'clock. Charlie L. Hyde and son, Jerry, have sponsored this tournament for years. The local greens were never in better condition and the addition of new lights on the top green will be greatly appreciated by the visiting bowlers.

Future Prosperity Involves Each Riding and Person Liberals Offer Positive Plan for All: Temple

"Canada is made up of many peoples with many different backgrounds", observed Liberal candidate Robert Temple following another of his many tours of industries and businesses in Hastings South.

"It is interesting to see how both Ivy-educated Britons run by Canadians of several generations and new firms created by recent comers to Canada combine to give our country the great potential which can make it one of the leading nations in the world today", Mr. Temple said.

"The prosperity of Canada depends on the efforts of these and other Canadians to increase the nation's productivity — in short, more production begets more income begets greater expansion which results in more jobs", Mr. Temple stated.

"To achieve prosperity throughout Canada, and no one section of the country can remain prosperous whilst other sections suffer from lack of expansion from unemployment or from a fall in productivity, industry must have a proper framework within which it can develop and expand to meet both its competition on the home markets and which is even more important for the security and prosperity of Canada, competition on the world markets".

The Liberal Party recognizes this situation and is prepared to do something about it. Accelerated depreciation of new equipment and of expansion of plant facilities to increase productivity and lower prices will be allowed Canadian industries under the Liberals program".

The scope of the Industrial Development Bank will be expended to allow its facilities to be used by more Canadians in a greater range of industries to obtain the capital necessary for the expansion of present firms or the establishment of new plants. This will help to create more jobs to meet the needs of the half million unemployed at present, and to provide new jobs for the half million which are expected to swell the ranks of Canada's labor force in the next decade", Mr. Temple said.

"A realistic attitude towards export markets and world trade by the adoption of policies which promote freer trade through energetic and constructive co-operation with the other free countries of the world will be adopted by a Liberal government if returned to power in the Hon. Lester B. Pearson", stated the Liberal candidate.

Coupled with this drive for increased export trade will be a research program whose prime objective will be to promote the processing of Canadian raw materials in Canada rather than to lose valuable jobs by exporting our resources in a raw or semi-processed state. More secondary industries will be developed in Canada and hence more jobs can be had if greater use is made of our natural resources and our labor force," Mr. Temple stated.

"Throughout our own riding there are many examples of this type of industry and, with a Liberal government to activity promote the increase of this phase of industry, we can expect to see many more such plants and businesses in Hastings South."

"To do this all of Canada must move ahead under the guidance of a party which does have some plans and a program for the future. The Liberals realize the situation which confronts Canada, as do many citizens who have taken a good, hard objective look at Canada as she stands today, and have formulated a program to cope with Canada's problems.

"We do not pretend that these issues do not exist. We do not assume that a faltering national production, that a decline in the value of the dollar, that a half million unemployed people, that a $3,000,000,000 national debt are good enough for Canadians and require no attention, programs for the future, no positive thinking or planning," said Mr. Temple.

"We accept these problems for what they are - a threat to Canada's future - a stability and prosperity - a threat which must, and can, be met by active leadership and dedicated representatives in Ottawa following a positive plan of action.

"As Canada prospers so shall all of us, but if Canada slides back any further into debt and indecision then this will be the fate of all Canadians. I do not want to see this happen to Canada, to Canadians or to Hastings South. That is why I ask you to take a stand for tomorrow by casting your vote for the party which offers a positive approach to Canada's problems - the Liberal Party, which I am proud to represent in this riding," concluded Robert Temple.

CANADA WITH A PAST — Liberal candidate Robert Temple talks over some of the past accomplishments of the Benedict Proctor firm in Trenton with W. F. "Bill" McColl (left). Firms such as this, which have done much to build up Canada in the past, must not be allowed to falter, but can prosper under an expanding trade policy such as a Liberal government would bring about, said the candidate.

A PROSPEROUS CANADA — Robert Temple, Liberal candidate for Hastings South, examines a casting of Canada's Coat of Arms produced by the Aluminum Star Products firm of Belleville. Mr. George Beer (right), is showing Mr. Temple the firm's products. Firms such as these, started by recent Canadians, contribute greatly to the future prosperity of the country and must be encouraged and, where necessary, assisted, Mr. Temple, said.

Weddings

BLAIR — CLARK

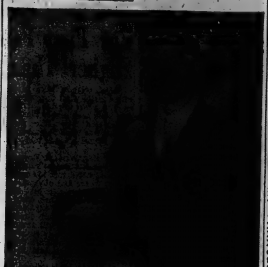
Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto, was the setting for a recent wedding of wide interest, when the Reverend John Morris, pastor of the church, former minister of Aurora United Church, united in marriage, Vera Clark, Reg. N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, of Toronto, to Mr. Richard Blair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Blair, of Aurora, Ontario. Lovely mauve gladioli and yellow chrysanthemums adorned the chancel rail, and white satin bows designated the pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white peau de soie with fitted bodice having a Sweetheart neckline, and lily-point sleeves. The bell-shaped floor-length skirt which cascaded into a chapel train, was held by satin roses, as were the headdress and finger-tip veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white baby 'mums and orchids.

Miss Frances Bishaw, cousin of the bride, as maid of honor was in mauve chiffon and the bridesmaids, Miss Carol Clark, sister of the bride, and Miss Dianne Blair, sister of the bridegroom, were gowned alike in yellow chiffon.

Miss Kathy Blair, the little flower girl, was also frocked in yellow chiffon with matching headdress. All carried bouquets contrasting with their gowns.

Mr. Robert Strachan, of Aurora, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Ted Blair, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. James Clark, Junior, brother of the bride.



The reception was held at 22 College Street, Toronto, where the guests were received by the bride's mother who wore a gown of champagne-beige chiffon, with matching accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, attired in blue shantung silk, with matching accessories.

The young couple left on the wedding trip to Montego Bay, Jamaica, the bride travelling in a rose-toned suit with navy accessories.

The bridegroom is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. George Wood, of Trenton and of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Blair, also of Trenton.

WOMEN DRUGGISTS

The National Association of Women Pharmacists was founded in London, England, in 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Victor Reid are shown signing the register following their recent marriage in the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Catherine Lucy Millard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Millard, of Belleville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Reid, of Belleville, R.R. 6.

REID — MILLARD

White Shasta daisies, and pink gladioli, interspersed with ferns, formed a lovely background in the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, Belleville, for a recent pretty springtime wedding, when Miss Catherine Lucy Millard, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stanley Millard, became the bride of Keith Victor Reid, of Belleville, R.R. No. 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Reid. The Reverend Sackville Palmer, pastor of the church, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

Mr. Wilbur Leanord, church organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. James MacKay, who sang before the ceremony, "Thou Art My Own," and "Their Sweetest Hour," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her white nylon tricot and net-over-satin bridal gown, featuring a shirred bodice having a Sweetheart neckline and sheath sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists. The floor-length skirt was accented by a back bow in bustle effect. She wore a tiara encrusted with iridescent sequins and crystals, with shoulder-length veil of silk illusion tulle, and carried a white Bible crested with red Sweetheart roses and white satin streamers knotted with ivy and red rosebuds.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Eleanor Millard, as maid of honor, gowned in romance blue tricot tulle over taffeta, fashioned with round neckline and ballerina bouffant skirt. She wore a matching rose and net headdress, white accessories, and carried a nosegay of blue and white Shasta daisies.

Little seven-year-old Donna Mae Thompson, of Demorestville, was the flower girl, and was dainty in floral headdress and nosegay of pink and white daisies, completed her costume.

Master Jeffrey Millard, little ten-year-old brother of the bride, was ring bearer, and carried the cushion of white satin with streamers on which the rings reposed.

Mr. Clara Reid, brother of the bridegroom, of Belleville, R.R. 6 was groomsman, while Mr. Paul Millard, of Belleville, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Carl Reid, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church parlor where Mr. James MacKay favored with "Because."

The bride's table was daintily appointed with white linen damask, and centred by an all-swirling three-tier wedding cake topped with white bells, doves and silver rings, and mirrors and caught the blue and white tulle. Pink Sweetheart roses in crystal holders, and the bridal bouquets completed the pretty setting.

Mrs. Herbert Millard, mother of the bride, received the guests wearing a powder-blue sheath of silk ilosen, with matching jacket, white accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Frederick Reid, who wore a medium-brown sheath, of corded cotton with matching jacket, beige accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Kingston, along the St. Lawrence Seaway to Ottawa, the bride chose a navy sheath silk dress with jacket, having three-quarter length sleeves, ruffled around the lower edges, navy hat and gloves, with navy accessories and white gardenia corsage.

Guests were present from Demorestville, Consecon, Oshawa, Peterborough, Renfrew and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid are residing at 256 Coleman Drive, Belleville.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by the congregation of the church, held in the lower auditorium, also at a community shower at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Belleville, R.R. 6.

Men's Dessert, Coffee Party Proves Gay, Colorful Affair

33 Testaments Presented by City Gideons

Last Sunday afternoon, several members of the Belleville Gideons visited the Ontario School for the Deaf to present the students of the senior school with copies of the New Testament including the Psalms and Proverbs.

Student, Miss Joan Shaw, led the gathering in the Lord's Prayer and student Miss Sandra Drebit read the 23rd Psalm. Mr. J. G. Demeza, superintendent of the school, introduced the Gideons and explained to the students that the Gideons were not preachers, but business and professional men, who love God, who take time out from their regular work to point out God's word, because they believe that within the covers of these Books are the words of eternal life.

Mr. Watson, a member of the Gideons, spoke briefly on the need of reading God's word, after which Dr. Edward Dow, president of the Belleville Gideons, presented 33 New Testaments to the students.

Followed by Mr. S. Alex Gordon, president of the Gideons and His Victory Over the Midianites was recorded in the Scripture in Judges, chapters 6-7, closing with the children of Israel wanting Gideon to be their leader, to which Gideon replied, "I will not rule over you; the Lord shall rule over you."

As God revealed to Gideon the way of victory, so God today through His Holy Spirit in His Word reveals how men and nations may have victory in their lives over sin.

This is part of the Canada-wide program of the Gideons in which over 200,000 copies of the new Testament were presented to grade five pupils from coast to coast. In the area served by the Belleville Branch of the Gideons, similar Books have been made available to all grade five pupils this work covers Hastings, Prince Edward and part of Northumberland counties.

Dade of the figure-skating division of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club, with other masculine types, assumed a distinct role last night and came through handsomely.

They took the stage all the glory but they made a fine contribution to the fifth annual Dessert and Coffee Party held on the well-appointed grounds of Dr. and Mrs. William McCutcheon at 139 Albert Street.

Over 400 guests contributed to the coffers of the division at the "open house" held from 4.30 to 8.30.

They were received by hostess McCutcheon and ushered by willing "dads" to buffet tables where dessert in all senses of the word was served.

On the lush green of the spacious McCutcheon lawn was table-seating capacity for many guests.

Appearing perfectly at home, the well-groomed "waiters" catered to the needs of the guests in a manner that bordered on the professional.

At the coffee table with its snowy - white napery and gleaming silverware, they showed they were adept at the dainty art of "pouring".

Appetizing cups of coffee were well arranged. They were bring to the point of the pouring did not become boring.

Other dads saw to it that the coffee table was well supplied. Nobody was kept waiting. The cups were always piping hot as was the tea.

The mothers and others of the gilded side worked behind the scenes. They served at the dessert table. Others prepared the delicious dessert and helped with the readying of fresh cups.

Junior members of the figure-skating division were out in force. They enjoyed homemade and dessert and tried their hand at the fishing pond.

Among those who helped pour were Lee Grills, and Les Bailey political aspirants, and Mayor A. McLean Haig.

The proceeds of this affairs go excusively to the coffers of the figure-skating division. Increasing popularity in this phase of ice recreation has incurred additional expenses. Intensive services of professionals dig deeply into membership dues and other sources of revenue.

Tea parties inaugurated by Mrs. McCutcheon have proven outstanding successes since their inception five years ago.

Last night additional revenue was taken in a draw for a week's holiday for a family of four in Florida. This was donated by John Lewis now in Florida motel-owner. The prize was won by Bill Lowen.

Argyll IODE Hears Several Reports

On June 5th, the Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E., finished off the spring season at a delightful "pot-luck" supper meeting at the summer home of Mrs. Rams Smith, Trent Rd.

The regent, Mrs. A. Cunningham, welcomed everyone present and opened the informal meeting. After the secretary's and treasurer's reports were given, Mrs. Cunningham read the correspondence and brought the chapter up to date on its items and activities.

Special thanks were tendered Mrs. F. Smith and her committee for the lovely arrangements at the "Command Tea" for Col. Duffy in May.

Reports were also given by Mrs. Smith on her social committee work; Mrs. F. Burtt, "Services at Home and Abroad"; Mrs. J. Hart, "Civil Defence"; Mrs. E. Digby, "Immigration and Citizenship."

Mrs. A. McConnell spoke briefly on her trip to the convention in April; Mrs. K. Cousins gave an interesting report on education and discussion followed, pertaining to the work which the chapter will be doing in this field.

As the chapter is one of the participating groups for the United Appeal, members were reminded that the "Blitz" night in Belleville this year, will be on October 16th. Members were urged to keep this date open so that as many as possible will be available to help campaign.

Coming events for the chapter in June will be the Red Cross Blood Donors' clinic, which will be held on June 14th and 15th. Members will be assisting at these clinics.

As the meeting was brought to a close, Mrs. A. McConnel graciously thanked the hostess, Mrs. Smith, for the lovely evening spent at her cottage.

Doris Mclean May Winner Ladies' Golf

Doris McLean, who has a women's club championship to her credit, emerged the first monthly winner of the Bay of Quinte Country Club's newly-formed weekly tournaments.

The ladies play every Thursday with monthly winners being declared on a points basis.

The weekly tournaments attract from 30 to forty-two players each week indicating the popularity of the new system of play.

Draws are made every week and published and on Thursdays the ladies pay for the points. Points equal the number of players.

Mrs. McLean aggregated 142 points during the month of May to become the initial winner.

Ana Ryan was second with 132 points. Then followed in order Monica MacDonald, 126; Betty Ingram 123; Eva Corke, 118; Helen Partridge 115; Carrie Mahoney 114 and Doris Hogle 109.

Social Credit Candidate Says It Takes Women To Balance the Budget

MONTREAL (CP) — Lilian Vien-Beaudet, the Social Credit party's only woman candidate in Quebec province, is a peppy, go-lucky bundle of energy who is campaigning on the principle that "it takes a woman to balance a budget."

"Who ever heard of a housewife going bankrupt?" she asks.

"I'm fed up with seeing the country in debt. Men are just great at thinking out broad-term solutions to big problems, but they're no good at watching details. It takes a woman to notice details."

Mrs. Vien - Beaudet, 49, a vice - president of the Social Credit Women's Association of Canada, has been studying the fortunes of the party for 30 years but this is her first try for political office.

She is opposing Lionel Chevrier, a former Liberal cabinet minister seeking re-election, as well as a Progressive Conservative and a New Democratic Party candidate in Montreal Laurier.

Mrs. Vien-Beaudet is a nurse by profession. During the day she teaches Grade 7 in an English - language school in suburban Otterburn Park. At night and on weekends she does home nursing.

For relaxation she follows politics, builds her own furniture, paints and writes. After the husband's studio, where he teaches sculpture and drama, is liberally lined with her paintings.

She has had three novels and two books of poetry published and is completing a historical novel about her native St. Celestin, Que. It is to be published next fall.

To women who tell her on her door - to - door campaigning that they know nothing about politics, Mrs. Vien - Beaudet fires back in rapid French:

"If you balance your family budget and make savings you know as much about politics as your husband. A national budget, no matter how big, is just like a family budget. They need a woman in Ottawa to balance a budget.

"I'm sick and tired of seeing the rich gobble up the poor. We have to put the dollar sign at the service of man, not man at the service of the dollar sign."

She said she is campaigning for such things as elimination of the ceiling on earnings for pensioners and blind and disability pensions, a $75 - a - month grant for students and higher income tax exemptions.

'Recreation Night' Attended By Many

A very enjoyable June recreation night was held at the Kiwanis Centre with a good attendance. President Pat Baverstock welcomed members and escorts.

A letter of appreciation for flowers was read from Mr. Charles Atkins and daughter. An invitation from the Louis Braille Society, of Peterborough, to attend a dinner and dance on June 23rd was extended to the members.

Artie Scott announced the birthdays for June and the birthday song was sung for Ken Chantler and Franklin Loft.

Vi Waite thanked all associate members for their assistance during the past season, also the Kiwanis ladies for the use of the centre.

A collection was taken up for the E. A. Baker "Prevention of Blindness" fund to be forwarded to Toronto.

Ken Chantler showed a new Braille bingo board, to get the approval of the club. This appeared to be satisfactory.

Marlene and Blake sang "The Keeper." Dale, "I Told No Secret" and Marlies, "How Great Thou Art."

Clarence Morris thanked the entertainers and hoped they would come again.

Games were played and the winners for the "clothes peg game" were Ray Dix and Artie Scott.

"One Minute to Go," Pat Baverstock and Ken Chantler, with several winners for musical parcels.

Assisting with the games were Gladys Seldon, Laurie Towner, Theresa Choinard, Maude Rollins and Walt Waite.

Lunch was served by the Kiwanis ladies and thanks expressed by Artie Scott.

Mr. Phil Burton played quiet music during lunch.

Hearty congratulations were expressed to Clarence Morris and Artie for their excellent White Cane Chronicle which is mailed out once a month.

More Women Wanted in Australia

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — The Australian government is on an international girl hunt.

Chief huntsman is Immigration Minister Alexander Downer who says his tours of European cities in search of pretty young immigrants have given him a reputation as "an international woman-chaser."

But Downer and the government are completely in earnest in their desire to encourage more young women to emigrate to Australia.

Unromantic statistics show that at the end of 1961, there were 5,254,501 males in Australia, compared with 5,240,345 females, the reverse of the situation in most countries.

The situation is not new. Population - figures show that men have outnumbered women in Australia for the last 15 years, but the crux of the problem is indicated in immigration statistics.

In 1947, there were almost the same number of men as women in the country. Between 1947 and 1960, 977,672 men arrived in Australia, compared with only 797,189 women.

For even though there has been a shortage of female immigrants, their standard of beauty has been high.

One of them, 20 - year - old Tania Verstak, born in China of Anglo - Russian emigre parents, was Miss Australia last year and a half - dozen of the country's beauties are also immigrants.

Downer says 60% of the principal reasons for the shortage of girl immigrants is that their parents in many cases are naturally reluctant to let their daughters travel alone to "the farthermost ends of the earth."

Organizations which deal with immigrants in other reasons are that girls don't have the same economic reasons for emigrating as do men and that many Europeans live in closeknit communities and are reluctant to break their ties.

LIVE OFF BASE—About half the families of RCAF personnel based at Marville, France, live in government accommodation, while the remainder have found lodging in neighboring French and Belgian towns. Mrs. Ken Pray, wife of Cpl. Pray of Hamilton, is shown with daughters Catherine, 7, and Celeste, 4, outside their two-storey rented home in Chenois, Blegium, about 13 miles from the base. Firewood, (left), is piled in street. (CP from National Defence).

Housing Takes Romance Out of European Postings For 900 RCAF Families

By EDNA BLAKELY

MARVILLE, France (CP) — Housing has taken the romance out of European postings for some of the more than 900 RCAF families at the RCAF's No. 1 Fighter Wing station here.

It's generally conceded that housing is better at the two RCAF stations in Germany at Zweibruecken and Baden-Soellingen than at the French stations at Cross Desquids and Marville.

About half the families at Marville live in RCAF accommodation at Longuyon, 12 miles from the base. The grey blocks of apartments are bleak and the interior walls are so thin that noise carries from one room to the next.

Accommodation is the same for all ranks except senior officers who live in row housing. The rent is based on salary so that officers pay more than others for the same apartment.

Despite the disadvantages of apartment-blocks, the residents at least have the comfort of constant heat and electricity, two services not always provided for families who choose to live in neighboring French and Belgian towns.

FEW BATHROOMS

Cpl. Ken Pray and his wife, Hamilton, prefer living with their two daughters in Chenois, a Belgian town 13 miles from the base.

Mrs. Pray learned French as a girl in Chicoutimi, Que., and finds it an asset in meeting her French - speaking neighbors.

The Prays lived in three other places before finding their present two - storey home which boasts one of the three bathrooms in the area. The house is heated from a - lone stove in the kitchen - living area. The bathroom is so cold in winter that the tub can't be used.

Despite the disadvantages, Mrs. Ollenberger, whose home is in Regina, is happy with the life and finds the absence of television a pleasing feature, particularly for her sons, Larry, 9, and Charles, 7.

"The boys have taken up reading much more since we've been here. They're always at the library and there's no problem getting them to do their homework, either."

TOLL IS 33

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Police said Tuesday a recheck showed 33 persons were killed in Monday's collision of a commuter train and a school bus. Earlier, authorities put the toll at 43. The confusion apparently arose when parts of the same bodies were taken to different points and registered as victims.

Council of Women Urges Control of Nuclear Tests

HALIFAX (CP) — A system of checks and controls of nuclear weapons tests was urged Tuesday by the National Council of Women.

A resolution passed at the council's annual meeting asked the government "to do everything possible through the United Nations" to see that such a system is established.

Council President Mrs. Saul Hages of Montreal told the 125 delegates such a system is not only to inform the population of the extent of radioactive fallout but to control testing when the fallout level becomes dangerous.

Mrs. Hayes said reiteration of the council's concern as formerly expressed to External Affairs Minister Green, will strengthen its resolution to the International Council of Women.

NCW will urge other national councils in ICW to press their national governments to work through the UN to effect checks and controls.

Just before NCW's interest was expressed to Mr. Green, Canada proposed a system of checks and balances in the UN, Mrs. Hayes said.

Among 12 resolutions adopted by the council during its second day of business was a request that at least four women be appointed to its Board of Broadcast Governors.

The four would include one permanent member, one from a rural area, and one who is French-speaking.

Other requests to the government included removal of the 11-per-cent tax on margarine and repeal of Income Tax Act sections which make it impossible for a wife employed by her husband to file a separate income tax return.

The council asked the government to consider, under the Emergency Measures Act, "the registration of all citizens in order that an identification card may be given them, stating their name, address and blood type, and all other necessary specific information."

Such a card would be carried at all times.

New Twists For Meat Balls And Chicken Cacciatore

by Mary Moore

It seems to me that about every third person in my circle of relatives, friends and acquaintances is a good cook. Maybe it's of a father do flock together.

These cooks are terrific sources of help to me. My sister Peady is one of them and came up with two recipes for me that she had worked on over the weekend.

She had seen to the Peter Pan Nursery School Annual meeting where the mothers each brought a dish for a pot-luck supper. One of these dishes was tiny meat balls in a milky sauce which she said was delicious. She hunted down the girl who made it and from verbal instructions made it up herself and passed her findings on to me. So, kids, here is another ground beef dish to add to your bulging file.

LITTLE MEAT BALLS IN MILK GRAVY (serves 4)

1 lb. ground round steak (or chuck beef); 1 tablespoon dried onion flakes, 3 tablespoons water, ½ cup milk, 1 egg, ½ to 2/3 teaspoon salt, ⅛ cup dry packaged breadcrumbs, 2 tablespoons flour, ¾ to 1 cup milk (a second amount), 2 tablespoons butter.

In a saucepan soak the onion flakes in the water for 5 minutes. Add the ½ cup milk and beat to warm them (don't boil). In a bowl mix together the meat, egg, salt and breadcrumbs and pour over these the onion mixture. Mix well with hands. Shape into 12 1" or 1¼" balls. Brown these on all sides in the butter in a frying pan. When brown on all sides, stir the flour into the butter and cooked out fat and when blended carefully stir in the ¾ to 1 cup milk, reduce heat to simmer, cover and simmer ½ to 1 hour. Serve over fluffy boiled rice. I'm sure this will turn out to be a great favorite. Serve it with buttered sliced new beets.

The next dish was inspired by one of the mothers from the same Nursery School but on another occasion. She was requested to bring a turkey platter full of enough chicken for everyone to have a piece. Now this girl has to manage on a strict budget and decided to make chicken cacciatore but to use chicken wings which she knew she could buy at low cost. I don't know how many pounds she bought. I only know they filled a turkey platter. This was the hit of the party. The men were seen wandering around eating chicken wings and then looking for a place to wash their hands, and faces!

CHICKEN WINGS CACCIATORE (economical)

3 lbs. chicken wings, 1 tablespoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup flour, ½ cup oil (olive oil is used by the Italians), ¼ lb. sliced cooked ham (prosciutto is used by the Italians), 4 small onions, 2 green pepper chopped, 1 sprig parsley chopped, 1 clove garlic chopped, 1 cup chicken broth (or water), 1½ cups canned tomatoes or peeled fresh tomatoes, salt and pepper, 1 can sliced mushrooms (optional). Dredge chicken wings in flour, salt and pepper. Brown on all sides in oil in large frying pan. Add ham, onion, pepper, parsley, garlic, chicken broth and tomatoes. Add salt and pepper to taste. Cover and simmer 1 hour. Add mushrooms (if used) and simmer 10 minutes longer. Number of servings depends on how many chicken wings you allow per serving.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

HOW DO YOUR HABITS RATE?

What's your most disagreeable personal habit?

Didn't know you had any, did you?

Well, look around. Or, better yet, make a close study of yourself occasionally and see if you aren't guilty of annoying personal habits that distract your friends, lower their opinion of you, or are just plain unmannerly.

I had a business meeting the other day with a man who chewed viciously on his fingernails as he talked. Worse yet — if that's possible — he paced back and forth like a caged lion during the conversation. I was getting the screaming meemies.

Finally, I politely suggested he might like a seat. But he said he was the active type who liked to keep moving, so he continued on his own private treadmill, munching on his fingernails all the while. I gave him up as hopeless, but I did wonder whether he ever looks at his nails and wonders why they're worn to the nub. To my nothing of his tired health!

Distracting personal habits probably have an outgrowth of childhood. Even though it's easy to blame your parents for not correcting them as they developed, the fact is that a mature adult should make himself aware of habits that stamp him as ill-mannered and unpoised.

As in all facets of etiquette, a cold, unbiased self-appraisal is necessary. It's only when you are consciously aware of the proper thing to do that you learn to do it naturally.

In the same way, a few minutes of observation might surprise you about yourself and indicate a need for immediate correction.

For example, it used to be, and probably still is, an unwritten taboo around the city room of a newspaper to whistle while you work. The piercing sound has a way of piercing a reporter's line of thought. I suppose that some city editors eventually found it simpler to transfer the whistler to a suburban beat than to try to correct his unfortunate habit.

So examine yourself to see if you do any of the following:

Walk away before the other person has a chance to finish what he's saying.

Use pet words like "baby," "honey," "my dear," and "sweetie."

Fiddle with your tie, adjust your stockings, pull up your socks or tug your girdle while talking to people.

Tap or swing your foot.

Grind your teeth.

Talk loudly and effusively on the phone, even though you share an office with someone else.

Hum while you're concentrating on something. This is in the same category as whistling and has exactly the same effect.

Listen in on other people's phone conversations and then offer unsolicited comments on what was said.

Probe the mood or behavior of others. You're doing it, when you make remarks like: "What's the trouble?" or "You're not your usual chipper self," or "Do you feel sick?" Your cross-examination might make a person feel something's wrong with him.

All the time, there's really something wrong with you.

FOUR CHILDREN DIE

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Four children died when a landing stage crowded with vacationers collapsed on the River Volga near Kuibyshev, about 730 miles east of Moscow, the newspaper Komsolskaya Pravda reported today. The newspaper blamed the accident on officials who failed to control dozens of children who had rushed onto the landing stage to buy tickets for trips in pleasure steamers.

Recent Bride Honored by Many Friends

WELLINGTON—Mrs. Roger Hobson and her sister, Miss Margaret Brimley were joint hostesses for a miscellaneous shower, held at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brimley Jr., on Saturday evening. This party was held in honor of Mrs. Charlie Crawford, (Mary Marvin), of Toronto, a recent bride. About 25 friends, neighbors and former school pals were present.

Two contests were enjoyed with Miss Carol Marvin winning the first and Mrs. Helen Nelson the 2nd.

The guest of honor, dressed in her pretty beige wedding dress was seated in a decorated chair.

Miss Margaret Brimley read an address to her and helped present the many lovely gifts.

After they had been admired by all, Mary thanked her kind friends for the lovely gifts and hoped they would call and see her whenever they were in Toronto.

The hostesses, assisted by their sister, Mrs. Garry Foster, served refreshments, the hi-light of which was a beautiful heart-shaped cake, decorated in pink and white with the legend "Best Wishes, Mary".

This was made by Mrs. Hobson.

Pictures were taken at intervals during the evening.

Among the guests were: Mrs. Earl Marvin, Mrs. Allan Marvin, Mrs. Wilmot Jinks, Miss Carol Marvin, Oshawa, and Miss Shiela Dick, of Toronto.

The Experts Say

Bouffant Hair Styles On Way Out Says Stylist

By PATRICIA KUSAK

TORONTO (CP) — Bouffant hair styles are on the way out, says Johnny Fascione, professional hair stylist and president of the Toronto Guild of Hair Design.

Off-beat styles with more design and looser curls will replace them, he suggests.

Most popular of the new lines was the heart line, a European style that is wide at the top and tapers to the ears. Another was the softer S silhouette. Hair length for these is about two inches from the sides and about 4½ inches from the centre top.

Long hair isn't in the current fashion because it is limited to an upsweep or pageboy, Mr. Fascione says. The new "baby doll" look, however, requires slightly longer hair. It's narrow on the crown and brushed out and forward around the ears. The style is popular with the younger set.

"People don't seem to realize that any hair style that is at all popular hit becomes a hit because it suits almost any face," he says. "But any popular style must be properly fitted to individual features."

MANY VARIATIONS

The heart line, for example, can have an upswept look with more width and height in the top areas, can be completely off the face or can have more wave framing depending on a person's individual features. Within each line there are about a hundred different designs or fittings. As far as styling was concerned, fitting and framing were far more important than simply following the current trend.

Mr. Fascione doesn't think today's Cleopatra look will be widely adopted because it suits so few people, usually those with dark or black hair.

Waves are coming back again, he says, but they are fuller, wider, more casual or subdued than before. Tinting and bleaching have increased immensely in popularity in the last four or five years because they no longer look artificial. Red is overtaking blonde in choice of colors, even though blonde tones now range from beige to silver.

Mr. Fascione says hair styles vary considerably from one region of Canada to another. Styles on the Pacific coast were quite individualistic. On the Prairies women generally followed the dictates of the American Hair Fashion Council. Eastern Canada favored European styles.

HIGH STANDING

MONTREAL (CP) — One of the outstanding graduates in McGill University's faculty of medicine, Eleanor Conder of Winnipeg won the Wood gold medal for best clinical examinations in final-year subjects, bead on framing depending on bead. She also took the Chipman gold medal for highest standing in obstetrics and gynecology throughout the medical course.

U.C.W. Meetings

U.C.W. EXECUTIVE

WELLINGTON—A meeting of the U.C.W. executive was held June 7th in the Centennial parlor of the church. Mrs. H. Pierson presided and opened the meeting with a prayer.

Arrangements were completed for the "Open House" at the parsonage to honor the Rev. and Mrs. Fraser on their 35th wedding anniversary.

An invitation from Consecon U.C.W. was accepted for June 20th at 2.30 p.m. All members were invited to attend. Notice was given for a pot-luck dinner at 12.30, June 27th and members reminded to bring their donations for the bazaar to be held on the park in the afternoon of July 7th.

The next regular meeting of the executive is to be held on June 28th at 8 p.m. in the Centennial parlor. The meeting closed with the benediction.

SWIMMING STAR

MONTREAL (CP) — Pauline McCullagh, Canadian champion and record swimmer, will defend the Margaret Sharpe trophy for the Quebec title in a meet here July 28. The McGill graduate's main rival is expected to be the former Canadian champion Sandra Marks of Quebec City.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Some Advice For Heartsick

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS:—Tell Mrs. Heartsick to go to a marriage counsellor as soon as possible and call a meeting in his or her office. It may be the answer. I know a United Church minister who is a marriage counsellor himself and he will take a half-day off his activities to sit in at such a meeting. Perhaps she could be made "lovesick" for a change. Living in fear from day to day is no life to live at all.

People can change a lot. She also said she "boy I loved." Did she ever tell him that she really loved him?—A. READER.

DEAR READER—Heartsick said her husband would never tell her he loved her and would never take the blame for anything that was wrong. Also that he was rude and unkind to her and the children.

You are so right in saying that people can change. The thing is to let the other fellow know what you are thinking. If you love him, say so. If something is going wrong between you, face it and talk it out. A thoughtless tongue, plus a silent partner, who bottles up the hurt, may ruin a marriage.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—Should I let my mother-in-law stay with us indefinitely?

Here are the facts: (1) She makes my home feel less than mine; (2) She would have to share a bedroom with her 13-year-old granddaughter; (3) She appears lonesome and depends on us for her interest; and (4) I find it hard to talk to her—MOLLY.

DEAR MOLLY—Items (1) and (4) mean she is not at home either. Even if (3) means you have twinges of conscience.

Some in-laws fit in and are a blessing, but it is usually a tough adjustment. Each of you sees yourself as mistress of a home. This time I'd say you'd be better friends on visits than staying indefinitely.

Women's Institute

FOXBORO W.I.

The June meeting of the Foxboro Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Lyle Lewis with a goodly number of visitors and members present.

Following the usual opening Mrs. Bamber welcomed all visitors and called attention to the display of the girls' club books and the poster. Mrs. J. Hill and Mrs. A. Mann had been leaders for the 4-H Club just completed and Mrs. Hill stated 17 girls had started the club and all had completed same.

Linda Piperni who had given the talk for the club "Featuring Fruit" at achievement day in Stirling, on June 2, gave the same talk that evening, listing the different uses of the apple. Mrs. Bamber then said she thought a great deal of credit was due to the leaders for having a full club completion.

A lovely piano solo by Carolyn Lewis was much appreciated.

Mrs. Skinner gave some good and useful hints on flower arranging, as she said, "from one amateur to others", by two pictures and a few actual arrangements of flowers. Mrs. Skinner said her knowledge had been gained from observation and from reading. Never crowd your flowers into the containers, pick your flowers in late evening after sundown or early morning while the dew is still on them. Cut flowers with a sharp knife - never with scissors as the scissors bruise the stems — and cut stems on a slant, for a floral arrangement for use on a table a low container is best, were some of the hints given by Mrs. Skinner.

Next a film "Home Landscaping" shown by Mrs. Channell gave much information and ideas on beautifying the home and garden, which proved interesting.

Arden Lewis' piano accordion solo closed the program, which was indeed interesting and informative.

It was decided to donate $15. to each the Little Leaguers (Foxboro Hawks) and the Foxboro Intermediate baseball teams.

Mrs. G. Gay gave the motto, "For food and friends, and for all God sends let us be truly thankful."

The roll call "An experience I'll never forget on a farm" was answered by a variety of experiences and incidents some of which were most amusing.

Following the usual closing a social hour was enjoyed with refreshments served by the committee.

YEAR IN CONGO

MONTREAL (CP) — Actress Denise Pelletier, known to television viewers for her role in the "Poupée Family," is giving up the theatre and television for a year to join her husband in The Congo. She is taking son Stephane to be with hubby, Raoul Barov, chief UN photographer there.

BRAVE WORDS

TORQUAY, England (CP)—E. Hill, chairman of the Cleidon Manufacturers Federation, says the British male now has thrown off "the yoke of female domination." He said the days when a husband did not dare buy a pair of trousers without his wife accompanying him now are over.

36th YEAR OF SERVICE IN BELLEVILLE

If you're fed up with "sky-high" heating costs... here's an opportunity to do something about it!

Many customers of Lakeland Natural Gas have found t could save $20, $40, $60 or $100 per year when they cha ed to natural gas. You can do it too!

Because we know natural gas will heat your home more efficie and economically, we'll let you "try" it for a year so that you prove to yourself it actually does. Lakeland Natural Gas will install a conversion burner in your present furnace. You don't have to buy it! You don't have to pay to have it installed! All you pay for is the gas you use. At the end of a year, when you've discovered how much you've saved with natural gas, you can either buy the conversion burner, or rent it for only $20.00 per year. If you're not satisfied we'll take it out at no charge to you!

Will you really save on heating costs? Try it and see! You save because there's no furnace cleaning with gas. You save because there are no moving parts to be replaced. You save on service call costs because Lakeland provides FREE 24 hour service on all gas equipment. You save on hydro costs because natural gas does away with electric burner motors. And you save because natural gas does a more efficient job—heats your home better for less.

Don't put up with "sky-high" heating costs any longer. Have your Lakeland home heating specialist give you further details on Lakeland's free "home-trial" heating plan. Arrange to have him call, at your convenience, by returning the reply card mailed to your home, or use this handy coupon; or contact your local natural gas dealer.

Please send a representative to explain your ECONOMY HOME HEATING PLAN. I understand I am under no obligation.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Viola F. — He gives me a pittance and insists I go to work.

Peter F. — Nowadays all able bodied women help out with money.

* * *

Viola F. — I spoiled my husband. From the beginning of our marriage I tried to make it up to him for his family not likeing me. (I'm no beauty and they go for glamour girls!) I kept on working so he could continue giving them the bulk of his salary. Even after our first baby, I worked in a laundromat until we could buy a $7,000 house.

When a chance came to buy our own laundromat, I sold my rings, we sold the house and with two more children we lived in back of the store, I worked day and night. And a year ago we were able to buy a beautiful home on Long Island.

Now my problem is that my husband won't let me stay home and take care of my young children. After 15 years of my slaving, he insists that I keep it up. He never takes me out, hands me $40 a week to cover everything including clothes, doctors and dentists, tells me if I need more to come back and work for it.

Peter F. — Vi may know how to earn money but she has no idea of how thinly people like us must spread it. That $40 I give her each week is free and clear. I take care of all the bills, both for the business and for the home. I pay insurance, taxes and hospitalization. I get all the permits and licenses renewed. She has enough for necessities.

Luxuries are another matter. She's lucky she doesn't have to work for the bare essentials like some women do. If she wants fancy clothes and theatre tickets, let her come down and save me the price of an attendant. All women take jobs these days.

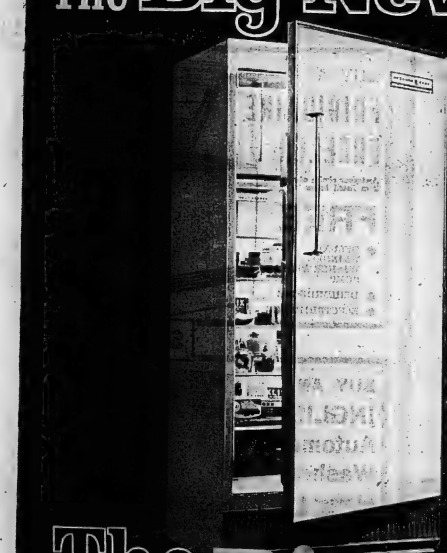
In fact, we could have a higher income if she took charge of the laundromat herself. I'm on leave from a Civil Service job with a small salary. I'll have to resign when the leave is up, unless Vi takes over the business and runs it. To live on my salary, we'd have to give up our new house and move back to a tenement.

The Council: Peter right on one statement, but not the way he means it. Yes, "all women take jobs these days," but most of them with young children take the job of keeping house and taking care of them. They do this from choice, when support is no issue, or from both choice and sacrifice, when money is scarce and an outside job beckons. For experience shows that a family with growing youngsters usually fares best when it lives on what Dad makes and has Mom scout around to make it all possible and pleasant.

Viola's right, too, in her hindsight about spoiling her husband (and his family). She's to be admired for standing at his side during the early struggle for a start in business. But after living in back of a store and then in a tenement with her little ones, she's ready for a showdown on money matters to make sure Peter doesn't deprive them of their lovely home. That seems to be his ultimatum if Viola insists on staying there and making like a homemaker and mother.

Perhaps the answer here lies in an all-around-the-table analysis of values. Do you want your children neglected, Peter? Is there any other way to eke out a little more money for Viola — some "lift-the-heart" cash — than by making the kids pay for it in maternal deprivation?

Since Viola shared all past burdens, Pete, make her a party to this very one you're facing now. How to pay all bills, keep the house and business and still give her enough money to permit extras without sending her out to earn. It's a labs of a challenge. Shoes for three children, plus socks and sneakers, can use up a whole week's allowance as things stand. But treating Viola as a full partner, rather than as an employee with a niggardly expense account, will invoke her ingenuity, enthusiasm and imagination.



Henceforth, let her take care of both the bills and the profits with you. Your role must transcend that of mere paymaster. You are Co-Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the household. And that means racking your combined brains to consolidate your gains, chief of which is your fine home.

Decision as to Which Union Will Bargain for Steelmen Hinges on 36 Ballots

SUDBURY (CP)—The decision as to which union will bargain for more than 14,000 workers of the International Nickel Company hinges on 36 disputed ballots.

The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) needed 7,187 votes, 50 per cent plus one—of the eligible voters to win Canada's largest union local.

Steel polled 7,128, just 15 more than the required number. The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) immediately challenged 32 of the Steelworkers votes because the ballot slips had not been stamped by the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

A. R. Brunskill, registrar of the board was in Sudbury in charge of the vote, previously had ruled the disputed ballots valid. The board's final decision is expected in the next two weeks.

Mine-Mill also charged that 10 per cent of the ballots spoiled and should have been discarded and that the total of ballots cast was five more than the number of persons checked off as having voted.

Mr. Brunskill agreed the count showed five extra ballots, but said the number of ballots was checked only once against the voters' list and that the end result could be explained by the "wee hour of the night."

WILL ACCEPT RESULTS

The figures will be rechecked by the Labor Relations Board.

Mine-Mill has 10 days to validate the vote were declared invalid, presumably by the Steelworkers as "for the purpose of obstruction only."

Mine-Mill spokesmen said flights by nonlicensed pilots did not cast ballots. Others, they said, were taken 3½ months ago. The official result was: Steel, 7,182; Mine-Mill, 7,128.

There was some delay when the box could not be opened. It was locked and sealed behind the door. The key to the boxes was in a different location—one and some one had forgotten the key to the other.

A provincial police constable solved the problem by borrowing a steel hairpin from a restaurant and backing the box open.

The count, held in the banquet room of a Sudbury motel, started at 4 p.m. Monday and it was 1½ hours before 80 weary union and official emerged to announce the result.

COUNT TWICE

Mr. Brunskill said the ballots were counted once by each of the union factions and at least twice by the police officials.

Threats were made against Don Gillis, president of the rebel Mine-Mill local 598 and Terry Mancini, an organizer for the Steelworkers, but neither was carried out.

Mr. Brunskill said the union notification and at least one letter from the board officials announcing the count was received by Mine-Mill.

RCAF Officer To Be Candidate In Terrebonne

VICTORIA (CP)—The name of Dr. Lorenzo Bachand, Social Credit candidate, will be on the ballot in Terrebonne constituency in the June 18 federal election. Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay said Tuesday.

Dr. Bachand a recent graduate in medicine, is an RCAF flight lieutenant. The Canada Elections Act stipulates that any person "holding any office, commission or employment . . . in the service of the Government of Canada" is ineligible to be a candidate for Parliament. There is an exception for members of the services on active duty in wartime.

Mr. Castonguay said the decision on Dr. Bachand's name appeared on the ballot is based on a section of the Election Act which reads:

"The returning officer shall not accept any deposit, until after all the other steps necessary to complete the nomination of the candidate have been taken, and upon his receiving any deposit he shall give to the person by whom it is paid a receipt therefor, which is conclusive evidence that the candidate has been duly and regularly nominated."

SAYS DIDN'T TELL

Mr. Castonguay said that in filing his nomination papers and paying his $200 deposit, Dr. Bachand did not tell Terrebonne returning officer Paul - Emile Brunet of St. Jerome, Que., that he was a member of the RCAF.

"Since his papers were in order and he paid his deposit, the returning officer had no alternative but to issue a receipt," he said. Mr. Castonguay, adding that information on the doctor's RCAF connection did not become available to Mr. Brunet until last Sunday, June 10, nominations closed June 4.

Should Dr. Bachand be elected, his eligibility to sit as an MP would be determined by the House of Commons itself.

The RCAF, which has a regulation of its own forbidding its members to seek election to Parliament, says it is studying the matter.

Dr. Bachand, who graduated in medicine from Laval University, was posted this week to the RCAF station at North Bay from St. Hubert, Que.

In an interview at North Bay Tuesday, Dr. Bachand said he was transferred to eliminate his party from the election picture in Terrebonne.

RECEIVES FEES

Under terms of a contract with the RCAF, he received his fees and salary in his last 1½ years at university on condition he serve with the RCAF for three years after graduation. He is now on the service after graduation.

In the interview, he said that in return for release from the contract he is prepared to repay the $6,000 received from the defence department. He said he requested the release in early February and "it was not until the three months later that I finally got a letter that my release could not be granted."

At a Montreal meeting Monday night, Real Caouette, leader of the Social Credit leader, said the doctor was transferred to a base outside the province "because Quebec conservatives are afraid he'll win."

Terrebonne was held in the last by-election by Conservative Marcel Deschambault, who is seeking re-election. Other candidates are Leo Cadieux, Liberal, and Jean Philip, NDP.

Files Flooded

OTTAWA (CP)—The works department is busy drying out 200,000 files submerged when sewers backed up during a downpour, flooding a basement in which they were stored.

During a rain storm Sunday night, water rose to a height of about five feet in the basement of a building occupied by the Indian affairs branch of the citizenship department.

Lt.-Col. M. Jones, director of Indian affairs said Tuesday the work of the section has been "considerably interrupted" and regional offices have been asked to send in file duplicates.

Resignations Of Two Staff Men Refused

TORONTO (CP) — The general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Tuesday refused to accept the resignations of two staff members of Presbyterian College in Montreal.

Principal Robert Dennox and Prof. J. C. McLelland submitted their resignations to protest the appointment to the college staff of Rev. Sheldon McKenzie of Pictou County, N.S.

They claimed that the college's board of management had acted unethically by refusing to appoint Rev. J. Charles Hay who has been sessional lecturer in New Testament for four years.

A judicial committee under Dr. G. Deane Johnston of Brantford recommended to the assembly that Mr. McKenzie's appointment be shelved for this year and that Mr. Hay be allowed to continue on the staff.

The assembly felt that Mr. Hay is a victim of the system of back-door appointments to the college, said Rev. Douglas Stewart of Ottawa.

By a large majority, the assembly voted against the appointment of a permanent professor of New Testament literature and exegesis and set up machinery to investigate appointments to the college.

The committee was empowered to name a "acting" principal if Dr. Lennox refused to withdraw his resignation.

RAISES PENSIONS

In other business, the assembly raised the maximum pension for ministers by $100 to $1,300 and the maximum for widows by $50 to $800.

Principal J. S. Glen of Knox College, Toronto, reported the discussions of unity with Anglican churches were considered too general. "We have reached many impasses. Progress was made in three meetings during the last year, he added.

The victoria, B.C., presbytery asked the assembly to "take immediate steps towards initiating formal conversations with the United Church of Canada."

Dr. E. A. Thomson of Toronto gave advice on the resignation as secretary of the church's administrative council effective in 1963.

Business Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Stocks of creamery butter June 7 in nine cities of Canada totalled 55,700,000 pounds, up 3,786,000 pounds from the June 1 total, the bureau of statistics said today. The holdings were for Quebec City, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver.

Canadian portland cement producers shipped or used 426,946 tons of cement in April, an increase of 66,476 tons from last year's corresponding total. Stocks at plants and warehouses at the end of April were 826,886 tons, smaller by 36,854 tons than the year-earlier total.

Canadian producers manufactured 5,451,300 concrete bricks in April compared with 9,581,742 in April last year.

Sales of natural gas in Canada during March totalled 46,437,898,000 cubic feet, almost the same as February consumption, but up 7,000,000 cubic feet from the March, 1961 total.

Consumer prices in eight of 10 regional cities showed declines in May as compared with April, indexes were down in Halifax, Saint John, N.B., Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Saskatoon-Regina and Vancouver. The index for St. John's, Nfld., was up, and the Edmonton-Calgary index was unchanged.

Production of crude petroleum in Canada rose in March to 21,833,940 barrels compared with 18,360,630 a year earlier. March output of natural gas added 94,112,481,000 cubic feet from 60,085,037,000 cubic feet in March last year.

Production of sawn lumber in mills in British Columbia rose in April to 406,182,000 board feet from 398,680,000 in April last year.

COLLECTED $30,000,000

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The executive board of the UN Children's Fund said Tuesday night it has collected $30,000,000 in pledges for 1962 to continue child and mother welfare programs. The 30-nation board also decided a week's session starting on Aug. 21 per- [illegible] in 64 countries for which it approved spending $18,580,580.

Col. Herbert G. Describe Farm Premises As 'A Contempt for Life' When 65 Dogs Are Seized

BURFORD, Ont. (CP) — Trucks and men from four centres here raided the farm home of Walter Clare Tuesday and seized 65 dogs.

Peter Armour of Toronto, Ontario Humane Society president who ordered the raid, described the farm premises as "a contempt for life."

The operation, one of the largest of its kind in the history of Southern Ontario, was ordered by the Ontario Humane Society. Trucks and crews from Toronto, Long Sault, Kitchener, Waterloo and Oakville participated.

When the operation was finished, the Oakville truck alone held 14 dogs that had to be destroyed.

The raid was launched following a visit a week ago to the farm by Thomas Hughes of Toronto, general manager of the society, Dr. W. E. Russell, general manager of the Kitchener-Waterloo society, and Estwood Shand, president of the Kitchener group.

It got under way early Tuesday when vehicles left from the four centres heading for the farm in RR 1 outside Burford, which is about 10 miles west of Brantford. The raiders found sheep, goats, dogs, chickens, ducks, geese, pigs, white rats, guinea pigs and pigeons.

Clare arrived home when the raid was almost completed. He said he received a letter by Mr. Hughes containing a statement on why the animals were seized.

Clare later told reporters he buys dogs from "all over" and sells them to hospitals. He said he had been planning to build new pens that he has had some of the dogs for months now and that "they are as fat as any dogs."

A chicken was attempting to hatch eggs that were under water when the trucks arrived.

A huge pig hobbled around on a broken leg and a goat crawled on its knees because its front feet had not been trimmed.

Most of the dogs were taken to London, where they will be inspected.

Given Two Years

TORONTO (CP) — Taxi despatcher Juergen Heinrich Hoffmann, 29, convicted of defrauding the workmen's compensation board of $6,444, was sentenced Tuesday to two years less a day.

He had told the board he injured his foot, which was later amputated, when a taxi he was working on slipped off its jack on the parking lot of the taxi company.

However, Gerhardt Voelz who roomed with Heinrich, told the court Heinrich had informed him he suffered his injury while attempting to steal scrap metal from a yard.

Prime Minister Will Campaign In Southern Ont.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker was to fly into Southern Ontario today to continue election campaigning after a brief break to entertain the Queen in Ottawa. His plane is scheduled to land at Mount Hope airport near Guelph.

His day - long tour includes a brief stop at Caledonia, a public appearance at Cayuga, an afternoon rally at Galt, a quick swing to Kingsville and a night meeting at Guelph before he stays overnight.

From now on the prime minister will be going all out on the campaign with voting day next Monday.

On Thursday he drives to Toronto for tours of Progressive Conservative ridings, a reception at the ex-hibition grounds and a meeting in Oshawa.

On Friday the prime minister will board a special CPR car for trips to five meetings in Welland.

He plans to fly back to Ottawa late Friday.

Some time during the week-end, he is expected to begin work on plans for Prince Albert, Sask., his hometown where he has traditionally spent some time.

FIND BOMB

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—An anti-submarine bomb with 2½ pounds of TNT in its nose was found on the Memphis riverfront a few feet from the safe-charge of three explosive-laden barges. The police emergency squad took the bomb to the Memphis naval station for checking. The depth - charge bomb, called a "hedgehog," is nestled on the bank of Mud Island, opposite the heart of Memphis' downtown district. It was not known how it got there.

Nationalists Reject Changing Algerian Pact

CP from AP-Reuters

TUNIS — Algerian nationalist Premier Youssef Ben Khedda categorically rejected today the possibility of revising the Algerian peace agreements to give further guarantees to European residents.

The head of the Algerian provisional government charged that "a series of manoeuvres" is being made "in an attempt to sabotage the (Evian peace) agreements by making it appear possible they can be revised under the pretext of giving additional guarantees to the Europeans.

"My government categorically excludes this possibility," Ben Khedda said.

Ben Khedda, who made his statement as he left for Cairo, said, "the reform of real peace can only be realized through the loyal application of the accords concluded at Evian."

The Cairo statement came after two weeks of contacts between representatives of Algeria's European community and members of the Algerian provisional government meeting in Toronto Eglinton, Mr. Gordon Churchill, Provencher, Mr. Lamontagne in Quebec East, Mr. Drury in Montreal St. Antoine-Westmount, and Mrs. Nicholson in Vancouver Centre.

Mr. Diefenbaker singled out the six last years when, he said, the nation got was just beginning to "really move ahead" under the "same old gang" of bureaucrats and Parliament "running around" in circles. "The World War said after it, when the bugles sounded the charge," Mr. Pearson and his lieutenants have called it a smear and described the campaign as what they've pointed out that Mr. Lesage in Quebec was a provincial servant and did not come to Ottawa from his native England until 1954.

But Mr. Sharp, who says the prime minister has been the single biggest boost in his fight to win Toronto Eglinton from Progressive Conservative Jack Pennance Minister of Finance, has replied: "Few people had ever heard of mrs. before . . . but to

Six Members of Liberal Campaigning Team Pooling Talent to Beat Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Six members have had national prominence thrust upon them in the current election campaign by the one person they are pooling their talents to defeat, Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

They came from the relative obscurity and anonymity of private business and the civil service to become influential members of Liberal Leader Pearson's campaign team.

If Mr. Pearson is elected prime minister on June 18, the six are bound to be prominent office-holders in the new Liberal administration.

They are Mitchell Sharp of Toronto, former deputy trade minister under the late C. D. Howe; Walter Gordon, Toronto businessman and economist; Maurice Lamontagne, Quebec economist; C. M. (Bud) Drury, former defence minister; Tom Kent, former Winnipeg Free Press, and John R. Nicholson of Ottawa, a wartime deputy controller of aviation.

All except Mr. Kent are election candidates this spring in Toronto Eglinton, Mr. Gordon; Quebec Davenport, Mr. Lamontagne in Quebec East, Mr. Drury in Montreal St. Antoine-Westmount and Mrs. Nicholson in Vancouver Centre.

Mr. Diefenbaker singled out the six last years when, he said, the nation got was just beginning to "really move ahead" under the "same old gang" of bureaucrats and Parliament "running around" in circles. "The World War said after it, when the bugles sounded the charge," Mr. Pearson and his lieutenants have called it a smear and described the campaign as what they've pointed out that Mr. Lesage in Quebec was a provincial servant and did not come to Ottawa from his native England until 1954.

But Mr. Sharp, who says the prime minister has been the single biggest boost in his fight to win Toronto Eglinton from Progressive Conservative Jack Pennance Minister of Finance, has replied: "Few people had ever heard of mrs. before . . . but to be attacked by John Diefenbaker is to be made a friend of the people."

Mr. Sharp, 51, joined the government service in 1942 as director of the economic policy division in the finance department, went to the trade department in 1951 and rose to deputy minister. He left in 1958 to become vice-president of Canadian Tractor, Light and Power Company, a post he relinquished to contest the election.

Mr. Gordon, 56, worked with the Bank of Canada early in the war in setting up the foreign exchange control board. He was the chairman of the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects which produced a 1957 report forecasting the next half-century.

Mr. Lamontagne, 45, worked with Rev. George-Henri Levesque at Laval University's faculty of social sciences before joining the public service in 1954 as assistant director of northern affairs. He was economic adviser to the Privy Council and to the then Liberal prime minister, Louis St. Laurent, and filled a similar role for Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Drury, 50, went overseas in 1940 as a captain in the artillery and ended the war as a brigadier and assistant to the Canadian Army. He joined the department of defence production, and then was elected Liberal member for 6½ years before being appointed to become a trucking executive in Montreal.

Mr. Kent, 51, spent the war years in the British war office and the foreign office, and became editor of the Free Press for five years, then went into business in Montreal. He joined Mr. Pearson's staff in 1961.

Mr. Nicholson, a lawyer, was deputy controller of supplies when Mr. Howe was minister of munitions and supply, and later was one of the organizers of the Crown-owned synthetic rubber company, Polymer Corporation.

Queen Mother To Have Look At Seaway

OTTAWA (CP)—This was a day by the water for Queen Mother, having her first look at the St. Lawrence Seaway which her daughter, Queen Elizabeth opened three years ago.

She took a stroll through the client-looking streets of Upper Canada Village was to give her a sharp switch of scenery from the brilliant spiddoor of Ottawa's Confederation Square.

Tuesday when she placed a wreath at the National War Memorial.

This was to be a relaxing day for the popular and serene Queen Mother who Tuesday attended three indoor functions besides the 17-minute spectacle at the war memorial. She attended the annual meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses, met with four senior officers of the Canadian medical association and dined with Prime Minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker.

Except for a light smattering of rain as she stepped out of her airplane Monday, the Queen Mother has enjoyed top-notch weather so on her four-day visit to the Ottawa area which April last year.

Will Not Let Common Market End Allegiance

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia said Tuesday night that his country has no intention of allowing its membership in the Common Market, if it will not bring an end to Australian allegiance to the Crown.

Menzies replied to reports and proposals that Britain and its partners in the Commonwealth preferences by 1970 as the price of Britain's entry into the European Common Market.

But he told the Australia Club in Parliament, government and people would reject such a proposal.

He said Australia realizes the preferences are unacceptable and that Australia is willing to work out alternatives.

May Not Have Remembered Taking Call

TORONTO (CP) — A psychiatrist said Tuesday an alleged telephone call that check girl Anderson received in March last year during the beating of gambler Max Bluestein might have been erased from her memory by hysterical amnesia.

Dr. Michael Tuchtie of the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, called as an expert by county court jury it is possible Mrs. Anderson received the call as other witnesses testified but did not remember it.

Mrs. Anderson is charged with committing perjury after she testified in June, 1961, at the trial of two men accused of beating Bluestein in the Town that Tavern. that she received no telephone call.

Witnesses at the perjury hearing testified that Mrs. Anderson received a telephone call after the beating in which Bluestein reported to have said: "I am the scared of you, Johnny. I have some brothers who will take care of you."

John (Pops) Papalia, Frank Mancuso and Fred Weaver went to jail for the Bluestein beating.

Prime Minister Pays Visit to Mayor of Hull

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker paid a non-political visit Tuesday to Mayor Armand Turpin of Hull, a city in Quebec province just across the Ottawa River from here.

He also paid an election-eering visit to Conservative candidate Armand Turpin in the riding of Hull.

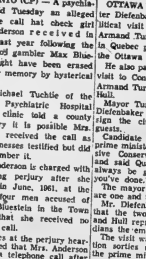
Mayor Turpin welcomed Mr. Diefenbaker and asked him to sign the city's honor book of guests.

Candidate Turpin praised the prime minister and his Progressive Conservative government and said Quebec province will always be grateful "for what you've done."

The mayor and the candidate are not related.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he felt these two cities 'o3 Ottawa and Hull represent to all Canadians the embodiment of unity.'

The visit was a three-way election sorties made Tuesday by the prime minister into Quebec province, which the just across the Inter-provincial Bridge from the bases of Parliament.



In the morning, Mr. Diefenbaker sailed at the town hall at Aylmer, Que., and received the guest book, shook scores of hands and made a non-political speech.

He was accompanied by Thomas Van Duzer, Conservative candidate in the federal riding of Gatineau and executive assistant to Labor Minister Michael Starr.

Cannot Stop Communism by 'Witch-Hunting' - - Douglas

By RUSSELL ELMAN

TORONTO (CP)—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said Tuesday night Canada's "two old line parties" do not understand that communism cannot be stopped by "witch-hunting" and "Red-baiting."

In speeches at Hamilton and Toronto, attended by among the largest crowds of his campaign tour, the NDP chieftain presented a formula of "social democracy" as the only way to combat communism.

"Communism is an idea I thoroughly disagree with," he said. "You can't kill it with a gun, only with a better idea."

Mr. Douglas, winding up his campaign for next Monday's general election with a series of rallies in Canada's major cities, flew Tuesday from Montreal first to the steel city of Hamilton.

GOES BY 'COPTER

A 45-minute appearance before an estimated audience of 1,500 in the east end Delta Collegiate auditorium, followed by a short helicopter flight across Lake Ontario, set the stage for his major address at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre.

When he arrived the proceedings — enlivened by pipes, guitarist and night - club-sized band—were well under way. An overflow crowd, estimated by theatre officials at 6,000, stood and squatted in the aisles with several hundred more milling outside.

The last 15 minutes of the hour-long address were carried "live" on the CBC's English-language television network. It was the first time a party leader had made a "live" free-time election-telecast from a political rally.

Today Mr. Douglas, accompanied by his wife Irma, flies to Vancouver for his last pitch on the hustings to West coast voters before polling day.

CLAIMS IS HOAX

He accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker of committing a "cruel hoax" on thousands of New Canadians by holding out a "vain hope" that as a result of some action by himself, the Iron Curtain satellite countries of the Soviet Union would be liberated.

He made the comment in reply to a statement in Montreal Monday by Mr. Diefenbaker that he personally would introduce a resolution into the United Nations dealing with Soviet colonialism.

"Pious declarations will neither defeat communism nor give freedom to the Soviet satellite nations," said Mr. Diefenbaker knows it.

"The only way to wipe out communism is to wipe out the conditions in which it breeds—hunger, misery, unemployment and poverty—by a democratically-planned economy.

"Both in Canada, and in other parts of the world, an economic offensive to raise living standards and abolish hunger will be a more effective deterrent to communism than any phoney sabre-rattling."

PREMIER SWORN IN

Pearson Sure Conservatives Cannot Win

By ARCH McKENZIE

MONTREAL (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives can't win next Monday's federal election and the government of Prime Minister Diefenbaker has not only misled the electorate with its unfulfilled promises; it has betrayed by its incompetence of its administration the good faith of the Canadian people, Liberal Leader Pearson said Tuesday night.

The one possibility of good government for Canada lies in the election of the Liberals with a good working majority, Mr. Pearson told a rally where the inside-and-outside audience surpassed an estimated 5,000 before dwindling late in his address.

The well - staged meeting, heavily cheered and supported by enthusiastic motor cavalcades and demonstrations from a forest of placards, capped a final Quebec visit that concludes today after some district visits.

It started on arrival from New Brunswick Tuesday with an ethnic-group luncheon and forays outside Montreal. Later today, Mr. Pearson flies to Trenton and then motors to a night meeting at Kingston.

STAYS IN ONTARIO

He will spend the rest of the election campaign in Ontario—touching Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford and Tuesday campaigning Saturday in the Ottawa - area constituency of Carleton.

Two speeches Tuesday were mainly French and Tuesday night's address was at evenly divided between the two languages.

Mr. Pearson said in an indirect reference to his former post as Liberal external affairs minister, that anyone in touch with Communist aggression and tyranny could sympathize with the sentiments among those who had had to live in countries subjugated by the Communists.

It was unfortunate if any politician anywhere exploited such sentiment and if it was "cruel and deceitful" to hold out any hope that liberation could be achieved quickly or easily by resolutions at the United Nations or elsewhere. Liberation would come in time because freedom could not be confined indefinitely.

At St. Lin, 30 miles north of Montreal, Mr. Pearson made his first call at the home where Sir Wilfrid Laurier was born. He signed the guest-book and later told a crowd of about 250 in a theatre that this Liberal prime minister through the spirit of conciliation had recognized the basic importance of a French - English accord in a democratic Canada.

Says PC Policy Robs One Group To Aid Another

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson Tuesday night accused the Progressive Conservative government of an economic policy that robs one group to benefit another group.

"The result is a gigantic game of musical chairs in which one group picks up short-term benefits from a development which makes everyone else suffer," he said. "There is always the question of whose turn it will be to tighten the belt next month."

Mr. Thompson was speaking at a public meeting here.

"... Canada is far out on a dangerous financial limb," he said. "The only possible issue of this election is which party can provide and make work the policies needed to pull us out of the mussing."

He criticized the size of Canada's debts and the budget deficit and said: "It is also a fact that Canadians have paid $200,000,000 a month since November to keep the debt-backed dollar comparatively stable in terms of U.S. exchange."

"Mr. Fleming (Finance Minister Fleming) has promised that the dollar will stay where he pegged it. He should have added 'at all costs' because on Friday of last week alone the government spent an estimated $80,000,000 in U.S. dollars to maintain the truth of Mr. Fleming's statement."

The Canadian dollar was pegged May 3 at 92¼ cents in terms of the U.S. dollar.

Mr. Thompson said high taxes and inflation caused by Canada's debt economy rule out any but the short-term advantages for most people from the devalued dollar.

Things Columnist Might Never Know if He Didn't Open Mail

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Safety check of 3,500,000 U.S. cars and trucks last year found one in six was a highway hazard. The most common defect: Faulty rear lights.

The teacupoe was introduced around 1650, when Europeans and North Americans began drinking tea.

One reason why Ireland must be heaven . . . Baby sitters charge an average of only 35 cents an hour . . . Some hotels even provide this service free.

Our quotable notables: "When you get to the end of your rope, tie a knot and hang on."—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Forest progress: A quarter of a century ago only 20 per cent of timber trees was used to make wood products . . . Now 50 per cent has a market value.

BATH FOR IDEAS

Inspiration: Many people sing in the bathroom, but Franz Schubert is reported to have composed one of his greatest works — his "Unfinished Symphony" — while in the bathtub. (Presumably he ran out of hot water before finishing it.)

Quips from our contemporaries: Catbold Digest reports this sign in a Manhattan record shop: "Used Phonograph for Sale, for Sale, for Sale, for Sale."

How they got started: Actress Martha Scott was a school teacher, and she married author, ode, jazz pianist Mel Powell . . . Actor Michael Wilding was an artist.

Golfers might like this description of their favorite sport: "Golf is a game in which a ball 1⅝ inches in diameter is placed on another ball 8,000 miles in diameter. The object of the game is to hit the small ball and not the big one."

Do you worry about feeling inferior? . . . Forget it . . . Psychology tests indicate that smart people often feel inferior; those who are really mentally inferior rarely realize it.

FAMILY GETS DEGREE

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Andrew Romano, 34, father of seven children, won his bachelor of science degree Sunday at the University of Rochester the hard way. After 15 years of night school, Romano, a chemist at Bell and Howell Company here, said his wife's patience and understanding helped him see it through.

Business Briefs

OTTAWA (CP)—Some 564,000 persons were claiming unemployment insurance benefits at the end of April, the bureau of statistics said today.

This was 125,000 fewer claimants than in March, and a drop of 150,000 from April last year.

Production in Canada of steel ingots during the week ended June 9 was 140,366 tons, an increase of 9,859 tons from the preceding week's total.

Mines in Canada produced 365,977 fine ounces of gold in March, a decrease of 29,182 fine ounces from March last year. March output was smaller than a year earlier in all producing areas but Newfoundland and Nova Scotia.

Canadian manufacturers produced 15,302,000 pounds of margarine in April compared with 14,274,000 pounds a year earlier. Output of salad and cooking oils in April was 6,960,000 pounds, down from 7,029,000 in April last year.

Revenue freight transferred from United States to Canadian railway lines in January totalled 10,977,500 tons, up 577,-800 tons from the year-earlier figure.

4 Candidates in Okanagan Riding All Former Members With 35 Years in House

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Parliamentary experience abounds among the four men seeking election in Okanagan - Boundary constituency in the June 18 federal election.

The four candidates are all former members of Parliament and among them have put in 35 years in the Commons.

The candidates are:

David Pugh, 54, Progressive Conservative who has held the seat since 1958.

Owen L. Jones, 72, New Democratic Party nominee who held the seat for the CCF in the nine years prior to Mr. Pugh's election.

Elmore Philpott, 66, Liberal who represented Vancouver South from 1953 to 1957.

Frederick Davis (Jack) Shaw, 52, who served 18 years as Social Credit member for the Alberta constituency of Red Deer.

The last three were in the Commons together for the four years before the Conservative victory in 1957.

DEFEATED BENNETT

Mr. Pugh, a lawyer and insurance agent from Oliver, was elected in the interior B.C. riding in 1958 after losing to Mr. Jones in the 1957 voting.

He was born in Okotoks, Alta., but came to B.C. at an early age. He was educated at the University of British Columbia and Toronto Osgoode Hall law school.

Mr. Jones held the seat from May, 1948, when he won a by-election in the constituency, then known as Yale—it became Okanagan - Boundary in a 1952 redistribution.

A veteran campaigner even then, Mr. Jones upset Conservative W. A. C. Bennett in that by-election. It was Mr. Bennett's only defeat at the polls. Three years later he left the Conservatives, joined Social Credit, became party leader in B.C. and then premier.

VETERAN JOURNALIST

Born in Wales, Mr. Jones came to Canada in 1920 and settled in the Okanagan Valley where he operates a furniture store. He served as mayor of Kelowna for four years and alderman for 10 years before entering federal politics. He also served twice as provincial president of the CCF.

Mr. Philpott, a veteran journalist, was elected in Vancouver South in 1953 but was defeated in 1957 and 1958 in that riding. Born in Toronto, he attended the University of Toronto. Since 1932 he has reported for several newspapers in Canada. He was a news analyst on the CBC western network during the Second World War.

Mr. Shaw, a native of Candstone, Alta., and educated at Calgary Normal School, was first elected in Red Deer in 1940. He was returned in 1945, 1949, 1953 and 1957 before losing in the Conservative sweep in 1958.

Since moving to B.C., he has been president of the B.C. provincial - federal council of his party and last year was elected a vice - president of the Social Credit Association of Canada.

Yesterdays Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitching — Dave Wickersham, Kansas City Athletics, won his fourth in five games as a starter after beginning season as relief pitcher, limiting Chicago White Sox to three hits for 2-1 victory.

Batting — Hank Aaron, Milwaukee Braves, went 3-for-3 with 11th homer and two singles, pacing 17 - hit attack that overwhelmed National League - leading Los Angeles Dodgers 15-2.

Minor Baseball

The Twins and Royals, tied for first place in the Bantam baseball league, came up with the best game of the season at the Alemite Field last night when they played to a 2-2 decision.

The teams have records of two wins, one tie and no losses to share the league lead.

Last night's game was a pitching duel all the way. Jim McCreary hurled a one-hitter for the Twins. Jimmy Parks and Dickey combined to pitch a two-hitter for the Royals.

Baltimore New Entry In A.H.L.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Baltimore was admitted Tuesday as a member of the American Hockey League. The vote of the league's board of governors was not announced, but Baltimore needed six of the eight votes cast in the secret session.

Baltimore becomes the ninth member of the league and the 16th city to hold a franchise in the league's 26-season history.

Later in their two-day session which opened Monday, the governors will consider scheduling for the coming season. Last winter 70 games were played, and there was talk the new schedule would call for 72 games.

Other teams in the league are Quebec, Buffalo, Cleveland, Hershey, Pittsburgh, Providence, Rochester and Springfield.

As yet no name has been chosen for the new club which will be the first professional hockey team for Baltimore since 1956 when fire destroyed Carlin's Park and cost Baltimore Clippers of the Eastern League a home rink. The Clippers' Eastern League franchise then moved to Charlotte, N.C.

The Baltimore AHL entry will need to assemble player talent from the ground up, but it is understood negotiations already are well along for a working agreement with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

Jim Balmer, general manager of Pittsburgh Hornets for 27 years, was renamed league president.

SET NEW DATE

LONDON (AP) — Terry Sawchuk, former holder of a part of the world middleweight title, will fight Sugar Ray Robinson in a 10-rounder here Sept. 25, promoter Harry Levene said Tuesday. The fight, originally scheduled for June 26, was postponed after Downes was found to have broken a small bone in his left hand against Don Fullmer May 22.

Hockey Playoffs Paid Off

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP) — Minor hockey groups in Canada's senior and junior teams which took part in the 1962 national hockey playoffs have received cheques totalling $107,824, Gordon Juckes of Melville, Secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced Tuesday.

Grants for the promotion of minor hockey totalled $28,000. Cheques of $2,000 each have been sent to each of the CAHA's nine area divisions or branches. Another grant of $1,000 was issued to pay promotion costs of the CAHA's 1962 Minor Hockey Week, which begins Jan. 28.

Largest amount in playoff surpluses went to Canadian junior teams which split $83,479. Senior clubs which participated in CAHA playoffs this spring have received surplus cheques totalling $36,444.

Most lucrative CAHA playoff this spring was the Memorial Cup final in Eastern Canada, which gave back a bonus of $20,226 to Hamilton Red Wings and Edmonton Oil Kings. For the first time, junior clubs also received returns from television revenue.

The Manitoba - Saskatchewan senior series between Winnipeg Maroons and Saskatoon Quakers proved to be the best senior gate. Financially, with the six games netting the two teams a total surplus of $15,393.

Surpluses paid to junior and senior teams this year, Juckes said, were down about $9,000 from the total of $39,000 paid out in 1961. He said complete figures for the playoffs are announced at the CAHA annual meeting.

SIGN CANADIAN

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference Tuesday announced the signing of Jim Furlong, 22, of Lethbridge, Alta., who played two years at Tulsa University. Furlong, 22, an offensive end, weighs 215 pounds and stands six feet, three inches.

British Amateur Ireland's Carr Favored

HOYLAKE, England (AP) — Joe Carr, the golfing pride of Ireland, is favored to win the British Amateur championship for the fourth time.

England's Michael Bonallack, last year's winner and top seed, was defeated 2 and 1 Tuesday by Jackson Taggart of Northern Ireland. The experts predicted that with Bonallack gone, no one would be able to halt the big - hitting Carr on this course of long, flat fairways.

Carr, 40, who won the title in 1952, 1958 and 1960, is scheduled to meet John Langridge, a little-known English player in the third round.

John Durry of New Zealand, a seeded player, was also eliminated Tuesday by a 5 and 4 defeat by Richard Brown, champion of England's Devon county.

Robert Sweezey, 50, of Miami Beach, Fla., who won this title in 1957, plays John Glocer of Northern Ireland in the second round.

Thirty - two second - round matches remain to be played before the third round starts this afternoon.

Seniors Break 11 Swim Marks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eleven Canadian senior swim records were set by members of the Dolphin and Vancouver clubs Tuesday night.

Susan Elliott of the Vancouver Club set three of them. Her time of 3:25.9 in the 220-yard freestyle clipped 4.4 seconds off the 1959 record. She travelled 200-metre freestyle in 2:34.9, 2.2 seconds faster than the previous mark, and cut 5.2 seconds off the 200-yard freestyle time in 2:11.7.

Mary Stewart of the Dolphin Club clipped a second from her own 110-yard freestyle record in 1:04.6.

Andy Meinhardt of the Vancouver Club also set three records. In the men's 220 - yard freestyle he was timed at 2:19.5. The previous mark was 2:18.1. In the 200 - metre freestyle, he trimmed 2.5 seconds from the old mark in 2:10.8 and the 100-yard freestyle he was clocked at 1:56.4, 44.5 seconds faster than the old mark.

Other records with the old marks in brackets:

Women's 440-yard backstroke: Sara Barber, Brantford, 35.4 (36.4).

Women's 440-yard individual medley: Lynn Fomfret 6:08.4 (6:08.7).

Collegiate Hockey Playoffs

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — Dr. Gerald Roussil, president of the Maritime Intercollegiate Athletic Union says plans have been completed for a nation-wide university hockey playoff series to be held in Kingston next March.

Dr. Roussil, a member of the faculty of St. Francis Xavier University, recently returned from meetings of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union.

He said Tuesday the hockey playoff will involve winners of the western, Maritimes, Ontario-Quebec and Ottawa - St. Lawrence branches of the CIAU.

A round - robin basketball tournament involving representative teams of the same branches is also planned for March. A site has yet to be chosen.

Dr. Roussil said officers of the expanded CIAU body also hoped a national intercollegiate football playoff may be arranged for 1963.

Temperament Too Costly For Ailing Movie Industry

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Future historians may mark the firing of Marilyn Monroe as the turning point in the studios' relations with stars.

Offhand you might think that any studio that would fire Marilyn could be considered out of its corporate mind. But what happened last week when the blonde was handed a pink slip and a $300,000 suit for stalling: Something's Got to Give.

Marilyn said she had been ill. The studio claimed her illness wasn't physical and it could no longer afford Marilyn's phobias against punctuality.

The battle of cash cow remain to be thrashed out, perhaps in courts. But trend-seekers may be able to draw this conclusion: The already-ailing movie industry cannot afford temperament any more.

STARS POWERFUL

Stars have been fired before. Distressed with Judy Garland's tardiness and tantrums, MGM summarily dismissed her Annie Get Your Gun. Betty Hutton got the job.

Such stern treatment of stars has disappeared in the past decade. The reasons are simple: All stars became free-lancers, independent of studio control; with studios failing to develop new talent, the established stars were more and more in demand, and hence more powerful.

Stars were given free rein. The results are now being shown. The decline of production has been so pronounced as to evoke a warning from the Screen Actors Guild.

Meanwhile, the passage of time has come to challenge the misbehavior on the sets of some actors whose conduct once seldom dishonors the guild's and their own contracts with producers."

This matter of giving stars free rein has hit some studios where it hurts—right in the profit column.

The travails of Monty on the Nile have been well documented. Whether they were caused by a star's pig-headedness or the lack of strong executive control can be debated.

Universal had a rough go with Rock Hudson's personal effort, Spartacus, though it seems to be coming out satisfactorily.

The studios now can pause and wonder: Are some stars worth all the trouble that goes with them?

Trick in Serial Acting Is "to Be Real"

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—For the last 11 years, actress Mary Stuart has been learning 15 pages of dialogue a day, five days a week, rehearsing all morning and acting for 13 minutes—live—to CBS' mid - day serial, Search for Tomorrow.

As Mrs. Arthur Tate, wife, mother and solid citizen, she has suffered mightily — and gone on trial for murder.

In exchange, Miss Stuart receives a big, regular salary cheque and is showered constantly with numerous agents and pot-holders from affectionate viewers.

But the professional life of the performer in the daytime serial, despite many advantages, does not have the status and professional ease of the prime time actors. Therefore, Miss Stuart was especially gratified when, last month, she was nominated as one of the five candidates for a TV Emmy in the category for best actress in a series.

She didn't win the statue—Shirley Booth did—but the recognition was immensely satisfying.

Miss Stuart, a native of Florida, and in private life a wife and mother of two children, aged 6 and 5, says that the key to her serial acting is "to be real."

"These programs are difficult to write and to act," she reflected. "You must be the character you're playing in residence. And because they can see you—their imagination is part of your show—you can't get into the sophisticated type of thing you could do in radio."

TORONTO (CP)—Stitchnsew a highly respected 4-year-old won her second of three starts at Woodbine Tuesday and, in defeating Miss Britain Canada, on the second smallest quinella in the history of Ontario thoroughbred racing.

Stitchnsew, which paid $2.60, $2.10 and $2.10, won easily through the mud and provided for a $3.90 quinella.

The smallest quinella payoff was May 30, 1959, when Victoria Park defeated Royal Wyn and Master Bill. Royal Wyn and Master Bill dead - heated for second place, accounting for a $3.90 quinella.

Stitchnsew, sent to the post as 3-to-10 favorite by 8,063 fans, won by more than five lengths. Jasahar was third.

Stitchnsew travelled the five furlongs in 1.00 1-5.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Mr. Kleen, Mr. Kleen, doesn't scare for just a minute
For he will clean the arena—and everything that's in it
Mr. Kleen . . ."

Yup, they're decided to bring in the polished-paled muscular "detergent" to see what he can do about "cleaning up" on the hated Dick "Bulldog" Brower come Friday evening.

The "Bulldog" ran berserk here last Friday, tearing down the upper ropes of the ring and using the turnbuckle to part the hair of "Haystack" Muldoon, that wasn't even there.

However, the "Bulldog" did get his come-uppance, together with Referee Billy Stack after the "Haystack" took over and squeegeed the pair almost through a ringpost.

"Mr. Kleen" is popular here. He is exceptionally well fortified with muscle and ring know-how. He doesn't scare easily—in fact he doesn't scare at all. So you're likkle to see a "white tornado" cleaning out the corners when the cocky "Bulldog" klashes with "Kleen" here Friday.

There has been a change in personnel in the semi-final get-together. Ivan and Nikita Kalmikoff, the bearded Kuss, had other commitments. They won't be here but big Bob Stanlee and brother Stan will take over against "Haystack" and Ray Gordon.

The biggest thing about these big, handsome blonde brothers is their ego. Steve Stanlee is a former "Mr. America." He is said to be a "bundle of blonde dynamite" with a college degree, ten fan clubs and an advocate of clean living.

But Brother Bob! He's a blonde giant who loves wrestling but thinks more of a guy named Bob Stanlee.

He is six-foot-nine, weighs 296 pounds. He has a 56-inch chest and a 18-inch arm. He is 37 years of age and admits to loving the life of a cowboy and the outdoor in general.

Listen to this: "I consider myself to be in super health without an ounce of fat. . . In Frisco I was voted the best-built tall man in the world—the "Body-beautiful of all tall men and I'm proud of it."

"I am also an expert at judo and karate which at times I blend with my own superb style that always chills the opposition. My eyes are focused on the world title and with my intellectual—as well as will power—and wisdom—I foresee this happening in the very near future."

That's Bob Stanlee's version of Mr. Bob Stanlee. Perhaps the "Haystack" and pal will remove some of Mars Robert's opinion of himself. Anyway it should be a big attraction for the gals since these blonde giants are quite an eyeful when it comes to masculine muscular perfection.

HODGE-PODGE

The Kenmore expect to increase their lead at the top of the Lakeshore Baseball League senior division tonight when they take on the Port Hope Ontarios at the Fair Grounds. Although the Ontarios are rated as an intermediate club, they are by no means a "weak sister" in the senior section. Their victory over Peterborough proves that. Game time at 8.15 . . . Attention South Hastings Baseball League managers or secretaries: Please send in or telephone the game's results . . . The district qualifying round of the junior, juvenile and bantam divisions of the Ontario Golf Junior Championships is slated for the Bay of Quinte Country Club on July 8th. Any boy within the age limits is eligible to compete whether he belongs to a golf club or not. Entries should be sent to T. A. Carruthers, Belleville.

What is called the "Big One" in lawn bowling circles will be played on the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club greens Saturday, June 16th. It is the mixed doubles tournament for the "Hyde Trophies" donated by Charlie and Gerald Hyde of this city. Prizes valued at over $400 will go to the various winners. There will be two draws, at one p.m. and 3.30 p.m.

The ladies and gentlemen of the Bay of Quinte Country Club are "warming up" on the links preparing for the popular annual "Mr. and Mrs. Tournament" scheduled for Sunday, June 17th. Some sixty couples are entered and present indications point to the best tourney in years. There will be the post-tournament presentation dinner . . . To the baseball youngsters: Your favorites Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, will be seen in action in a motion picture, "Safe At Home," at the Park Theatre starting Thursday through Saturday. There's a "Little League" in the show who becomes involved with the Yankee sluggers. You will see "Whitey" Ford and Manager Ralph Houck, too. Don't miss it!

Yankees Tops After Lead Shakeup

Twins Down Angels Up

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Los Angeles Angels board of strategy, responsible for plucking Jim Thomas from the New York Yankees in a key trade last year, stood up today and took another bow.

Up among the American League leaders in their second year of operations, the fourth-place Angels crept to within a game and a half of the first-place Yankees Tuesday night and it was Thomas who provided the punch in a 7-5 victory over Minnesota Twins.

The 26-year-old outfielder, developed in the productive farm system of the perennial AL champs, hit his eighth and ninth homers against the Twins, connecting with one on in the third and tagging another with the bases empty in the seventh.

Thomas came to the Angels along with pitchers Ryne Duren and Johnny James in the deal that sent pitcher Truman Clevenger and outfielder Bob Cerv to the Yanks. He hit .285 with 20 homers and 70 runs batted in during 1961 and currently is batting .289 with the nine homers and 32 RBI.

YANKS TAKE LEAD

The defeat of Minnesota dropped the Twins from the league lead into third place. The Yankees took over the top spot with a 3-1 triumph over Detroit Tigers while Cleveland Indians, raised out at Washington, moved percentage points ahead of Minnesota into second place. Both are a half-game behind New York.

Kansas City Athletics edged Chicago White Sox 3-1 on Dave Wickersham's three-hitter and Boston Red Sox squeezed by Baltimore Orioles 4-3 in other games.

Although Thomas provided the fireworks for the Angels, it took a three-run outburst in the sixth inning to snap a 3-3 tie and subdue the Twins. Felix Torres' single drove in the tie-breaker as the Angels got the benefit of four walks in the inning.

Los Angeles managed only five hits off starter Joe Bonikowski (5-3) and his successors, Ron Kline (5-3), acquired from Minnesota last week, won in his first appearance against his former teammates with relief help from Art Fowler and Jack Spring.

Bill Stafford (6-3) held the Tigers to three hits until the ninth when singles by Bobby Colavito, Vic Wertz and Chico Fernandez scored a run and snapped a string of 25 scoreless innings compiled by the Yankee right - hander.

MARIS HITS HOMER

Roger Maris hit home run No. 11 in the third inning after the Yanks had moved ahead in the first on Phil Linz's single, a sacrifice by Bobby Richardson and Johnny Blanchard's single. Mel Stottlemyre was the Nemesis Frank Lary (1-4) now 28-11 lifetime against New York.

Wickersham, relieving starter, won his fourth against one loss as a front-liner with a three-hitter for the Athletics and brought his over - all record to an impressive 7-2. White Sox starter Juan Pizarro (3-5), who allowed only eight hits, lost it when a single by Manny Jimenez, Gino Cimoli's triple and a single by Joe Azcue scored two runs in the eighth.

Frank Malzone drove in the first three Red Sox runs with a single and a home homer while Carroll Hardy knocked in the clincher with a double in the third and robbed Jim Gentile of a grand-slam homer by leaping back into the seats in the sixth to grab a drive hit by the Orioles' slugger with the bases loaded, preserving the triumph for Ike Delock (1-0). Jack Fisher (1-2) lost it.

Score Was 13-3

Joyces Clobber Bobcats

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Picking up ten runs on as many hits and six errors in the span of two innings, Joyce Real Estate buried the Bobcats by a 13-3 count at the Fairgrounds last night for victory number five.

The Bobcats, with Bobby Green still the only pitcher in the lineup, and experiencing trouble in getting some other players to turn out, took a 2-0 lead in the first inning last night and looked as if they might give the league-leaders a battle.

Then came the third inning and it was a different story. Joyces started cooking Green's offerings and the Bobcats commenced bowling the ball around.

Joyces sent 11 men to the plate in the third and scored six runs. Plane ignited the rally with a single after one was out. Elliott doubled, Kingston tripled and Faulkner doubled in quick succession. An error on Kellar's sacrifice bunt kept the explosion going and Davis followed with a two-run homer to make it a 6-2 game.

Bobcats booted the ball around for four errors and these combined with a single by Kingston and doubles by Faulkner and Batchelor, popped the count to 10-2 in the fourth.

The Joyce pitcher then first two runs on Crawford's single, Wright's sacrifice bunt that ended up with everybody safe and two errors.

Two walks, Wright's single and an error got them another in the fifth but Joyces scored singletons in the fifth, sixth and seventh to wil going away.

Veteran Ken Batchelor finished his second win in as many starts, striking out four hits over the route. He blew third strikes by 10 batters while issuing four free passes. He struck out the side with the bases loaded in the fifth, and three again in the seventh.

Green was tagged for seven in all, striking out two and walking seven. Seven errors made his work that much more difficult.

Chuck Kingston, with a triple and single, paced the league-leaders while Faulkner rapped two doubles while Ralph Plane and Pat Marsele each had a double and single. Jackie Elliott doubled, while Ron Davis had a homer.

Mr. Stu Muirhead and Ted Batchelor a double each and Claude Green a single.

Bobby Green was his own best help at the plate with two clean singles. Floyd Crawford and Ab Wright had the others.

OHA Protests Blair Club

Oshawa Enters Metro Junior 'A'

HAMILTON (CP)—Members of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series Tuesday night expressed concern at the proposed entry of an Oshawa team in the OHA Metro Junior A League next season.

Group officials decided at a regular meeting of the provincial Junior A group council to protest extension of the Metro loop so far outside the boundaries of Metropolitan Toronto.

The Metro loop, formed last season, includes Toronto Marlboros, Toronto St. Michael's Majors, Brampton and Uxbridge.

The new team is being formed by Wren Blair, who manages Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional League and Clinton (NY.) Comets of the United States Eastern League, which will likely use Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens pending completion of new arena at Oshawa, will operate as a farm club of Boston Bruins of the National League.

The six teams in last season's provincial Junior A group—Niagara Falls Flyers, Hamilton Red Wings, St. Catharines Teepees (now the Black Hawks), Guelph Royals, Peterborough Petes and Montreal Junior Canadiens—all indicated at Tuesday night's meeting that they will operate again in 1962-63.

PEAK TALENT LOSS

Niagara Falls officials indicated they are particularly concerned at the proposed Oshawa Metro entry. The Flyers, also a Boston farm club, fear the new team will get talent that otherwise would come their way.

The provincial league is to play a 50-game schedule next season, starting Oct. 21 and finishing March 2.

A conflict developed at the meeting when St. Catharines announced plans to switch its home games to Friday from Saturday to avoid the counter-attraction of televised NHL games.

When the Flyers objected that Friday is their big night, the Black Hawks agreed to consider the possibility of playing Saturday afternoon or early in the evening.

Following the meeting, the Red Wings, 1962 Memorial Cup champions, played host to the annual Memorial Cup party.

Pepsi's Plaster Point

Joe Harvey pitched three-hit ball last night to lead the Pepsi's to a 9-3 victory over the Point Anne Cementmen at the CNRA Park.

Harvey had a 9-0 shutout going for him until the last inning when the losers scored both their runs. Harvey struck out six and did not walk a batter.

Pepsi's plated one run in the third and took a comfortable lead with four in the fourth. They added two in each of the next two frames.

Denny Hull batted for the losers, tagged for 11 hits, while striking out two and walking three. His mates contributed five error to his downfall.

Ron Batchelor clouted a two-run homer for the Pepsi's in the sixth inning. Mike Stubbert aided the cause with a double and single while Bob Moon, Al Wager and Harvey each collected two singles. F. Farrel and L. Campbell also hit safely.

Point Anne hits went to Green with a double, Bert Whalen and Denny Hull, with a single apiece.

Point Anne 000 000 3-3 5
Pepsi's 001 422 x-9 11 1

Batteries: D. Hull and Sherman; Harvey and Moon.

WIN EUROPEAN TITLE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Italy won the European trap-shooting championship Tuesday. Italy won first in the final rounds of the Match of Nations championship and grabbing the first three places in the individual shooting. The American team, headed by Brig. Gen. Paul Tibbets, who piloted the atom bomb plane over Hiroshima in 1945, was second.

Braves Clobber Dodgers

Giants Snap Slump With Twin Wins

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

San Francisco Giants seem to have recovered from that June swoon. But Los Angeles Dodgers may be in a state of shock.

Halting a June tailspin in which they dropped out of the National League lead, the Giants snapped their six-game losing streak Tuesday night, sweeping a doubleheader from Cincinnati Reds 3-1 and 7-3 and moving back within a game of the first-place Dodgers.

The Dodgers, rolling with seven victories in nine games and 30 in 34, ran into a 17-hit, five-homer Milwaukee outburst in support of Lew Burdette's six-hit pitching and lost a game and a half of their lead with a 15-3 clobbering by the Braves.

The standings behind the leaders also were shuffled as the defending - champion Reds fell from third place to fifth. Pittsburgh Pirates moved into third, 7½ behind, by edging Chicago Cubs 4-3 and St. Louis Cardinals nipped Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 to take over fourth. Houston Colts defeated New York Mets 5-3.

MARICHAL LEADS GIANTS

Juan Marichal (9-4) checked the Reds on seven hits in the opener and drove in the winning run in a two-run seventh inning that put it away for the Giants. Marichal clinched it with a single off Jim O'Toole (7-3) after Jim Davenport tripled, Ed Bailey hit a sacrifice fly and Jose Pagan stroked a double. The Reds scored their run in the fourth on a homer by Gordy Coleman.

Orlando Cepeda drove in four runs for the Giants in the nightcap with two homers—a three-run shot in the first and a bases-empty job in the fifth that eventually proved to be the deciding run.

Hank Foiles hit a two - run homer in the fifth for the Reds, who chased Mike McCormick (2-3) in the eighth and scored two in the ninth off Stu Miller before Don Larsen came on to nail it with the tying runs on base. Moe Drabowsky (1-3) was the loser.

Thornberry (4-4), recording his second complete game in a row and fourth consecutive triumph, beat the Dodgers as Milwaukee for the first time in 11 decisions since July 13, 1958. He retired 19 in a row at one stretch while the Braves were pounding Johnny Podres (3-5) and two successors. Hank Aaron, who had three hits, and Joe Mathews each hit home run No. 11 as Gus Bell, Frank Bolling and Thmmie Aaron also connected. Mathews' homer was the 361st of his career, tying him for eighth place in the all-time list with the Yankees' Mickey Mantle.

Outfit by the Cubs 11-0, the Pirates scored two runs in the first and two in the second for their fourth straight victory. Relief by Bob Skinner, Dick Hart and Roberto Clemente plus George Altman's error accounted for the first - inning runs. The next two came across on doubles by Don Hoak and Bill Virdon and Dick Groat's single. The Pirates then held on behind Harvey Haddix (5-5) and relief ace Elroy Face. Glen Hobbie (1-6) lost it.

ROOKIE HITS HOMER

Rookie Fred Whitfield tagged a two - run homer off Paul Brown (0-5) in the eighth inning to win it for the Cardinals. Brown had opened the seventh with a double and scored to put the Phillies in front 2-1. He allowed only four singles until Julian Javier worked him for a walk and Whitfield connected. The victory, the eighth in nine games for St. Louis, went to former Phil Don Ferrarese (1-3).

Joe Amalfitano's single drove in pinch runner Roman Mejias with the winning run and climaxed a two-run uprising in the last of the ninth that gave the Colts their victory over the Mets. An infield single by Billy Goodman set up Brownie's pinch-hit triple off Craig Anderson (4-5) preceded Amalfitano's game-winner. Ken Johnson (4-6) was the winner with a five-hitter.

'Out Of Slump'

Palmer Favored In Open

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, his confidence booming like his driver, is a 5-to-1 favorite to gain the second leg of professional golf's grand slam in the United States open championship beginning Thursday at the rugged Oakmont Country Club course.

"I'm out of the slump with my irons, if that's what it was, and my finger isn't bad at all," the Masters champion from Latrobe, Pa., said Tuesday night after firing a two-under-par 69 in his last major warm-up on the 6,954-yard course he has played on and off since he was a youngster.

"You could say I'm optimistic," he said. "My irons are back in shape and I'm driving and putting pretty well. And if my finger doesn't get any worse, it's not going to restrict me at all. The only time it really hurts is when I'm signing autographs."

Two stitches came loose Tuesday in the inch-long gash Palmer suffered on the ring finger on his right hand Sunday night while he was putting lug-gage into the trunk of his car.

"I pulled them out and it's a little tender, but I don't think it'll need to be sewn up again," he said.

Support continues strong for defending champion Gene Littler—despite an estimated 82 in his first look at the par-71 Oakmont layout Tuesday—and such other tournament - tested stars as Billy Casper, Gary Player, Dow Finsterwald, Mike Souchak, Doug Sanders, Doug Ford, Jack Nicklaus and, of course, Sam Snead, who will make his 22nd try for his first Open title.

Three Canadians are in the 72-hole event—Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Al Balding of Toronto and Adrien Bigras of Montreal.

GOLF STARS

A new golf series on NBC-TV starting next January will show 11 matches on world - famed courses between leading U.S. and foreign pros.

Glover Will Play-Coach Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Fred Glover, who holds the scoring record in the American Hockey League, was named playing coach of the Cleveland Barons today.

The 34-year-old right winger has compiled 462 goals and 574 assists for a total of 976 points in 14 years in the league.

He was named most valuable player in the league last season, for the second time in three years.

Jack Gordon, both general manager and coach last season, continues as general manager.

Glover, a native of Toronto who now lives at Oakville, Ont., came to the Barons in 1952.

He spent four seasons with Detroit Red Wings and one with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

DETENTION FACILITIES REQUIRED

A Municipality is required by law to provide separate detention facilities, for a child charged with an offence or for whom a form of temporary protective custody is advisable.

Inquiries are invited from residents of the City of Belleville or persons living in the close proximity of the city willing to undertake the responsibility of providing such detention facilities. A comfortably furnished room in a private home which may be made secure and with close by washroom facilities would be satisfactory.

It should be understood that although the room shall be available at all times, its use would be required only when a substantial monthly retainer plus board will be paid to an acceptable party.

Interested persons should include full particulars about themselves in their initial letter, and forward it to P.O. Box 164, Belleville.

Leafs Edge Vees 6-5, Suns Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vic Davalillo of Jacksonville Suns, who has been making a mess of the International League batting race, now has turned his attention to home runs.

He has hit two in the last two games and has five for the season. He's still six back of Pancho Herrera of Buffalo Bisons, and Steve Demeter of Toronto Maple Leafs, who share the league lead.

Davalillo's homer Tuesday night and all pitcher John Taylor of Toronto needed. The Jacksonville righthander shut out Rochester Red Wings 3-0. It was Taylor's second straight four-hitter and the eighth shutout tossed by the Suns' staff this year.

Davalillo's homer was a 385-foot clout in the third inning. The other Suns' run was scored in the fourth when Tony Curry walked, stole second and hustled home on Larry Brown's double. Buster Narum, ace of the Red Wing staff, was the victim.

LOSE SEVEN IN ROW

Atlanta Crackers halted Syracuse Chiefs 4-0 in a rain-curtailed game, Columbus Jets edged the Toledo 3-2 in 11 innings and the Leafs dealt Richmond Virgin-ians their seventh straight defeat with a 6-5 triumph.

The Leafs lost Demeter for about a week when he injured his knee pushes while sliding into home plate in the ninth inning.

Atlanta has won four games in a row and Cracker right-hander Phil Ortega has allowed a run in the last 16 2-3 innings. But he was in trouble when rain started to fall with two out in the top of the eighth inning with runners on first and third. Ronnie Plaza tripled and scored on Joe Mclain's single in the sixth to break a 0-0 deadlock and give Sadowski all the runs he needed.

Larry Elliot clubbed his second homer of the game to enable the Jets to whip the Bisons, who had battled back from a seven-run scout to push the game into overtime. The Bisons used six pitchers and they were batttered for 16 hits.

PIE UP MARGIN

The Leafs piled up a 5-2 margin over the Virginians in the first seven innings. But in the eighth Gary Thomas tied it with a three-run homer. The Leafs scored the deciding run in their half of the eighth on Ted Kazanski's single, a wild pitch by losing pitcher Gary Blaylock and Lou Johnson's single.

Demeter was hurt during an attempted double play. Demeter, who was on third, and Spooky Anderson, on first, both tried to steal.

Pitcher Ted Wieand threw to second but was too late to catch Anderson. The return throw to the plate was high and catcher Gene Hall leaped into the air to grab the ball. He came down a bruising on the sliding Demeter, gashing the Leaf star with his spikes. Demeter suffered cuts that required 14 stitches to close.

Girls Bow To B.U.C. Men In Softball

In exhibition softball last evening the Belleville Utilities Girls softball team defeated the Girls' Intermediate Duncanettes to the tune of 22 to 8.

Playing with reversed batteries the men ran away with the game in the first four innings by scoring 18 runs to the girls 1. During the 5th inning the girls battery changed and the girls settled down coming up with a better game than the score indicates.

The Duncanettes invite the Police Department and the Public Works to answer their challenge for exhibition game.

The public is invited to the Parkdale Ball Diamond on Thursday evening at 6.45 to see the girls in their first game against the BCIAF Ladies.

Beach Visitors Warned Not To Leave Valuables in Car

PICTON—O.P.P. have warned visitors not to leave valuables in their cars while they are absent swimming or on the beach. For several years past, there have been numerous cases of cars windows being pried open and valuables taken. Such an occurrence was reported this week at Outlet Provincial Park.

A motorist reported the loss of his wallet and a watch valued at $35.

PURCHASE ORCHARDS

The Leavens' orchard near Bloomfield have been purchased from the estate of Howard Leavens by Frank Rutter and his son Jack.

These comprise 100 acres of cherries and 100 acres apples. There are four houses on the farm. Included in the deal is a cold storage plant in Picton where there are also facilities for pitting cherries.

TOWN OFFICES

The possibility of a building where all town offices may be housed, is being investigated by a town council committee. The findings are to be given at July session of council. At present, officials have offices in three different buildings.

RAIN WELCOME

A very heavy downpour of rain on Tuesday was described by farmers as being of the "million dollar" variety. It will be of great benefit to spring grains, peas, hoe crops and pastures. It was the first heavy rain in several weeks.

GRANTS FOR 3 SOUTH HASTINGS CHEESE FACTORIES

MODERN CHEESE FACTORIES — Fifty per cent subsidy to a maximum grant of $60,000 is offered by the Diefenbaker Government to encourage the construction of modern and more efficient cheese factories. Three such factories have been approved for subsidy in South Hastings since the Diefenbaker government came into power in 1957, the last being the new Foxboro plant owned by Harold Elliott. Mr. Lee Grills, whose recommendation was responsible for these additions to the economy of Hastings South, is seen with factory owner Harold Elliott and Don Vardy, just arrived with truck load of milk.

Astrological Forecast

For June 14

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Any attempt to push or force your own way today could boomerang. Best to survey situation, especially in dealings with material or business matter. If you show only best side, you inspire others to practice Golden Rule.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Cycle has been higher in past. Means today your best action is one which enables others to do the talking. Listen, absorb, plan for future. Seeking quick results today may lead to disappointment. Remain calm!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Putting off domestic matter which requires attention would be mistake. Face issues squarely. Nothing to fear if you fight tendency to brood. A cheerful attitude could turn the tide in your direction.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Favorable lunar aspect . . . today indicates creative endeavors pay off. Also good for romance, expressing true feelings. If you emphasize truth, you are repaid by those who "count."

Leo (July 21 to Aug. 21): There could be a challenge buried today. Meet it, but not with chip on your shoulder. Be willing to hear all sides. By being reasonable, you make your point effectively. Avoid one who tries to push you into fight.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Read, check facts, be sure you know what you're about. One in authority could ask questions, advice if you are sure of yourself, day might be turning point to greater success.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Better wait about making "money decisions." Could be numerous promises, wonderful appearances. But the situation may not be as bright as it looks.

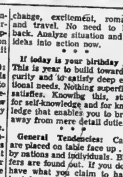
Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 22): Answer to pressing question is yes. Today excellent day to follow your convictions. Excitement, progress, romance, new experiences indicated. Enjoy them!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Look behind surface meanings. The obvious only appears so. You are able to sense what you need. Pay attention to your intuitive intellect. Don't be "talked into" anything.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): What appears simple today could turn out to be complicated affair. Do permit pride to keep you from consulting friend. Speak your mind. Ask if you don't know.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Like Cancer, stick to convictions. Fight for principles. Those who appear to oppose you could soon become allies. Try not to be impatient. Co-operate in community endeavors.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Excellent day for breaking loose from "rut." Emphasis on change, excitement, romance and travel. No need to hold back. Analyze situation and put ideas into action now.



* * *

If today is your birthday . . . This is your year to build toward security and to satisfy deep emotional needs. Nothing superficial satisfies. Knowing this, strive for self-knowledge and for knowledge that enables you to break away from mere detail duties.

* * *

General Tendencies: Cards are placed on table face up . . . by nations and individuals. Bluffers are found out. If you don't have what you claim to have, best to "get out of game."

Belleville PLAZA

Belleville Plaza Is Designed To Serve 200,000

Belleville PLAZA

BETWEEN DUNDAS AND BRIDGE STS. AT HERCHIMER AVE. IN BELLEVILLE

Belleville Plaza, the central mall. There are 31 stores, a bowling alley and office space in the shopping centre.

"And I on the inside too?"

Shopping centres have stores, cars and people. Some of the cars and some of the people are reflected in the window of a store.

Comparative Shopping Made Easy at Plaza

The experts call it comparative shopping, but to the ordinary shopper it simply means picking and choosing — and at the Belleville Plaza there will be plenty of opportunity for choice. In fact the centre has been designed to make choosing easy.

Shops in the centre have not been laid out in any haphazard manner, but in definite related groups according to the merchandise they sell.

If, for instance, the shopper wants groceries she will find two huge supermarkets operated by A & P and Dominion Stores. If she wants to buy a pair of shoes she will find that shoe stores such as Agnew-Surpass and Mosher are sited close together in one block of stores.

The group planning not only saves the shopper's time but makes for easy comparative shopping. Customers can compare merchandise for value, quality and price quickly and without having to walk long distances.

MUST BE FRENCH

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) The Roman Catholic school board here has returned a bill submitted in English by a Montreal electrical appliances firm. Commissioners said it is their policy to buy only from companies that submit their accounts in French.

With Space for 1,078 Cars, Plaza Expected to Draw Shoppers From Large Area

Shopping centres have stores, cars and people. Mostly people. Belleville Plaza serves about 40,000 of them in the "primary area," a circle of eight miles radius. The total area served, a circle of about 25 miles radius, contains about 113,000 people, and the centre is planned to serve about 200,000 all told. The way this area is growing, (three subdivision plans were registered in the city so this year alone), it won't be long before that number is reached.

The 25 mile-circle, incidentally, is one of the reasons the Plaza is not expected to hurt downtown merchants. It will take some of their trade but it will bring in outside trade, which will spill over to the downtown area.

Cars make the centre possible, and the developers, Principal Investments Ltd., of Toronto, are not forgetting it. They have provided nearly fifteen acres of parking lot, with room for 1,078 cars. There are four square feet of parking space for each square foot of shopping space. Now, there is more than one car for every five people in Belleville and the cars are gaining on us.

31 STORES

The stores in the Plaza, 31 of them, are all ultra modern. The Plaza's laundromat, for instance, has two of the first coin-operated dry cleaning machines in Ontario, plus 25-pound load washers for rugs and drapes, heavy duty extractors and the normal equipment. Alvin Moses, of Toronto, owner of the laundromat explains though that the dry cleaners are not planned to compete with the professional establishments. They are expected to serve the people who formerly risked washing clothes that should be dry cleaned.

Office space and bowling alleys are also provided, above the stores which are grouped about a central sidewalk. Interstore competition is encouraged by grouping similar stores close together, so the shopper can compare prices and merchandise. The two food supermarkets face each other along the length of the mall, each serving as an anchor for the stores along the side.

SHOPPERS CAN REST

Flower beds, music, benches and deep eaves, shielding shoppers from sun and rain, give the central mall a relaxing aspect. Cars can approach the pickup stations of the supermarkets, but otherwise are banned from the fronts of the stores. Two completely covered side malls provide access to the parking lots, and some stores have back doors, opening into the parking area. The Plaza itself is built as an island in the centre of the lot.

According to present plans, Belleville Plaza is almost complete as it stands. A discount department store may be added within the next two years, but no general expansion is planned. The developers think it's just about right, right now.

Belleville PLAZA

BETWEEN DUNDAS AND BRIDGE STS. AT HERCHIMER AVE. IN BELLEVILLE

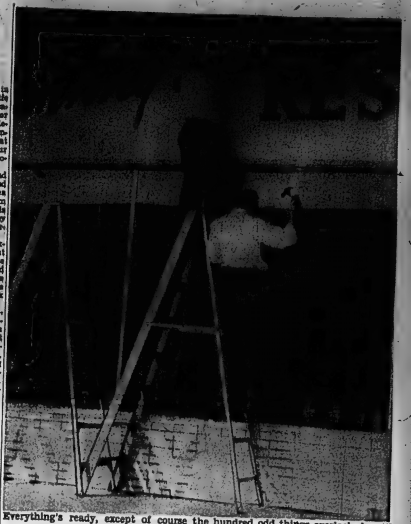
Deep eaves, shielding the shopper from sun and rain, give the mall a relaxing aspect.

Parking Area Has Space for 1,078 Autos

Like a lot of other things in the North American way of life the modern day shopping centre is geared to the car. For every square foot of space devoted to selling groceries, lawnmowers and baby rattles at Belleville Plaza there are four square feet for parking customers' cars.



In Belleville the stores stand like an island in a landscaped sea of asphalt. The parking area covers 14.75 acres and has room for 1,078 cars. The whole is planned to make shopping by car a pleasant and easy experience.

Once inside the various parking lots, drivers will find that traffic is one way and the route clearly marked on large and boldly lettered signposts. Once parked, most shoppers will have only a matter of yards to walk to reach the stores.

The parking lot lamp standards are fitted with low-brightness luminaires which give a very attractive effect at night but do not interfere with highway traffic. These eight-foot, four-lamp luminaires are being used for the first time in a major shopping centre in Canada.

For opening day and the period immediately afterwards and during peak shopping hours, there will be traffic control inside the centre. Otherwise, the experts say, the parking should go smoothly, easily, and unaided.

Everything's ready, except of course the hundred odd things overlooked until opening day.

Plaza Will Serve Folk In Large Area

Belleville Plaza is expected to have more than 200,000 customers, some of them coming from as far as 35 miles. This highlights the fact that the shopping centre belongs not just to Belleville but to the region as a whole.

The trade area of the centre can be divided into two zones: the primary and the secondary zones.

The present population of the primary zone is 40,000 people. This area, within approximately an eight mile radius, is considered to be the market from which the plaza's stores will draw their principal volume.

The outer secondary zone is approximately eight to twenty-five miles from the centre. About 78,000 persons reside in this area.

VENDING VARIETY

Vending machines at Cologne, Germany, dispense sandwiches, fresh fruit, aspirin, handkerchiefs, nylon stockings, flowers, electric light bulbs and souvenirs.

KINGSTON PROVISIONERS LTD.

(WHERE FOOD IS ALWAYS PRECIOUS—BECAUSE IT'S ALWAYS GOOD!)

A lady should never have to open a door herself, especially if she is wheeling a baby. But sometimes it takes a couple of young men and a supervisor to help her. Even the mannequin seems to appreciate the problem.

A laundromat is an excellent place to do embroidery, or to read. Some people even do their laundry there. Between them Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Smith, of Belleville, manage all three.

Office Space At New Plaza

For local business and professional people, the new office section of the Belleville Plaza offers not only the chance to occupy new offices, but to meet a regional clientele that will be driving in from miles around. In addition, unlimited free parking is available to office tenants and their customers.

The offices will be equipped with fluorescent lighting, acoustic tiled ceilings, and tiled linoleum flooring.

Principal Investments' office layout experts will advise on partitioning and other problems. Each office will be designed to the tenants' needs.

The type of business conducted in offices in shopping centres already in operation, includes doctors, dentists, lawyers, insurance companies, real estate firms, etc.

Exports Show Sharp Increase Over Last Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's domestic exports piled up an 11.6-per-cent increase in the first two months of 1963 compared with the same period last year, the bureau of statistics reported Tuesday.

"Part of the increase in the value of domestic exports is due to the difference in the exchange value of the Canadian dollar," said the bureau.

Exports in January and February totalled $868,000,000 compared to $803,605,000 in the 1962 period.

For February, they amounted to $408,872,000—an increase of 14.2 per cent over the $358,096,000 recorded in the same month a year earlier.

Most notable rise occurred in exports to the United States.

In February they totalled $249,197,000 as against $197,582,000 in February of 1962, while for January - February combined they totalled $544,872,000 against $416,116,000 in the same period a year earlier.

SALES TO U.K. DOWN

Sales to the United Kingdom were down. They dipped to $39,429,000 in February from $62,429,000 in February 1962, and to $136,430,000 for January-February compared to $146,333,000 in the same two months last year.

Exports to Cuba also took a tumble in February. They amounted to but $520,000, compared to $2,095,000 in February in 1962.

For the first two months of 1962 exports to Cuba totalled $2,945,000 against $4,251,000 in the same period last year.

A sizable increase was recorded in domestic exports to Communist China. They reached $13,587,000 in February —a year earlier they were only $2,214,000 — and $15,393,000 in the two-month period compared with $2,587,000 last year.

No Traffic Will Disturb Mall Users

There will be no traffic to worry about when you stroll down the Mall, as the main avenue of shops at the new Belleville Plaza is called.

Shopping along the spacious Mall will be a relaxing affair . . . a stroll down an attractive avenue of shops, each individually styled to make a harmonious, eye-appealing pattern. Porcelain, enamel and polished granite in varied colors, warm-toned bricks, glazed tiles, cast stone panels, fieldstone, wood and aluminium are some of the materials used on the store fronts along the Mall.

The promenading shoppers will find colorful flower beds and benches; and will be lulled by soft music.

Miss Audra Brickman is having her barn roof improved by a coat of paint.

One Car Here For Every 4.8 Bellevillians

There is space for 1,078 cars in the parking lots of Belleville Plaza. That's a lot of car space, but there are plenty of cars in Belleville. Official government statistics show that in 1960 there were 8,346 automobile owners in greater Belleville. And the figure for 1962 will certainly be higher.

In 1951 the automobile ownership ratio in the city was 7 persons per car. Nine years later, in 1960, there was one car to every 4.8 persons.

Belleville's new shopping centre will meet both the trend to go shopping by car and the problem of parking.

2 UNIONS SEEK CONTRACT TALKS WITH NICKEL CO.

Mine-Mill, Steel Both Claim Victory

SUDBURY (CP)—The certification vote was to have ended everything. Instead, both sides in the battle to represent 4,000 workers at the International Nickel Company are taking preliminary steps toward opening contract talks with the company.

The ballot count gave the incumbent International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) only a 7,162 to 7,162 tie with the United Steelworkers of America (CLC). But 36 ballots contested by Mine-Mill could reverse the situation. The United Steel short of the needed 7,197 votes—50 per cent of the eligible voters, plus one.

As a result, both sides are claiming victory in effect over the vote, counted Monday and Tuesday.

Terry Mancini, Northern Ontario organizer for the Steelworkers, said he expects certification in two weeks.

He is planning the first Steelworkers' union business meeting next week to "acquaint the membership with our position" on regarding formation of a new local union and to ask INCO workers to select their bargaining committee."

Other meetings are being planned in the near future to coincide with a drive for new membership. As yet, however, no membership campaign is under way.

FILE OBJECTIONS

National Mine-Mill President Ken Smith said his union has objections to the vote were filed with the Ontario Labor Relations Board in Toronto Wednesday. Besides protesting 36 Steel ballots, Mine - Mill claims the election should be invalidated since, at last count, there were five more votes than voters.

The national office of Mine-Mill is calling a membership meetings of Sudbury-district local 598 Friday to hold further nominations for the 598 officers and to map the union's future program.

Meanwhile, both sides look to Toronto, where the Labor Relations Board will rule on the vote question and decide whether Steel or Mine-Mill should get bargaining rights for about 14,200 INCO workers.

Mancini said Mine - Mill is "just grasping at straws" in its objections to the Labor Relations Board. "They have no real grounds to stand on."

He said Steel's bargaining with INCO will be "proof of the pudding" of the union's ability to represent the workers.

"We will co-operate with Port Colborne (where Steel has a plant) months ago won bargaining rights for 800 workers from Mine-Mill and we'll come up with a proper agreement," he added.

HAVEN'T LEFT STEEL

"We have won new bargaining rights before with slightly over 50 per cent and we've always been able to negotiate successfully. We have had none of these have lined yet."

"We're starting this union on the basis that whatever has happened in the past won't affect our future structure," Mancini said. Internal problems of Mine-Mill will not affect Steel.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Shower activity associated with a very weak slow moving disturbance over Pennsylvania will slowly dry up today. A gradual return to summer skies will be accompanied by rising temperatures in the southern section of Ontario.

TORONTO (CP) — A Teamsters' union council has repudiated an agreement, signed by one of its locals, that would undercut the 30-cent-an-hour level the union is trying to maintain for settling the province-wide trucking strike.

L. M. (Casey) Dodds, Canada director of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.), acting on behalf of the union's council of Ontario locals in the highway transport field, Wednesday sent Hutton Transport in London a telegram repudiating the 24th-cent agreement it had signed with Local 141.

Mr. Dodds said Windsor Local 880, not 141, has bargaining jurisdiction for the Hutton drivers. Local 141 is a breakaway group from the Windsor local, the spokesman for the 880 local separately certified by the Ontario Labor Relations Board as a bargaining agent as Ontario labor legislation requires, he said.

"Therefore your company is in no position as an outside remedy so until a proper agreement is signed by the proper officers."

COMPANY IS SHOCKED

Gord Hutton, president of Hutton Transport, said he was shocked at the cancellation. He had not yet received the telegram.

The London local represents approximately 1,000 of the 8,000 members in the five Teamster locals striking parks.

The 30-cent agreement the union is in setting its sights on is based on similar rates for other small transport firms that broke away from the employer association to sign.

The contract includes fringe benefits runs from 12 months to the expiry of the last contract which is due to run out next pay.

The employer association, the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing 80 firms struck, is holding out for a new agreement. Negotiations ended by a conciliation board headed by Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville.

The republican came on the eve of a meeting here today between union and company representatives and federal and provincial conciliation officers.

Meanwhile, a group of employers' associations Transport—members of Local 938 in Toronto—were reported anxious to settle on the 24-cent offer in the 12th weeks of training at Camp Wainwright before the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade.

He Just Withdrew Invitation... Gave No Ultimatum -- Smallwood

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland says his communication to the St. John's Rotary Club—which resulted in cancellation of a speech by Prime Minister Fleming last Thursday was not an "ultimatum," and that he issued none.

In letters to the St. John's Rotary Club and to Mr. Fleming, the premier says he withdrew the invitation to speak to the club by letter, that he withdrew the invitation to land government's invitation to Mr. Fleming to speak at a banquet this week.

"Ignored not care less whether Mr. Fleming spoke to Rotary," the letters say.

"What I did care about was using the Newfoundland people's money to pay the cost of a great banquet for Mr. Fleming by inviting a politician to speak to them on a very hot controversial political topic was using his undoubted right to participate in the present election."

The club withdrew its invitation to Mr. Fleming, who was scheduled to speak at the opening of the dollar, after Premier-Elect Ernest C. Smallwood said he received an "ultimatum" from the premier that if Mr. Fleming spoke the government would not pay for a convention banquet.

After the incident the premier issued a statement saying he had wrote the club informing it that because the invitation to Mr. Fleming "made Rotary partisan body the government withdrew the invitation to be host" at the banquet.

His statement added that he told the club Mr. Fleming's address would be "all right" if it was not political.

Mr. Smallwood's 40 - minute non-political address—a couple of references to responsible government was the closest he got to politics—dealt primarily with Newfoundland's integration into the Canadian way of life.

The Rotary Club, after withdrawing its invitation to Mr. Fleming, also turned down the government invitation — retaining, however, Mr. Smallwood as principal speaker.

Europeans Told By Secret Army To Quit Algeria

ALGIERS (AP) — Thousands of tense Europeans besieged with sandbag defenses in the wake of the Secret Army broadcast telling Algeria's European settlers to prepare to flee and leave the country in flames.

By midmorning nearly 4,000 persons waited for tickets to France outside the buildings of Air France and Air Algerie.

Air passage to France for Algeria has been limited by military authorities because of a Secret Army ban on the civilian flights, terrorists had hoped to prevent a mass exodus and continue to draw support from the settlers.

But with the prospect of preventing Algerian independence growing ever more hopeless, The Secret Army lifted its ban and told the settlers: "We will leave nothing behind. We are not joking."

'BURN YOUR FURNITURE'

The pirate broadcast said the Secret Army will distribute five gallons of gasoline to each European family "to burn their furniture and other possessions they cannot take with them." The terrorist aim now is to leave Algeria a wasteland, desolate to Moslems the fruit of French economic development.

MAN SENTENCED

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Melvin A. Butler, 26, was sentenced Wednesday to 2½ years in penitentiary for living off the avails of a prostitute in the city last March 18. He was charged with living off the avails of Mrs. Helen Eaton, 18, of Kitchener, who told the court after gave Butler between $7,000 and $10,000 raised through prostitution.

Pugilistic Phrases Heard As Campaign Nearing End

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the election battle nearing the showdown, party leaders were still hammering away at hustings Wednesday. Pugilistic phrases even popped up in some speeches.

The government has "licked" unemployment, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said at Brantford, Ont., and later on a national TV broadcast.

Liberal Leader Pearson replied: "The only thing licked in this country now is the Diefenbaker government."

In Vancouver T. C. Douglas told a large crowd of his campaign—confirmated at 10,000 by party officials—and the New Democratic Party leader made two speeches when the crowd was put into two adjoining arenas.

Speaking in the same arena where Pearson received a cool fist - swinging uproar drowned out a speech by the prime minister five weeks earlier, Mr. Douglas told an orderly audience that to the best of his knowledge the NDP wasn't receiving contributions.

But he said there was "overwhelming evidence" that the Liberal party was incurring debts a subsequent wild demonstration at a Diefenbaker meeting at Chelmsford, Ont., was charged denied by Mr. Pearson last night at Kingston.

Perjury and Other Charges May Be Laid Against Bookie

TORONTO (CP) — United Steel Canada gamblers held a meeting in 1960 to purge out Ontario gambling franchises from "undesirables," Joseph Marin under a new, set-up supposed to operate with "protection" from provincial police, the royal commission on crime was told Wednesday.

Det.-Sgt. James Bryan of the St. Catharines city police testified that this information was given to him last year by Thomas (Mickey) McGroarty as having come from Sammy Balsoon, St. Catharines bookie alleged to have been a key figure in Niagara's area gambling operations.

Just before the sergeant testified, Mr. Commissioner J. C. Roach, the commissioner, announced he would call on the Crown to consider laying perjury and possibly other suspected charges against witnesses as a result of his testimony this week regarding allegations that he was improperly influenced by police.

Sgt. Bryan testified that the Canadian-American gamblers, said by McGroarty to have been attended by Balsoon, took place in a hotel on the outskirts of Toronto in August or September, 1960, and was attended by about a dozen men including four from the U.S. who drove up in Cadillacs.

Purpose of the meeting, according to the informer, was to "cut up" the province into sections so that there would be no dispute among those operating in different areas.

The sergeant testified the head man of the area between Niagara Falls, Ont., and Toronto was supposed to be Frank Nicoletti, a tobacco store owner in Hamilton. McGroarty described only by McGroarty as an agent of "the syndicate."

The term "the syndicate" is sometimes applied to a vast underworld organization popularized by the Mafia.

Sgt. Bryan said some of the information from McGroarty—he said he got it from Balsoon—had been confirmed from other sources including New York police although, he said, there might be some doubt as to Nicoletti's first name.

Commission counsel Roland F. Wilson noted there had been previous references before the commission to a Benny Nicoletti of Niagara Falls, N.Y., who had gambling connections on the Canadian side of the border.

Whether the franchise system actually went into effect was not indicated in the sergeant's testimony. He said he passed on his information to the provincial police in May, 1961. He said McGroarty had not given him the names of any of those who had attended the Toronto meeting apart from Balsoon.

In his opening references to Balsoon, the commissioner said in part:

"I am not at all sure that the charges should simply be limited to perjury. It may be that other charges are justified and these matters will be taken up with the Crown."

Sgt. Bryan said that McGroarty, in March, 1961, had pointed out getting patrol sergeant Arthur Crocock as the police officer who tipped local dice

QUEEN MOTHER WILL UNVEIL COAT OF ARMS

Will Attend Garden Party

OTTAWA (CP) — After an easy-going day around the St. Lawrence waterway, the Queen Mother was returning to official engagements in Ottawa today—inspection of guards, and attending a luncheon and a garden party.

She was to spend three hours at city hall, unveiling the city's coat of arms and two royal portraits and attending a civic luncheon. The garden party, where she would meet Commonwealth representatives in Ottawa, was to be held on the home of the Indian high commissioner, Lila Nehru, and her evening will be free.

Wednesday's activities obviously delighted the Queen Mother, who got a kick out of the old buildings in Upper Canada Village — the reconstructed pioneer town near Morrisburg, Ont. She was forced to enjoy a relaxed 4½ hours cruising in the sea way aboard the navy frigate Ontario.

There were no big crowds to watch her, the weather was perfect, and the scenery was like a postcard.

During the day the Queen Mother presented a Cadet Cup to Cadet Corporal John William Ferguson of Cornwall, who was 15-year-old sea cadet who rescued two children from drowning in May, 1961. He received the award from the gun deck as the frigate passed Cornwall's Lancaster locks.

HAS INFORMAL TOUR

Although, as usual, every detail was ironed out in advance the entire day had an informal touch, including slightly delayed arrivals, unscheduled visits and a free mingling with the small groups that scurried along beside her while children ran riotfence around Upper Canada Village.

At one point she walked through the crowd to examine a tiny cradle and talk with its driver. She also ducked into a souvenir shop to tell employees it was "lovely."

The employees, all girls, were jammed in a small doorway during the Queen Mother to see her. Some turned around and saw her in their bashful state were too surprised to speak.

A Farlinger barouche, an old open carriage, carried her for two horses, was waiting by the Queen Mother over the rough cobble streets of the village after she had walked through most of it on the wooden sidewalks. Her coachman at the horses galloped off over the dirt roads ahead of her and past a stream where three men were paddling a pioneer sailboat.

From the village, the Queen Mother was driven to Ottawa through rich grassland, past an occasional modern farm or marina where an RCMP launch was waiting to whisk her out to mid-stream. Here a Bermuda frigate sailed with all flags afluttering.

She had a steak dinner in the ship's wardroom, then spent the afternoon on the deck and remounted on the forward gun turret where she walked from side to side taking in the scenery.

Wee Cameronians Display Talent For Staging King-Sized Brawls

MINDEN, West Germany (Reuters) — Brawling flared again here Wednesday in the land of the "poison dwarfs."

Police said 20 of the sick-name some local people regiment, the Royal Highland Regiment, Scotland's Cameronians, in a way life wee soldiers supposedly brought to Germany to avoid brawls with the people among whom they are stationed.

Back home in Britain, concern about alleged bad morals and drunkenness among British troops in Germany has exploded into headlines.

In the latest development, a Minden cafe, where British tomatoes were reported to be brawled, was placed off limits by the British Army of the Rhine. The order was issued after a member of a British television team complained of drunken brawling British soldiers, one a Cameronian, prosecuted the TV men from filming at the cafe.

One British officer stepped into the affair by telling the German TV audience Wednesday night that British newspapers had "completely exaggerated" stories that relations between British troops and Ger-

Wall St. Whiz Steals 2 Million, Flees To Brazil

E. M. Gilbert Discloses He Withdrew Funds

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall-Street wizard Edward M. Gilbert, who has admitted unauthorized withdrawals of almost $2,000,000 from the company he headed, has flown to Brazil where he cannot be extradicted to the United States.

Gilbert stepped off a Varig Airlines jet in Rio de Janeiro Wednesday and went into seclusion. He declined to give an address, and a check of hotels and tourist bureaus failed to turn up any trace of him.

In Rio, officials of the International Police Agency (Interpol) and the U.S. embassy said they had received no information on Gilbert. It was reported however, that Gilbert entered Brazil with a visa valid for 30 days and that 2 he wanted to stay longer he would have to apply for an extension.

At Idlewild airport in New York Wednesday Gilbert bought a one-way ticket and said he might go to Rio "for about six weeks," the airline said.

CORNERS MARKET

The 38-year-old Gilbert, who rocketed to fame on Wall Street four years ago when he practically cornered the stock in the E. L. Bruce Company and became its president, made withdrawals totalling $2,000,000 amounting to $1,585,000 between May 30 and June 4. It was on May 28 that the stock began to started its downward plunge.

What happened to the money has not been determined.

Manhattan District Attorney Frank S. Hogan's looking into the withdrawals.

Early Tuesday night the E. L. Bruce firm, a leading manufacturer of hardwood flooring, released a statement saying Gilbert voluntarily had repaid the unauthorized withdrawals and that they were not to be considered as "embezzlement."

E. L. Bruce Jr., chairman of the Bruce Company, ordered a complete audit of the firm's books. Bruce, saying the withdrawals were made in the form of cheques, declined to say whether the cheques were payable or bearer, but he said he would take. However, company officials said the firm is in good financial shape. They also said it has a surely bond totalling $750,000.

Meanwhile, the Securities and Exchange Commission announced a 10-day suspension of trading in Bruce common stock on the American Stock Exchange and in the over-the-counter market.

Bruce stock was among the most active domestic trade on the American Stock Exchange, but the year's low of 15⅝, down 3¾. Earlier this year it had been traded as high as 37⅝.

But on the Stock Exchange said it was investigating transactions in Bruce stock, an analyst was quoted from the company.

Gilbert's wife, Robert West, Wednesday expressed amazement at his client's departure. "I talked with him yesterday (Tuesday) and there was no indication that he was about to make a trip," West said.

Guarding Man Never Produced Better Citizen

KINGSTON (CP) — Allen J. MacLeod commissioner of Canada's penitentiaries, said Wednesday the old system of putting a man behind walls and guarding him with rifles has never produced a better citizen.

In the final address to a seminar on sentencing, Mr. MacLeod said new systems are being used in respect to sentences of two years or more.

The old system, he said, which made no distinction between individuals, was not turning out men more capable of meeting the requirements of society. He said 80 per cent of persons going to prison already have been in some sort of jail before and 45 per cent have been in a prison before.

Mr. MacLeod said it was decided to establish institutions of different degrees of security. This was done by the process of overcrowding in federal jails; the number housed per year of the prison population could be trusted under reduced security.

He said today's philosophy is to put a machine into a person's life, similar, to that he will have to face outside the prison.

The address was heard by about 30 judges, magistrates and other jurists. The remaining sessions in the seminar, due to close Friday, will be discussions.

Canada to Take New Chinese Refugees Only

HONG KONG (AP)—Canada will accept only newly arrived refugees from Communist China, a Canadian immigration official here said today.

Dr. E. Davidson, head of the Canadian Immigration Service in Hong Kong, declined further elaboration. He said many applications now are being processed.

However, it is generally presumed Canada will accept only refugees who have fled Red China since May 1.

The Seminar takes place in the third week of September and will last 4-5 days.

The delegates will also attend the World's Fair in Seattle, Washington.

PUGILISTIC

keep it that way, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Earlier at Galt he said the U.S. government and newspapers are "swallowing" because of the devaluation of the dollar's exchange rate to 92½ U.S. cents.

"Every manufacturer and survey farmer will be able to report to the United States where he is now being closed out."

DERIDES 7C CLAIM

Mr. Pearson in Kingston did some scoffing about Mr. Diefenbaker's claim that unemployment is licked.

The government's own experts are forecasting higher unemployment next year, the Liberal leader said. At last report nearly 500,000 Canadians were jobless and there were published accounts that the present unemployment figure wouldn't last out the year.

He said the Liberals' 22-year record of government up to 1957 shows "that we never let people down the way the government has in the last five years."

Earlier in the day, at a Montreal press conference, Mr. Pearson refused to be drawn out on what the Liberal convention meet would do about the present policy of a pegged dollar rate.

He said confidence in the country's economy will be established before the decision would be made whether to continue pegging the dollar at a fixed exchange rate or letting it float as it will.

Mr. Douglas promised that the New Democratic Party government would be to provide a $75-a-month old age pension, which it said it will be raised to $65 at age 70.

He said that in the last few days of the campaign, in which over 1,500 meetings were held in the province, he was inspected and taped with the help of the Belleville City Police Commission, and the sale of ball point pens were very successful projects.

Today the campaign efforts of the four leaders centre on Sarnia and Lake there is "good reason to believe that Canada's people are not going to the empty beliefs Mr. Diefenbaker is so contrived about."

Evidence was that it was "helping the Chinese government meet its wheat commitments to Russia and is being used against the interests of countries friendly to the West."

Today the campaign efforts of the four leaders centre on Sarnia city voters. Both Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson will be in Toronto, Mr. Douglas in Winnipeg and Mr. Thompson at Edmonton—all for major evening meetings.

The Ontario capital becomes the political cockpit of Canada. The highlight in this campaign Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson have been in the same area without directly crossing paths. The first occasion was at New Glasgow, N.S., May 14 and the second was here May 22.

UNLIKELY TO MEET

It is unlikely there will be any "summit" meeting today' despite the close proximity of the campaign trails.

Mr. Diefenbaker arrives from Guelph for an afternoon meeting with party workers and evening receptions at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds and Massey Hall.

Mr. Pearson flies in from Trenton, Ont., for an evening rally at the Forum Centre.

In case of a close election, the 18 Toronto and York ridings could decide the issue, in the 1958 landslide, the Conservatives won all of them. Since then, Liberal Paul Hellyer has reduced this avalanche by one seat—Toronto Trinity—in a by-election.

The Toronto and York ridings form one of the major battlegrounds of the election, which will be decided Monday.

For instance, Finance Minister Fleming is locked in one of the toughest battles of his political career with Liberal Mitchell Sharp, former deputy trade minister under the late C. D. Howe. Mr. Sharp is said to have one of the best organizations in Canada and it has been working over-time on the months in Toronto Egliton.

Spring Wheat Crop Seeding Near Completion

OTTAWA (CP) — Seeding of Canada's spring wheat crop was 92 per cent complete by May 31, the bureau of statistics said Wednesday in its first seasonal cross - country seeding survey.

This is slightly behind the 95 per-cent figures at the same time last year and the 1956-60 average of 97 per cent.

Seeding of the five principal grains in Canada—wheat, oats, barley, flaxseed and mixed grains — was 83-per-cent completed at May 31. This was below the 91 per cent of 1961 and the 1956-60 average of 88.

Seeding of all grains in the Prairie provinces, where the bulk of spring-sown grain is grown, was 83-per-cent completed at May 31 compared with 93 per cent a year earlier.

In Ontario, about 97 per cent of the five grain crops was seeded by May 31 as against 96 per cent last year and the five-year average of 93 per cent. Seeding in Ontario was aided by generally dry and warm weather.

Liberals' Song Different When Dollar Fell in 1949 Hon. J. W. Monteith Recalls

TRENTON — Hon. J. Wallace Monteith, Federal Minister of Health and Welfare, speaking to more than 300 persons at a Progressive Conservative rally in Trenton last night stated that in the 1949 federal election campaign, the Conservative party had proposed that the Canadian dollar be devaluated for economic reasons. At that time, said Mr. Monteith, the Liberals had got out a pamphlet, within three months the value of the Canadian dollar had been devaluated from 91 to 90 cents. Then leading Liberals had referred to devaluation as a forward step and a good thing for the country. Mr. Monteith said, Mr. Monteith, there had been a talk of "economic disaster."

Mr. Monteith said the value has been pegged at 92.5 cents. Then Liberals began talking about necessary imports going up in price and are referring to the devaluation as leading to "economic disaster," said Mr. Monteith.

"The Liberal party is trying to create chaos," said Mr. Monteith. "We are given a very clear picture. At least, the Conservative record is straightforward. It is honest and consistent."

Mr. Monteith said that the devaluation of the dollar would have the end result of "boosting" Canadian industry, creating more jobs for Canadians and improving the trade surplus.

"Don't let the Liberal talk fool you," warned Mr. Monteith, "Our dollar is worth just as much as it ever was if you buy a Canadian article."

Mr. Monteith forecast that the Progressive-Conservative party would "win across Canada" in next Monday's election. He urged his listeners to return Lee Grills, P.C. candidate for Hastings South, to Parliament.

TRIBUTE TO GRILLS

"A man of outstanding ability and sincere", he concluded "he has represented the people of Hastings South in a manner they haven't been represented in years."

Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A for Hastings West, also referred to Lee Grills as "a hard worker for his constituency and said that he was "willing to do anything for anybody at anytime".

Mr. Grills speaking briefly said that he had been visiting industrial plants in the Trenton area, but only in recent weeks but at least once a year since he was elected to parliament.

"But I haven't arranged for a photographer to follow me around," he commented.

Last week, at the Bata Shoe Company, Mr. Grills said that he had been told that 110 workers from the required training were needed.

"Right here in Trenton the government is building up an educational training addition to the high school where special training will be given," said Mr. Grills, "Our government gives action — not promises."

Preceding the rally, which was held in the upper auditorium of the Trenton Community Gardens, a parade through the streets of Trenton was held. Groups of majorettes vited with Kilties and other bands drew attention from the groups of people lining the streets. Leading the colorful Tuesday parade units was the Trenton Sea Cadet Band. Children along the way were given free balloons.

Attention - getters were two small miniature horses near the head of the parade.

At the gardens, enthusiasm ran high and speakers were forced to pause from time to time while the crowd registered its approval of their remarks.

Mr. Monteith was welcomed to the town by acting mayor, Councillor Claude Graham.

Other speakers were Jack Ireland, president of the South Hastings Progressive-Conservative Association; R. J. Whitney, former M.P. for Trenton association and Douglas Whitney, secretary of the local organization. Mrs. Parker Reid acted as chairman for the evening.

TO ST. CATHARINES

SUDBURY (CP) — Sudbury public school board has accepted the application of public school superintendent George Cowan of Port Credit, Ont., to replace public school inspector J. M. Telford. Mr. Telford has accepted a similar position in St. Catharines for the 1962-63 term.

Farmer Injured When Horses Are Frightened

TRENTON — Stanley Downe 44, of R. R. 3, Trenton is reported to be in satisfactory condition at Trenton Memorial Hospital following an accident at his home last evening. He was hitching a team of horses to the mower when they became frightened and ran away. Mr. Downe held on to the lines and became entangled in the mower.

Mrs. Downe, who is a captain in the Ready Pees, sustained body bruises and a gash on the back of his head but suffered no broken bones.

CAR ROLLS OVER

Provincial police at Brighton report that Harold Hazlewood, 19, Trenton received minor injury when his car rolled over on the Cashman Road around 7 p.m. last night. The 1952 model car is considered to be a write-off.

$2,000 Damage In House Fire

TRENTON — A house fire in Trenton on Monday caused about $2,000 damage. The house, owned by Mrs. Arthur Wright, 41 Dundas Street, was being redecorated, and was unoccupied at the time. Mrs. Wright was spending the night with neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Brown. The ground floor of the Wright house had been cleared of furniture.

The Ontrom family discovered the fire and reported by phone, Sgt. Gordon Steenburg and Constable Roger Camp, of the Trenton Police were near-by in a cruiser. They sped to the scene, and Sgt. Steenburg, using Mrs. Wright, who is 73, might be inside, broke through the front door.

Chief Cecil Ellis, of Trenton Fire Department said the fire appeared confined to the freshly-painted surface. Most of the furniture in the house had been removed by the smoke. Chief Ellis thinks the fire started in a chesterfield.

Orangemen Urged to Back Union Jack

HALIFAX (CP) — Orangemen should work to establish the Union Jack as Canada's national flag because it represents the Queen, Rev. W. S. R. Crossley of Belfast, Ireland, told the annual convention of the Loyal Orange Order of British American Wednesday.

The Irishman urged Orangemen to make God Save the Queen the national anthem of Canada and maintain the high principles of the Protestant faith.

fect our thinking."

Of Mine - Mill's pledge to maintain 808 as a Mine - Mill local, whether they lose bargaining rights or not, Manick said: "It would just be a society with no powers. Mine-Mill is going to stay. It is tough enough to grab all the property and money."

Smith said the vote was no victory for Steel—it would do the Steelworkers union "no harm."

"They claimed throughout the campaign they were a liberation movement, that they were asked by the workers to come in," he said. "This vote certainly does not indicate that many people wanted to be liberated."

Smith said that in view of the result he is confident Mine-Mill will "sweep" a vote of workers at Falconbridge Nickel Mines Limited. No date has been set for such a vote.

He said, however, that in view of evidence produced by Mine-Mill that there was forgery in the signing of Steel cards, he doubts that a vote will even be held at Falconbridge.

A labor relations board hearing into Mine-Mill charges in the Falconbridge application for Steel resumes next Tuesday.

USE AS SHELTER

TORONTO (CP)—The transit commission has approved in principle a proposal to use the subway system into a huge fallout shelter capable of accommodating 150,000 persons. However, J. G. Ingilis, general manager, said Tuesday the commission won't pay any of the estimated $870,000 cost.

clubs on impending raids.

He said the bookie said Crocrock's warning had saved him in one raid. Sgt. Bryan said he passed on McGroarty's disclosure to the St. Catharines police chief who suggested using McGroarty as a trap.

The sergeant said he pointed out to McGroarty that such action would leave McGroarty in the open where he would be known to gamblers as a stool pigeon and be of no further use to police.

A two-man morality squad would be formed to trap whoever was warning gamblers.

Sgt. Bryan said Crocock was subsequently made a patrol sergeant—"he had been getting good reports from his ser-

Sgt. Bryan said he passed on McGroarty's story of gambling operations to Chief Inspector Harold Graham of the provincial police in Toronto, on May 26, 1951. Insp. Graham asked Sgt. Bryan if it would be possible to have a detective from his office talk with McGroarty. A meeting was arranged the following day and McGroarty met Sgt. Bryan, another member of the St. Catharines morality squad and a constable.

McGroarty had told Sgt. Bryan earlier, the officer testified, that he wanted as a witness he would not lie, nor would he give evidence—preferring a jail sentence to perjury. Under the reprisal he felt certain would follow.

Sgt. Bryan said McGroarty told him several times Sgt. Crocock had asked to see Baldon and on half a dozen occasions he had seen Crocock handed a white envelope.

Baldon admitted Wednesday once possessing three pairs of loaded dice, but denied almost everything else before the commission.

And the dice weren't even his, he claimed. Police found them in a raid on his St. Catharines house but he explained that. He said he confiscated them from a cheater.

At the end of their bouts with him, Mr. MacKinnon and New Democratic Party Leader Hazen Sclime threw up their hands and said it was no use going further with him. Mr. MacKinnon, W. D. Roach, the commissioner, rose to his feet and turned him loose "for the time being".

The Liberal counsel at one stage said Baldon should be cited for contempt of court, but this was not pursued. He also suggested the possibility Baldon might be jailed for perjury.

McGroarty's testimony included the statement that for a time Joseph McDermot and Vincent Feely of Hamilton, a weekly dice game in St. Catharines while trying to reach an arrangement with police there and that the game had been bankrolled with $60,000 cash delivered in a suitcase from Toronto.

McGroarty testified Baldon had told him the crap game was run by himself with the bankroll of the two reputed Ontario gambling figures, and that Baldon said that he had only "walked in and out" of the club a few times and had never seen a bank game going.

He likewise described close connections with the two big gamblers—stating that "laying off" occasional bets with Baldon's brother-in-law, McDermot when he was overloaded—and he could not remember whether or not he might have talked to McDermott since last Sunday.

However, he did recall getting a call from McDermott since he was subpoenaed by the commission April 27, general leader of which was that each wondered "what this was all about" and observed it was a "shame" that the families of the gamblers had to "go through all this."

He added, "I didn't kill nobody, what the heck."

Baldon knew nothing of a bankroll of $60,000 or "big shot" at a motel in Toronto at which McGroarty said frantic calls had been put through with Baldon getting the Niagara district nights.

The only "gamblers" he had met in a Toronto motel, the witness said, were a couple of Niagara area bowling alley owners who liked to gamble but who were in Toronto with Baldon—who had testified he bowls for money—to attend a bowling tournament.

Baldon's repudiation of his former sheet-writer's account of payoffs to two provincial policemen involved, as he told it, an elaborate hoax to convince McGroarty he had influence with police and could protect him at a time—when the then employee was threatening to call in fear of arrest in 1950.

Baldon testified he—actually was arrested and pleaded guilty to a gaming charge later —had testified he was given $500 by Baldon and tossed it into the air. He accompanied truck on a St. Catharines street for then constables Kenneth Lamorie and Carmen Lawrence in the OPP, whom he saw in the back of the vehicle at the time.

Lamorie and Lawrence resigned from the OPP shortly after that when they came under suspicion of gambling operations, but they have denied before the commission that they took part in any fixes.

Baldon's story was that he gave the money to McGroarty's shadowed him as he put it in the police car to be borrowed for the occasion and then taken away.

He said he told McGroarty all about the deception a year ago but that McGroarty—now out of work and on public welfare—had been threatening him with exposure for the last six months and trying to get money out of him as the result of the incident.

"He's a liar," the bookie said.

Kept from the hearing chamber while McGroarty testified, Baldon apparently was unaware that commission counsel Roland F. Wilson had told the Inquiry he will bring in evidence later to show the truck incident was a put-up matching.

Baldon said he had borrowed it from an odd-jobs man.

He denied McGroarty testimony that he took payoffs from a group of Hamilton bookies as distributor for tipoffs on police raids. McGroarty said he understood he was to collect a piece per month.

The Hamilton accountant told the commission Wednesday he "guessed" any who did not pay would be raided. He said the Baldon had an "arrangement" with a sergeant on a St. Catharines city police whose name he could not pronounce or spell and whom he had even talked to Baldon.

On one occasion a bookie named Pat Mailey apparently had refused to pay and Baldon had said, "he'll get it." The man was raided next day by the sergeant, he said.

Baldon was not asked about his duties during his stay on the stand.

Another McGroarty allegation that Baldon denied was that he had predicted an insurance that Deputy Commission James Sinclair and the OPP would have a heart attack after his appearance before the commission, during which he denied certain gamblers' allegations related to the commission and that he had accepted money for tipoffs on raids.

McGroarty also said Baldon had forecast the early retirement of Mr. Boyce—Col No. 2 OPP man, who testified that Baldon took $1,000 in a flowered pot after a visit to his home by McDermott and Feeley but said it is to them by intermediaries.

The commission has traced the $1,000 through the hands of two go-betweens, but the trail ended with the money in the hands of a man now dead. The two gamblers have not yet been asked about it.)

CNIB Opens Coffee Shop In New Federal Building

Employees and visitors at the new Federal Building in Belleville will be able to have their coffee breaks almost right on the job, with the official opening this morning of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind coffee shop and snack bar in the basement.

The coffee shop was officially opened by Lt. Col. Everett Fairman, E.D., immediate past chairman of the CNIB advisory board for the blind.

The staff of the coffee shop, Mr. Fairman said it would provide the dual purpose of providing a service to the public and at the same time give employment for blind people who otherwise have few opportunities for self-employment.

He noted that across Canada the CNIB is providing a friendly service to thousands of Canadians.

Mr. Fairman paid tribute to the Federal Department of Public Works and particularly the public works chairman, J. McCallum who, he said had been most thoughtful during the planning of the Belleville refreshment stand. He also paid tribute to Mr. Preston Timmins, field secretary for the CNIB, and his role in establishing the snack bar.

Three Placed On Suspended Sentences

Two Prince Edward County youths and a Middleton Park youth were each placed on suspended sentence for two years when they appeared in county court here this morning charged with breaking, entering and theft, from the 6HD groceteria on Bond Street.

Leonard J. Whatham and John W. Barratt of Prince Edward County and Gordon Marshall of Middleton Park, pleaded guilty to the charge and elected to be tried by the magistrate.

Goods in the amount of $144.31 consisting of cigarettes, clothing, watches and chocolate bars, were found in the boys' possession.

Constable K. Williamson said the boys had been returned and there was no apparent damage to the groceteria. He said entry had been gained through a screen window, which had been pried open by a small screwdriver. All three were apprehended at the scene.

Magistrate Wills said in passing sentence the three boys would have to pay the court costs of five dollars each and were to be paid in one month by money earned by them.

Resume of Veterans' Land Act Given at Recent Legion Meet

At the recent meeting of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 26, held at the Legion Hall on Tuesday evening, Mr. Theobald of the VLA organization, from Kingston, gave a resume of recent changes to the Veterans' Land Act legislation.

The president, Alex Digby, who presided, reported that plans for Legion Week in Belleville were well in hand. It will be held from next Sunday (June 19) to Saturday (June 25). This week will open with a church parade next Sunday, morning. This will be attended by Branch 99 and the Ladies' Auxiliary, also Col. F. H. Wills ex-service women's branch. The parades will form up at the Legion Hall at 10.30 a.m. and will march to the Salvation Army Citadel with the Salvation Army band leading the parade.

TEN NEW MEMBERS

Ten new members were initiated into the branch and membership chairman Dick Kirby reported that two members had transferred from other branches.

A letter from George Ellarby tendering his resignation as service officer was read. Gerald Ellarby had occupied this position for many years and only ill health had driven him to have to give up the job to a younger man. The resignation was accepted with much regret on behalf of the members, who expressed their appreciation for many years of selling service that had been given by him.

COL. WILLS ANNUAL NIGHT

Monday will be Col. Wills branch night when they will hold their annual smoker, speeding and will be inviting veterans from the surrounding branches as their guests. A letter was read from the women's branch inviting all members of the branch of ex-service to meet with them that evening.

On Tuesday afternoon the Ladies' Auxiliary will be holding a tea and sale of work which they hope will be well patronized by the ladies of the general public. In the evening there will be holding their regular meeting with several guests present.

BAND CONCERT ARRANGED

A band concert has been arranged for Wednesday evening. This will feature the Trenton Memorial Command of the R.C.A.F. from Trenton, and in order to accommodate the No. 6 Repair Depot R.C.A.F. band, the Trenton Legion Pipe band, the Trenton Air Cadet band, the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans pipe band and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regt. band. Also performing will be three boys' bugle corps under the direction of Bandmaster Fred Hend-ricks-Chapman and Preddington. Introduction to the band concert will be Ken Wilson, a person with children accompanied by parents, being admitted free.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will be holding a public euchre on the Thursday evening and on the Friday evening the Branch will be holding a Sports night.

OPEN NEW BUILDING

The Provincial President of Ontario Command of the Royal Canadian Legion, Comrade Clarence Wood, will be in Belleville on 23rd June to officially open the new building extension. This will take place at 2 p.m. and all citizens are invited to attend in order to witness this important function and to look over the new Legion quarters. In the evening the Ontario President will be the guest speaker at a banquet and dance in the Legion Hall. A few tickets will be available at $2.00 per person.

HOUSE CHAIRMAN INSTALLED

Norm Hardwick was elected to the executive committee as chairman of the house committee and was installed by President Les Digby. The new house chairman reported that everything would be in good shape for the official opening. The entertainment committee reported that the regular weekly dances would be discontinued during the months of July and August, but would resume again in September. The Pot of Gold which should reach $35 by the last night (June 30th) would then be drawn until someone won it, that night from among the members who were in attendance.

War Veterans To Hold Sports Meet

About 500 veterans from all across Ontario are expected to be in Belleville on Saturday when Branch 201 of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Canada will play host to the Provincial Command Sports meet.

The meet, an annual affair, was last held in Belleville five years ago and proved a large success. Local ANAF members but a few years ago held the event and this year's meet will be as successful as the last.

The varied sports program includes competition in darts, horse shoes, lawn bowling, snooker and billiards. Play will go all day long.

Most of the activity will take place at the ANAF clubrooms but a transportation has been made to hold the snooker and billiards competitions at Lafferty's billiards. Starting at 10.00 a.m. to 5.00 p.m.

Prizes, part of the day, and the presentations, will be held in the evening.

Should Pay Hocker Players

Twelve members of the McFarlands senior hockey club which won the world amateur championship in Prague in early 1959 will not collect back salaries.

The city council on Monday voted against the payment of $7,606 back pay claimed by these players.

As is well known, the club in three years of operation showed a deficit of $100,000 which launched a judicial enquiry into the city's financial position. The enquiry revealed a lot more than a hockey deficit.

Judge E. Willmott, who conducted the enquiry, said in his report that there was no legal basis for payment of the hockey players' claims.

Yet the city, in its special levy assessed against taxpayers to pay off the city's floating indebtedness, included the amount of $9,305.29 to cover the hockey players' claims.

Two sets of figures were submitted to the city treasurer by the players. The first was an amount less than included in the special levy. The second was more.

That in our opinion is neither here nor there. It would seem the city has admitted the debt by including the sum of $9,305.29 to be, quote: "the amount recorded and included in the city's floating indebtedness for hockey players' claims." It was approved by the Ontario Municipal Board.

This amount has been, or is being collected from the taxpayers for the purpose of paying hockey players' claims. Inclusion of the amount in the levy indicates that at the time the city intended to pay the players' back salaries.

One alderman stated that payments of the claims would be a "flagrant misuse of public funds." What does one call the collection of a special levy for a certain purpose that will not be used for that purpose?

The hockey players are not to blame. They were hired under the existing circumstances and could not foresee the future. The subsequent enquiry into the city's financial condition was no fault of theirs.

We believe they are entitled to back salaries because we feel the city has a moral obligation, and it has been fit to include the amount in a special levy on the taxpayers.

May Be "For Keeps"

The way in which Quebec residents vote on June 18 will largely decide which party will govern Canada for the next four or five years.

That makes Monday's balloting in Quebec important enough—but it may easily prove to have a much greater significance than merely deciding this particular election.

Maurice Chaput, separatist leader, has announced that his Rassemblement Pour l'Indépendence Nationale will become a political party. There are some who maintain that the separatist tide is already ebbing. If, however, this judgment proves wrong, Chaput's movement could easily become a powerful political factor before the next Federal election.

What parties would lose by the establishment of such a separatist party?

The New Democrats' founding convention almost fell over backwards trying to cater to French nationalism, but in practice any socialistic regime would have to be centralist in nature. The New Democrats do not have many voters to lose, in any case, but the rise of a separatist political party would choke off any faint hopes they may have of gaining future strength in Quebec.

Social Credit is making a strong showing in pre-election manoeuvres. If it does as well at the polls as some predict, it may play an important role in Quebec politics for years to come. Socred governments in British Columbia and Alberta have shown marked independence and Socreds in Quebec could probably adjust themselves to a demand for separatism. Thus their fortunes might not suffer too heavily.

This leaves the two main parties in Federal politics, the Conservatives and the Liberals. Many of the leading Conservatives followed the Union Nationale banner in provincial politics and would appear to be susceptible to the appeal of separatism. The Federal Liberal party, while certainly opposed to separatism, has a long history of accommodating itself and its policies to Quebec desires and must number amongst its supporters many who have separatist sympathies.

It follows that if either of these major parties suffers a severe defeat in Quebec at this election, it may be in danger of losing many of its supporters to Chaput by the time the next Federal vote rolls around.

It is therefore just barely possible that the two big parties are literally "playing for keeps" in the federal election.

Ottawa Offbeat

Campaigners Find Rallies Imperilled by Television

By RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Few people are as far apart on most things in this campaign as the "Back-Room Boys" of the two major parties.

But on one thing at least, the Conservative and Liberal strategists are agreed . . . and that is that both party leaders have literally gone behind closed doors in their campaigning.

It has been all the electronic gadgetry, they insist, that has discouraged them from the rallies of both Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson in the big key cities.

In previous elections, it has been the fire that has been kindling at the big mass rallies in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto and Ottawa that has provided climax for the whole campaign.

They say the tone and pace. But not this time.

The Prime Minister's well-advertised recording gaffe at London, which had been planned to shift the campaign to one night only in each city, fell flat.

And the Pearson "Bigtown" blast at Toronto hardly launched a rocket.

FENCES OFF

Like it or not, everyone — and that is essentially what Diefenbaker and Pearson are — is on the stump — they respond to a crowd.

It is a mutual thing.

The crowd warms to the platform and the platform to the crowd, one firing up the other.

But there has to be communication.

They have to be able to see each other.

And at London the Prime Minister could not see the crowd, nor could the crowd him.

There was a thick forest of television and radio microphones between them . . . and to completely obscure the view, impeding the flow of the speakers are the "eyes" on the platform with the live crowd, they can hear only "hoot" on the air.

The Prime Minister's London kick-off gave his campaign a slow start, and the "Back-Room Boys" decided that in this three TV and near-dozen radio ridings, they'd "kick them off" so effectively from the crowd as to box him up in front of the TV cameras for purposes amounted to their own electronic "audition booth."

And it has been happening like that to both leaders since, wherever they have accompanied the big centres where there are multiple TV and radio outlets.

In the smaller centres, both men are more en rapport with their crowds, and one on two radio mikes at the lectern don't intrude on the mood of friendly communication.

There has been some suggestion at party headquarters here in the Capital where the campaign are planned, schedul-ed and road-tested in future, in the big cities where radio and television are involved, that rallies may be required to "pool" their coverage.

The idea of a central hub has had to fall back on the "pool" system coverage of some of the larger national news events such as Royal Visits, presidential visits, state funerals and interviews with visiting heads-of-governments, and not too, in future, may TV and radio.

Strictly Personal

Humanity - How It Malfunctions

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The most productive research has always come from investigating things people consider so well known that they aren't worth investigating. It is usually revolutions in knowledge have come from scrutinizing the "obvious."

The uncouth can be made comfortable, but only the civilized . . . and so to move in an atmosphere of false refinement is to be ill-at-ease.

If some people didn't suffer, they wouldn't know they're alive. And a great deal of that is personality quivers only in response to pain.

It is a mistake to believe that "happy marriages" is one in which the husband and wife see eye to eye — it is, rather, one in which the husband and wife see things differently, but are able to interpret and communicate the differences to one another, thus achieving an added angle of vision to both.

One of the most splendid and durable definitions of politics was given by Aneurin Aneringer nearly a half-century ago, when he said: "Politics is the art of obtaining money from the rich and votes from the poor on the pretext of protecting each from the other.

We speak of the "problem of leisure" in our modern society, but the startling fact is that there is less leisure now than there was during the Middle Ages, when almost half the year consisted of holidays and festivals.

When most of us speak of being "open-minded," it reminds me of the old Scottish theologian who said that he was entirely open to conviction, but would like to see anybody who could convince him.

It is a curious psychological truth that if we want to make people cry, we must put on a sad aspect, but if we want them to laugh, we cannot put on a merry one — the more effective comics are those who maintain a serious and even solemn face. Empathy, it seems, is at the heart of sorrow, but contrast is the core of humor.

Victor Hugo said of Napoleon that finally "God was bored by him" — which is perhaps the most fitting epitaph for any swaggering conqueror.

Vegetarians' devoutly believe that "you are what you eat," which may account for the fact that most vegetarians look like the food they eat.

It is a mistake to engage in any competitive activity that comes hard to us, because the person to whom it comes easily will always beat us at it.

Smoking a filtered and menthol-iated cigarette is, in my view, about as satisfactory as caressing a girl with your gloves on.

Quebec Bigger Than Nations

Quebec City L'Action Catholique

Simply thumbling through statistics raises a thought: In seven-years, no fewer than 45 territories have come into the world, formerly colonies of one country or another, have attained independence and have become at least in theory free.

From the points of view of both area and population, whereas would Quebec rank if it were to become an independent member of the world organization?

We can base our answer on the 1961 statistics, the last quarter itself: Out of 104 member nations, only 13 come ahead of Quebec under the heading of territorial area.

In alphabetical order they are: Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada (less Quebec), China, the Congo Republic, Congo, India, Iran, Libya, Mexico, the Sudan, the U.S.S.R. and the United States.

And in population? Among 109 states Quebec would rank fifty-sixth, that is to say halfway between the countries with massive populations and the less populous ones of which one, Iceland (172,000), does not have as many people as Quebec City.

In the face of these facts what anomaly would there be for an independent Quebec to have its seat in the United Nations, its ambassadors here and there, its delegates, particularly to mention its bank, its radio, its television etc?

A new experiment, largely dictated by the war, is having success in New Zealand. It is the production of dehydrated butter or fried butterfat, and the British Government has already contracted to take up to 5,000 tons of this product during the season.

Only pure unsalted whey butter is used in the manufacture of dry butter-fat. The butter is melted over a jet of steam and the melted fat and steam are run into a cylinder, which automatically separates the water that settles by gravity from the butter-fat under agitation. Then after going through the cream separators, the material undergoes the final process of dehydration in a vacuator. It is then subjected to the usual technique of cooling, filled into sterile canisters and sealed.

Robbers entered the Georgia Salon on Front Street, some time Monday night, and broke a silk hose valued at upwards to $1000, cashing jewelry valued at over $100.00 and cash amounting to some $25. Entrance was gained by mounting the fire escape and a heavy wire screening was removed from a large window at the rear of the premises. It was the third such robbery in Belleville during the past month; McIntosh Hall and the Artistic Ladies Wear being the other places robbed.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AND ON AND ON

Who wants war? Certainly not the common people of any country. They fight only when they pay the debts, take the punishment. It has become a cliche to declare that nobody profits by war. But there is a group who do profit, and it is they who are the leaders of certain nations. They want to gain by world control several large European nations and eventually the world.

War — unless it is defensive — has always been the attempt to implement the ambition of a few men. They want to be the sons of millions of homes to further their political ambitions. Do we have anything against the Russian people, or do they have anything against us? Of course not. Next to Canada and Mexico, Russia is our closest neighbor geographically, for only a comparatively few miles of water separate Alaska from Siberia. Their desires and aspirations are very much the same as ours.

But Russia has leaders who must fulfill their personal political ambitions. The people of Russia must be taught by these leaders that Americans and Americans are their enemies.

Most of the world's evil rises from the design and devilry of a comparatively few men. Criminals are comparatively few in number. So are ideological communists.

Let us never give in either to the threats or blandishments of this gang. An inch today means a foot tomorrow, a yard next week, a mile next month.

Cancer Is Not Contagious Nor Is It Catching

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I thought it was decided years ago that cancer is not contagious.

I recently had my larynx removed and a few people have actually been unkind to me. Small things, to be sure. In a showdown, one person said cancer is contagious and she had been told to be careful of me.

Please comment on the effect such treatment will have on a laryngectomee. Also food handled by a laryngectomee — need anyone be fearful of that? — Mrs. P.W.

A letter like this makes me very sad indeed. And mad. It should annoy every intelligent person. Yet the ill-informed keep passing around the totally unfounded, thoughtless gossip or rumor that cancer is contagious.

I know many laryngectomees (people who have had their larynx removed. Even one doctor. I have come in close personal contact with any number of patients who have, or used to have cancer. I, myself, accidently could have had cancer long ago when I was told about every doctor in the world.

Cancer is not contagious. For the benefit of those who talk or don't like words of more than one syllable, cancer is not catching. Do I make myself clear?

There is a lot we don't know about cancer. There is much that we do. Mice (and rats aren't men) can be bred so that certain strains of them will always develop cancer sooner or later. In them, cancers of certain types can be transplanted, and the cancers will grow. Then the mice "have cancer." But this cannot be done by mere planting. It doesn't mean that cancer can be passed by putting healthy mice in the same cage with mice having cancer. Or sharing their food and drink. Being steady with them — whatever that may mean — is safe.

Not so very long ago some courageous inmates of the Ohio state penitentiary at Columbus volunteered to let cancer cells be transplanted into their bodies. Did they get cancer? No!

It takes some curious set of conditions for a person or an animal to get cancer: Age, heredity, irritants, chemical circumstances, probably some particular kind of hitherto unknown virus. Then the tissues and son on. It isn't contagious. It isn't catching.

Don't like to belabor the point, because it shouldn't be necessary, but unfortunately it is one of many proving that we do have to make this fact clear.

Oldest case of cancer, cancer or even people cured of cancer: Are the great ones known by word of mouth by acquaintances who shun them, refuse to eat with them, and so on.

As to laryngectomees, since the larynx is removed, they must learn a new way of speech. It's difficult, but not impossible. Their "throats" make life harder by "being careful" of these people, things become much more difficult for them. It's like a boy at a school party who says to a girl, "You can't dance very well but I'll try to dance with you anyway." How does the girl feel? Doesn't she have two left feet? Certainly! The same thing goes for a struggling laryngectomee. Any readers who have thought that cancer is "catching," I'd like to take today's words to heart.

Britons Like Arctic Char

Ottawa Journal

Arctic char is to make its first appearance on menus in Britain this year. Last year a 600-pound sample shipment of the delicacy from northern seas was distributed among several London restaurants. The success led a British fish broker to order 10,000 pounds of this year's catch. The char are shipped frozen, from Montreal this month.

By its Zekimo name, "Ekaluit," (a special fish) the char will be an exotic attraction in a land that gives its favorite foods such homely names as "bangers" and that will be the first to ask if an Arctic char is a woman who comes in once a week to do the fglo-cleaning?

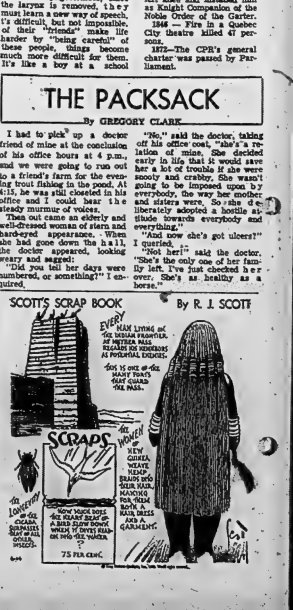
THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

I had to pick up a doctor friend of mine at the corner of his office hours at 4 p.m., and we were going to run out to a friend's farm for the evening. I had left the office at 4:15, he was still closeted in his office and I could hear the steady murmur of voices.

Then out came an elderly and well-dressed woman of rather a hard-eyed appearance. When she had gone down the hall, the doctor appeared, looking weary and sagged:



"Old pal, my best days were numbered, or something!" I enquired.

"No," said the doctor, taking a deep breath, "she's a relation of mine. She decided early in life, that it would save her a lot of trouble if she was snooty and crabby. She wasn't that by nature, but people bully everybody, the way her mother and sisters were. So she deliberately adopted a hostile attitude towards everybody and succeeded.

"And now she's got ulcers!"

I queried.

"Not her!" said the doctor. "She's the only one of her family I've not checked her over. She's as healthy as a horse."

Lt.-Gen. John Gerhart, Chief of NORAD July 31, Wants to Meet All Troops

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The new chief of the North American Air Defence system is a tall, slender, battle - hardened pilot who believes the first thing a commander ought to do is have a close look at the troops.

So just as soon as he takes over command from Gen. Laurence S. Kuter July 31, Lt.-Gen. John Koehler Gerhart will fly into the Canadian north to make an on - the - spot inspection of the radar lines on the frontier of Canada - U.S. defences; look over the various interceptor squadrons and Bomarc stations and decide what priority he should give to any improvements needed.

But even before he formally takes over Norad command, the 56-year-old general expects a clear-cut ideas of urgent needs. They fall into line with views held by Kuter that perhaps of greatest urgency is development of an effective defence against long - range nuclear missiles.

Gerhart, who until his new appointment was the U.S. air Force deputy chief of staff for plans and programs, also places great stress on finding ways of fitting off a potential enemy attack in outer space.

NEW NORAD COMMANDER—Lt. Gen. John Koehler Gerhart, new chief of North American Air Defence Command, is a battle-hardened pilot. Gen. Gerhart, 54, who takes over Norad command July 31 from Gen. Laurence Kuter, plans an one-the-spot inspection of Canadian northern radar and other defence installations. (CP Photo)

SPACE DEFENCE.

"We're on the threshold; just in the infancy of our military effort in space but space is part of Norad defence and we've got to be able to operate there," Gerhart said in an interview.

"Nothing the Russians have done so far reduces the essential need of space defence."

As for the general tension in East - West relations, Gerhart believes the cold war "hasn't changed much in the last few years." The U.S., he says, has tried strenuously to get disarmament "but I don't see anything in the Soviet attitude to warrant optimism."

Generally, Gerhart tries to avoid publicity. He considers he the man who will have operational control over all the Canadian and American air defences, the amiable, soft - spoken airborne is mainly interested in the efficiency of his team.

And he wants to get along with the Canadians.

"I know Canadians; I like them and I am looking forward to the utmost co-operation from them," he said as he leaned back from lunch at the Pentagon desk, his sleeker, 158-pound frame encased in a uniform that carried five rows of ribbons, including honors won flying bomber missions over Germany.

LIKES OUTDOORS

Married but childless, Gerhart is an enthusiastic fond of trout and salmon, fishing, skiing and golf. On one office wall is an enlarged photograph of the general curving down a ski slope. At home the Gerharts have two French poodles: one black, the other white.

"Yes, I believe nuclear warheads should definitely be considered a part of the North American defence arsenal," he said. "But I wouldn't want to rely solely on nuclear weapons; defence has to be flexible and not inhibited."

Gerhart, a native of Saginaw, Mich., with 34 years of air force experience, declined to expand on his nuclear views because the U.S. is a matter of controversy both in Canada and the U.S.

In the same way, he cautiously avoided expressing views on what the interceptor planes to be between missiles and manned aircraft in North American defence. He observed, however, that there is considerable divergence of opinion on the issue right in the U.S. defence department.

PROBLEMS CUT OUT

He believes that despite the warning by Soviet Premier Khrushchev that Russia now had a global rocket, the north-ern Arctic wastelands could still be the old road of a major attack. Of considerable concern, however, is the increasing possibility that Russia could launch a surprise nuclear attack from nuclear submarines off the North American coasts.

So Gerhart has his problems cut out for him. He feels that though Canadian and American defences have moved out of the subsonic and into the supersonic era there is a need for retaining the jet interceptor rangeto engage the enemy as far out as possible."

Aircraft forms a deep part of Gerhart's life. He flight-tested bombers and fighters before the Second World War. He was one of America's first glider test pilots and commanded a combat bomb wing of Flying Fortresses over Germany in 1943.

In 1951 he was chief of staff of Project Greenhouse which conducted thermonuclear tests over the Pacific.

"We fired the first U.S. thermonuclear device," said Gerhart, "It wasn't a completed bomb but these tests proved the possibility of thermonuclear weapons."

Business Briefs

OTTAWA (CP)—A total of 832 Canadian businesses failed during the first three months of this year, compared with 739 in last year's first quarter.

The bureau of statistics said the largest number of failures was among trading companies, 407, of which closed their doors. Some 90 manufacturing companies and 327 construction companies also failed.

Canadian producers sold 36,407 radio receivers in April, down 3,998 from sales in April last year. Sales of television sets increased to 35,674 sets from 30,898 in April, 1961.

Tenders in Canada received 194,425 cow hides in April, up 18,436 from the like 1961 month.

Production in Canada of veneers during April was 89,878,000 square feet compared with 64,734,000 a year earlier. Plywood production in April rose to 164,724,000 square feet from 140,331,000 in April last year.

Canadians smoked about 767,272,000 more cigarettes in the first quarter of 1962 than in last. Tax-paid withdrawal of cigarettes for consumption rose 9,323,130,000 in the three-month period from 8,755,858,000 in last year's first quarter.

Production of pulpwood in Canada was 30,678 rough cords in April, up 76,831 from year-earlier output.

Trenton Firm Given $1627 In Damages

Special damages of $627.45 and general damages of $1,000 were awarded to the C. H. Hilton Company Limited, via record ter by Judge W. S Lane here Wednesday at the General Sessions of the Peace and Jury Sittings.

The damages were assessed against the defendant, Donald Beckett, while the action was dismissed against the third party defendant, Daniel Reily.

Evidence was that Mr. Hilton, president of the C. H. Hilton Company Limited, was proceeding west towards Trenton from Belleville when his truck was struck head-on by an eastbound car driven by Donald Beckett.

Mr. Hilton told the court that he was snowing at the time and he could not see the eastbound car approaching him. He said it suddenly seemed to go out of control, swerved across the road and struck his vehicle.

Almost instantly he said, Mr. Hilton's wife, Mrs. Lella Hilton was injured as a result of the accident. She suffered an injury to her left knee which were injured as a result of striking the dashboard of the truck, while she was riding.

The accident occurred last December.

No one was injured in either of the other two vehicles.

Will 'Talk Up' Loose European Union Scheme

By HAROLD KING

PARIS (Reuter) — French President de Gaulle headed into another provincial tour of France today to talk up his scheme for a loose European political union—but with more emphasis than half the National Assembly to walk out in protest Wednesday.

The tour of southeastern France will last four days.

"A reason given for the walkout was the government's refusal to allow a vote at the end of the debate. But a statement issued by one of the deputies before the mass exodus hit de Gaulle's "anti-European" policy and called for a political integrated Europe, to be brought about by gradual stages.

TRADE AWAY

During his flying visit to southeastern France this week de Gaulle also is expected to quash the idea he will fade out politically life once the Algerian problem is settled.

ROONEY BANKRUPT

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Mickey Rooney filed petitions of voluntary bankruptcy in federal court Tue day, listing debts of $484,314 and assets of $500, all of household goods and clothes.

Ronald Turpin To Be Hanged September 25

TORONTO (CP) — Ronald Turpin, 28, has been convicted of murder in the shooting of a Metropolitan Toronto policeman, Mr. Justice G. A. Gale of the Supreme Court of Ontario sentenced him to be hanged Sept. 25.

Const. Fred Nash was slain in a gun battle in the early hours of July 4 on an east-end street.

Testifying in his own defence, Turpin admitted shooting the policeman but claimed he did it only in self-defence after the policeman fired at him first.

The jury brought in the verdict after deliberating almost six hours. There was no recommendation for mercy.

The Crown alleged Turpin shot Const. Nash, 31, while attempting to escape arrest for a $631 restaurant burglary.

Peterborough Woman Killed

NEWCASTLE, Ont. (CP)—A young Peterborough mother was killed Wednesday night and six other persons were injured in a highway accident about 12 miles north of this Lake Ontario community.

Mrs. Carol Ann McDougall, 25, of Peterborough was killed, leaving her husband, Clarence, a five-year-old daughter and three-year-old son.

Three other Peterborough girls, Cathy Condon, 20, Irene Corbeil, 18, and her sister Yvonne, 23, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Quarrington of Ottawa and Nicholas Hall, 32, of Hamilton were admitted to hospital in nearby Bowmanville.

Hospital officials said Yvonne Corbeil was in serious condition with severe fractures.

Police said two cars collided on the highway and two others following smashed into the wreckage.

SCHEDULE NUCLEAR BLAST

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) An underground nuclear explosion to learn if heavy stemplant can be recovered from such blast has been scheduled for mid-1963 near Carlsbad, N.M.

The Atomic Energy Commission said Wednesday the new test, Project Coach, would be fired off in the same potash salt dome which was used last December in the Project Gnome explosion.

HIS ARM BACK ON AGAIN — Everett Knowles, Jr., 12, has wound where his right arm was grafted back to his body inspected by Dr. Ronald A. Malt at Massachusetts General Hospital. The Somerville, Mass., schoolboy had arm cut off by a train May 23. A team of surgeons reattached arm to body minutes afterwards in an operation that made medical history. Skin graft and stitches can be seen on upper right arm. Knowles is discharged from hospital but will undergo further treatment later. (AP Wirephoto).

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Other high scores were: James Hunsinger 23, Doug Johnston 23, Gary Cranston 22, Gordon Boldrick 22, George Hammett 21, Earl Martin 21, Dick Thompson 21, Bob McPherson 20, G. Hart 20, Harry Farnell 20.

Maritimes Voted With Govt. In 19 of 24 Federal Elections Held Since Confederation

By DAL WARRINGTON

HALIFAX (CP) — As the Maritimes, go, so goes Canada. At least that's the way it went in 19 of the 24 federal elections since Confederation. Which seems to show that despite what used to be called "Maritime rights," regional issues don't influence down-East voters as much as national ones.

Sometimes a cross - wind makes the Maritime weathervane give a reading different from the national one. Confederation year itself was one such time. In the first federal election in 1867, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia (Prince Edward Island wasn't in Confederation yet) turned against Sir John A Macdonald and the Unionists although he won nationally.

Still, an eye on the early Atlantic provinces returns June 18 may give a clue to the overall result. Thanks to the time difference, counting should be well advanced in Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and P.E.I. by the time polls close to the westward.

National issues such as unemployment, medicare, defence and trade bear heavily on Maritimers. Their unemployment is the highest in the country. Federal spending and financial aid is a big factor in the artificial economy than in other regions. Export trade, or the lack of it in fish, steel, lumber or apples, can mean prosperity or stagnation.

DEVELOPMENT IS ISSUE

One Maritime issue tied closely to these national ones is regional development. Both parties have promised to set up an Atlantic Provinces Development Council to study projects designed to boost the Maritime economy and recommend federal action.

Liberal leader Pearson promises federal aid to bring up per - capita revenues of the poorer provinces, especially the Atlantic group, to the scale of Ontario and British Columbia.

T. C. Douglas, the New Democratic Party leader, and Robert Thompson, the Social Credit chief, each offers his party's solution for Atlantic development.

Other Atlantic campaign issues are more provincial. Their thought on the voters is hard to gauge.

Newfoundland: Liberal Premier Smallwood says Term 29 is a major one. He claims Mr. Diefenbaker has reneged on this clause in Newfoundland's 1949 confederation agreement providing for special grants to raise standards of provincial government services.

ALWAYS LIBERAL

Newfoundland was the only Canadian province to elect a majority of Liberals in both 1957 and 1958. With seven seats, it has always elected more than two Conservatives since becoming a province in 1949.

Prince Edward Island: The island went solidly Diefenbaker in both 1957 and 1958, giving all four seats to Conservatives. On his last visit here the prime minister promised the Islanders fulfilment of their long - time dream — a causeway to the mainland.

Conservative Premier Shaw says:

"The prime minister is the greatest friend Prince Edward Island ever had." The causeway has figured in a good many P.E.I. campaigns. Political opponents label the most recent announcement "just another election promise."

Nova Scotia: Despite a long Liberal tradition, Nova Scotians went Tory in 1957 and elected a complete 12-man Conservative slate in 1958, the first time in history. Since then coal - mine shutdowns and steel-mill layoffs have sharpened the unemployment problem.

Conservative Premier Stanfield has taken a less active part in the current federal campaign than his fellow Atlantic premiers. As for provincial Liberals, they still have a permanent leader. That post has been vacant since former premier Angus L. Macdonald died suddenly in the 1960 provincial election.

RELIGIOUS FRICTION

The Liberals are also said to be suffering from religious friction stemming from Mr. Hicks' victory over the then-premier, Harold Connolly, a Roman Catholic, at a 1954 provincial leadership convention. Mr. Hicks isan United Church member.

Nevertheless, both Mr. Connolly, now a senator, and Mr. Hicks, now vice - president of Dalhousie University, have spoken at recent Liberal rallies.

New Brunswick: This province, with a large French - speaking population, elected seven Conservatives and three Liberals last time. Liberal Premier Robichaud, an Acadian himself, has been campaigning actively.

Mr. Robichaud is especially bitter about Mr. Diefenbaker's federal-provincial tax arrangements. He says they give New Brunswick a raw deal.

The New Brunswick-inspired Chignecto Canal proposal has not raised much campaign dust. However, the prime minister, announcing his regional development council in Saint John, N.B., said he hopes the canal will be the first thing tis members will consider.

Conservatives and Liberals are running in all 23 Atlantic seats. They split them 22-1 in the 1958 Tory sweep. The NDP is contesting 17 seats. Social Credit 18, more than ever before for either group.

THREE MacDONNELLS

The old CCF never elected more than one federal member in the Atlantic provinces. Social Credit has yet to collect more than a scattering of votes.

At the constituency level these contests attract attention:

Cape Breton Highlands—This is the seat veteran CCFer Clarie Gillis, ate pilot Flemming, the former Nova Scotia premier, goes 'the election in his home riding. He switched from Liberal, another provincial seat, where he won a byelection after his government lost the 1960 provincial election.

Church Athletic Loop Promoted By Rotary Club

PICTON — A pledge to devote his full time by representing the interests of the people in the entire Edward-Lennox, regardless of creed, origin, class or creed, was made by Douglas Edwards, Progressive Conservative candidate at a rally at Waupoos, Tuesday night.

"I will seek the assistance of Agricultural organizations, municipal councils and others in presenting the needs of the Riding at Ottawa, and will work to see that this area continues to receive the benefits it should," he declared.

The Township hall proved far too small for the dance which was arranged by North Marysburgh P.C. Association. Several hundred took turns in dancing to lively music by the Grimsons Orchestra, with all packing the hall, and overflowing down the steps to hear the speakers.

Township chairman ex-Warden Calvin Hughes expressed pleasure in the attendance saying it was evidence of growing support for Mr. Aikenbrack.

Reeve Kenneth Hicks expressed confidence in the outcome of Monday's election but urged the greatest possible effort.

County Warden John Fox said "surely we are all aware of the blessings we have received from the Diefenbaker government; there is no room for the gloom and doom talk of the opposition."

Riding Association president, B. C. Hepburn said there had been a big swing in support to Mr. Aikenbrack during the past week. He said the short time since nominations were announced the candidate to do as much calling as possible had been liked, but large attendances at rallies had enabled several thousand to meet Mr. Aikenbrack. Every supporter is working to get out the vote, was his challenge.

Mr. Aikenbrack was introduced by Phil Dodds who referred to his long municipal service, leadership in community buildings and as one whose record was "seen in deeds, not just words".

Mr. and Mrs. Aikenbrack were given three cheers.

PC Candidate Promises Aid To All Classes

PICTON — Employment of a full time recreation director to tie in with a church athletic league program, such as that in Kingston, is being promoted by Picton Rotary Club. The program, would include both summer and winter programs.

The town does not have a recreation director.

Membership in the Kingston League is contingent on church and Sunday school attendance.

The program was outlined to the club on Tuesday by Harold Harvey and Ebby Hare of the church league and Rev. T. H. Good.

The Kingston league represents 87 churches and has a program for 2,400 boys and girls.

Friendly and Reassuring Smile First Thing Needed

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—A friendly and reassuring smile from Mary Sim is one of the first steps in the rehabilitation of many former prisoners, mental patients and other socially handicapped persons.

"Putting ex - con after - care on a practical dollars-and-cents basis is how Mrs. Sim, a public relations executive, describes her concept of rehabilitation.

From her small, crowded, busy office above a downtown Toronto restaurant she employs and seeks jobs for people recommended to her by such organizations as the mental health association, John Howard and Elizabeth Fry societies and private individuals.

Mrs. Sim is executive director of the newly formed Canadian Association for Industrial Rehabilitation and is director of her privately owned, non-profit printing and mailing company, Tabloid Newspaper Services, which she founded in 1956.

She sees Tabloid as a means of re - entering into the frightening atmosphere of normal working life for many who have been in jail or mental hospitals.

At Tabloid, trainees learn mechanical skills and other aspects of the printing business and at the same time adjust to working as members of a productive team.

At present two employees run Tabloids press while two work on sales. Printing jobs include envelopes, simple forms, booklets, pamphlets, letterheads, annual reports.

"Tabloid doesn't want charity. We just want orders for work at today's competitive prices and employment opportunities for trained rehabilitees in other companies.

Mrs. Sim tries to enlist as members of the association companies willing to employ ex-convicts or to contribute financial or technical support to its work.

"We are not trying to do the work of the John Howard or Elizabeth Fry societies. Rather we are trying to become an arm of these organizations in a free - enterprise manner.

At Tabloid, where the abnormal becomes normal, persons being rehabilitated are often able to help each other, she said.

A former municipal employee who had a mental breakdown arrived at Tabloid so dispirited he would barely talk. During coffee with other employees, however, he discovered his own problems were trivial by comparison. Within six weeks, Mrs. Sim said, this man had improved sufficiently to accept a responsible job elsewhere.

STEAL GOODS WORTH $15,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The apartment home of wealthy furniture dealer Max Rothman was ransacked Wednesday by thieves who made off with an estimated $15,000 worth of goods. The estimate of the loss was made by Mrs. Rothman, who said furs, antique jewelry, watches and clothing were taken. None of the valuables was insured for theft.

Dr. Lily B. Mathieson left today for Winnipeg, where she will spend ten days visiting relatives and attend the annual meeting of the Canadian Medical Association. Convention held in that city this year.

BGH 1950 Nurses Hold Reunion

The 1950 graduating class of the Belleville General Hospital, school-of-nursing, recently held a reunion at the home of Mrs. Ruth Fayerchuk, Scarborough, Ontario. There were many past events and pleasant memories to recall. Very proud recollections were the first republication of the school magazine by the class of 1950 and the designing of the school crest by Mrs. Velma Walker.

After a delightful afternoon of reminiscing, a buffet luncheon was served by the hostess. The class then proceeded to Bloor Street theatres to see "Spring Thaw". Later in the evening, dinner was enjoyed at "La Chaumiere" restaurant.

Those in attendance were: Mrs. Jessie Slater (Fox) – Guelph; Mrs. Kay Bailey (Mills) – Belleville; Mrs. Eleanor Mullin (Newman) – Kingston; Mrs. Mona Loney (Bell) – Kingston; Miss Margaret Lendesty – Oshawa; Mrs. Jessie Robinson (Finlay) – Oshawa; Mrs. Velma Walker (Middleton) – Belleville; Mrs. Eleanor Hall (Brown) – Lowe's North Bay; and Mrs. Ruth Fayerchuk (Keller) – Scarborough.

Other members who were unable to attend included Mrs. Joyce Gaskel (Polis) – Port Arthur; Miss Harriet McLean – Belleville, and Mrs. Lorraine Sack (Brant) – Scotland.

AXES BAN BELLS

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury recommended Wednesday night that bells on ice cream trucks be banned. Gregory Clark, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clark, died May 2. Ten days after he was struck by a car when he heard the bells and ran out in the street.

Reading left to right: Mrs. Mildred Machula, Batawa-Frankford District Commissioner; Donna Chase, Flrst Frankford Guide Company; Mrs. Helen Ferguson, Northumberland Division Commissioner.

Donna Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Chase, Frankford, was presented with her Gold Cord in Guiding by Mrs. Ferguson at a recent Northumberland Division rally held in Trenton Community Gardens. Mrs. Mildred Machala also attended this presentation, the highest award in Guiding. Donna, an honor grade 11 student at Quinte Secondary School, has been chosen as one of 24 Girl Guides of Ontario to tour Great Britain for five weeks this summer.

Q. Mary Guides, Brownies Hold M. and D. Banquet

Recently at the Kiwanis Centre, the Guides and approximately half as many Brownies from Queen Mary Park United church, their mothers at the annual mother and daughter banquet which climaxed the year's Guiding activities.

Seasonal flowers and the Guide and Brownie colors, blue and gold, enhanced the room. Dainty umbrels marked the places of the Brownies at the centre tables while the names of the Guides appeared on blue ensigns, with the Guiding emblem flying atop a gold pipecleaner, on the two outer rows of tables. On the display before the head table were the colorful Guide trefoil encircled with the International flags and the Brownie toadstool, complete with owl and mirror pond, made by the members of the Pack.

Mrs. Ada Steenburg, Guide Captain was chairman of the evening and introduced the head table guests which included: Mrs. D. Stewart, Division Commissioner; Mrs. J. Hunter, District Commissioner; Mrs. J. Watkin, Brown Owl; Mrs. D. Settle, Blue Trainer; Mrs. D. Wagner, Brown Owl; Mrs. D. Bannon, camp nurse; Lieut. Smith and her daughter Trina and Lieut. E. Toodwa.

BROUGHT GREETINGS

Greetings from the Division were conveyed by Mrs. Stewart who explained just what the Division meant and its purpose.

The neat appearance of the Brownies brought compliments from the former District Commissioner, Mrs. D. Settle as she spoke to the group and told those that she is now a Blue Trainer, and will be holding training periods in the fall to give the present leaders additional training and hoped that the new leaders would be attracted. An open invitation was extended to any of the mothers present to "sit in" at the training. Mrs. Settle also thanked the Guides for the surprise evening they held to mark her retirement as Commissioner.

"This can happen to you" were the opening remarks of Brown Owl Watkin as she spoke to the Guides and Brownies, referring to the trip which she was selected to take with the Ontario Guides, who will spend five weeks touring Great Britain this summer. She urged the girls to prepare themselves now, so that when the opportunity arises they will be qualified to make application for international camp or trips such as the one she is about to make.

After welcoming the mothers, Division camp adviser Ada Steenburg told of her camping plans for the summer and of how the camp at Waupoos is conducted; and, in the capacity of a Guide Captain, she told the mothers that unless more women volunteer to be leaders, the Brownies flying - up into Guides this year would have to be turned away as is the present the Guide Company did not have sufficient number of Guiders. She also thanked the caterers, who are members of the Relief Society, for the delicious cold plate served.

TRIBUTE PAID

Guide Maureen Thompson paid the tribute to the mothers, which was acknowledged by Mrs. Piwowarsk.

Mrs. Dorothy Wagner, Brown Owl, who is leaving Belleville, was presented with a gift on behalf of the Brownies by Leanne Moyer.

For Company 7 Eileen McBride made a presentation to Mrs. Steenburg, while Kathleen Clarey had gifts for the lieutenants, Mrs. Smith and Miss Joudwa.

As the service stars and badges were late arriving, each Guide and Brownie received a token from their respective leader.

COLOR FILM SHOWN

A color film of the International Centenal at Doe Lake in 1957 was shown which re-echoed the words of Mrs. Watkins. Guides from many countries wearing their native costumes and singing songs of their homelands, plus Canadian camping at its best, were most impressive to the viewers.

The evening was concluded with a short program by harmonizing Guides who sang the songs brought back to Belleville by the girls who had attended the Doe Lake music camp last summer.

Eastminster U.C.W. Plans Fowl Bar-B-Q.

As the ladies of Eastminster U.C.W. gathered for their final meeting before the holidays, each unit was busy making plans for the summer's activities, the immediate one being the chicken barbecue which is to be held at the church late this week, outside if weather permits, inside should it rain.

All units met together in the downstairs auditorium, first for a most impressive and thought provoking devotional period conducted by the ladies of unit 6.

From the Scripture story of the widow's mite and a lovely account of the making of a stained glass church window by an artist it was shown how each woman has a certain place and a certain responsibility in her own U.C.W.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP

The highlight of the evening followed the devotional when the ladies were greatly pleased at the presentation by Mrs. L. Read of an honorary life membership in the U.C.W. to Mrs. J. W. Flatt who had done so much to assist her husband, Rev. J. W. Flatt, in establishing the congregation of Eastminster Church.

Announcements were made concerning the chicken barbecue and the annual tea and bake sale in November.

Mrs. J. Williams reported on the proceeds of the rummage sale and Mrs. George Maybee on the sale of cook books.

Appeals were made for canvassers for the United Appeal on October 16; for additional teachers in Sunday School and for three more leaders for C.G.I.T. camp at Quin-Mo-Lac.

The ladies of unit 6 served a refreshing light lunch before the units went to the various rooms in the church for their individual meetings. An hour later, they again assembled in the main room for benediction.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

The next time you engage in serious conversation with a friend, colleague or co-worker, examine your language and see if you are dotted with the most infected with a contagious virus which rages in epidemic form.

One cannot pick up a daily newspaper without being dramatically aware of the singular role which this infection plays in human affairs. It is the plague of deception.

A misleading, half-true advertisement; a report of some local political "swindle", an "objective announcement of the financial position of some nondescript business corporation; an official denial by a head of state regarding some international complication; all of these, and many more, are clear examples of the manner in which the public is mercilessly beguiled. Bewitched, bothered and bewildered, are we! And in self-defense, the victim — perhaps unwittingly — discovers that he, too, can play the same game.

In virtually every area of human affairs the so-called Nineteenth Commandment has become a major obsession. It reads: "Thou shalt not get caught!" The result is clear: most of us come to live by a new, defensive imperative: "Suspect thy neighbor, as thyself."

Often, when we innocently talk to another person we suddenly are overwhelmed by a curious suspicion that he is reading more of our thoughts than we are revealing in words. The suspicion quickly gives birth to fright, and fright to an irrational desire to veil the truth, to put it far out of view.

Truth tells: if we will not tell it, it tells itself. There are no iron curtains high enough to shut out the light which shines from from mind to mind, despite earnest desires to shield it from sight.

Of course, the deceit of others and self-deceit inevitably go hand in hand. If, to begin with, we were incapable of fooling ourselves, we could not, for very long, deceive others; we would, soon enough, laugh away our own follies. But while we seem quite expert at "seeing through" someone else's deceits, many do we cast a glance inwardly to catch a glimpse of self-deceits, hard at work.

This is our trouble: we deceive ourselves into the false belief that no one sees though us, and then by heartbreaking ourselves against the probe of others, we will never be discovered. The truth, however, lies in the opposite direction. Human minds are translucent. Even the man in the street can tell you what the president, the premier, or the secretary are really saying, try as these may to hide the truth.

Yet P. T. Barnum's cynicism — "a sucker is born every minute" — is equally true. While we are victimized by our powerful drives toward self-deception, we also have strong desires to be believed by others. Consequently, our wish to appear credible often forces us to accept the other fellow at face value. Ultimately, we catch up with deception — we get the point — but often, not before we have invested and lost our faith in the other man's integrity.

Always, a tug-of-war goes on within us. Shall we beguile others, before they successfully fool us? Or shall we believe them, since we too ought to be believed? Moral codes of all religions, have always contended against giving in to the evil inclination of man's imagination, and they urge us to truth-telling and honest-dealing.

But it was not until the advent of depth psychology that we were given the human not only the divine reasons, for the pursuit of integrity. With the insights of this new knowledge we can clearly observe how virtue and human necessity converge.

"It may cause general astonishment," wrote Sigmund Freud, "to learn how much stronger is the impluse to tell the truth than is usually supposed".

From the point of view of mental health, psychiatrists are now teaching what religious men have previously preached, on faith. They say: The more mature and penetrating his insight into the deep workings of personality, the more one becomes convinced of the practical futility of trying to fool oneself or others. When we understand the activity of our falsely-motivated egos and our vain desires to twist others around our untruths; when we recognize that others can "read our minds" just as easily as we can theirs, then, lying becomes more than unnecessary, it is downright foolish.

Practical men can become wiser men when they learn not to waste time coddling their own complexes, nor dissipate precious energy suspecting others.

Past Matrons OES Hold Successful Tea

WELLINGTON—On Saturday afternoon the past Matrons Club of Lakeside, Chapter No. O.E.S., Wellington, held a successful afternoon tea and food sale in the Masonic Hall. The hall was gay with spring decorations of yellow roses and white spirea.

The tea table, covered with a beautiful linen cloth, was centered with a large bouquet of beautiful flowers, consisting of red peonies, blue iris, yellow lilies, white lilacs and green leaves, all the colors of the "Star" points and silver tea services at each end.

The quartet tables, at which tea was served, were each covered with pretty cloths and centered with yellow roses and spirea.

Miss Norma Foster, Mrs. Ida McFaul, and Mrs. Ruby Vick received the fees at the door.

Mrs. Doris McFaul welcomed the many guests. Each guest was presented with a pretty flavor of a yellow rose fastened to a sample tin of face powder.

POURING TEA

The ladies pouring tea during the afternoon were: Mrs. Baker, of Trenton; Mrs. Edith Lawson, of Port Hope; Mrs. Cecelia Rawcliffe, of Cobourg; Mrs. Henrietta Hutt of Picton; Mrs. Fidelia Brown and Mrs. Ruby Fleming, of Brighton.

Mrs. Lottie Gibson, convener of the tea table, was assisted by members of Lakeside chapter to serve the dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Florence Dick and Mrs. Olive Channell were in charge of the kitchen with chapter members assisting them.

The most popular spot was the domestic table which was loaded with all kinds of baked goodies, these were all sold out in no time. Those in charge of this table were: Mrs. Davern, Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Marvin and Mrs. Burch.

Mrs. Rawcliffe drew the two lucky tickets for the door prizes. 1st went to Mrs. Hester Giles, of Centre, and the other to Mrs. Edna Pyne, of Wellington.

It was regretted that the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Jean Way was unable to attend due to illness in her family.

Strawberry Jams With A Difference

by Mary Moore

As early as April the requests for various types of strawberry jam started to arrive.

The most urgent were for strawberry jam for diabetics — that is strawberry jam made without sugar. Quite a trick if you can do it.

There were several letters asking for repeats of last year's Fresno Strawberry Jam.

To add to this list is my urge to make a combination strawberry and pineapple jam. This turned out to be so popular with everybody in the kitchen and the daily quota of visitors that even I broke training and had a whole slice of whole wheat toast slathered in 80-per-pound butter and topped with a thick ropy layer of strawberry-pineapple jam. I wish I had some under silos right here on my desk beside me.

It is simple to make too. Make some when the strawberries are at the peak of their season in your community.

STRAWBERRY AND PINEAPPLE JAM

2 1-2 cups mashed ripe strawberries, 1 20-oz. can crushed pineapple (fancy quality) 5 1-4 cups granulated sugar, 1-3 cup liquid fruit pectin. (ferlo).

Wash 1 quart strawberries in strainer under running cold water, remove hulls and let drain (or pat dry with clean towel). In flat-bottomed large saucepan mash them. (One quart measured 2 1-3 cups when I did it but you should measure your mashed berries—because some quarts are yielding higher than others.) Add the can of drained pineapple and the sugar and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to vigorous boil, stirring all the time, and allow to boil 1 minute. Remove from heat and stir in fruit pectin. Stir for 5 minutes to prevent floating fruit. Skim off any white scum which forms. Pour into sterile jam glasses. Cover at once with thin coating of new melted paraffin, adding a second coating when first is set. Cover with lids. Store in dark place.

FROZEN STRAWBERRY JAM (Uncooked) (repeated from June 14-'61 by request)

2 cups mashed strawberries, 4 cups powdered fruit (berry) sugar, 1 box (about 5 tablespoons) powdered pectin (1¾ oz. per box — certo crystals), 3-4 cup water.

Wash berries in a sieve, hull them and drain well. In a flat-bottom pan mash them, and measure 2 cups (you will need a little less than 1 quart of berries). Add the berry sugar, stir very well and let stand 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile mix together the water and powdered pectin and cook, stirring until they come to a hard boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Immediately add to fruit-sugar mixture and stir for 3 minutes. Pour into clean dry 8-oz. jars to within ¼-inch from top (to allow for possible expansion when frozen).

Cover with lids at once. Let stand at room temperature 24 hours. Store in freezer. If this jam is to be used within 2 or 3 weeks it will keep in storage part of refrigerator — not frozen. The bright red color is beautiful. This jam has the concentrated taste of fresh strawberries.

Important note to diabetic patients — Please see Monday, June 18th for recipe for Sugar-less Strawberry Jam.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

PROBLEMS OF THE CAREER WOMAN

So you think a career woman has an easy time of it?

If she's a working mother, in addition to handling the numerous details of her job, chances are she's also worried that the baby strayed away from the nursemaid in the park and calls the house on the hour to check. Then there's also the problem of personal upkeep — she has to get her hair set once a week and a new dress at least every season to keep up appearances.

But, as if that weren't enough, she also has to solve problems connected with that ancient organizational ritual called the "business lunch." If she's taking another woman to lunch, the problem is cancelled. But, if it's a man, it's a worry.

There are very definite points of etiquette involved. First of all, the invitation has to leave no doubt that the career woman is footing the bill. If there's transportation involved — say, they meet in his office to sign a contract, then take a cab to the restaurant — who pays? Then, even though the man knows he's not paying for lunch, how does Madam Careerist take care of the cheque so he won't be made to look or feel foolish?

We know many career women who have a knack for handling such situations with complete ease, charm and tact. If you're ever faced with the problem, here's how some experts have solved it with a masterful touch.

One woman we know always tries to bring along a male executive from her firm, so there can be no doubt about who's picking up the tab. If this fails, she tosses the invitation in her employer's name: "Mr. Potter can't join us, but he wants you to be my guest for lunch at the Four-in-Hand Restaurant."

Once a man accepts a luncheon invitation, then the woman careerist has to do some behind-the-scenes manoeuvering to keep the cheque from falling into the wrong hands. Many have a favorite restaurant where they're known and can count on having the bill, with tip added, sent to the office for accounting. A cheque is never presented at the table, and at the end of the luncheon, all she has to do is smile sweetly and suggest they leave.

A number of women have charge accounts at a few restaurants, and arrange in advance by phone to sign on the way out. This is done unobtrusively while her guest collects his hat and coat from the check room.

Several career women we know take their men guests to private clubs, where only they can sign, anyway. Since this is an accepted custom, the man is not nonplussed if the chit is signed at the table, and the luncheon is concluded satisfactorily and gracefully.

Oh, yes. Back to that cab, if transportation is needed to or from the luncheon site, who pays? My informants agreed to a woman that the man should. This is one privilege you just can't take away from him.

DIRECTS CAMPAIGNING — Mrs. Robert Thompson, wife of the national Social Credit party leader, sits at her desk at party headquarters in Red Deer, Alta., where she co-ordinates the campaign for her husband for the June 18 election. Mr. Thompson is contesting Red Deer constituency. Mrs. Thompson, mother of eight children, will join her husband for meetings in Calgary and Vancouver. (CP Photo).

Socred Leader's Wife Attends to Constituency, Home as Hubby Away

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Quiet and unassuming, Mrs. Robert N. Thompson helps make her husband's cross-country political campaign a family affair.

While the national leader of the Social Credit party stumps across the country, Mrs. Thompson stokes the home constituency political fires.

As office co-ordinator in the party's headquarters for the Red Deer constituency where her husband is seeking election, she finds the pace hectic but exciting.

With her office duties and the responsibilities of family life, Mrs. Thompson has been unable to accompany her husband on much of his campaign, but for the late stages of the campaign she was to join him for a rally in Calgary and another in Vancouver.

It was expected their daughter Alice, 20, would also join him on the last legs of the campaign trail. Alice has been attending the Prairie Bible Institute at Three Hills, Alta., and intends to follow the steps her father marked earlier as a missionary.

FAMILY EFFORT

With her husband, Mrs. Thompson was part of a team of nine who went to Ethiopia in 1943 to assist in that country's rehabilitation.

For 15 years the family remained in Africa, the last six years being spent in charge of a leprosy mission to African natives.

Five of the Thompsons' eight children were born in Africa.

With her husband's election as national leader of the Social Credit party, a new phase of work opened for Mrs. Thompson and her family. With characteristic vigor, she pitched into the task of helping wherever she could.

As office co-ordinator of constituency headquarters here, she handles bulky correspondence chores and helps oversee the efforts of key workers in the constituency.

WARY OBSERVER

Does she enjoy the political battle? Yes, and no, she says.

She enjoys studying human nature. She said she can almost see the minds of the politicians working—but admits they hold some surprises, too.

In the battle of words during the campaign, she feels the emphasis is wrong when it's placed on personalities.

"People so often look to human beings instead of principles," she said. "Principles and truth remain, but human beings can always fail."

She feels there is livelier interest in the election now, "more so than in any other federal election, and it's picking up across Canada."

Watching the pace and complexion of the campaign, she said:

"It's like a horse race, with four good horses, and you never know which one will come in first—on a national level. But in the constituency—we're sure of our horse."

WEATHER WOMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — One of the few practising weatherwomen is Pat Grossmith, who joined the all-male meteorological staff at Dorval a few months ago. Born in Shanghai, she came to Vancouver with her parents as a child and graduated from University of British Columbia in 1959 in honors physics and mathematics. She took her master's degree in meteorology at University of Toronto in 1960.

Disagrees About Common Law

DORIS CLARKE

DEAR DORIS—I certainly don't agree with you on the advice you gave "Worried and Nerve Wracked." Since you're probably happily married you don't think anyone who is separated should be trusted.

I've been separated from my husband for eight years and the way it looks now I may never be free to marry again because they enacted the stupid laws in Canada. So we have decided to live common law. What else is a person supposed to do? You have to disgrace yourself by committing adultery in order to get a divorce.

Why can't they make husbands support their children if they won't agree to divorce? I'm sure lucky no one advised my future husband not to trust me. We've been going steady for five years so we know what we want and I'm almost thirty. Why wait?

I don't care if I get my divorce when I'm fifty. By then I'm ready for the grave. Who wants company then?—DISGUSTED.

* * *

DEAR DISGUSTED—Agreed that our divorce laws need renovating. Agreed that fathers can get out from under too easily.

Also agreed that high quality love and loyalty can exist between two people living common law. But going against convention deprives children of status and women of any leg to stand on. To engage in this type of liaison it's wise to count the cost. Here's hoping you find it worth while.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I am 14 and have never been kissed by a boy. My girl friend's cousin asked me to go to a certain wedding because he will have the car. I know for a fact that during lunch we will go to the car and start kissing.

Please tell me how I should act and how do you kiss a boy? When do you know he wants to kiss you? I have gotten away from being kissed about ten times, but this time I want to be kissed by this certain boy.—NEVER BEEN KISSED.

* * *

DEAR NEVER—If you haven't done it, don't do it. While lunch is on, be eating it—in the dining room or wherever others are.

No young lady deliberately lets herself in for a necking session—unless she wants to be talked about.

* * *

TO GENTLE FINGERS—There is no university course that I know of in massage. But find out about physiotherapy. With your capable hands and strong sympathy, this fine new profession may be just the ticket—to happiness in a career.

"Physics" use hands, head, powers of persuasion, to bring life back into injured limbs and hope back into hearts. Many such jobs are going begging right now.

* * *

(There's an answer for you and a Canadian resource which can help. Write to Doris for guidance.)

Young Couple Honored at Presentation

IVANHOE—A large number of friends and neighbors gathered in Ivanhoe Town Hall on Wednesday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. David Fleming.

Mr. John McInroy acted as chairman for the program. Community singing was led by Mr. Reg Haggerty with Mrs. Haggerty at the piano; solo - "To a Bride", Miss Paige Benson; reading - "And So Was I", by Miss Margaret Wright; piano solo - "By the Light of the Jungle Moon", by Mrs. Arthur Hassall, and readings - by Miss Margaret Wright.

A short play arranged by Mrs. Harold Thompson and Mrs. John McInroy with those taking part: Mr. David McMaster; Mr. David Fargey; Mrs. George Wood; and Mrs. Milton Shaw.

David and Sheila were given seats of honor, an address was read by Mr. David McMaster. The presentation of an electric kettle, fry-pan, toaster and coffee pot arranged on a utility cart, stainless steel cutlery and dishes was made.

Following expressions of thanks and appreciation by the honored couple, refreshments were served.

Wife Preservers

Leftover cooked meats and meat dishes keep best if they are cooled quickly. Placing the container in cold water will help accomplish this. Cover or wrap loosely, refrigerate immediately and use within a couple of days.

U.C.W. Meetings

SPRINGBROOK UCW

Springbrook UCW met at the church on June 7th. Quiet music was played by Mrs. H. Hazlett. The president, Mrs. R. Wellman, welcomed the guests and members.

The worship period was conducted by Mrs. R. McKeown using the theme, "The Church of Christ."

Mrs. H. Pillen conducted a Bible study on "Gifts of the Spirit" taken from I. Corinthians 12:4-11. She stressed the problems of Paul and Barnabas in establishing a congregation at Corinth and of a "dream in their hearts of preaching to the whole wide world. Two of the questions discussed were: Do we have a weakness in our church groups? and, Are we preparing our youth of today? The president thanked Mrs. Pillen for her Bible study discussion.

CARDS-CALLS

The members were asked about the cards and calls made. The sick and the visiting committee was composed of Mrs. H. Pillen and Mrs. R. McKeown; the latter reported a number of calls were made during the past month.

The secretary read an invitation to go to Rylstone on June 13th. Cards of thanks were read from Mrs. P. Bateman, Mrs. A. McIlroy, Mrs. K. Thompson and Mrs. J. Thompson. A letter was read concerning the conference to be held at Whitby, August 20-24. Mrs. G. Broadsword reported on the "Fun Fair" planned to be held June 29th. Sigma UCW is responsible for a ball game, COTT for the fish pond.

The Junior Bible Class is to have a bake table and the UCW are to supply strawberries and ice cream. Mrs. M. Bateman and Mrs. R. Thompson are in charge of refreshments.

The treasurer reported on the sale at Hickson's Sale Barn and in her report showed a good bank balance.

Mrs. G. Thompson reported on the needs of the manse.

Mrs. C. Sine introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. G. Carlisle, saying it was an honor to welcome back a Springbrook girl.

Last year, she was the president of the WMS. Mrs. Carlisle spoke on "Missions." Her text was taken from 1st John, 5th verse, and she said the word mission meant a body of persons sent out on a mission.

The president thanked Mrs. G. Carlisle.

Mrs. C. Burkitt read a note of thanks, and Mrs. A. Reid presented her with a gift.

Mrs. G. Broadworth read an address to Mrs. H. Hutchinson and Mrs. R. McKeown presented her with a lovely cornflower plate, as she is leaving Springbrook community. She thanked the UCW for the remembrance.

Refreshments were served by the executive and a social half hour spent. Mr. H. Pillen pronounced the benediction.

Student Hopes To Become Veterinarian

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five Marcia Tessier, second - year agriculture student at the University of British Columbia, classes start at 5 a.m.

At that time she is grooming, feeding, watering and walking the horses at Lansdowne race track, 25 miles from the university.

She is acquiring practical experience in handling and caring for horses — she hopes to become a veterinarian — and is earning money to put herself through university.

Marcia leaves the track at 8:15 a.m. after a quick change and heads for UBC. After school she hitch - hikes to Lansdowne again and remains until 5:30 p.m.

St. Joseph's C.W.L. Plans Fall Bazaar

The June meeting of St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League was opened with prayer by the president, Mrs. V. Muldoon.

Mrs. Hibig, the education convener asked all the ladies to save their used postage stamps during the summer. They will be turned over to St. Joseph's School in the fall to aid the school in its missionary work. She also stressed the importance of encouraging the children to use the libraries this summer and to help the children in reading worthwhile books.

Mrs. Carr-Brwint the convener reported on the "Spring Tea" held by St. Joseph's C.W.L. in April, and thanked all the ladies who contributed to its success.

C. G. REGISTRATION

The Brownie and Guide convener, Mrs. Collyer, announced that registration for a Girl Guide Pack will take place on June 13, at the parish hall. This new pack will be under the leadership of Mrs. Jarvah and Mrs. Collyer and they urge all teen-age girls to attend in order to train as patrol leaders.

Reports of the convention, held in Belleville, June 3, and 4th, were given by Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Muldoon, Mrs. Hibig, Mrs. Carr-Brwint and Mrs. Labelle. They said that it was most interesting and one of the best they had ever attended.

At the convention each council was asked to send three gifts to the Eskimos at Holman Island. It was decided that the members to contribute books, sweets and knitted goods. Mrs. Labelle is taking charge of collecting the books and anyone wishing to contribute to this gift, should call her.

The conveners for the fall bazaar are, Mrs. Bierne and Mrs. Hibig. They reported that they have the various booth conveners chosen and they are as follows: candy — Mrs. Collyer; fish pond—Mrs. Forernbo; sewing — Mrs. Kinney, Mrs. Hankey and Mrs. Belanger; Christmas —Mrs. Keeley; baking — Mrs. Meagher and Mrs. Maund; aprons — Mrs. Kirby and Mrs. Priestly; raffle; Mrs. Labelle; knitting — Mrs. Hanley, and Mrs. Pilon; parcel post — Mrs. Tugnet and Mrs. Flemming.

Anyone wishing to contribute to any of the booths should get in touch with the convener.

It was decided that all ladies attending the September meeting bring three gifts of ten cents or more to aid the fish pond. A great many gifts will be needed this fall at the fish pond and the co-operation of all the parishioners is urged that no child will be disappointed.

Mrs. Labelle and Mrs. Carr-Brwint are going to visit the County Home for the Aged during the week of June 11th.

TALENT MONEY

"Talent Money" a fun way to raise funds for the league was presented by Mrs. Carr-Brwint and Mrs. Muldoon. The idea is for every lady in the parish to earn $3 during the summer months by using their talents and gifts. All the members heartily approved of this idea and a recommendation that the various ways and means of earning this money by the ladies be reported at the fall meeting.

The meeting was closed with prayer led by Mrs. Muldoon.

$1,000,000.00 Additional Revenue For Farmers

Installation of a new quick freeze system at the Trenton Cold Storage plant will mean an estimated $1,000,000 per year additional revenue for Belleville and Trenton district farmers. A federal government grant obtained by Lee Grills as member for Hastings South will make the installation possible. This year an additional 1,000 acres of peas will be grown in the Bay of Quinte district for processing at the Trenton plant, vegetables and apples will also be frozen. Seen discussing the potential benefit of the quick freeze plant to district farmers are Mr. Grills (with hat) and employees of the Canadian Canners plant at Foxboro. Left to right are Don Moran, George Rikley, Ernie Reid, plant superintendent, Mr. Grills, Morley Phillips and Art Bradshaw.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Louis G. — We went to see them, not their children.

• • •

Louis G. — Ralph and I are lifelong friends. We went to school together and even served in Korea in the same infantry battalion. Although he married first, I was always welcome at his home and I'd bring along my girl friends on dates when we made it a foursome. He was best man at my wedding a few months after his own.

Now, after ten years, we're out of touch. Why? Not because we don't see each other, but because we can't see them without their three children. Since my wife and I are childless, we come as adults and pals. Ralph and May are eternally Mommy and Poppy, busy with lollipops and kiddy scrapbbies. I'm sure if they tried they could manage an occasional date with us, like the old days.

• • •

Ralph C. — Not having children of his own, Lou thinks he and I should be able to continue at the same old stand in the same relationship we had as kids. If he and Lois were parents themselves they'd realize how children change things.

To us they come first. We're not going to up and desert them every time Lou feels like having some fun with us. Those kids are just part of us now and where we go, they go. Anyone who wants to see us, sees them, too. They're polite and beautiful children, in fact they're better company than a great many adults we know who just sit around and complain.

I certainly prize Lou's friendship. But he can't expect me to lock my family when we meet. Whatever we say can be said in front of them, too.

• • •

The Council: One of the ageold tests of true love, as phrased by John Heywood — a sixteenth century epigrammatist — was "Love me love my dog." More explicitly the idea is that when you love somebody you must accept all that comes with him — his problems as well as his charms. That's the deal Ralph is invoking, a package deal. "Want to keep on being my friend?" is his ultimatum to Louis. "Then you'll have to get used to seeing me surrounded by my wife and children constantly from now on."

Our sympathies are with Louis. We've all met adults who use children and grandchildren as a sort of shield around themselves. You can't get to first base with these friends because of all the interference which, incidentally, they encourage. You wonder whether they're afraid to face other adults, and "screw up" the kids as red herring, distraction lest the conversation get around to themselves. They'd rather not talk shoulder-to-shoulder. The children make swell decoys.

This ruse seems unfair to childless couples like Louis and his wife. It's certainly hard on unmarried friends, too, and on silent bright couples who may be parents themselves but who realize the world is filled with a number of other interesting topics.

Let's lay it on the line, Ralph. When you talk of your children you're talking of yourself and that can become boring, especially to people without children who'd like a chance to talk about themselves a little. They can only purr over your darlings for a limited time. After so, dragging the youngsters around to adult gatherings isn't good for anybody. Either beg off and stay home, or look into the noble institution of baby sitting.

To Louis we'd suggest this: If Ralph continues to use his offspring as "bodyguard" to keep you at your distance, regard it as a form of brush-off. He may regret this foreshortening of his social contacts. But it's obviously his own choice. He could manage to meet you on an adult level if he wanted to. That would be much harder for him, perhaps.

Friends Honor Bride-to-Be With Showers

STIRLING—Mrs. Bill Morgan entertained about 30 ladies at the home of her mother Mrs. Floyd Armstrong in honor of Miss Marilyn Rose, previous to her marriage last Saturday.

A bride's book had been compiled and each guest signed their autograph.

The evening was spent in a hilarious array of games and novelty stunts, appropriate readings and piano solos concluded the program.

The bride-to-be was seated in a decorated chair and the hostess read an appropriate address. Marilyn unwrapped the large array of miscellaneous parcels after which she voiced thanks for both party and gifts.

The hostess and her mother served a salad plate luncheon.

CENTENARY

Talk on Witch Doctor Heard At Club Meet

CENTENARY — On Friday evening the Fellowship Club held its regular meeting in the church hall with a good attendance of members and also some visitors. Worship service was led by Edna and Don Thompson, Don reading the Scripture Edna read an article on what it means to a child also to the community to have a good Christian home.

Byron Harder, president, led in a short business period.

Elwin Hart introduced the guest speaker, Kofie Amoonakwah, of Ghana, Africa, who is attending Medical College in Alberta and, is at present, staying with Mr. Harvey Putman. His topic was "The Advent of the Witch Doctor in Africa", which was most interesting.

Several questions were asked which Kofie answered showing the different way of life in Africa to that of Canada.

Keith Johnston thanked Kofie for coming.

Recreation was enjoyed led by Keith Johnston.

Lunch was served by the group in charge.

TWEED

Boy Scouts Enjoy Week's Camping

TWEED—The Boy Scouts of Tweed, under the leadership of Don Hodgins, enjoyed a weekend of camping at Marinaw Lake. On Saturday a 14 mile canoe trip was enjoyed by the boys.

All ten of the Scouts passed several tests to earn proficiency badges. On Saturday evening, the boys had a marshmallow roast by the lake.

On Sunday morning the boys attended church service in Cloyne and Flinton and returned home Sunday afternoon about five, tired after a most enjoyable weekend.

Don Hodgins is a Queen's Scout and well capable of handling such outings, but states that more help from interested people would be appreciated.
